Henry C. Diers left Monday for Troy, Ohio, to superintend the packing of his large spring shipment of nursery stock at the Farmers' Nursery, and expects to deliver to the various points of Kentucky and Ohio within the next couple of weeks.

John W. Sasser and Arthur J. Williams, of Elliston Station, spent Saturday here with friends. Mr. Sasser was elected a director of the Equitable Bank and Trust Co. that day, having been identified with the bank since its beginning.

He is in the general merchandise business at Elliston $30,000 worth of goods last year, showing that he is a wideawake merchant.

Harry Jones, son of Richard Jones, who moved from Walton to Sandfordtown, Kenton county, a couple of years ago, died at the Lakeland insane asylum, last Thursday, where he had been confined. The remains were brought here and the funeral took place last Saturday, Rev. A. K. Johnson of the Baptist church conducting the service. He leaves a widow but no children.

Ben B. Alphin returned last week from Florida after a sojourn there of several months. His health has been thoroughly recuperated and he is now going to resume active work in the livestock business as the representative of L. C. Riddle & Co. of Cincinnati. While in Florida, Alphin spent most of his time at Cloud with Owen S. Watts, who reports as prospering in his real estate business.

H. F. Wood, the enterprising merchant at Napoleon, Gallatin Co., passed thru here Tuesday from Cincinnati in his new auto truck with which he expects to make trips weekly to Cincinnati transporting his produce, as well as doing his general trading on the road. It is a very convenient means of handling his business and Mr. Wood believes he will make money by the investment. The truck cost $1,000. Mr. Wood was accompanied by his son Frank Wood who will operate the truck.

Miss Willella Hance, who took the civil service examination for the position of postmaster at Walton, desires us to correct the statement made in the last issue that the successful applicant, A. K. Johnson, made the best general average. Miss Hance states that she had the highest average, A. Ralph Edwards, second and Mr. Johnson third. Under the civil service rules the Congressman has the privilege of selecting anyone of the first three obtaining the highest average. For the appointment, and Congressman Rouse selected Mr. Johnson.

"FAGGED-OUT" WOMEN

Will Find Help in This Letter.

Overworked, run down, "fagged out" women who feel as though they could hardly drag about, should profit by Mrs. Brill's experience.

She says: "I was in a very weak, run-down condition. Life was not worth living. I could not sleep, was very nervous, stomach bad, and was not able to work."

"I consulted with one or two physicians, without benefit. I read of Vinol helping some one in a similar condition so I began to take it, and it simply did wonders for me. I gained in weight and I am now in better health and stronger than ever. I can not find words enough to praise Vinol."

"Mrs. W. H. Brill, Racine, Wis. P. S.—For thorough, really skin, try our Sazo Salve. We guarantee it."

The Postmaster General has devised a plan whereby he expects to reduce the high cost of living through the parcels post. His plan is to bring the producer and consumer in direct communication by having the postoffice employees secure the names and addresses of producers, and make them available to the consumers in large cities. By the use of the list thus secured, the city consumer will be enabled to get in direct communication with the farmer, who will be able to fill his weekly orders for butter, eggs and other farm produce. This plan will be inaugurated in numerous cities. It will be extended as rapidly as possible to all parts of the United States. If this plan is put in operation, which it undoubtedly will, the patrons of rural routes in Boone county will have to exercise great care in their use of the route, as an improvement in the route is their very burden their carriers.

EDGE CASE

Is Dismissed in Franklin Circuit Court—Disclaimer Made.

Frankfort, Ky., April 9.—Attorney Leslie W. Morris was retained by the Commonwealth in the case against J. A. Edge, of Lexington, charged with false swearing, Monday asked that the case be dismissed. The order was entered following an argument whereby Edge made a statement disavowing any intention to bring the case before the court. An affidavit he filed in the Franklin Circuit Court some time ago, charging that Judge Stout was biased and prejudiced against him.

The case has attracted widespread attention on the account of the prominence of the parties concerned and at the last term of the circuit court when it was up on motion for a change of venue Edge was represented by A. Floyd Byrd, of Lexington; J. W. Douglas, of Owenton, and L. Frank Johnson, of Louisville. The Attorney Victor A. Bradley of Georgetown, was prosecuting witness in the case with Judge Stout and Leslie Morris were named to conduct the trial for the Commonwealth. Judge J. W. Cammack, of Owenton, occupying the bench. More than a hundred witnesses were summoned at the last term to testify that Edge could secure a fair trial in the case in this county but after lengthy argument by the attorneys the case was passed until this term by Judge Cammack. Meanwhile the disclaimer was made by Edge and an agreement or disclaimer entered into.

R. O. RYLE, President.

DR. F. L. PEDDICORD

Appointed Superintendent of Central State Hospital at Lakeland.

Dr. F. L. Peddicord who has just been appointed Superintendent of Central State Hospital at Lakeland, Ky., began the practice of medicine in Pendleton county. Shortly after the death of Dr. Barrett of Mt. Auburn Dr. Peddicord took up his practice having cord moved to Boone county. Here he built up a fine country practice attaining prominence as a general practitioner. Shortly after McCreary became governor Peddicord was appointed to the position of First Assistant Physician at Lakeland and now succeeds Dr. Gardine as Superintendent of the institution.

Dr. Peddicord was born and reared at Berlin in Bracken county, which is within ten miles of Falmouth. He has many friends here who are glad to learn of his advancement.—Pendletonian Absurd Prejudices.

The Fulton Leader makes the following sane observations about the relations that should prevail between residents of the county and dwellers in the towns: "The time has passed in Kentucky or anywhere in this section when the people in the country can be influenced by the old-time efforts of the demagogue to array them against the people in town. The town needs the country, and the country needs the town. They are mutually helpful to each other. No spirit might have had some effect forty years ago, but in this age of telephones, rural routes carrying the daily word of the world to every neighborhood in the country, the people are too well informed and up-to-date to give any thought to such a thing. The man who would attempt such a scheme ought to be bored for the simple."

This is all true as preaching. There used to be a lot of absurd prejudice of this kind, but it is less and less in evidence as the years go by. The town and the country are interdependent and there is no reason why the utmost cordiality should not exist between them.—State Journal.

Executive Traveling Bugs.

When former Presidents Roosevelt and Taft were in the White House they educated the American people to expect them to "get around and call" every year or two. Both men and especially Mr. Taft—had a fondness for making "sawings around the circle."

The advisers of President Wilson have tried to keep him from going to get him to go to Panama, and now they insist that he should go to Alaska, or at the very least to the Hawaiian Islands. The President is not a man to be easily misled by the millions of "original Wilson men," and the rest of the voters and explain to him the accomplishments of the Administration. President Wilson is entirely unlike his predecessors, inasmuch as he does not care to travel very much. As a platform speaker he is one of the best that the country has produced in recent years, and those who have cast their fortunes with him are most anxious that he should go out into the byways and hedges and impress a personality upon the masses. The President may decide to make a trip during the summer and fall, but it is safe to say that it will not be because of his personal inclination inasmuch as he has been clearly pointed out that he prefers the comforts of the White House, and likes nothing better than to remain there and stick to his job.

A Sad Death.

Mrs. Ben F. Jarrell, of Petersburg, was fumigating a couch about 10:30 a. m., last Thursday, using a shovel with sulphur on it. She pushed the shovel under the couch when the drapery on the side next to the wall caught fire which was communicated to the lace window curtains. In Mrs. Jarrell's attempt to put out the lower part of her dress skirt caught and the blaze ascended almost instantly to her head. The unfortunate woman ran out of the house, going to Mrs. M. Botts's, whose residence is in a few steps of her home. There water was thrown on her and blankets were thrown over her. The funeral was conducted last Sunday afternoon. The husband, who has the sympathy of all, is almost prostrated by grief. Jarrell was a Miss Henley and has a large circle of relatives in Petersburg and vicinity. The residence was on the corner of the time arrival of the persons attracted by Mrs. Jarrell's screams prevented its destruction.

For Sale—Goulding Carriage in good condition, cost $350, will sell for $50 Geo. C. Goode, Covington, Ky.

A Great Work.

The House of Representatives has vindicated the good faith of the American people by its decision yesterday to abandon toll exemptions.

It has given new value to every written treaty of our own, or of other nations, and so establish peace on a stronger foundation.

It has refused to be moved by the follies of the passing demagogue. It has rejected the sophistical reasoning of his former Speaker and the unworthy contentions of Mr. Underwood.

The country has surrendered no rights of sovereignty. It has passed the control of the canal to no other country; to no alliance of countries.

It has not permitted a shipping monopoly to raid the treasury or dishonor a great work.

Democrats have upheld the traditions and the principles of our party, and have vindicated their right to govern in the name of the people.

The domination of Tammany Hall, shaken at Baltimore, has been shattered at Washington.

The Progressives, falsely so-called, have made their alliance with Tammany and gone into camp to surrender to Canon. They wear the shackles of privilege, vote for subsidies and repudiate the honors by Hay in his diplomatic career.

The people of all parties have been betrayed by their party leaders; Murdock joins Mann and Underwood and Fitzgerald and Clark, and leadership in the House, turn to the President, while a new generation of young Democrats steps forward to give or to take orders as the people determine.

In 1912 no mistake was made at Baltimore, and none at the polls in November. Wilson was chosen as he by the instinct of the governing people. Republicans in the House regret that Clark was not nominated, and Progressives mourn that Roosevelt was not chosen, but the people see their choice vindicated by the unflinching course of Woodrow Wilson, who in an ever-changing world of circumstance guides the nation by paths made plain by never-changing laws.—Louisville Post.

War Averted is a Triumph.

The great triumph of President Wilson lies in the fact that he has kept us from the terrible calamity of war. He has done all that he could to persuade the Mexican leaders to adopt a compromise plan and cease their civil strife. He has not been guilty of neglecting Americans and he has from the very beginning done all that he could to persuade our citizens to withdraw from the area of storm and danger. He is in a position to have done more keenly than most other Americans the full extent of the sufferings of our own citizens south of the Rio Grande. He is concluding himself with the same kind of patience and dignity upon criticism that President Lincoln showed again and again in his difficult work. Great opportunities were created in Mexico by outside capitalists upon a basis of false hope and security. That all legitimate investments may in the long run be conserved is indeed a just and reasonable wish, and a proper object of influence and effort. But it is not the business of our government to follow adventurers or speculators into unstable or revolutionary countries, with the idea of guaranteeing their project at the cost of the treasure and blood of those who pursue less adventurous careers here at home.—The Freeman of the World, in the American Review of Reviews for April.

NEW RAILROAD.

The first actual step in the construction of the new $3,000,000 Cincinnati, Indiana and Louisville Railroad which Cincinnati capital is planning to open up the farming territory between this city and Madison, Ind., will be taken today. E. F. Leyman, Cincinnati Civil Engineer, will head a party of railroad surveyors and engineers in making a tour of the proposed route. The object of the inspection is to make possible the immediate submission of proposals and bids by railroad contractors. It is planned to begin construction on the 85 miles of track at the earliest possible moment, not later than July 1. The route passes through Mt. Vernon, Lawrenceburg, Aurora, Veay and other intervening towns. It is probable that all Cincinnati labor will be used in the construction of the new road. Incorporation under the laws of Indiana, with capital stock of $2,500,000, will be made in a few days, it is said.—Enquirer April 10.

President Wilson's Panama Canal policy has given the Democratic party a considerable jump on the other hand. It has knocked a large corner off of the Republican party, and the great danger that the Democrats are in now is that the two wings of the Republican party may use the canal question as the plank upon which to unite this fall in the Congressional elections, making the control of the next House doubtful.

The tobacco crop in the rich Fulton district will bring about $600,000 to the growers this season, which is a considerable amount to turn loose in the surrounding section for one crop.—Fulton Leader.

During the past two weeks more robberies have been committed in Kentucky than within the same months previous. It is believed the trouble is caused by the several hundred convicts just liberated from the Kentucky prisons under the indeterminate sentence law.—Danville Messenger.

There are no worms or grubs in the bronze eaters in the dining room of the Phoenix Hotel. A very much disgusted woodpecker discovered the fact Monday morning after making a circuit of the room and viciously tapping each one of the fixtures. How the bird got into the dining room no one knows, but it also made its appearance when no one was looking, but for several hours it patiently made the rounds of the room to the entertainment of the guests.—Lexington Leader.

According to a news item from that county, the Henderson growers are planning to grow a bumper crop of tobacco. If the market goes to pieces and low prices prevail again, the farmers will have nobody to blame but themselves. The strongest farm organization cannot force the buyers to pay good prices for a surplus, because there are too many growers who are unable to hold their tobacco off the market in a game of freeze out with the trader. If the crop is limited to the actual demand, and the growers grow a bumper crop, they can control the situation; otherwise they cannot. The only way to reduce the supply to the demand is to decrease the acreage.—Owensboro Inquirer.

Monday was a big day at Benton. It was not only the beginning of Circuit Court, but was County Court day and "Tater-day."

There were probably 135 loads of sweet potatoes lined up around the public square, selling at an agreed price of $1 per bushel. It was estimated that there were about 5,000 bushels of sweet potatoes on the ground, a large number of which were sold before the day was gone.

Wagons, containing sweet potatoes, began to arrive at Benton Sunday afternoon and continued until Monday morning about nine o'clock. They were there from Alloway, Marshall, Graves, McCracken, Carlisle, Bagdad and some counties in West Tennessee. These potatoes were sold out in small quantities from the peck on to two bushels.—Mayfield Messenger.

Maj. Horatio Picklin and his side partner in the gentle art of remembering dates and famous happenings, Col. Geo. E. Eitel, reminded the Ledger that it is just forty-two years ago since the big "grow drunk" occurred in Mayville. Lots of people make the men drink all the booze. But the two above named Mayville citizens say that 42 years ago a big drove of cattle passed at the Fogue & Duke distillery, then situated just above the foot of Limestone street, got into a lot of high wine and after filling up to the horns on the booze were being drunk and indulged in the bovine tango all over Limestone Creek bottom.—Mayville Public Ledger.

A dispatch from Frankfort published in the Courier-Journal states that President H. H. Cherry, of the Frankfort State Normal School, is mentioned as a probable candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

President Cherry is built much after the same pattern as President Wilson. He is a bundle of energy. He is a veritable dynamo of constructive force. He can see further than a public question than any half dozen men you know. He is honest. He is incorruptible. He would take into the office a lot of views on public questions that would mean a general uplift to the State.

Through the suggestion of President Cherry for the next Governor of Kentucky may come some what as a surprise, it seems to be a pre-eminently fitting one.—Bowling Green Messenger.

James Slayback, who is considered authority, says that tobacco plants can not be killed by the freezes at this time of the year.

The DAIRY

ADVANTAGE OF COW TESTING

Wide Difference in Product of Animals Shown by Trials Made at the Nebraska Station.

At the Nebraska experiment station the different cows in the dairy herd were tested. The result showed that there is a wide difference in the product of the cows of the same breed. We will not mention the breed under the experiment but will leave that matter as some might feel sensitive who may be breeding the same breed of cows.

In the case mentioned it was found that one cow gave 12,950 pounds of milk during the period of lactation and the milk tested 3.46 butter fat. Another cow in the herd gave 1,797 pounds of milk during the period of lactation which tested 2.82 butter fat.

In figuring on the cost of producing, as an accurate account was kept of all the food each cow consumed, and the value of all the labor, bestowed in caring for and feeding the animals, it was found that the first cow returned $4.17 for each dollar's worth of feed she consumed. On the other hand, the cow that gave 1,797 pounds of milk only returned 55 cents for each dollar's worth of feed she consumed. Now, it does not require an expert in figuring to prove the great value of testing the cows in the herd. This cow that only returned 55 cents for the dollar's worth of feed she consumed is not alone in that kind of business. There are by far too many cows kept that are not paying for their food. Let dairymen give this matter of testing more consideration and by all means weigh the milk; keep track of the amount of milk the cows give per day; per week; per month; and during the whole period of lactation.

FEEDING DAIRY COWS

Many Farmers Do Not Understand Scientific Terms.

There Has Not Been Given Definite Information Which Would Command Confidence of People Interested in Dairying.

(By T. L. HAECKER.)

We are inclined to the opinion that many farmers have not given as close study to the problem of feeding dairy cows as they should, for two reasons. First, many of them do not fully understand the terms employed by scientists. Second, there has not been definite practical information given which would command the confidence of the farmers.

All classes of foods are divided into two classes, with reference to bulk—roughage and concentrates. "Rough-

Mixing Feed to Balance a Ration. The Proper Proportions Should Be Weighed and Mixed Together in Large Quantities, Then Fed to the Cows—Usually One Pound of Grain to Three Pounds of Milk Given.

age" includes all the coarse portions of a ration, such as hay, stover, fodder, corn silage, roots, etc., while the term "concentrates" embraces all grains and milk products. In feed stuffs there are three groups of substances, which must be considered in formulating a ration—to secure best results. These are known as protein, carbohydrates and fat.

"Protein" is the name of a group of materials containing nitrogen, and sometimes called the nitrogenous group, in opposition to the carbohydrates, fat and ash, which are non-nitrogenous.

The function of protein is to furnish materials for the formation of lean flesh, blood, tendons, nerves, hair, horns, wool, and the casein and albumen of milk. For the formation of these materials, protein is absolutely indispensable. It is important to remember that no substance-free from nitrogen can be converted into protein or be used as a substitute for protein. It is, therefore, necessary for an animal to receive a certain amount of protein in order to maintain existence, grow or produce milk.

"Carbohydrates" are made up of several substances, usually divided into two groups: namely, nitrogen, free extracts, including sugar, starch, gums, etc., and crude fiber. Coarse fodders contain large amounts of crude fiber, while grain and mill stuffs contain little fiber, but are rich in starch and sugar.

Carbohydrates are either stored up in the body as fat, or are burned in the system to produce heat and energy.

"Fat"—or the material dissolved from a feeding stuff by ether, and for this reason often designated as "ether extract"—includes the fats, wax and green coloring matter of plants. The fat of food is either stored up in the body or burned to furnish heat and energy. As a heat-producer, a pound of fat is worth as much as 22 pounds of carbohydrates.

DAIRY COWS HELP FERTILITY

Careful Attention Should Be Given to Live Stock to Maintain Productiveness of Farm.

(By JAMES WITTHCOMBE, Oregon Experiment Station.)

Dairying affords the quickest means of building up the farm, as there is practically no soil exhaustion when butterfat constitutes the only dairy product sold.

A ton of butterfat, worth about $700 at present market values, takes less than 50 per cent. of plant food from the farm, while a ton of wheat, oats, alfalfa, or clover hay, worth from $15 to $20, will take from the farm plant food worth about $3 for each ton sold.

Therefore, if the farmer expects to maintain the productivity of his farm he should give careful attention to livestock, especially the dairy cows.

DUROC JERSEY BREED

Three Essentials Necessary in Establishing Herd.

Breeder Should Have Clearly Defined Ideal in Mind and to Mate Animals to Produce That Type—Let Pedigree Care for Itself.

From our limited knowledge and experience we conclude that but three things are necessary to enable a breeder to produce a herd of Durocs of reasonably similar type. We place these three things in the order of their importance, as ability, time, and money, write the Northwest Agriculturalist.

In the first place, the breeder must have a clearly defined ideal in his mind, of the type of hog he will try to produce before ability even will be of any service to him. And we are free to admit that as far as we know, this ideal hog has never made its escape in the flesh from the mind of any breeder as yet, for we have never seen or heard of its having been at any of our shows. With this ideal firmly fixed in his mind's eye, he is now ready to exercise his ability to find select animals of his ideal type and, secondly, to mate them so as to produce this type as nearly as possible.

That there are many, many persons engaged in the rearing of Durocs who lack this ability is painfully evident as one visits the various herds scattered abroad in the land. These persons can be divided into two classes—those who are raising hogs to get as many and as large ones as they can, regardless of age, size, and color, and who should be called "meat producers" only, while the other class, seemingly intent on mating, so as to get as many high sounding names on one pedigree as possible, with the sole ambition of booming things or making a high public sale average, with no regard to type or usefulness, can very properly be called speculators.

The true breeder is he who is ever working toward the desired end of producing the perfect or ideal type. He does not mate pedigrees, he mates type and lets the pedigree take care of themselves, being fully aware that if he can produce the individual excellence the pedigree will be all right, however it may read.

No matter what his ability, the person just starting in to breed Durocs will find ample use for all the skill he may possess. With conditions as they are at present—almost as many different types as there are hogs—there is a great opportunity for the aspiring breeder to show what he can do.

MUCH FEED SAVED BY RACK

Box-Like Affair Constructed With Manger Around and Two Feet High Proves Satisfactory.

The best feed rack I have ever used is the one shown in the illustration, says a writer in the Farm and Breeder. To make it took four by four for each corner and two posts in the center, setting them in the ground a depth of one foot, and four feet apart. The length of the rack is sixteen feet. I boarded up the rack tight-two and one-half feet from the ground. Then I built a manger all around it two feet high and sixteen inches wide. A six-inch board was nailed across the top of center posts to keep the rack from spreading. With a rack made this way no feed is wasted.

Live Stock and Fertility.
It is not impossible to build up a worn-out farm without making live stock raising a feature, but it is much easier to do it with live stock and, we think, unquestionably more profitable, says Farm and Ranch. Live stock raising requires a diversified system of crops, especially of legumes, which greatly assist in restoring the land in nitrogen, the element most likely to be needed; the animals consume the feed raised on the farm and reduce the loss in fertility elements by returning to the soil the manure from animals.

Chronic Cough.
A chronic cough may come either from weakness in the bronchial tube or from the stomach. In either case, don't let it run on, or it may put your horse out of commission sooner or later.

WASHING DAY ADVICE

HOW TIME MAY BE SAVED AND GOOD RESULTS ACHIEVED.

Housewife of Experience Tells of Her Methods, Which Seem to Be Worth Copying—Considers Wringer Absolute Necessity.

My method of washing is so easy, and at the same time so effective, that I wish to pass it on for the benefit of others.

I fill my washing machine with water cool enough to bear my hands in, and add one and one-half cups of good washing powder.

After carefully sorting the clothes, I first put in the least soiled, and turn the machine until they are clean; then with the wringer attached to the machine, I wring out all except those with the soiled spots, which I leave in to go through another washing.

I then proceed with the next lot, and so on until all are done, adding a little boiling water from time to time if the wash is a large one.

And nice pieces, such as fine lingerie, or gingham likely to be faded by the powder, I do by hand with a good soap.

After the dirt has all been removed I draw off the water and rinse the machine, then fill it with clean water to which is added bluing, and beginning with the first clothes washed I rinse them by turning the machine as for washing them, and wringing them out.

My clothes are as clean and white as if I had soaked, boiled and washed them through a half dozen waters, as I used to do.

In these days of efficiency women should use all the labor-saving devices possible—Never try to do without a wringer.

Add a pinch of sugar to water in which vells are washed, to give body to the otherwise flimsy veil—Exchange.

Flapjacks and Pancakes.
A friend asks the difference between flapjacks and pancakes. A recipe for each is given for comparison and use. The flapjacks require one quart of boiling milk to which add two cups corn meal, one tablespoon butter and one teaspoon sugar. Cover and set away overnight. In the morning add two egg yolks, one scant cup flour and two spoonfuls salt, one teaspoon baking powder, which should be well stirred in. Just before cooking on the griddle or pan add the beaten whites of two eggs mixed in a tumbler. A good pancake recipe is: One egg beaten light, a pinch of salt added, one quart of sour milk, enough flour to make a stiff batter, with one heaping teaspoon soda added in four.

Tomatoes, Carolina Style.
A dozen large, sound, ripe tomatoes. Cut out from the top of each an inch round piece and scoop out all the seeds and liquid. Cook a pint of Carolina rice in a quart of veal broth (made from bones), salted, and half minced green pepper added. When it has boiled 15 minutes add four ounces of oil or butter, mingle well and then let it stand where it will steam for about ten minutes. Then fill the tomatoes, put on the covers, arrange in a baking pan, sprinkle over with oil or butter, and bake half an hour in a moderately hot oven. Dish up and pour a little sauce around it and serve.

Spanish Cream.
Soak for half an hour a quarter of a box of gelatin in a pint of milk. Then put it on the fire in a double boiler; beat the yolks of two eggs and half a cup of sugar together, and when the milk is boiling stir the eggs in; cook until it begins to thicken. Beat the whites of the eggs very light and stir into the mixture when it is taken off the fire; flavor with two spoonfuls of vanilla, and pour into the mold to firm. The mold must be first dipped in cold water, and the whites of eggs beaten thoroughly well into the custard.

Pickled Sweet Apples.
For pickling the apples may be pared, quartered and cored, as for canning, or pared and the core removed with a sharp knife, leaving the apple in its original shape, or they may be cut in halves and the core taken out. Cook in a syrup made of a quart of vinegar and three and a half pounds of sugar, flavored with an ounce of cinnamon buds. The syrup will be sufficient for seven pounds of apples if the fruit is at all juicy. Boil slowly until a silver fork will easily penetrate the fruit.

To Keep Needles Bright.
Do your sewing needles get rusty, and are you always having to cast them out of your needle book because they are rough and useless? Probably your needle book is to blame and not your needles. It is a mistake to use flannel as leaves in your book. Sulphur in the flannel rusts the steel. Use leaves of linen or chamomile and you will have bright needles.

Creamed Lima Beans.
If dried lima beans soak overnight, boil in a little salted water until tender, cook down all the water, or if in a hurry drain. Add a cup of cream, a little butter and pepper and salt, simmer a few minutes and serve.

Preparing Potatoes.
Potatoes, particularly after they "have passed their first youth," are much nicer pared and laid in cold water overnight. Not only are the potatoes improved, but time is saved in preparing breakfast.

BREEDING FOR FALL CALVES

Good, Fresh Air Is of Great Importance to Give Young Animal Strong, Vigorous Constitution.

(By G. L. MARTIN, North Dakota Agricultural College.)

The first requisites in raising fall calves are clean, dry, well ventilated, sunny pens. Young calves never do well in damp, dirty quarters. A good floor made of cement, or cork brick, well bedded with short straw, shavings or sawdust to absorb the liquid manure will facilitate cleaning and keep the calves warm. A wood floor does fairly well if the joints are laid closely and then treated to a coat of creosote to prevent the absorption of liquid manure, otherwise wood is very unsanitary. A floor of earth is practically useless as it cannot be kept clean and sanitary.

Good, fresh air in the calf stable is of great importance with the young calf to give it a strong, vigorous constitution and strong vitality. The calf will be the daily cow within two years so if good productive dairy cows are expected the calf needs to be kept strong and thrifty from the start.

Sunshine is very necessary to the vigor of all young growing animals. It is an excellent germicide and for that reason serves to purify the surroundings and to keep the young calf healthy. It is always well to place the calf pens in a part of the stable where plenty of direct sunshine may enter.

The advantages of raising fall calves coming in the fall, they are ready to be weaned in the spring and can be put out to pasture where they will continue to grow. On the other hand, when calves are dropped in the spring they are ready to wean in the fall about the time winter sets in so are liable to go through the winter without making very much growth. In the fall is by all means the best time for dairy calves to come, both from the standpoint of the calf and profits of the owner.

DEVICE FOR HOLDING HOGS

The device shown in the accompanying drawing is simple and cheap in its construction and easy to operate—so simple, in fact, that the mere illustration furnishes all the specifications necessary, says the Farm Buildings. The uprights should be firmly set in the ground and the upper piece of stocks plinked to the upright on a pivot at A. By nailing boards to the uprights, both sides in the rear, a small chute may be formed by means of which the hogs may easily be driven into the "trap."

Crane to Hold Hogs.

CARE OF IMMATURE ANIMALS

Young Stock Intended to Be Put on Grass Pasture in Spring Should Not Be Made Fat.

Keeping immature animals growing is the only way a profit can be obtained from them. One should not, however, make the young stock he intends to put on grass along next spring fat by feeding them corn through the winter. Many have been very much surprised, after feeding their calves and yearling steers an abundance of corn during the winter, to find that they do not do as well on grass in the summer as others that were not so well fed. The reason is obvious. No kind of animal does well when turned from a good ration to a poorer one. There is more or less shock to the system to begin with, and as the animal on grass is not getting fat-forming elements that the corn furnished, it is very likely to go back, at least some, to the same ratio as the animal that has been kept on the flesh-forming ration during the winter and goes right on with a similar ration during the summer.

Care of Pastures.
When pasture gets far ahead of sheep they should be grazed down if possible with cattle. In such a condition the sheep will not graze down the grass that has become rank and woody. By preference they will feed upon those parts where the grass is short.

Circuit Court.

The April term of the Boone Circuit Court convened about 11 a. m., Monday, Judge J. W. Cammack, of Owenton, presiding, Alvin Steiger, Clerk of the Owen Circuit Court, on hand to assist Circuit Clerk Maurer, and Sheriff W. D. Cropper and his deputy, L. A. Conner, all smiles because of having all their work cleaned up and ready for the term, while Commonwealth's Attorney John J. Howe, of Carrollton, was ready to look after the interests of the Commonwealth.

The first business of the court was the organization of the grand jury, which is composed of the following gentlemen:

John L. Jones, Hamilton.
Leslie McMullen, Burlington.
B. A. Floyd, Florence.
Butler Carpenter, Florence.
Joe Walton, Rabbit Hash.
N. H. Clements, Union.
Lawrence Pope, Rabbit Hash.
Ben Akin, Petersburg.
Ralph Cason, Bellevue.
E. G. Cox, Petersburg.
Harry Kilgore, Bullitsville.
J. T. Gaines, Burlington.
John L. Jones was appointed foreman of the grand jury. Judge Cammack put the lid on soon after opening court last Monday morning, and notified the attorneys and others that he would permit no smoking in the court room.

Petit Jury No. 1 is composed of the following gentlemen:

A. F. Milner,
James Williamson.
Chester Ayler,
John White,
Geo. Burris,
Chas. W. Riley,
H. H. Clure,
Napoleon Rice,
R. L. Huey,
Dexter Carter,
Geo. C. Barlow,
Geo. Horton.

Petit Jury No. 2.
John W. Early,
J. K. Clure,
Alonso Beemon,
T. E. Souther,
M. L. Crutcher.

The following attorneys are attending court:
Commonwealth's Atty. John J. Howe, Carrollton.
J. G. Tomlin, Jno. L. Vest and Charles Strother, of Walton.
Hon. W. W. Dickerson and Joel C. Clure and Harper Rucker, of Cincinnati.

D. E. Castleman, O. M. Rogers and Samuel W. Adams, of Erlanger.

Judge Cammack gave the grand jury a strong charge which the members of that body will see observed.

Jailer Adams is on the jump as usual keeping things in order about the court house.

At three o'clock Monday the court announced that the petit jurors would not be needed until Wednesday morning and excused them until that time. Jury No. 2 had not been completed.

An order was entered Monday directing the sheriff of Boone county to bring from the Grant county jail, Gus Stevens, indicted for murder and whose trial came to this county on a change of venue.

So far the crowd attending court this week has been small, but a considerable increase from now on is expected.

There being no jury trials ready, Tuesday was devoted to the hearing of motions and the making up of issues.

The Commonwealth's docket was called Monday and a few fines were levied, most of the prosecutions being continued.

Edgar C. Riley who stood the examination by law required in the Kenton Circuit Court and was granted a license to practice law in this Commonwealth, last Saturday, was sworn in as member of the bar of the Boone Circuit Court.

In the case of the Commonwealth against Stephens and Kells both sides have announced, outside of court, ready for trial.

Wednesday morning was consumed in securing a jury for the trial of J. C. Byland indicted for false swearing. This is a prosecution growing out of the failure of the Richmond Deposit Bank of which the defendant was the cashier. The trial will be completed some time today, Thursday.

Hon. W. T. Stott, of Petersburg, was in Burlington, Monday, meeting his constituents. Mr. Stott made one of the best representatives in the last legislature, and came home with clean hands and an easy conscience, and his people are entirely satisfied with the record he made in the legislature.

Government Money for Us.

Farmers' wives as well as their husbands are interested in the Smith-Lever agricultural extension bill. The farm home is one of the mighty preservers in America, of true democracy, for when the worst is said against the status of women on the farms it yet remains true that the farm is a democratic unit, where each labors and lifts and shares with all. Women, therefore, will benefit, as well as men, in the results of the agricultural extension bill: The appropriation $10,000 for each state, with provision for an additional $300,000 increase each year for ten years is to be expended by the state agricultural colleges through their extension departments, to demonstrate to farmers best methods for crop improvement and increase. Seventy-five per cent must be used in actual field demonstrations, not more than five per cent may be used for printing and publications, and the remaining 20 per cent is to be used for instruction in household economics, or for further field demonstrations.—The Farmers Wife.

The Mote In The Eye.

When the belligerent Senator Falls and the "interests" having money and lands in Mexico, and the ferocious editors tell you that we ought to go to war with Mexico and begin killings in order to stop killings in that country, we suggest that you flash the following facts on them.

Americans killed by American railroads in the year ended June 30, 1913—10,985.

Americans killed and injured in American factories, mines and shops—one every minute of every 24-hour day! Total, $36,000 a year.

American man and woman workers killed annually in American industry—130,000.

What common sense is there in blustering about what they are doing in Mexico when we are killing a hundred thousand a year of our own people and nobody batting an eye about it?

A fine lot of nerve we have, indeed, to deplore the insecurity of life in Mexico!

Intervention? As well might Huerta or Carranza intervene to prevent the carriage in the United States!—Kentucky Post.

A Bitter Newspaper War.

New York, April 9.—"This is the food upon which the twisted and distorted brain of a Czolgosz feeds."

In a biting editorial attack the New York World refers in the foregoing terms to the war waged by Hearst's newspapers against President Wilson because of his attitude in the Panama canal tolls matter. For some time the New York World and the Hearst papers have been at war because of the repeal of the tolls.

The New York World editorial says: "Mr. Hearst apparently learned nothing from the assassination of William McKinley. Day after day Mr. Hearst in word and caricature, is picturing the President of the U. S. as a traitor to the U. S. Day after day Mr. Hearst charges the President of the U. S. with overt and calculated treason. Day after day Mr. Hearst presents the President of the United States as the cowardly and cunning enemy of the American people. Is William Randolph Hearst ambitious to raise up another Czolgosz? If not, we advise him to retrace his steps and retrace them quickly."

An editorial in the New York American Monday described Mr. Ralph Pulitzer, of the World as "a soup subsidized editor," the term growing out of Pulitzer's visit to the White House, where he dined. "But small bribes are sufficient for small people," commented the editorial, "and besides it has never taken much inducement to turn a Pulitzer into a traitor."

The battle between the two papers is creating much interest.

Farm Horses for Sale.

We have some good, cheap Work Horses and Mules for sale, and a good Percheron colt, and a weanling Percheron. We need fresh milch cows and sows and pigs and will either exchange work stock for them or will make a low price on these horses, and turn them into money. Come to see them. O. P. SPAHR, Burlington, Ky., R. F. D. 3. On the old Chamber, farm, opposite Addyston Pipe Works, adjoining Dr. Crisler's.

Why not Burlington have a clean-up day?

Bernard Gaines is in Detroit Michigan, on business.

This, Thursday, is Grant county day in the Boone circuit court.

The buzz wagons have been numerous in Burlington this week.

The ugly weather last Saturday curtailed the sale of Easter goods.

Some of the early gardeners in Burlington have planted their potatoes.

A fur glove lost at Rouse Bros. sale is at this office awaiting the owner.

They are getting busy in regard to the proposed new turnpikes in this county.

About all the Boone county people who spent the winter in Florida have returned home.

Where the dirt roads were dragged often the past winter they will soon get good this spring.

Some chickens this spring are afflicted with the tangle foot soon after they are hatched.

Born, Easter morning to Courtney Pope and wife, of Point Pleasant neighborhood, a daughter.

R. C. Gaines, of Idlewild neighborhood, has bought a five passenger Buick auto, that has all the latest improvements.

County Attorney N. E. Riddell and County Clerk W. R. Rogers were in the city last Friday buying furniture for the latter's office.

Not so many aged men are seen on the juries as used to be in the old law, men 50 years of age and under composing the juries.

The mail auto came in on three tires Monday morning. The motor tube was cut into ribbons. The blow-out occurred near Limsburg.

Attys. S. W. Adams, of Erlanger, and Chas. Strodt, of Walton, were the first lawyers to arrive at the scene of conflict last Monday.

The condition of Clinton Gaines, who is being treated in a Louisville hospital, was not in the least encouraging when he was heard from a few days since.

A survey was made last Friday for a pike from Burlington to Wm. Carpenter's gate in Locust Grove neighborhood, the distance being 4 miles and 400 feet, following the old road.

It was a beautiful, bright Easter but a disagreeable breeze prevailed from the northwest all day, and some say from that direction would the wind come most of the time during the year.

If all the knocking that was done around the country store stores the past winter had been put on a rock pile along the county roads the public highways of the county would be fine boulevards in a few years—Quit knocking.

Mrs. Josie Platt, who has held a position as Superintendent of the King's Daughter's Home at Louisville, for the last three years, has resigned that position, and will make her home in Rising Sun, with her aunt, Mrs. Rebecca Berkshire.

Henry Hughes and wife, of Nebraska, arrived at the home of his brother, G. G. Hughes, last Saturday. They are on their return home from Florida, where they spent the past winter. They spend the heated term in the north and the winter in the south.

Every man in the county who owns land should have enough pride and getup to interest him in the roads. He should be willing to give a few days each year toward improving the roads. If all the land owners would do this Boone county would soon have as good highways as there are in the State.

Dr. F. L. Peddicoord has many friends in Burlington and vicinity who are glad to hear that he will be installed superintendent of the asylum for the insane at Lakeland in the next few weeks, and they look forward to his official career with an expectancy of it being an honor to him and a credit to the State.

A friend of The Clipper, who is a gentleman of wide reading and keen observation of public affairs, has classified those who are insisting upon war with Mexico under three heads, which we think correct. They are: Those who want war for war's sake; those who want war because they have interests in Mexico, and those who want war simply because President Wilson doesn't.—Blue Glass Clipper.

Public Sale.

I will sell at public sale at the late residence of N. S. Walton on the Petersburg and Burlington pike, near Idlewild, Ky., on Saturday, April 18, 1914

TERMS—All sums of $5.00 and under, cash; on sums over $5.00 a credit of six months without interest will be given, the purchaser to give not with good security, payable in Farmers Bank at Petersburg, Ky.

Sale to begin at 1 p. m.
HUBERT WALTON, Administrator.

Personal Mention.

Rev. Wm. McMillan, of Big Bone, was a pleasant caller at this office, Tuesday.

Thomas Fowler has a very sore hand the result of getting it cut by a broken wind shield.

Thomas Rice and wife and Andy Cook and wife spent Easter with relatives in Bellevue.

B. B. Hume and wife, of Covington, were in Burlington a few hours last Sunday afternoon.

L. S. Beamon returned the latter part of last week from a winter's pleasant sojourn in Florida.

Wilbur Kelly and wife, of Covington, returned to their home in Erlanger last Sunday with their parents Mr. and Mrs. James Kelly.

Mrs. James Lavina Kirkpatrick and William Hughes, called on Mrs. Richard Ute one day last week.

V. O. Keys received a telegram last Friday announcing the death of his father at his home in Illinois.

V. W. Gaines and wife and J. A. Duncan, of Bullittsburg, spent Sunday with Chester Davis and wife in Erlanger.

J. G. Renaker, of Florence, and several of his friends took in his new auto.

Mentor Martin and wife, of Bullittsville, spent Easter Sunday with Mrs. Martin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Roberts.

Miss Emma Welch, of Florence, spent two or three days last week with Mr. and Mrs. K. J. Tanner and her sister, Miss Mary Furlong.

Mrs. Eliza Rouse arrived Monday from a visit of several months at St. Petersburg, Florida. She was delighted with her visit and the climate.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Riley, of Ludlow, and Lizzie Stephens, of Erlanger, passed through Burlington Sunday enroute to Geo. Kreylich's where they spent Easter.

Misses Estelle Huey and Mattie Kreylich returned to Georgetown, Monday, where they are attending school, after spending Easter vacation with their parents.

Miss Amelia Corbin after a week's visit with her sister, Mrs. D. M. Snyder, returned to her home in Erlanger, Monday. She was accompanied home by her niece, Mrs. N. W. Carpenter.

Lloyd Norris and wife, of Petersburg, passed through Burlington last Sunday afternoon enroute home from Ft. Thomas, where they had been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Calvert.

Dr. O. E. Senour, A. H. Norman, John Dickerson and Jack Conner, of Union, were among the Recorder's Tuesday visitors. The boys arrived over with Dr. Senour and were having oceans of fun.

Elizabeth Rogers
Born October 8, 1888, departed this life April 8, 1914. All who knew her loved her. She went as she came, with a stainless name. The road she traveled led to honor and fame. She loved and friendship of all whom she knew, and now we must bid her farewell, to one we loved so. In a golden chain of friendship a link is broken, but we will cherish her in memory sweet until we meet again.
M. A. R.

At the regular session of the Scott Fiscal Court, which met at the Court House Tuesday and held until nearly noon Wednesday, the greater part of the time was spent in discussing ways and means of bettering the conditions of the county roads. Each magistrate had his own individual constituents to please and was zealous in seeing that his part of the county was improved. The approximately $35,000 which will be expended upon the roads this year.—Georgetown News.

A "Jinks" has been annoying the Recorder all the past week. When the time arrived last week to begin printing the paper the gasoline engine broke, but was in commission after half an hour's work. The newspaper was then started, but before a dozen impressions had been made the felt roller was stripped and had to be sent to the city for repairs. By considerable hustling the Recorder appeared on time, and it was thought the "Jinks" had departed. But on Monday morning the typesetting machine had been in operation but a few minutes when the lock-post broke and the casting box had to be sent to Detroit, Michigan, for repairs and would be returned before the last of this week, hence the leopard appearance of this issue of the Recorder.

The subscriptions dates of those who have paid during the past week have not been changed because of the mishap to the typesetting machine. They will be advanced next week.

HOUSES POLES and CATTLE

FOR STARTING BALKY HORSE

Common Bamboo Fish Pole With Electrical Contrivance to Give Shock Is Quite Effective.

Take a common bamboo fish pole and cut it into lengths of about five feet, writes Edw. E. Herbert in the Popular Electricity. With a three-foot bell hanger's bit bore a hole through the center of the pieces. Join the sections with brass or steel tubing, the terminating at the larger end in two small binding posts. On the other end of the pole place a brass or copper tube that will fit snugly, and flatten it out slightly. Here a hole through the middle of this and bolt a wooden piece about three inches long across the tube.

At the outer ends of the small cross piece fasten two brass or copper washers about an inch in diameter and attach the two insulated wires running through the pole, one to each. If a metal cross piece is used, one terminal should be insulated by a rubber or fiber washer. By means of a flexible wire attach the secondary of an ordinary shocking coil to the terminals at the near end of the pole. The coil and dry batteries of two or three cells can be carried in a small box on the wagon. When the horse is balky all you have to do is to turn on the battery, place the two terminals at the outer end of the pole back of the ears of the animal and it will go at once. This apparatus has been tried out by the writer on some of the worst balky horses and has never failed yet.

EXPENSE OF HANDLING EWES

Every Farmer Should Figure Out Cost of Feed—Pays Better to Wean Lambs Before July 1.

Prof. B. W. Sheets of the West Virginia experiment station, in discussing the question of breeding ewes, said that he believed every flock owner should sit down and figure out the cost of the feed.

In the fall he feeds breeding ewes once a day on oats and bran; feeds no corn whatever to the breeding ewes. Uses clover, cowpea and mixed hay and corn fodder for roughage. This latter it pays to shred or cut. His Southdown sheep eat about six pounds of silage apiece a day, two pounds of hay and one-half pound of grain, but he does not feed the ewes so much silage as this before lambing.

He feeds the lambs with the ewes starting with about half a pint of grain to the lamb at eight weeks old, and getting up to a pint of grain at about twelve weeks old. This feed continued throughout the season. After the lambs are weaned he puts the ewes on a stubble field to decrease the flow of the milk. He gives tobacco, which he raises himself, in the feed each day as a preventive of stomach worms.

He thinks it pays better to wean lambs the 1st of July than at any other time. It costs him $3.06 to keep a sheep a year, but he did not charge present market prices for his feed, adopting a scale of prices that would run about the average for a series of years.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Individual farrowing pens are money-savers.

The early pigs will need much more attention than the late ones.

Drain the hoghouse floors. A little slip may lame a hog for all time.

Feelings from scabby potatoes should be boiled before being given to pigs.

A pig in hand is worth two in the scrap pile. Try and save the little fellows.

When bad quarters are given the hogs they can't be expected to return good dollars.

Boy that the barn rooms are in good shape for the ewes that are to bear early lambs.

Ing sheep unless he is willing to sit up nights in all kinds of weather during the lambing season.

A blanket of fat on a horse, like a mantle, is a mantle that often serves over a multitude of defects.

Save the flock hash plenty of fresh Mr. the sheep drink from representative approaches dry, lactating, and culls hog or steer—hands and an "any" to raised and his people are enticed, fed with the record he the legislatures.

MAKE THE KITCHEN PRETTY

No Reason Why Most-Used Room in House Should Be Allowed to Look Neglected.

A woman who believes that a kitchen should be a pretty room wonders why most people do not hold the same opinion.

Of original tastes, she has devised this scheme of color and decoration for her kitchen. The walls she has had painted a bright sunny yellow, the woodwork and chairs a deep Prussian blue, the color of the pattern in her kitchen crockery and the cornflower pattern of her white tiled stove, which has a shining metal top.

"We are slaves to the view that a stove must be black and ugly," she says. "I got rid of this view in a visit to Holland, where I bought my pretty stove."

The windows of her kitchen are hung with sash curtains made of glass toweling barred in blue. At the center of their sills a little square bracket shelf has been attached, upon which stands a gay geranium.

MAKE HOUSEHOLD WORK EASY

Main Thing Is to Have the Articles Most Required Always Convenient for Use.

Sometimes it is the very little things, the things that appear most insignificant, that count for most in the making of household duties easy. To have things handy, right where they are within easy reach, is one of the things that should be the aim of every woman who must use certain utensils at every meal time.

A clever woman has devised a plan by which she avoids drying the plates. Over the sink rack, high enough so it will not interfere with anyone, has been built a plate cage, just a skeleton affair of chestnut, which has been stained to match the woodwork in the kitchen. The plates are slipped in between bars that permit them to stand upright, and as soon as they are washed and rinsed, they are placed in the cage where they drain and dry. This device has been tried out by the writer on some of the worst balky horses and has never failed yet.

If you have a rack in which the knives, forks, and spoons that are in daily use can be slipped, and place up over the kitchen table, you will wonder how you ever could get along when they were stowed away in the dresser drawer. Three strips of one-half inch chestnut lumber, have square holes cut in them at intervals, and then they are glued together so that the holes will be opposite. These are screwed to shaped ends that in turn are fastened to the wall, and the knives, etc., are slipped in their place as soon as they come from the dish pan. One one-half inch chestnut or oak board with auger holes bored into it will do as well.

Bran Bread.
Set a soft sponge at night as for white bread; in the morning take two cups of bran, moisten well with cold water, and let it boil for twenty minutes. When the warm add this to two cups of white sponge, also add one-half cup of molasses, one cup of raisins, two tablespoons of lard, and salt unless the white sponge has already been salted. Mix stiff with white flour and knead as you would white bread. When light place in pan and raise to double its bulk; bake one hour.

Apples for Luncheon.
Put a tumbler of water on three-fourths of a tumbler of sugar in porcelain dish with the strained juice of one lemon. Boil gently 20 minutes. This is cooking take six medium-sized sour apples, wipe, leave stems on and put into boiling syrup. Cook until you can pierce them with a straw, then lift carefully into a pretty dish or individual dishes, pour the syrup over them and set away to cool. Serve with a tablespoon of whipped cream on top.

To Set Colors.
To set colors in laundering, pink, green, and the reds, lavender, purple, should be set in water containing dissolved alum, two ounces to a tub. Dark blue, gray and black may be set by soaking them in salt water.

To Crisp Cereals.
I find an easy way to crisp the uncooked, ready-to-eat cereals is to place the amount required for one serving in an ordinary cornpotter and shake for a few minutes over a hot stove or lighted oil stove.

The Monroe Doctrine.

(Louisville Post.)
Mr. Maurice Low, a British journalist more or less familiar with America, was asked to describe to the American Academy of Science the European attitude toward the Monroe Doctrine.

Mr. Low said it would be easier to explain the attitude of Europe if Europe really knew what the Monroe Doctrine was.

We think Mr. Low does Europe an injustice. It has been thoroughly educated on this subject. It knows perfectly well what the Monroe Doctrine is, and though it may not respect it, in one sense it feels bound to respect it in another.

Europe's "first lesson" in what is now known as the Monroe Doctrine was expounded in Jefferson's letter of instruction to our negotiators sent to Paris to receive from France its newly acquired territory, known as Louisiana.

These gentlemen were told to say to Napoleon—we are putting it a little bluntly—that we could wait until the Louisiana territory dropped from the feeble hand of Spain, but we could not consent to have a stronger European power in possession of New Orleans.

Plainly, Mr. Jefferson, a hundred years ago, valued New Orleans more highly than Messrs. McAdoo, Houston and Williams value it today.

If, said Mr. Jefferson, France places herself in that position, we would be compelled to see our navy to the navy of Great Britain and drive France from the continent.

Napoleon wanted friends and money. He saw he was dealing with statesmen, not school-boys, and so he agreed to retire, provided that the U. S. would not consent to European extension of European power of this continent.

The second lesson came from President Monroe, when he suggested that the Holy Alliance would aid Spain in destroying her rebellious colonies in South America.

President Monroe declared in a message to Congress that we should consider any attempt on the part of the Holy Alliance to extend that system to any portion of this hemisphere "as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies we are not interfered and shall not, but any interference by any European power to control their destiny we could not view in any other light than a manifestation toward the United States."

The third lesson was given by Henry Clay in 1823, when it was said France intended to invade Cuba, as a menace to Mexico. The Secretary of State, responding to an appeal from Mexico to fulfill the pledges of 1823, made representation that proved most effective. At the same time Mr. Clay informed Mexico that there was limitation to the doctrine which could not be ignored, and that Mexico could not look to America for protection for European aggression, given the South American nations.

The next lesson was administered to France, following our Civil war, when we declared that the foreign armies must leave Mexico, regardless of the effect the desertion would have on the fate of Maximilian.

This secured from all European powers acquiescence in this distinctly American doctrine until Mr. Cleveland was President, and Mr. Olney was Secretary of State. The Venezuelan boundary question became acute, and England showed no purpose to treat Venezuela as an equal nation. President Cleveland insisted that the dispute as to boundaries be left to arbitration, and this he was somewhat brusque, his application of principle accomplished the purpose.

All these incidents are consistent and inevitable; they are thoroughly understood in Europe. Mr. Low's professed or confessed ignorance to the contrary notwithstanding.

But Mr. Low proceeded to illustrate his own failure to comprehend the doctrine by declaring he believed that a nation that assumed protection over other states should also assume the responsibility of seeing that these smaller or countries carried out their obligations with other nations. In this connection he said the Central American republics sneered at Europe, laughed at the United States, and wallowed in anarchy as the result of the Monroe Doctrine.

Protection from foreign aggression does not carry with it any responsibility for the financial obligations of these nations, nor promise of compensation nor refusal of compensation for real or fancied wrongs. These questions arise between two nations, and must be settled as best they can. European nations have used force in South America and Central America as in China, with interference from the United States, but they resort to force, knowing that compensation in territorial concessions may not be asked or granted. Europe may collect her debts, but then she must get out. In this respect South America suffers less than China.

This, in its sum and in its substance, is the Monroe Doctrine, and, notwithstanding the gibberish of John Barret, the map who undertakes to repudiate it will go to political destruction.

by Harrison Chief 1200 by Clark Chief 980 dam, Kit Hardy, (2830) by Indian Chief (1718), 1st dam, Miss Berry 4034 by Rhoderick 104, by Maubruno Le Grande (199) 2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112, 3 dam by Garry Eagle (thor), Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Kentucky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1000.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last three years, and they have proven to be the best in the State. There was one sucking colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all through the State and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Doan, L. T. Anderson, Met Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumwell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the State and was sold to J. F. Williams for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair, when they were shown for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where 100 colts were shown.

Now is the time for the breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief and his sons and his grandsons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzsimmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the State today.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. R. Best's stable in Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is paired with or bred to other stock.

THE MAGNIFICENTLY BRED

SADDLE STALLION,

CAMPBELL CHIEF 5039

By Emerald Chief, 2132.

will make the season of 1914 at C. R. Best's stable, Walton, Boone County, Kentucky, to cover a limited number of mares at the fee of $20 to insure a living foal. Money due when mare is paired with or bred to other stock.

CAMPBELL CHIEF is a handsome bay stallion, hind pastern and front heels white, stands 16 hands high, weighs 1400 pounds, foaled 1907, bred by J. E. Henry, Mt. Sterling, Kentucky.

He has been handled by Charles Wells of Massville, Md., Coult, up to 1913, and proved himself a successful show horse.

He is a grand type of the saddle as there is in the State, a natural fair gaired horse with as much air and style as any horse living.

A glance at his breeding will show he comes on the sire's side in a direct line from Harrison Chief, the great progenitor of saddlers, and on his dam's side from horses that have nicked successfully with his strain and all bred by good breeding and thoroughbred blood.

You are taking no chances in breeding to a horse of such natural beauty, style and action, bred in such about lines that has proven himself a successful sire and a sure foal getter.

Pedigree: CAMPBELL CHIEF is by Emerald Chief 2132; he by Bourbon Chief 976 and out of Kate O'Haran 2777; Bourbon Chief by Harrison Chief 1806 and out of Bull; Harrison Chief by Clark Chief 89 out of Little.

1st dam, Old Mat 5650 by Roscoe 2471; 2d dam, Daughter of Korman's 2472; 3d dam, Daughter of Pharaoh a Thoroughbred.

THE PREMIUM PERCHERON HORSE,

JEAN FAIRBANKS 4478

Will make the season of 1914 at C. R. Best's barn, Walton, Ky., at $12.50 to insure a living colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare is paired with or bred to other stock. A lien retained on colt until money is paid. Care taken to prevent accidents but will not be responsible should any occur.

We will meet half way mares from a distance.

Season to be taken shown at Florence Fair, 1913.

Care will be taken in handling the above stock but we will not be responsible should any occur.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

FOR THE BIG CITY VISITOR Advice Given Those Who Only Infrequently Have to Leave the Home Town.

Metropolitan blemishes and drawbacks are not often emphasized by the class of business men who are perhaps the most interested in bringing strangers to town—the hotel keepers. However, a New York bonfire last week had the frank and friendly inspiration to prepare a card of "don'ts" for presentation to each of his guests.

An early suggestion has to do with watches and money. Don't wear your timepiece loose on a fob, and don't believe that a hip pocket is as secure as a bank. Why carry a roll, anyway, when the hotel office has a safe?

Next, the affable stranger. Don't let him persuade you that he is an old friend.

Next, life and limb. Don't believe that you are as swift as an automobile. And don't tote a gun—"It is better to run."

Next, traps. Don't go too confidently into unknown places; the way out is not always so straight and simple as the way in.

Yet, on the other hand, don't go to the harassing extreme of cautiousness and suspicion. The city is not bad just because it is big, nor is every one you meet necessarily a con man.

Big cities, speaking broadly, are alike. Though no local hotel man has yet issued a bulletin of warning, what will serve the denizen of Schenck and Kinderhook in New York will also advantage the visitor from Chebanse or Pecatonica in Chicago—Chicago Post.

MURDERERS BURKE AND HARE

Men of Notorious Memory Should Still Be in the Recollection of Londoners.

The skeleton of the last of the body snatchers treasured in King's College hospital recalls that there must be Londoners still living who remember Hare, who, with his accomplice, Burke, first substituted murder for resurrecting corpses in order to supply subjects for the dissecting rooms. Burke (whose method of smothering the victims gave him his name as a new verb to the language) was hanged on the testimony of his accomplice, for Hare turned queen's evidence and was released.

Forty years or so ago Hare was a well-known figure in London streets, for Sergeant Ballantine in his "Life," describes him as one of the most persistent blind beggars on the streets about 1870. Few people recognized the cold-blooded murderer in the middle-aged, stout man, clad in a white smock and led about by a dog. His blindness he owed to the fact that on leaving prison Hare found work in some lime kilns. The lime burners covered his history and threw him into a pit of lime. It was a terrible vengeance, for it destroyed his eyesight. And as it is not fifty years since he was a striking figure in London streets some people should recall him.—London Chronicle.

Eggs When Not Used as Food.

For burns and scalds nothing is more soothing than the white of an egg, which may be poured over the wound. It is softer as a varnish than collodion, and, being always at hand, can be easily applied. It is also more cooling than the sweet oil and cotton, which were formerly supposed to be the surest application to allay the smarting pain. The egg is considered to be one of the best remedies for dysentery. Beaten up slightly, with or without sugar, and swallowed at a time, to lessen the inflammation of the stomach and intestines, and by forming a transient coating on these organs, to enable nature to resume her healthful sway over a diseased body. Two, or at most three eggs per day would be all that is required in ordinary cases, and since eggs are not merely medicine but food as well, the lighter the diet otherwise and the quieter the patient is kept the more certain and rapid is the recovery.

Milk in Red Bottles.

The discovery is said to have been made that milk kept in red bottles will remain sweet and longer than when kept in plain glass or other colored bottles. Experiments have been made with the spectrum to determine which of the rays of light affect milk, and it has been found that it is the rays toward the violet and the red ray is strong and more neutralizing and probably has some neutralizing effect upon the lactic microbe. If experiments confirm the theory that the red bottle preserves the milk better than the bottle now in use, the red bottle should be adopted generally. Such a change will create a new set of milk bottle millionaires.—Knickerbocker Press.

For Old-Fashioned Rooms.

If you have a room hung with the imitations of Old English chintzes invest in one of the lovely fruit dishes lined with chintz.

These dishes are made in Royal Doulton and they are decorated in some of the old chintz designs—the sort with gay plumed birds and stiff, bright flowers rolling over a light ground to their hearts' content.

Some of the dishes are big, rather shallow bowls, with a band of openwork at the top. Some of them are of the old-fashioned, high-stemmed type. Any of them would make a charming addition to the old-fashioned room hung in quaint chintz.

LETTER SOAKED IN COCAINE

Denver Prison Officials Find the Baneful Drug in Misuse to Inmate.

The core of an apple, the peel of a banana and the stone of a peach have been used as a means of smuggling cocaine into the prison jail, but attaches believe that an entirely new plan has been evolved, says a Denver dispatch.

A letter was received yesterday addressed to one of the inmates of the "dope" ward. No signs of cocaine could be detected in the corners of the envelope, but the jail officials decided to examine the letter more closely.

A minute scrutiny of the paper on which the letter was written revealed that it was saturated with the drug. There was enough in the sheet to supply one of the victims a week at least. The letter might have escaped detection if it had not been for the fact that the sender had overdone his work. A white powdery substance which covered the entire letter first aroused suspicion.

According to the jail attaches the paper had been boiled in water in which there was cocaine. After the water had boiled away the cocaine was observed by the paper, which was then rolled and dried. The sender of the letter has not been found. He signed no name.

ELOQUENCE WENT TO WASTE

Indignant Mother Had Gained Nothing by Denunciation That She Thought Effective.

Determination writ large upon her angry countenance, the mother of the child who had been bitten by an Irish terrier belonging to a new neighbor (Mrs. Green) gave an authoritative "rat-tat" with the knocker of Mrs. Green's door.

The door was opened by a meek looking elderly woman, and the visals of the mother's wrath burst forth.

"You're Mrs. Green, I s'pose," she answered. "Green by name an' green by nature, I should call you, to keep a ferocious animal like that to keep Irish terrierism off yourn, a-hintin' of innocent children an' a-terrierizing the whole neighborhood! I'll have the law on you! I'll make you pay! Dyoo hear? I'll sue you for damages and ave that 'orrible dog shot by act of parliament, I will!"

Then as she paused for a moment for breath the old woman took a slate and pencil and said, in a mildly apologetic tone:

"Vry sorry, mum; but would you mind writin' it all down? I'm stone deaf."—London Tit-Bits.

Bridal Array Costly.

Brides all over the world like to make the best display possible on their wedding day, and the bridal attire of the various countries is invariably rich and beautiful. For sheer gorgeousness, however, it would be hard to rival the wedding finery of the belles of the island of Sumatra. The dress is woven entirely of gold thread, and its weight is so great that the wearer can hardly move; even standing requires a distinct effort.

Apart from this shimmering, golden garment, the bride is loaded down with gold ornaments, rings, bangles, earrings, pendants, girdles and necklaces and sundry ornamental purses of the same metal. The huge ornaments hanging on chains around her neck are hollow, but all the smaller charms are of solid native gold, most massively wrought. One might almost think that the natives, having heard something about a good wife being "worth her weight in gold," had set out to prove the fact by loading their equivalent of their weight in the precious metal.

Pleasant for Auntie.

The unmarried woman who shall be the subject of this anecdote was fixing herself up to go out in the evening. A certain man was going to call for her, and though the occasion was somewhat spoiled by the fact that they would have to take her little niece along, she nevertheless took the usual care of her complexion, hair and eyes. For the man was trembling on the verge of a proposal.

The trio—Auntie, auntie's beau and auntie's niece—walked along the street until they came to one of these all-night photograph galleries. They knew how awful a person looks, standing in the ghastly glare of the mercury-light that they pit in the windows of such places. Well, they paused in that awful greeny-yellow light. And the little niece said, to auntie's beau:

"Ooo-oh, look! Auntie looks just like she does when she first gets up in the morning!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Changed the Subject.

He had plastered his touched-up hair down over his bald spot, and he had assumed the sort of smile that his female friends called "childish" when he was in college. His shoes were shined, and so was his nose. And then he called on the young lady. "My object in calling on you this evening, Gertrude," he began, and then he coughed and added in a trembling voice, "I may call you Gertrude, may I not?" "Sure you can," answered the young girl. "I'll allow all of papa's elderly friends to call me Gertrude. The oldest of them even call me Gert. You may say 'Gert' if you wish. What was it you wanted to talk about?" He coughed again, and then talked about how much warmer it was in the summer of 1872.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

Keep the hog sheds dry.

Fresh eggs are in demand.

A moulting hen does hard work.

Plowing is said to be the hardest work known.

It is best to have a hot knife to cut cold, thick, honeycomb.

The heaviest fleeces are, as a rule, found on medium-sized sheep.

If your hens get to eating eggs the best way to cure it is to use the axe.

To keep a cow clean the stall in which she stands must not be too wide.

Provide a damper to all stoves. A drum doesn't cost much and saves lots of fuel.

We feel better when we get our meals at regular hours. It is the same with the chickens.

There is just as much importance in improving the dairy farmer as there is in improving the dairy cow.

In storing vegetables or apples out of doors it is better not to dig a trench. Pile on top of the ground and cover.

The coop for hen and chicks should be well ventilated, easy to clean and of sufficient proportions to insure comfort.

It is claimed that exposed manure loses about one-sixth of its phosphoric acid, and more than one-third of its phosphate.

Lambs make a greater gain in feeding than old sheep. There is nothing better for the former than good second-growth clover.

Dressed stock should be carefully picked and sent to market in attractive condition; otherwise it will not obtain the best prices.

Turkeys should always be dry picked, for scalded ones do not present an attractive appearance and must be sold for a lower price.

Carrots should not be left in the ground too late. Heavy rains often cause them to start a "second growth" of fine roots, and much of their flavor is lost.

Where lumber is not available a straw shed makes a good home for the chickens. It will mean fix up a straw-stack shelter, if you cannot do any better.

Get rid of all surplus ducks and geese on the Thanksgiving market. If kept longer they will consume so much food that the profit will be changed to loss.

Old straw makes a fine litter for the scratching pens. Better so, in fact, than wheat straw for the beads from the wheat straw get in the chickens' eyes and cause sores.

Some kind of green feed is necessary to get a large number of winter eggs. If you cannot handily give the fowls a variety give them a little clover or alfalfa every day.

Hens that are broken down behind so that the abdomen touches or nearly touches the ground should be disposed of. They never lay well when in that condition and never recover.

Farmers in every state can raise their horses for half what they have to pay on the markets, with added freight, and they will raise better farm horses than they can afford to buy.

When shipping to market, be sure to find out just when the one you ship to wants the stock to arrive and ship accordingly. If it arrives too early or too late the best prices cannot be obtained.

Don't neglect to store plenty of grain food for the chickens to eat this winter. Chickens will eat nearly all of the common vegetables. Potatoes, cabbage, beets and alfalfa and clover are relished by them.

Thoroughly clean and spray all nests at this time of the year and fill them with clean straw, hay or excelsior for the winter. It seems that hens have no desire to lay in dirty nests and I don't see that we can blame them very much, either.

If you happen to run into poison ivy wash in hot water just as soon as you can. Grindella, which can be had at any drug store, rubbed on the parts every five minutes until the itching stops, will also cure it, if done before the pustules break.

Next year's crop depends upon the seed that is sown this year and now is the time to begin to save the seed. This will give you an opportunity to select only the choicest and you can grade it several times.

If you haven't already bought your males for the coming year it is about time that you had better begin to think seriously about it. By buying off these leavies will make the best better selection than if you wait until the last moment.

Varieties of strawberries vary considerably in their soil requirements, some being particularly adapted to certain localities and there meeting with great success, while in neighboring sections these same varieties are not held in high esteem.

Rape is a drouth resister.

Keep a record of the cows.

Deep plowing stores the rain.

Where is your farm machinery?

The dry pasture calls for a soiling crop.

Cover all raw cement work to prevent freezing.

Sunshine should have a large place in the ration of every hen.

The general agreement seems to be that a good hen is a healthy one.

Add to the capacity of the farm by adding to the strength of the soil.

A flower pot and its saucer makes a good, cheap drinking fountain for chicks.

Plenty of clean, fresh water is necessary if you want your pigs to do their best.

The asparagus may be mulched with manure before the ground is covered with snow.

Young sows that do well with their first litters may be considered good brood-sows.

Crit and shells are cheap, nevertheless very important in the proper care of poultry.

A sheep allowed to fall off in condition will have a weakened constitution permanently.

The farmer who is most interested in his work is the one who usually accomplishes the most.

A light dose of Epsom salts now and then in the drinking water helps to keep the fowls in health.

Gradually increase the grain supply for the turkeys intended for market, and fatten them while on range.

Plenty of yellow corn, whole or cracked, will do a great deal toward fattening the Thanksgiving poultry.

The ewes should be kept on pasture until November, and then confined to clean sheds and fed oats, bran and oil meal.

Never plant young trees among old and diseased ones, because the worms and insects are almost certain to destroy them.

Fill coarse sacks with very dry chaff and bury them in those bins of damp grain. They will absorb a great deal of the moisture.

One of the great advantages of alfalfa as a hog pasture is the fact that it affords a fresh growth throughout the pasturing season.

Handle all fruit with care while picking, sorting and packing. The early apples are especially subject to finger prints and discolorations.

Turkeys for market should not be deprived of food for a longer period than twelve hours. They are killed by bleeding in the mouth and neck.

Healthy fowls do not need tonics. The best of tonics can only aid in restoring thrift and this is not necessary in well-regulated poultry plants.

No dairyman should be satisfied with cows that produce much less than 300 pounds of butter fat per year. Use the Babcock test and dispose of the poor stock.

Confinement and a corn ration alone spoil more brood sows and sires than all other mistakes combined. Far too many farmers feed all their hogs together.

Separated milk is very good for the hogs, shoats or pigs when fed plentifully, and the tank, sawney scrub soon becomes a hearty to behold and a pleasure to own.

Do not attempt to winter more pullets and hens than you have house room for. Each bird should have at least four square feet of floor-space, five would be better.

The sheep stables should have frequent cleaning. When the manure is allowed to remain too long, it gives off ammonia and other foul gases which injure the sheep.

There is a good market for all kinds of feathers. Pick fowls dry and sort feathers, the coarse from the fine. They can easily be preserved until enough are collected to take to market.

Next year's crop depends upon the seed that is sown this year and now is the time to begin to save the seed. This will give you an opportunity to select only the choicest and you can grade it several times.

That You Save Money

In buying new WHEELS is because the repairing costs nearly as much and sometimes more than new wheels. Here is an example: A customer wanted new rims and new tires on his wheels. The cost of this work is at least $10.00 and the price of spokes added to it. I sold that man four good, NEW wheels for $8.00. Putting shaft in a buggy costs you sometimes $2.00. I sell you a complete, new, well ironed shaft for $2.50 to $2.75; also good ironed Buggy and Spring Wagon poles for $4.75 and $1.50. This material sold twice as high five years ago, but automobiles cause these low prices. Come and look at the wheels.

Every Part of "Thornhill" Wagons Must Pass Extreme Tests

Out at the saw mill the makers of this wagon select the pick of the oak and hickory. From three to five years they keep it under shelter—so piled that the air can circulate freely. When finally it is ready to go into a "Thornhill" Wagon, it is as dry as a bone—tough—well nigh unbreakable. The straight grained hickory for spokes and axles is steel-like in its strength. The oak for hubs and felloes is as sturdy as tough oak grows. As it goes thru the mill, each part is inspected again and again. All defective parts are thrown out. Each part must have the O. K. of scores of men. The steel and iron must pass extreme tests—twice as severe as ordinary service will ever demand. Machines, sensitive to the thousandth part of an inch, gauge the work for accuracy—perform the work that can best be done by machinery. It is this excess of caution—this surplus of strength—in every part—that makes the "Thornhill" come pretty close to utter perfection. Before anyone buys a wagon, they should find out about the six big points of superiority built into the "Thornhill". Let us show you this wagon.

R. L. Greenwell was seriously injured last Saturday by an automobile in which he was riding, upsetting, while he was going to the funeral of his relative Jeff Greenwell near Zion Station. Mr. Greenwell was taken to a Cincinnati hospital for treatment, his injuries being so severe. Some other members of his family who were in the automobile at the time were considerably injured but not to a serious degree.

The Walton Methodist Church was filled to overflowing Sunday night to enjoy the beautiful Easter service prepared especially for the occasion, elaborate and being rendered by the members of the choir of the various churches in one body. Miss Sybil Hurt presided as organist, and Prof. J. Taylor Grubb officiated as musical conductor. Beautiful solos were rendered by Miss Mary Ransler and Miss Queen Tillman. The sermon was very ably delivered by the pastor, Rev. C. J. Nugent and was very impressive and interesting.

Mr. Craddock, who lives with Mr. Beuchter, out on the Bellew farm, has a considerable loss by a fire the past week. Clothes and the shoe caught fire and were destroyed, and his people are very distressed by the loss.

The Kentucky Blackberry.

Commissioner Newman, of the State Department of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics, recently made the prediction that Kentucky would some day be famous as a producer of blackberries. "No place in the world," he said, "grows blackberries like Kentucky."

The blackberry is indigenous to Kentucky soil. Probably there is no place where it grows in greater profusion. The plants spring up in unexpected places and they multiply rapidly. The native blackberry grows anywhere and everywhere, and is marvelously prolific. On this account not much attention has been paid to its cultivation, though it responds handsomely to careful tending.

It would be impossible to produce better blackberries so far as quality and general quantity are concerned, than can be grown in Kentucky. It may be that there are localities where bigger berries are produced, but certainly there is no place where better ones are grown. In this respect the situation is the same as with regard to strawberries. The simple truth is that Kentucky is a great berry State, but its greatness lies more in its prospects than in its achievements. Kentucky strawberries are ready for sale in the big city markets, and blackberries, if they were grown as a commercial proposition, quite as readily would find favor.

Really the Kentucky blackberry has never had a fair show. It is the most common of all the small fruits of the country. It has been aptly called "the poor man's fruit," and because of its very abundance it has not received the consideration that it deserves.

It is the one luxury in the fruit line that has been in reach of the masses, growing in the fields, in the woods, in the fence corners, along the streams, on the hills and in the valleys—in some localities almost as omnipresent as grass itself. The presence of the plant has been so general that it is often regarded as a pest and "brier-cutting" is a part of the yearly agricultural performance in many sections of the State.

If the blackberry was a rare fruit its price would be above rubies or diamonds in the mine. Here in Kentucky where it grows as certain as death and taxes, it sometimes finds a slow sale in the village markets at ten cents a bushel.

It is a pity that the people do not develop the blackberry and make money and fame out of it. C. C. J.

Judge Stout of the Franklin Circuit Court comes bravely to the defense of the last Legislature. In his charge to the Franklin county grand jury last week he declared that it was the only Legislature in many years that was not charged with bribery and corruption, and that following the sessions previous to the last it had been his duty to call the attention of the grand juries to these charges and direct an investigation, but following the last session there are no charges of bribery or corruption.

The Judge does not think the severe criticisms of the Legislature by the State press are justified.

An expert alfalfa producer visited the Beaver Lick neighborhood the first week in this month and after looking over several of the farms in that neighborhood he announced that they are first-class alfalfa soil, and the probability is that a very large increase in the acreage of alfalfa will be the result of his visit, as it is no longer denied that alfalfa is the best forage producer a farmer can have on his farm when the soil is adapted to its growth.

At the last term of the fiscal court it was decided to spend any money on several roads and parts of roads in the county this year, such as "Possum Path, Rock Spring Branch, a portion of Ashby Fork, the road leading thru R. C. Gaines' farm to the Perry Creek road, and Doublelick. Some of these roads lay wholly in the in that graded school district, while others are used by only one or two persons.

The Recorder's prediction in regard to the snow did not hold good, it being given a black eye last Thursday morning, which was fortunate, as the Recorder's forecast would have been drafted to serve as a meter at the U. S. Weather Bureau at Washington, D. C., had his prediction panned out a successful forecast.

The Owen Fiscal court met Tuesday with many rock crusher people present urging that their machines be bought. It is the opinion of the court that the court will buy not less than two large rock crushers and probably four or one for each magisterial district. It is such that crushers are badly needed.—Owen Co. Democrat.

Gov. McCreary seems to be making the race for Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator on his own merits and not on his opponents' demerits, which is a very good plan.

Heard a man say the other day that he knew of men who are so opposed to good roads that they would not use any oil or grease if they were made a present of one.

Canal Tolls Matter.

Washington, April 2.—Representative Barnhart, Democrat, of Indiana, author of the newspaper publicity section of the postoffice law, told Postmaster General Buelson today that he believed certain newspapers were violating his provisions by not marking as advertising certain matter attacking the repeal of the Panama tolls. Buelson today that he believed certain newspapers were violating his provisions by not marking as advertising certain matter attacking the repeal of the Panama tolls. Buelson today that he believed certain newspapers were violating his provisions by not marking as advertising certain matter attacking the repeal of the Panama tolls.

Mr. Burleson told Mr. Barnhart he was ready to receive any evidence of violation of the law.

The Postmaster General has information that certain newspapers, some of them the largest and most influential in various cities from coast to coast, are printing articles for the shipping trusts in the agitation against the tolls repeal bill," said Representative Barnhart today.

"These articles, according to information before the department are printed as bona fide news articles without the slightest indication that they are advertisements," newspapers and their editors and owners, if investigation discloses that they are accepting pay for the so-called news articles, may be fined by the courts and their newspapers barred from the second class privilege.

The question up to the Kentucky farmer is tobacco or children. If the farmers continue to raise large crops of tobacco and keep the children out of school, they will be fined by the courts and their newspapers barred from the second class privilege.

The Texas is having the same trouble over her cotton. With the present high prices in every other crop it is not necessary to raise all tobacco to make money.—Owen County Democrat.

MACON, GA., CHILD
Made Strong and Well by Vinol.

When we tell you that Vinol is the best remedy in our whole stock for making weak, puny, ailing children strong, robust and well, we are only telling you what has been proved by hundreds of mothers.

J. L. Fickling, Macon, Ga., says: "My child was very thin and delicate, no appetite, nervous, and did not sleep well. Doctors did not help her. Vinol was recommended and the change after a fair trial was wonderful. She sleeps soundly all night, has a splendid appetite and has gained in weight. I wish every mother knew what Vinol will do for delicate children."

What Vinol did for this little girl it will do for every weak and ailing child because sickly children need the strengthening cod liver element and the tonic iron that Vinol contains—that is why Vinol builds them up quickly and gives them a fine, healthy color. It is pleasant to take and we guarantee that the results will satisfy you—money back if they do not.

P. S.—If you have Ecsema try our Ecso Salve. We guarantee it.

THE FINE BELGIAN DRAFT HORSE
Season 1914
Don DeGozee
The Belgian Draft Stallion, foaled in 1908, will make the present season at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.
Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than any other draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.
Don DeGozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Kentucky, sired by Bayard DeGozee 2188, whose Belgium Suid Book number is 21670, bred by Mr. Bailleur E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), by Brilliant (709), out of Coatte (703), dam of Catherine DeGozee (21083), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2421).
Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.

Having spent the winter in Covington, Lon Utz and wife have moved back to their home near Big Bone church where he will do his farmer's uniform and proceed to business.

Claud Carpenter died at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Covington, Sunday, the age of 47 years.

He was formerly a resident of this neighborhood but after disposing of his interests here some time ago he went to Covington to make his home. He had been in poor health for quite a while and it became necessary to have a surgical operation from which he never recovered.

He was an upright and honorable citizen and was highly respected by all who knew him. Funeral services were conducted at Hopeful by Rev. Wallace last Tuesday, and the remains were buried in Hopeful cemetery.

A large concourse of sorrowing relatives and friends.

Personal Mention.

Hubert Brady, who resides on Middle creek, is ill of a fever.

Bernard Gaines returned last Saturday from business trip to Detroit, Michigan.

Grover Snyder and wife, of Butler, Pendleton county, came over last week to visit their parents.

B. C. Tanner and wife, of Gunpowder, who spent the winter at Maria Marie, have returned home.

Mrs. Cora Strouse's two children have measles, the first appearance of the disease in Burlington this year.

D. M. Snyder has been very ill for several days of acute indigestion. Both of his sons are at his bedside.

Her Children.

Miss Lallie Rice, of Idlewild neighborhood, was the guest of Miss Margaret Hughes last Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Lela Edwards, principal of Petersburg High School, was the guest of Miss Mary Roberts last Saturday and Sunday.

C. C. Hughes, who is located at Petersburg in the revenue vice, spent last Saturday night and Sunday in Burlington.

Henry Hughes and wife, who had been guests of his brother G. G. Hughes for a week, left Monday for their home in Nebraska.

Mrs. H. W. Shearer, of Newport, is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Mr. Shearer spent last Saturday night and Sunday with them.

M. J. Rice came over and spent a few hours in town, one day last week, his only appearance here for several months, but with the arrival of warm weather his visits will be more frequent it is hoped.

Mrs. Cad Sullivan, of Bullittsville, called at this office last Thursday to pay her husband's subscription to the Recorder, which had been out for a few weeks, and when she laid down the coin or two years, she was asked if she desired to pay for two years in advance, when she answered, "Yes, I do not take time long to roll around, so I might as well pay for two." In the matter of newspaper subscription Mrs. Sullivan is in a class by herself.

Walter Scott Ryle.

Walter Scott Ryle, second son of Thaddeus C. R. and America Nelson Ryle, was born August 16, 1852, and departed this life April 9, 1914. Being 61 years seven months and 23 days of age.

He was married Dec. 3, 1885 to Anna Hankinson. To this union six children were born, Mrs. Emily Craig; Herman; John Pearl Walter Jr., and Clayton.

Besides the above he leaves a widow, two brothers, D. Milton and Hubert, both of the county, and one sister, Mrs. E. R. Scott, of Bowen, Illinois and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

He was preceded to the Better Land by his father, mother, three sisters and one brother.

Walter was the son of Universalist parents, and while never uniting with that church was of that faith. He was born in Boone county near the place where he died and spent his entire life near where he was born. He was early a sufferer from rheumatism and all his entire life was never free from the effects of that trouble. And although all the most never having seen a well day, and so severely afflicted with pain suffering, he lived to raise a large family and to honor his name and call him blessed.

Card of Thanks—We desire to extend our heartfelt and sincere thanks to those friends and relatives who kind to our husband and father, Walter S. Ryle, during his last illness and death, and rendering us so many favors during that period.

We also desire to express our thanks to the ministers, Rev. Leon P. Jones for the funeral sermon and comforting remarks, also Rev. H. B. Hensley for his beautiful prayer, also himself and daughter Miss Elizabeth, for their beautiful singing. We also desire to thank Mrs. Alice Clouse, for the flowers that were presented by his sister and brothers, and by the Red Men.

We also desire to thank the undertaker, Mr. R. A. Steele, for his composed manner of conducting the funeral.

And we especially thank Dr. I. E. Cackley, for being so attentive to the "Dear One" that gone, and his kindness to us after his death.

The Bereaved wife and Children.

Dear Old Boone Forging to the Front

We rejoice to see the rapid strides she is making to come into her own. The people in a large measure are the country and ours are superb.

No county can boast of a people of finer spirit, true, sociable and energetic.

And thanks to the unabating energy of our superintendent, we have made great headway along lines of education in which our county has long been the leader.

Our high school is being watched with interest by other counties.

I am glad to say we have a wide awake corps of teachers.

The spirit of enterprise is catching along other lines of improvement, the promoters of which are every day rise up and call blessed.

"But as the Lord said to the church of Ephesus, 'I have saved what thou hast, but thou hast left out thy first love' of church going and work."

I wish I might insist on all patrons and members of the county to join me in making the month of May a great campaign for church going that we may reestablish the old ways of church attendance.

I urge that every pastor and people of every denomination talk, work and pray to this end, and report the increase in church membership of habit, let us get the habit of church going.

We begin this much needed thing at Burlington-Baptist church on Sunday, July 5th, with a call of membership and S. S. rally. Every body invited.

J. W. CAMPBELL, Pastor.

NOTICE.

To the Patrons and to the School Patrons and Citizens of Boone County:

This county pays into the state treasury for school purposes about $16,000 a year and only gets back about $10,000 because of the smallness of the school census.

It seems very probable after closely viewing the facts that there are a number who have been missed due to moving April 1, or thereabout; also to those who were born in July, 1894 who are not quite 20 years old.

As the county receives from the state about $5.00 this year for each child it is especially desired that the increase in school membership and S. S. rally. Every body invited.

Don't let anyone be missed. All information will be appreciated.

MURDER TRIAL

Gus Stephens Being Tried For The Killing of Joe Kells At Williamstown.

The case of the Commonwealth against Gus Stephens and Mrs. Grace Kells, indicted jointly by a Grant county grand jury, for the murder of Joseph Kells, husband of Mrs. Grace Kells, in Williamstown, on the night of the 29th of last October, and brought to this county by a change of venue, was called for trial in the Circuit Court last Thursday morning. A large number of witnesses for the State, about 40 responded when called and several others were accounted for.

Both parties announced ready for trial the defendants electing to be tried separately. The witnesses were sworn and given the usual admonition not to converse among themselves or with anyone else in regard to their testimony either before or after they had testified. They were also informed that they would have a change of venue to the court room during the hearing of testimony. It being apparent that witnesses would not be needed before Monday they were divided into two squads and the names of those desired for Monday were announced, the others being told to come on Tuesday.

A special venire of 50 jurors were drawn from the jury wheel and the sheriff ordered to summon them to appear in court at 9 a. m., Monday.

The selection of the jury was begun Monday morning the panel being completed late in the afternoon, 32 jurors having been examined before the following 12 were finally accepted:

A. P. Hensley, Minister, John W. Early, H. H. Clouse, John C. White, D. M. Hensley, W. K. Souther, Chas. Riley, O. C. Hafer, S. L. Aylor, S. B. Cotton, Frank Rue.

The jurors are all young men and farmers except John White, who is an auto liverman.

The testimony of one witness, Dr. Ecker, was heard before the court adjourned Monday evening. The jury was given the usual admonition and placed in charge of the sheriff, and at night occupy cots in the circuit court room.

It has been fine weather all week, very much to the liking of the jurors who are here, and especially those from Grant county.

Owen Huelt and C. W. Riddell, two ex-Burlingtonites, came down yesterday to testify for the defendant in the Gus Stevens trial.

R. L. Westover, of Williamstown, came over Tuesday to report the trial for his paper, the Grant County News, the Cincinnati Enquirer and the Courier-Journal.

Witnesses for the defense came in Wednesday.

A considerable crowd of people, many of them ladies, have been listening to the testimony.

The prosecution concluded its testimony in chief Wednesday.

The Commonwealth is represented by John J. Hensley, C. Adams and W. W. Dickerson. The defendant by John O'Neal and C. E. O'Hara.

One of the witnesses from Williamstown secured a long fishing pole and amused himself by fishing in the large mud holes that ornament the street in front of the court house.

The court adjourned from about 10 o'clock Wednesday to 1 p. m., when the hearing of testimony for the defendant was begun.

Judge Campbell is now holding Court in the Circuit Clerk's office at night.

WAR IS ON.

Circuit Court.

When the Recorder went to press last week the jury in the Byland case was not completed, and when completed it was composed of the following:

M. L. Crutcher, John White, M. R. Akin, Jas. Williamson, T. E. Randall, Chester Aylor, George Burris, J. K. Clouse, Chas. W. Riley, Cecil Burns, J. D. McNeely.

The hearing of the testimony was begun Thursday and was not completed until afternoon on Friday, when the defense moved for preliminary instructions, which motion was argued at length but was overruled by the court. Saturday the arguments of counsel were begun, the defense having offered no testimony. The arguments of counsel were concluded at noon, Saturday and the case given to the jury which returned after about an hour's deliberation a verdict finding the defendant guilty and fixing his punishment at two years confinement in the penitentiary. Grounds and motion for new trial were filed.

Howe, the Commonwealth and Rogers and Clouse for the defendant. The motion for a new trial had not been ruled on at the time of going to press.

Truth and Poetry.

Mr. Wilson having beaten brilliantly a combination of Republicans, Progressives and Democrats in the House, the augurs of the soreheads are wagging divinating and doleful ears. If this man Wilson dares to become a candidate in 1916, he will have to "fight for it," and so on. Such nagging of the nerves does a long session bring; and so vainly do some steady losers kick against the pricks.

It is clear to pretty much everybody outside of Washington that the man who is to win in 1916, Mr. Wilson continues to be sound in mind and body his renohian is as certain as the number of days in a week. The most insatiable of the Democratic brethren know it; it adds to their sorrow.

DAIRY FACTS

FEED CALF SEPARATED MILK

Whole Wheat or Graham Flour Mush Takes Place of Cream Eliminates Danger of Scours.

In feeding calves, separated milk sometimes should be given to take the place of the cream taken out of milk.

Make a mush of graham or whole wheat flour and add to the skim milk and the calves will do as well as on whole milk. A pint of flour will make a feed for three or four calves, says a writer in Farm Progress.

Take boiling water and stir flour into it the same as you would make mush of meat, being careful to not have it lumpy, so it will mix well with milk when added to it.

Give the calf new milk the first week or until the mother's milk is fit to use, then begin to add some skim milk with a little of the mush added. Decrease the new milk and increase skim milk and mush till calf is about three weeks old, when you can feed all skim milk and mush.

Calves fed in this way are not so liable to have scours as when they are fed on cornmeal as the cooked wheat is good for troubles of that kind in calves.

Care should be taken to not over-feed calves, as that sometimes causes trouble with hand-fed calves. They should also have a nice green pasture to run in in summer, or if in winter, have some kind of bright, sweet hay to pick at, as they soon learn to eat such feed if they can get it.

GETS PRESSURE BY GRAVITY

One of Best Arrangements Around Any Farm Is Sufficient Water Supply—One Idea Shown.

The handiest thing on the farm the year around is a good arrangement of the water supply. We have a screened porch on the west side of our house and adjoining this on the north is a milk room, writes F. E. Greathouse, of Terryton, Kan., in the Farmer's Mail and Breeder. The well is 20 feet west of the milk house. Water is pumped through an overhead pipe into a 40-gallon galvanized iron tank, which overflows into a 10-foot milk trough. From this trough the water overflows through an underground pipe into an 8 by 16-foot stock tank. The stock tank overflows into an irrigating reservoir for the garden. The pump has a 4-inch cylinder and 2-inch pipe is used all around.

Cows on Green Rye.

If cows are turned on to green rye pasture very gradually, there will be no bad effects on the milk. Dairy cows should not be allowed in it for more than fifteen or twenty minutes at first.

Advantages of Dairying.

With dairying, the farmer can have money coming in every week of the year, he can become rich, and at the same time he can make his land more fertile than by any other system of farming.

DAIRY NOTES

Milking into hooded pails means cleaner milk.

Usually the cream from stripper cows churns slowly.

The calf should be fed meal and chop dry. Do not put it in the milk. Cleanliness and low temperature are the fundamental needs in keeping milk.

The calves that are kept growing from the very start have the best chance.

Ground oats make splendid feed for practically all of the growing stock on the farm.

The more butter is washed the more flavor it loses. Good butter needs only one washing.

Whether times are hard or prosperous, the man with a few good cows holds good insurance.

Provided the cow is a good one, the more she is fed along the right lines the more she will give.

The successful dairy farmer who has the right idea of life is usually the most satisfactory neighbor.

The cow that gives the greatest profits, other things being equal, is the cow that has the best care.

Turn the hunky, unsalable raw materials of the farm into a finished, always-salable article, namely, butter.

Men who keep dual cows have either been misled by some false teacher or else have no desire to improve their herd.

SHOULD MILK A COW CLEAN

Operation Should Be Performed Twice Daily and Have Periods Divided Even as Possible.

Probably no single cause tends more to check milk secretion than the failure to remove all the milk at the time of milking, says Hoard's Dairyman. The presence of even a little milk in the ducts may act as a powerful check on the secretion of fresh milk. Hence the extreme importance of clean milking; that is, milking the cow dry, which will be found one of the surest and best methods of prolonging the milk supply.

Generally twice a day is sufficient; and it is best to so arrange that the period mentioned is divided evenly into parts. There are certain animals which yield rather more by being milked oftener, such cases being indicated by an undue distention of the udder between milkings. The most important part to impress is the extreme necessity of regularity in the time of milking, for it has been ascertained by careful experiments that the difference of an hour may, and often does, make a difference of as much as nine per cent. in the amount of milk yielded. Repeated irregularities of this kind soon tend to diminish the flow of milk permanently. Weighing the milk is the best means of registering the capabilities of a cow.

FOOTPOWER OPERATES CHURN

Movement Is Obtained That Is Partly Automatic and Keeps Dasher in Continuous Action.

A churn that is operated by footpower instead of by handpower has been patented by a Kentucky man. From a handchurn two upright poles rise and encircling these poles are coiled springs, rising almost to the tops. Resting on top of the springs is a crosspiece in which the dasher of the churn is fixed. Underneath the crossbar are pulleys, through which ropes are attached to the base and to the arms of the treadle. When the treadle is operated, the crosspiece is drawn down with the downward pressure of the foot and is forced upward again by the spring. This results in a movement that is partly automatic and keeps the dasher in continuous action. Fans attached to the dasher also operate automatically to cool the contents of the churn. With this mechanism the person churning has his or her hands free for other work, such as peeling potatoes, etc.

DAIRY NOTES

Better have one good cow than two scrubs.

Turnips are a very good feed for dairy cows.

Hindus used butter for food 2,000 years before Christ.

A bit of old cream may spoil the whole batch of butter.

Slilage will average about 40 pounds per cubic foot, in the silo.

Chips are cheaper than corn to warm the cow's drinking water.

The temperature at which milk separates best is about 90 degrees.

Life is a merry whirl for the "boarder" cow whose milk is tested.

Cream well cooled before shutting the cover down tight will keep better.

Clean hands, a clean cow, a clean barn, and a clean milk pail produce clean milk.

The Holstein breed was first heard of in the northern part of Holland 2,000 years ago.

The dairymen who put his corn stalks into a silo is not worrying about stalk disease.

In keeping cows remember that production will largely depend upon the comfort of the cow.

A good cow should never be put in the hands of a poor milker. It is sure to work disastrous results.

To keep the cream from splashing out of the dash churn try pinning a folded newspaper around the top.

Put a little bran in the bottom of the pail when the calf has drunk his milk, and he will readily learn to eat it.

FARM STOCK

PORTABLE FENCE IS USEFUL

May Be Placed Around Rich Piece of Fodder and Pastured Off in Most Economical Manner.

Rather than cut a rich piece of fodder to be gathered and moved away to the sheep, hogs or other stock, it is often more economical to pasture it off, a small place at a time. The lack of suitable fence often prevents this, writes Sylvanus Vanaken in the Portable Fence Panel.

Orange Judd Farmer. A portable fence may be built according to the plan shown in the drawing herewith. It requires but a few panels of this inclose sufficient field for a day's cropping, when it can be shifted to new ground the next day. If sheep with lambs are to be folded in this way an extra board will be needed at the bottom of each panel. These panels may be built 12 or 14 feet in length, and must be thoroughly braced to keep the fence firm from end to end. Cross-pieces at the bottom of the upright should be long enough to keep the fence firm sideways. The upright used for the portable base should be two by four inches, with iron hooks driven or screwed in at proper intervals to receive the end boards of the panels.

DETERMINE AGE OF HORSES

Most Accurate Method is by Observation of Teeth—Whole Story Told in a Nutshell.

To tell the age of a horse, says Prof. E. L. Potter, of the Oregon Agricultural college, notice his teeth, his ribs, flesh on his tail and the skin on his cheeks. In a young horse the skin on his cheeks is soft and elastic, and lies back quickly, while in an old one the skin is lifeless and goes back to place but slowly. There is a wider, more distant space apparent between the ribs of an old horse than of a young one, and with age the flesh on the tail shrinks, making the joints more distinct.

The most accurate method of judging is by the teeth. The temporary teeth come first, and then the permanent ones, and their development to maturity, change the shape on and their ultimate wearing away, with the change in angle of meeting from perpendicular to an acute angle in age, are all the important indications of age.

The permanent teeth above and below come in at the same time, but the cups above do not wear away until all those below are gone. The changes begin at the center and continue at the rate of one pair a year. At maturity (five years) a horse has everything—all the permanent teeth and their cups. This is the whole thing in a nutshell.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Good dry bedding for the hogs will save off feed.

Rye may be cut for hay and used for all classes of live stock.

Are your hogs going to have a treat of greens in a patch of fall rye?

Stock raising is the best insurance against an impoverished future.

Just now the heavy year is a much sought after article in the live stock markets.

With proper food and clean quarters there is very little danger of sickness among pigs.

Farmers of the present time can own no better stock than healthy growing pigs.

If you want the nicest and cleanest meat in the world dress a fine lamb and there you have it.

Maybe the sharp teeth of some little pig will need breaking off. You can tell if the sow is being hurt.

The localities where some sort of live stock may not be profitably maintained are few and far between.

Sheep are a good medium for increasing the fertility of the farm of the man who has limited means.

Let up on that exclusive corn ration you are giving the sows. Feed mill-stuff instead if you want good litters.

EARLY DAYS OF JOURNALISM

First English Editor Had Very Decided Opinions as to the Freedom of the Press.

The first Englishman of letters of any distinction to take up journalism as a profession was Sir Roger L'Estrange, who died 209 years ago. He was an indefatigable pamphleteer on the royalist and court side during the epoch of the restoration. In 1682 L'Estrange was made "surveyor of the press," the censor of all books and pamphlets, and the editor of a monopolistic newspaper, "The Intelligencer." L'Estrange printed only such news as pleased the government, and labored vainly to suppress his illegal and unlicensed competitors, who surreptitiously printed and circulated "news letters" containing reprinted news from the first number of the Intelligencer. L'Estrange objected to the publication of anything but the most carefully edited news on the ground that "it makes the multitude too familiar with the actions and counsels of their superiors, gives them not only a wish but a kind of colorable right and license to the meddling with the government." But L'Estrange failed miserably in his attempt to stamp out the ideal of a free press, and later, when he was deprived of his monopoly, he himself turned to the publication of an unofficial "catch-penny" sheet called the Observer.

GOOD IN MENTAL FIRE DRILL

Really Excellent Suggestion Made by Woman Who Learned Its Value Through Experience.

They had been relating their most thrilling experience. "My first experience taught me a lesson I find few people have learned. I call it my mental fire drill," said the motherly one. "You know how we all unconsciously put something down while we are thinking of something else. Well, when our home was on fire it took me so long trying to think what I would want to save that and where the articles were that my escape was cut off. Though I feel everlastingly grateful to the firemen for rescuing me, it is not a very comfortable experience. So I determined for ever after to make a practice every time I put anything of value aside to impress myself where I put it, and I also had a place upstairs and down where I kept the articles I cherished that were too large for our safe and the tin boxes. Once in a while I spent a few moments thinking about what I would want to save first. The articles are so impressed on my mind that I shall never forget them I am sure in any stress or excitement."

"I really feel quite proud of my mental fire drill, for it gives me a feeling of well-being that I never experienced before."

Family of Poets.

No other family has, through two generations, produced so many poets as the Tennysons. All the laureate's brothers wrote poems and both his sons, Alfred and Arthur, were poets. Magazine, though they did so anonymously. "It is a curious fact," wrote Alexander Japp in 1902, "that the Tennyson family, every male member of which wrote verse, and successfully, should have so far abstained from publishing original poetry. In all, as if they disliked the idea of coming into competition with the great poet. Specimens of the work of Lionel and Hallam Tennyson will be found in 'Poets and Poetry of the Century,' and I may add that these pieces were sent to me by the old poet himself in a letter now before me, with such words as most certainly show that he did not share the feeling of Scott—thinking God that his sons showed no poetic symptoms."

Estimating Loss by Smoke.

England is making an organized attempt to measure, by means of instruments, the damage done by the smoke abatement committee, the extent of the soot and dust existing in the atmosphere of several large towns. The instrument to be used follows the principle of the rain gauge, a given area being exposed to catch all solid matter that is carried by gravity or collected in a glass receiver placed beneath a duct leading from the collecting surface. The receiver will be removed once a month and replaced by a fresh one.

Full Explanation.

The Germans have a way of making compound nouns and sentences with the verb two or three pages further on, which to the student of Teutonic languages is somewhat perplexing. The six-year-old daughter of a friend of mine, however, can go the Germans one better. While walking with her mother the other day, she bowed to a young woman and said:

"Who is that?" asked her mother. "Why, don't you know?" explained the small daughter. "She is the little girl with red hair who sits next to me at school's mamma."—Exchange.

For Left-Handed Persons.

Butter manufacturers make various articles for the special benefit of left-handed people. Besides scissors adjusted for their use, you can buy left-handed screws, gimlets and other tools. And, most thoughtful of all contrivances to minister to their physical peculiarities, corkscrews twisted the wrong way, as a right-handed person would think, for left-handed butlers and waiters.—London Chronicle.

BEST TEA ON MOUNTAIN TOP

Long Cultivated by Priests of Buddhist Temple in the Western Part of the Country.

The best tea in all China, and, therefore, in all the world, grows on top of small mountains in Western Szechuan, called Ming Shan, and is cultivated by the priests of the Buddhist temple on its summit, according to the Youth's Companion. Tradition says that a Chinese pilgrim brought the seeds from India centuries ago. There are only a few pounds in each crop, and these have always gone as tribute to Peking for the use of the Imperial household. Who will get the precious tea now? Will it be reserved for the family of the president of the republic, or will it be scattered among those who are willing to pay a big price for such a luxury?

There is a saying in China, that to make a perfect cup of tea you must take leaves from Ming Shan, and water from the Yangtze. No one supposed the actual turbid river water to be meant, but no one could explain the proverb until De Rothorn, who wrote an interesting treatise on Chinese tea solved the problem, or thought he did.

De Rothorn was once crossing the Yangtze near its mouth, at Chen-Kiang, when he saw some men in a boat, dipping water into buckets. He inquired why they did that, and was told that at the bottom of the bay there was a spring, remembered since the time when the present river-bed was dry land, and that this spring water was highly esteemed in cooking. Here, then, he concluded, he found that special water of the Yangtze which, with Ming Shan leaves, made the best cup of tea in the world.

TO QUALIFY AS "BEST MAN"

Man Who Has Risen From the Ranks to High Position Describes Requirements One Must Possess.

What constitutes the "best man" in any line of commercial activity? was a question put to the New York agent of a steel corporation who came up from a puddler in his company's plant. The requisites to make such a man, in his opinion, are:

"Amenable to discipline and able to take criticism in good form. "Able to apply fairness and consideration to those who through force of circumstances are placed under him. "Must not hesitate to criticize when criticism is needed, and for the sole benefit of his company.

"Performs such work as comes to him with the best of his command.

"Does not pay too serious attention to the clock and is willing to work a few minutes overtime without protest.

"Takes the assignment of new and difficult work to him with good grace.

"Always ready to profit by his associations with his fellow workers."

Keeping House Plants Healthy.

No one who has not seen a really well cared for and healthy collection of house plants can imagine the charm and beauty they can lend to the room in which they live. Unhealthy plants are depressing, and unless one is willing to give the window garden a reasonable amount of care it is better to dispense with it altogether. The house plants will cheerfully repay any intelligent attention, though they resent meddling. The real gardener, the one who has the true love of flowers at heart, knows when to leave well enough alone. Do not disturb the roots at all during the winter unless they are attacked by insects, for most plants are resting and cannot then put out new shoots. This is particularly true of such plants as palms, rubber plants and ferns, which have best be started and fed with fertilizers only in the summer. Soft wooded plants, like geraniums, are not easily injured by transplanting; but even so if they need extra feeding on account of large growth, it is much better given in liquid form.

Loyalty.

For those who are not merely loyal, but also enlightened, loyalty, never losing the definiteness and concreteness of its devotion to some near and directly fascinating cause, sees itself to be in actual spiritual unity with the common cause of all the loyal, whoever they are. The great cause for all the loyal is in reality the cause of the spread and the furtherance of the cause of the universal loyalty of all mankind; a cause which nobody can serve except by choosing his own near and more immediate appreciated cause—the private cause which is directly his own—his family, his community, his friendship, his calling, and the calling of those who serve with him. Yet such personal service—your special life cause, your task, your vocation—be your way of furthering the ends of universal humanity.

—Josiah Royce, "Loyalty and Integrity."

Descendants of Aztec Royalty.

Descendants of the Aztec monarchs of Mexico still live. There is one in Holland and another in Mexico itself, while some of the lesser lineages are still drawing pensions from the Mexican government on the strength of that kinship. Direct descendants of Montezuma live in Salamanca, represented by the Maldonado family, allied by marriage with the English house of Lancaster. The Empress Eugenie of France claims a distant descent from Montezuma, and, as a biographer writes, "the widow of Napoleon III. is thus of greater imperial stock than her husband, and brought to the alliance more dignity than she acquired by it."

NOW HER FRIENDS HARDLY KNOW HER

But This Does Not Bother Mrs. Burton, Under the Circumstances.

Houston, Texas.—In an interesting letter from this city, Mrs. S. C. Burton writes as follows: "I think it is my duty to tell you what your medicine, Cardui, the woman's tonic, has done for me.

I was down sick with womanly trouble, and my mother advised several different treatments, but they didn't seem to do me any good. I lingered along for three or four months, and for three weeks. I was in bed, so sick I couldn't bear for any one to walk across the floor.

My mother advised me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. I have taken two bottles of Cardui, am feeling fine, gained 15 pounds and do all of my housework. Friends hardly know me, I am so well."

If you suffer from any of the ailments so common to women, don't allow the trouble to become chronic. Begin taking Cardui today. It is purely vegetable, its ingredients acting in a gentle, natural way on the weakened womanly constitution. You run no risk in trying Cardui. It has been helping weak women back to health and strength for more than 50 years. It will help you. At all dealers.

The Drag and the Rural Road.

The Hopkinsville Business Men's Association is a thorough convert to the efficiency of the split-log drag as an implement for keeping country roads in good condition. The Association has petitioned the Fiscal Court to adopt the drag system instead of returning to the old contract method of working the roads.

To encourage the use of the drag the Business Men's Association has offered prizes of $50 for the best mile of road, $35 for the second best and $15 for the third best mile worked with the split-log drag. The roads are to be inspected from time to time by competent judges, and the awards are to be made not later than June 1, 1915. All contestants are to keep up their respective sections of road at their own expense and without any assistance from the county except the county will furnish the drags free of charge. The minimum number of contestants is ten, and the traffic on the road, together with the natural surroundings and general contour of the country through which the road runs, will be considered in awarding the prizes.

A contest of this kind ought to bring some substantial improvement on the country roads. The merits of the split-log drag are very well understood in Christian county and in other parts of Kentucky. There is no question that the drag does all that is claimed for it, but the difficulty lies in getting the rural residents to make use of it. The method adopted at Hopkinsville is good, but even cash prizes have not been a sufficient incentive in some counties to induce road dragging at suitable intervals.

Road maintenance is a public duty and, like some other public duties, it often is poorly performed. The roads are primarily beneficial to those who live along them and use them most. Those who work the roads are working for themselves. No farmer will miss the time that is required to drag the highway adjacent to his farm, and he should take pride and pleasure in such laudable activity.

An evidence of the increased interest being taken in stock raising by Daviess county farmers is the large number of silos that are being constructed over the county. From a small number, less than half a dozen, at the beginning of last season, the number of silos has increased to more than 100 in the county up to the present time.—Owensboro Messenger.

The average citizen possibly does not realize the extent of the development of apple culture in McCracken county as a result of the recent interest centered in this industry through the organization of the Growers' Association. An investigation of the records on file in the office of the Board of Trade shows that a little over 62,000 apple trees have been planted in McCracken county this spring.—Paducah News-Democrat.

Resolutions of Respect,

Castle Hall Workmen Lodge No. 68 K. of P., Petersburg, Ky., April 13, 1914.

Whereas, on the 9th day of April, 1914, the Supreme Ruler of the Universe in his divine and infinite wisdom, called from earth to her final reward, our Bro. B. F. Jarrell's wife, be it

Resolved, That our Lodge realizes the great loss that has come to our brother and his family, who has lost his trusted companion, who was esteemed and beloved by all who knew him, a Christian lady whose beautiful life of Friendship and Charity has blessed the home of many. Always kind, considerate and sympathetic. An earnest church worker, a good neighbor, a self-sacrificing lady whose great delight was in making others happy; and be it said to her credit she abhorred anything that savored of unkindness in word, act or deed. Be it further

Resolved, That our deepest sympathy go out to the grieving husband who has lost the jewel of his life, and a copy of this resolution be caused to be spread upon the minutes of the lodge, one to the bereaved husband, and one to the Boone County Recorder, Burlington, Ky., for publication.

Committee—Everett L. Helms, D. B. Hoffman, Geo. Rath.

Miss Elizabeth Rogers

Miss Elizabeth A. Rogers, daughter of Boone and Jennie Rogers, born October 8th, 1882, united with the Baptist church at Bellevue in 1906, departed this life April 8, 1914, leaving father and mother, two sisters, Mrs. Grace Brown and Mrs. Frances Williamson and three brothers, Nathaniel, John, Clayton and Louvett, with many other relatives and a host of friends. And while they miss her they should be comforted with the thought that to her truly "to die" was "gain" for she was faithful to God, loyal to her church, a devoted daughter and sister, efficient and unwavering in her life's work, that of school teaching, in which service she was engaged in Bellevue graded school till within four weeks of her death. Her place will be hard to fill. She was a silent and patient sufferer and it was hard for us to realize that the welcome faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many. Enter thou into the joy of the Lord, would come so soon. We tender to her bereaved ones our heartfelt sympathy and pray that God will send consolation to them who were laid to rest April 9th, in the Bellevue cemetery, from the Baptist church, the writer conducting the services.

MURDER AT ERLANGER

Man Knocked Senseless With Fence Picket—Seeing Him Crawl Away They Cut His Throat.

Confession of Ghastly Crime Made by Two Boys Aged 17 and 19.

J. L. Litten, 58, railroad cook at South Erlanger, was murdered last Wednesday night by Henry Landrum, 17, and Louis Morehead, 19. The body of Litten accidentally was found lying on the railroad track just before the arrival of the midnight train. He having been placed there to be so mutilated by a train as to destroy any traces of the crime. The skull was crushed on one side of the head while the throat was cut and the head nearly severed. The murdered man had $28 in his pocket which was taken by his slayers.

Litten was last seen when he and the two boys left a station near midnight, and they were arrested on suspicion and one placed in the Erlanger jail and the other confined in the jail at Erlanger, and it was not long until they confessed their guilt. Morehead says he struck Litten with a picket fence rail and cut his throat, but Landrum accuses Morehead of knocking Litten down and also cutting his throat. Morehead's sworn confession is as follows:

"I, Louis Morehead, under my own free will, do hereby confess that I hit J. L. Litten on the head with a fence picket and knocked him on his hands and knees. I held him and Henry Landrum took the money out of his pocket. We shoved him over and Landrum stomped him with his foot, and we started down the railroad tracks, but looked back and saw Litten crawling out of the tracks. We went back and Landrum got his (Litten's) knife out of his pocket and I pushed him over and Landrum cut his throat, as we did not want him to tell. We walked up the track to Erlanger and waited for a train, but the train was late and we decided to go home and to go to town in the morning and divide the money. I swear the above statements are true.

Landrum's confession is as follows:

"I, Henry Landrum, do swear that I was with Louis Morehead on the night of April 15, 1914, at or about 10:30 p. m., and saw Louis Morehead hit J. L. Litten whom I afterwards saw on the tracks at Erlanger. Morehead hit Litten then cut his throat. We met Litten in Holton's saloon in Erlanger. We afterwards went to a number of saloons and then to Munke's saloon. From there we went to the railroad track where the murder occurred. Morehead took about $28 out of the man's right pants pocket. He gave me a $20 gold certificate."

A bloody knife, said to belong to Morehead, was found near the scene of the tragedy. It is an ordinary pocket knife with one blade. The citizens of Erlanger and vicinity are shocked over the affair, and it is now thought that some of the other dead men found on the railroad in and about Erlanger the past year may have been murdered, robbed and placed on the track to destroy traces of the crimes.

George English Dead.

This community was saddened by the sudden death of Mr. Geo. English's little daughter, Katherine May. She had been sick but a short time with bronchial pneumonia. Her father was by her side at the time of her death. Little Katherine had untwined herself about the affections of the family until her death was most painfully felt. She was but six years 10 months and six days old. She had lived with her father and little brother, Elmer, at the home of Mr. John English and his wife, Mrs. Ida. An appropriate service was conducted on Monday morning after her death by Rev. A. Kirtley Johnson and the interment took place in the cemetery at Bethel. All efforts were made to save little Katherine but it was God's will that human skill or effort could not control. The funeral was conducted by T. S. Chambers. Mr. English, and there were four little girls for pallbearers. They were Elizabeth English, Hazel Watson, Corbett Waller and Margaret Hume.

May Have a Clear Field.

The Louisville-Times having looked over the field in this Congressional district it makes the following prediction:

"Reports from the Sixth Congressional district indicate that Congressman Arthur B. Rouse may have a clear field for the Democratic nomination and only nominal opposition at the general election. The Sixth district Congressman is regarded as one of the hardest-working members of the Kentucky delegation and one of the most influential men in the House. His position on the important Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads has given him much prestige, and he is credited with being one of the best posted men on postal affairs in Congress. He is a 'bear cat' when it comes to campaigning and can cover as much ground as the best of 'em."

Doing Good Work.

The Board of Directors of the Consolidated Telephone Company of Union, Ky., held a very enthusiastic meeting April 10, 1914. The work and business of the past fiscal year was fully reviewed and the Board expressed itself as follows: That the Board of Directors sanction the manner in which the President and General Manager, Mr. M. J. Crouch, has conducted the business of the company during the past year and by this motion express our appreciation of his efficient services.

A THREE PER CENT dividend was declared and other business was transacted. Respectfully, J. W. KENNEDY, Secretary.

DAIRY FACTS

REPORT ON DAIRY BUSINESS

Increase in Number of Cows Almost Same as Increase in Population—Interesting Figures.

The United States census report shows 21,795,770 dairy cows in 1910, as compared with 18,108,666 in 1900, an increase in ten years of 3,687,104, or 20.4 per cent. The number of people in the United States increased 21 per cent in the same period.

The total number of pounds of butter made in 1909 was 1,619,415,263, 1899 it was 1,491,752,602, an increase of 8.6 per cent. There was an increase of 48.7 per cent in butter made in the creameries, and a decrease of 7.2 per cent in butter made on farms; 61.4 per cent of the butter was made on the farms in 1909, as against 71.8 per cent in 1899.

The cheese industry shows a similar increase in total make, being 320,533,181 pounds in 1909, as against 288,344,642 pounds in 1899, an increase of 7.4 per cent; of this only 2.9 per cent was made on farms in 1909 and 5.6 per cent in 1899. There was a reduction of 42.6 per cent in the amount of cheese made on farms in the ten years and an increase of 10.3 per cent in the amount made in factories.

It will be noted that the increased population was almost in the same ratio as the increase in number of dairy cows. Each dairy cow supplied milk, butter, cheese, ice cream, etc., for 4.1 persons in 1909 and 1899.

It would appear that any shortage of dairy products must come about because the American people are consuming more than they did ten years ago, and this undoubtedly is true.

SHUN THE TUBERCULOSIS COW

Satisfactorily Shown That Man Is Susceptible to Infection From the Dairy Animals.

(By M. H. REYNOLDS, Veterinarian, University Farm, St. Paul, Minn.)

Three things have become quite plain in the course of a world-wide study of the relation between human and bovine tuberculosis. (1) That tuberculosis is a common disease among cattle. (2) That there are constant opportunities for transfer of any possible infection from cattle to people. (3) That man is at least susceptible to bovine infection.

There can be no reasonable question now that the most serious source of human tuberculosis, particularly for older children and adults, is the advanced case of human tuberculosis in the home. It has been satisfactorily shown, however, that man is at least susceptible to tuberculosis infection from cattle and that tuberculosis among young children, due to germs from cows, is sufficiently common and serious to make it necessary to recognize the tuberculous cow as an important element of danger.

HANDY MILK-BOTTLE CARRIER

Tiresome Task of Handling Receptacles by Him Obviated by Use of Handle as Illustrated.

Carrying a milk bottle by the rim is a tiresome work for the fingers, as I constructed a handle, as shown in the sketch, from a piece of wire. The carrier can be easily placed in the pocket, writes Lawrence B. Robbins of Harwich, Mass., in the Popular Mechanician.

The part fitting under the rim of the bottle neck is bent to form two semi-circles, one hooking permanently at A, while the other is hooked at B after it is sprung around the neck of the bottle.

CAUSE OF MILK BITTERNESS

Two Classes and 1 Source, One When Freshly Drawn and Other Comes From Long Standing.

There are two classes and two sources of bitter milk. The first, according to the Ontario Agricultural College, has a bitter taste when freshly drawn. The second develops the bitterness only after standing some time, and increases in intensity. This is due to the growth of bacteria. When fresh milk is bitter it may be due to feeding of Swedes, cabbages, or the eating of certain herbs. Again, certain cows develop a bitterness in their milk when far in the lactation period, and this usually occurs when the cow is receiving dry feed. When this occurs the grain ration should be reduced so that the cow will be receiving no more than is really needed for her production. It is said two or three doses of Epsom salts at intervals of three days is effective in some cases in removing this condition.

Develops Bacteria.

Milk is almost a perfect food for bacteria. It is also a perfect medium for the development of certain bacteria which may gain access to the milk from dust-laden air, from flies, or from unclean utensils.

NOTES from MEADOWBROOK FARM

Keep all animals growing.

Apples can be stored in pits.

Good laying hens are profitable.

Thorough preparation is half the cultivation.

No animal is profitable at a standstill. Keep all growing.

Prepare to try some practical experiment in crops next season.

Now is the time to get rid of the old hens, while the price is good.

The possibilities of the hog is a matter almost entirely in the hands of the feeder.

Ever know a mule to step in a hole or venture upon an unsound bridge of his own volition?

Sunlight is one of the very best disinfectants that we can obtain and it costs absolutely nothing.

Fall and early winter plowing always pays. See that the teams are kept at this work every day possible.

Much of the value of butter and cheese depends upon the quality of the milk from which they are made.

Sows having superior qualities as breeders or suckers should not be disposed of until there is a noticeable decline.

Other things being equal, the earlier maturing animals subject their owners to less risk of loss by disease.

Store seed corn where it will dry out quickly. Do not leave it, even over night, in sacks, as it is likely to heat and be injured.

Any little improvement in dairying that will cheapen the cost of production will serve the same as an increased selling price.

The manipulation of the meat cutter will not make choice meat from an animal given a filling food and in filthy quarters.

Is the work shop in good condition? Lots of repairs can be done during the winter months, and much expense saved at the blacksmith shop.

The farmer is just as much entitled to eat of his own hen roost as to eat of his own apple tree. Don't sell all the fowls you raise; eat some of them.

Phenomenal egg records are not a guarantee of strong, rugged offspring; there must be a limit. The hen that lays 150 eggs in a year is doing mighty good laying.

First cross of pure-bred hogs makes an excellent pig for market. But half-breeds do not always transmit their own vigor to their offspring. Use pure bloods for breeding.

It will pay to have on hand duplicates of the most breakable parts of the harvester. It costs time, which is money, to stop a machine in rush days to wait for the broken parts.

An orchard of young apple trees is a good deal like an endowment life insurance policy. It takes years to get to the point where it seems to be nothing but paying out; but the rewards are always sure to come.

Plan to have the dairy herd examined at least twice a year by a trained veterinarian. By this method tuberculosis will be kept out of the herd and other contagious diseases will be held in check.

Of all products sold from the farm butter takes the least fertility and retains the greatest amount of the germ and it is well known that the most fertile sections of the country are those where dairying is carried on.

It is the full feeding on good, sound food that makes the paying difference between the plump, well-feathered chickens, that command the best prices and the lean, thin-feathered specimens, that are too often a drug on the market.

Of late years stock raisers have learned to give preference to the high and dry spots. It is all right to talk of sheltered situations, but too much shelter in the way of natural surroundings is apt to invite disaster in other ways.

Young hogs should not be kept in crowded quarters. In order to keep them in a healthy growing condition a proper diet should be fed. Healthy individuals possess a certain amount of power to resist disease, and this plays no small part in preventing it.

Store the garden tools.

Diversified farming is best.

The guinea is a great forager.

The silo is the farmer's friend.

The calf of today is the cow of tomorrow.

A good dispositioned horse is one that is healthy.

A mule scents danger almost as unerringly as the elephant.

The man who raises scrub stock usually raises scrub grain.

Manure piles are good for the production of gapes in chickens.

The more rapidly the animals are finished and fattened, the greater the profits.

Unprofitable cows should be fattened up at once and sent to the shambles.

The collic is the only dog that has any business around sheep. Shoot the prowling cur.

Under like conditions, young animals make the largest gain in proportion to food consumed.

Sheep rightly managed can be made to shed the farmer materially in ridding the land of noxious weeds.

Don't allow the sheep to rush or squeeze through doors or gates. It may injure the unborn lambs.

Plowing gardens in the fall gets rid of most of the weed seed and makes them easier to tend next spring.

The larger the animal is and the rougher it is the greater the amount required for the food of support.

Go out and purchase one or more good sows and enjoy your own pork as well as an increased bank account.

You should be feeding for the lamb crop. The ewes must grow wool, lambs and mutton all at once. Feed accordingly.

It is impossible to produce clean milk and cream unless the cows, stable, milking utensils and separator are clean.

Corn is perhaps one of the best single grains for poultry, but it is very fattening and should not make up the entire ration.

There is no play connected with earning a living, neither is there any play work connected with any department of farm work.

In hot weather or in drawing heavy loads, watch your horse's breathing. If he breathes hard or short and quick, it is time to stop.

Farming is now becoming such a complicated business that certain factors are just as necessary in making it a success as in any other business.

Poultry houses that are up-to-date are no longer double boarded affairs that are closed up at every point, but are fresh air houses with plenty of ventilation.

Early selection of seed corn from the field of standing corn permits a consideration of the stalk on which each ear grew and the chances each stalk had.

Rye, barley and oats, equal parts, ground and made in a slop with skim milk, will make any pig make a hog of himself in short order. It is the best feed out.

In formulating a ration due regard should be had to its palatability. A cow will give better returns if she relishes her food. It stimulates the appetite and aids digestion.

Every bit of manure that can be secured, should be scattered over the fields at this season while you have time. The yield of your land can be increased in no easier or cheaper way.

If an animal gets out of condition, appears to run down and does not relish his food, a little flaxseed boiled in oats and fed two quarts at a time for a few days will soon give him a good appetite.

Do not select seed corn from hills having only one stalk, as a good ear on such a stalk is due to favorable conditions rather than to its inherent ability to yield well under average conditions.

There is no one breed of poultry which can be said to be the best lay under all conditions, and, as a matter of fact, any of the prominent breeds will be profitable for egg production if bred with that idea in view.

To insure the best results and to be entirely successful with any system of feeding, requires that it be done at regular hours and in quantities suited to the wants and capacities of each animal. This entails judgment and discrimination.

Hens demand some mineral matter to form the shell of their eggs. Do not forget the oyster shell and the hard, sharp grit. These will furnish material for the formation of the egg's shell and at the same time will keep the fowls in a healthy condition.

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet.

By Bracken Chief 2148

by Harrison Chief 1006 by Clark Chief 80, dam, Kiti Harvy, (2830) by Indian Chief (1718). 1st dam, Miss Berry 404 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99) 2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112. 3 dam by Gray Eagle (107). Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Kentucky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last three years, and they have proven to be the best in the State.

There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all through the State and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Grumitt (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the State and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $550.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair, when they were shown for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts shown like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where 100 colts were shown.

Now is the time for the breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief and his sons and his grandsons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzsimmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the State today.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. R. Best's stable in Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

THE MAGNIFICENTLY BRED SADDLE STALLION, CAMPBELL CHIEF 5039

By Emerald Chief, 2132.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. R. Best's stable, Walton, Boone County, Kentucky, to cover a limited number of mares at the fee of $20 to insure a living foal. Money due when mare is parted with or bred to other stock.

CAMPBELL CHIEF is a handsome bay stallion, hind pastern and front heels white, stands 16 hands high weighs 1,100 pounds; foaled 1907, and bred by J. E. Henry, Mt. Sterling, Kentucky.

He has been handled by Charles Wells, of Louisville, Ky., since coming up in 1913, and proved himself a successful show horse.

He is as grand a type of the saddle as there is in the State, a natural fair galloper with as much air and style as any horse living.

A glance at his breeding will show he comes on the sire side from Harrison Chief, the greatest progenitor of saddlers, and on his dam's side from horses that have nicked successfully with his strain and all backed by good trotting and thoroughbred blood.

You are taking no chances in breeding to a horse of such natural beauty, style and action, bred in such stout lines that has proven himself a successful sire and a sure foal getter.

PEDIGREE—CAMPBELL CHIEF is by Emerald Chief 2132; he by Bourbon Chief 976 and out of Kate O'Hara 2777; Bourbon Chief by Harrison Chief 1006 and out of Bell; Harrison Chief by Clark Chief 89 out of Lute 104.

1st dam, Old Mat 5565 by Roscoe 2471; 2d dam, Daughter of Forman's Warfield 82; 3d dam, Daughter of Pharoah & Thoroughbred.

THE PREMIUM PEBBERON HORSE, JEAN FAIRBANKS 4478

Will make the season of 1914 at C. R. Best's barn, Walton, Ky., at $12.50 to insure a living colt, money due when colt is born or mare is parted with or bred to other stock. A lien retained on colt until money is paid. Care taken to prevent accidents but will not be responsible should any occur.

We will meet half way mares from a distance.

Season to best colt shown at Florence Fair, Ky., 1913.

Care will be taken in handling the above stock but we will not be responsible should any occur.

Also prepared to breed and handle Saddle and Harness Horses.

DEADLY SNAKES IN AUSTRALIA

Many Species Are There, Yet Fatalities From That Source Are by No Means Common.

"Snakes hereabouts?" I chanced to inquire.

"Thousands," said the sawyer.

"Deadly?"

"They tell me, and I believe it," he replied, weighing his words, "that the death-adder and tiger-snake kill in half an hour. I'm told," he drawled on, in harmony with the drooping weather, "that a dog won't last no more than twenty minutes. The death-adder, now, he's a slow, stupid beast, and won't move along. The tiger-snake comes at you; but the death-adder, he's a slow, stupid beast—lies still and bites when you tread on him. There's the black snake too, and the brown snake—they're deadly; and a few others, like the tree snake, and maybe some more. I reckon the carpet-snake is the only snake we got in this country that can't do too much damage."

"Mortality high?"

"What say? Oh! Well, I'll tell you. If you go hunting for snakes you're likely to be kept real busy; but if you mind your own business, and give the snakes a chance to mind their own business, and if you look out for them slow, stupid death-adders, you're likely to be let off. I heard tell of a kiddie being bit once. He put his hand in a rabbit-hole."

"Did the child die?"

"Ah, well, no; he took an anecdote."

It had been a mild abrasion; for these snakes—the black snake and the tiger snake and death-adder in particular—are more virulently poisonous than the rattlesnake or cobra. Yet death from snake-bite is by no means common in Australia.—Norman Duncan in Harper's.

HIS CARD OF IDENTIFICATION

Small Boy Unfortunately Presented It at Time When Young Lady Least Appreciated It.

She was entertaining her first beau in the parlor, and the occasion was a kind of breathless one, for she was fair and modest and flower-like and unaccustomed. She wore the roses he had brought her, and he kept his kid gloves on, for the call was formal. There was a ring at the doorbell. The caller was a small boy. Was her little brother at home?

No. Little brother was not at home. She was not always so very polite about little brother, but this time she could even the book of etiquette.

She was so sorry little brother was not at home. Who should she tell him had called to see him?

Unfortunate question! "Well," said the small boy in tones that had nothing to conceal, and by way of identifying himself, "you may just tell him the guinea pig's got little ones—and then he'll know who it is that's called."

Rattlesnake's Age.

The general belief that the number of its rattles is a true guide to the age of a rattlesnake has small foundation in fact. According to Mr. Elwin R. Sanborn of the New York Zoological park, a very large snake may have few rattles, and a small snake twice as many as the big one. A rattlesnake frequently loses rattles through violent contact with rocks or bushes—loses that nature replaces at the rate of about three segments a year. The baby rattlesnake has a tiny button where his rattles will ultimately be. Thus, according to the usual theory, at the end of the first year he will appear to be three years old, or perhaps three years and a half. If the button is considered as the beginning of a new rattle. Probably the number of the rattles increases for a certain number of years, remains stationary for another period, and then decreases as the snake grows old. That is the course of growth and decay in the horns and antlers of hoofed animals.—Youth's Companion.

Canine Newsdealers.

Two Chicago dogs—an Irish terrier and a water spaniel—the property of a successful newsdealer of that city, are proving themselves very useful to their master. If the latter goes to lunch, or has to leave his stand for a time, the two watchful animals sell newspapers for him. "Rex," the Irish terrier, perches himself on the stand and grips between his teeth a big calash pipe and a copy of a newspaper, while "Brownie," his partner, takes up his position on a little soapbox beside the stand and holds in his teeth a little "plug" hat for the safekeeping of the pennies. When a passerby buys a paper "Brownie" sits up to receive the coin. Both of the dogs seem to have a fierce as well as a sharp eye to business, and their master places great faith in them.—Wide World Magazine.

Substitute for Menu Card.

Roman emperors who feasted copiously and sumptuously had no menu card, so they often spoiled their enjoyment of a banquet by eating too much of one dish and passing over something they specially liked. According to Montaigne, one of the Roman emperors, while ignorant of menu cards, devised an order for serving dishes which enabled him roughly to foretell what was coming next: "Geta the emperor would have all his menses on a dish served in at his table orderly, according to the first letters of their names; as for example, those that begin with p, as pig, pike, puddings, pouts, pork, pancakes, etc. were all served together, and so of all the rest."

That You Save Money

In buying new WHEELS is because the repairing costs nearly as much and sometimes more than new wheels. Here is an example: A customer wanted new rims and new tires on his wheels. The cost of this work is at least $10.00 and the price of spokes added to it. I sold that man four good, NEW wheels for $8.00. Putting shaft in a buggy costs you sometimes $2.00. I sell you a complete, new, well ironed shaft for $2.50 to $2.75; also good ironed Buggy and Spring Wagon poles for $4.75 and $4.50.

This material sold twice as high five years ago, but automobiles cause these low prices. Come and look at the wheels.

Every Part of "Thornhill" Wagons Must Pass Extreme Tests

Out at the saw mill the makers of this wagon select the pick of the oak and hickory. From three to five years they keep it under shelter—so piled that the air can circulate freely. When finally it is ready to go into a "Thornhill" Wagon, it is as dry as a bone—tough—well nigh unbreakable.

The straight grained hickory for spokes and axles is steel-like in its strength. The oak for hubs and felloes is as sturdy as tough oak grows. As it goes thru the mill, each part is inspected again and again. All defective parts are thrown out. Each part must have the O. K. of scores of men. The steel and iron must pass extreme tests—twice as severe as ordinary service will ever demand. Machines, sensitive to the thousandth part of an inch, gauge the work for accuracy—perform the work that can best be done by machinery. It is this excess of caution—this surplus of strength—in every part—that makes the "Thornhill" come pretty close to utter perfection. Before anyone buys a wagon, they should find out about the six big points of superiority built into the "Thornhill." Let us show you this wagon.

BRONCHITIS CONQUERED
Royersford, Pa., Man Tells How.
At this season of year with such sudden changes, it is so easy to take cold, and almost before one is aware there is inflammation in the bronchial tubes—a hard cough and unless checked in time chronic pulmonary troubles may result.
Townsend Young of Royersford, Pa., says: "A severe bronchial trouble contracted caused me much difficulty about breathing. My chest felt clogged up and there was considerable soreness. I tried different remedies without help; but I am glad to say that Vinol cured my bronchial trouble which had lasted for three months. My breathing is all right and the soreness entirely gone from my chest."
Vinol contains the curative, healing principles of fresh cod's livers (with out oil) and tonic iron. We guarantee it to be delicious in taste and to satisfy you with its medicinal effects.
P. S. If you have any such trouble try Sazo Salve. We guarantee it.

THE FINE BELGIAN DRAFT HORSE
Season 1914
Don DeGozee
The Belgian Draft Stallion, foaled in 1908, will make the present season at E. J. Aylor's stable, one and one-half miles from Hebron, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt comes or the mare is parted with or leaves the county.
DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE.
Don DeGozee, despite his great size and weight is well balanced throughout, perfectly proportioned and symmetrically built. He has as light action as a stallion of much smaller type, and his disposition is much better than is usually found in horses of blood strains. He is a beautiful dark sorrel, 17 hands high, weighs 1800 pounds, has a broad foot, heavy bone, fine style and action. This great breed of draft horses is especially known for better action than any other draft horse for heavy, good bone and good hoofs, and gentle, kind workers.
Don DeGozee's dam, Della Wire, brown mare, the great draft show mare of Campbell county, Kentucky, sired by Bayard DeGozee, 2188, whose Belgium Stud Book number is 21670, bred by Mr. Baileux E. of Gozee, sired by Morton (312), by Brilliant (709), out of Coatte (703), dam of Catherine DeGozee (21083), she by Lion (766) out of Marie (2421).
Great care will be taken to prevent accidents but we will not be responsible should any occur.
E. J. Aylor & Son.

DR. T. B. CASTLEMAN, DENTIST.
Will be at Burlington on the first and second Monday, and in Union on the third and fourth Monday of each month, prepared and qualified to practice according to the latest methods extracting teeth painless. All work guaranteed.
Administrator's Notice.
Persons indebted to the estate of Joseph Schwartz, Deceased, must come forward and settle the same at once, and those having claims against said estate must present them to the undersigned for payment, proven according to law.
S. GAINES, Administrator.
Election Notice.
The stockholders of the Burlington & Bellevue Turnpike are hereby notified that an election will be held in the town of Burlington, Ky., Monday, May 4th, 1914, for the purpose of electing five directors to serve for the ensuing year.
JAS. ROGERS, President.
Notice—The annual election of the Union and Hathaway Turnpike Co. will be held in Union, Saturday, May 9th, 1914 at 2 p. m., for the election of officers.
J. K. SEBREE, President.

Plutarch 8183
Will make the season of 1914 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.
I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1913 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.
I write for pedigree and particulars.
LANKY BOB
Will make the season at my stable at $8.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.
Lanky Bob is five years old, 15 1/2 hands high and a splendid individual.
In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.
Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season.
No business done on Sunday.

Kentucky Educational Association.

The annual meeting of the Kentucky Educational Association will be held in Louisville this week. The interest that is being manifested over the State forebushes a large attendance, possibly exceeding that of last year when all previous records were broken. Teachers, school officials, trustees and all others who are concerned in the betterment of the State's educational status ought to take a vital interest in the success of the association. Given that every one of them has made a vastly more valuable factor than it ever has been for the improvement of school conditions generally. This can be seen in the no reflection on the work that has been done in the past, which has been of unquestioned value. There are 120 counties in Kentucky and every one of them should be represented at the annual meetings of the Educational Association. The teachers who identify themselves with the organization and take part in its work will help to solve the problems of the schoolroom and will make them more proficient in their vocation. Co-operation is beneficial in all lines of endeavor, and co-operation among teachers will facilitate general educational advancement. To have better schools we must have better teachers, and the awake teacher whose heart is in his work will not overlook the advantages that are to be gained from association with his fellow educators. The State teachers' organization and the district and county bodies can be made potent for good if the teachers elect to make them so. The Kentucky Educational Association appears to have entered upon a period of unprecedented activity and usefulness. It should be the pride and pleasure of teachers and the friends of educational progress to make that a high record of efficiency is maintained. Sheriff Vories went to the Pleasant Retreat westward Wednesday and took in the kindness of dark man whose actions had some what alarmed that neighborhood. He was brought to Bedford and lodged in the jail. It seems that he drifted from Indianapolis into this section, and being able to speak but little English, he was taken to talk at all. As near as can be determined his name is Lind, and he hails from Austria-Hungary. Bedford Democrat.

Personal Mention.

Thurston Rice and wife, of McVillie, were Sunday guests at Mrs. Lavina Kirkpatrick's. Chas. Scothern, of Francesville, was among the business visitors in Burlington, Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Bohanan, of Versailles, are guests of their daughter, Mrs. V. O. Keys. R. B. Carver and wife and Elbert Clore and wife were shopping in the city, Monday. Prof. Dix is attending the meeting of the K. E. A. in session in Louisville this week. Misses Sallie and Lizzie Rogers spent early Thursday morning, when the arguments were begun, there being two speeches on a side, C. E. O'Hara, of Williams-ton, speaking on behalf of the defendant. His effort was pronounced a gem of oratory and a strong argument for his client. W. W. Dickerson followed for the prosecution in one of those searching and forcible reviews of evidence for which he long since established a great reputation. John B. O'Neal, of Covington, who has the reputation of being the strongest criminal lawyer in this part of Kentucky closed the argument for the defense in a strong speech. Commonwealth's Attorney Howe was the last to speak and made a strong presentation for the Commonwealth as well as dealing in an emphatic manner with O'Neal's attacks on the witnesses and references to the attorney for the prosecution. Each attorney spoke about two hours, and it was about 9 o'clock Thursday night when the jury got the case. Having heard out an hour the jury reported it could not agree and court adjourned until seven o'clock Friday morning when the jury resumed its deliberations and continued until 3 p.m., when it reported that it would be impossible to make a verdict and the court discharged it. It was soon ascertained that the jury stood 8 to 4 for acquittal from the time it entered its room until discharged. It was predicted as soon as the jury was given the case it would either acquit or hang, much the larger number of persons looking for an acquittal.

A considerable crowd was present in the court room throughout the trial and was very much interested in every step taken. When the jury reported it could not make a verdict, the court looked very much relieved, and a motion for bail was made at 7,000 and on motion of his attorneys he was ordered transferred to the Covington jail to be kept until the bond was executed, and Saturday morning Sheriff W. D. Cropper took him to Covington. Seven divorces were granted during the term as follows: John Cecil Finch from Mary Finch. Thomas Griffin from Anna May Griffin. Sarah Feno from Louis Feno. Belle Breadwell from Harry M. Breadwell. Louie Rains from Henry M. Rains. Birdie Poston from Thos. Poston. Mary Pauline Rue from Leroy Rue. The court did not pass upon the motion for a new trial in the Byland case until just before adjournment, when the verdict of the jury was set aside and the defendant granted a new trial because of the court having given the jury an erroneous instruction, which instruction was as follows: "The fact that the defendant did not take the stand in his own behalf is not an error on the part of the trial court to call the jury's attention to the failure of the defendant to testify in his own behalf. The defendant's bond was fixed at $1,000, the bond being signed by his attorney, O. M. Rogers. The Commonwealth took an appeal on the ruling of the court. Byland has the sympathy of nearly all those who heard the trial and many would have been glad had he been found not guilty.

Reserved seats for the entertainment next Saturday night are on sale at E. E. Kelly's store. General admission 15 and 25 cents; reserved seats, 35 cents. John White is moving to Dudley Blyth's house, and Mrs. Emma Brown will move to the premises vacated by Mr. White. For Sale—Early Everett potatoes—75 cents and $1 per bushel. Apply to E. C. Graddy, Bullittsville.

CIRCUIT COURT.

The Jury Trying Gus Stephens For the Killing of Joseph Kells Fail to Agree.

J. C. Byland, Who Was Convicted of Perjury Was Granted A New Trial.

The April term of the Boone circuit court adjourned late last Friday afternoon, having been in session for eleven days, the longest term for many years in this county.

The trial of Gus Stevens, that came to this county on a change of venue from Grant county was the drawing card and brought a large number of Grant county people to Burlington.

The hearing of testimony in the Stevens case began late Monday afternoon of last week and was concluded early Thursday morning, when the arguments were begun, there being two speeches on a side, C. E. O'Hara, of Williams-ton, speaking on behalf of the defendant. His effort was pronounced a gem of oratory and a strong argument for his client. W. W. Dickerson followed for the prosecution in one of those searching and forcible reviews of evidence for which he long since established a great reputation. John B. Contract Let.

The contract for the construction of the Petersburg and Bellevue turnpike was let last Tuesday, Thos. Jones, who lives on the Henry Terrill farm, getting about two and three-fourth miles, while O. M. Rogers got the remainder, about two miles. They were the only bidders, and there were no bids on any of the other proposed pikes.

FARM STOCK

CONDITION FOR BROOD SOW

Animal to Farrow Should Be Neither Too Fat Nor Too Thin—Plenty of Exercise Needed.

Keeping the brood sow in proper condition of flesh is one thing that the swine breeder should not neglect. Just what degree of fatness should be maintained the breeder should decide for himself, because that is something that cannot be very well stated on paper.

Some advocate an extreme degree of thinness, but I think that is scarcely proper, for it is almost certain to breed into the progeny a characteristic that prevents rapid fattening, says a writer in the Farm Progress. Then, when the ration is reduced to such a quantity that they will produce the thinness, they are hardly sufficient for keeping up the vigor of the body.

When sows are kept at the proper degree of fatness their litters are almost certain to be easy fatteners, and then, when a sow has outlived her years of usefulness as a breeder, she may be fattened into an animal of first-class marketable qualities.

When a brood sow has once been overfatted the chances are that her usefulness as a breeding animal has been ended. Even though better feeding methods be used thereafter, it will be impossible to better matters any.

I believe that the brood sow should be given a ration that contains about one part of protein to five parts of carbohydrates. This should be given in sufficient quantities to insure the upkeep of the body, but not enough given to cause laziness.

Plenty of exercise is necessary to assure the proper assimilation and digestion of the food. The sow should have access to sufficient area to assure that. By combining a properly balanced ration with plenty of exercise the animals should keep in proper condition of flesh and health.

LIVEN CHOLERA TO TYPHOID

Control and Eradication of Disease Is Matter of Education Rather Than Vaccination.

(By DR. J. W. CONNAWAY, Veterinarian of Missouri Experiment Station.)

The control and eradication of hog cholera is a matter of education rather than vaccination with hog cholera serum.

Hogs must have pure water. Hog cholera is like typhoid. The English call it "pig typhoid." Last Summer, when it was so dry and the pools were low and stagnant, the animal was spread by the great number of hogs that drank from ponds. The farmers that gave their hogs well water had the least cholera on their farms.

Hogs often become permanent carriers of the disease germs after they have been cured, and will spread the infection. Doctor Connaway also says that pigeons carry the hog cholera germs from one farm to another.

The buildings where hogs are kept should be disinfected with air-slacked lime. It is cheap and you can see where you put it. Disinfect the hog lot also. Where proper sanitary conditions exist there is little danger of hog cholera. Hogs should not be fed in the mud, but on hard ground or on a brick or concrete floor.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Have little bedding in the farrowing pens.

Get acquainted with the sows before farrowing time. It pays.

Give the sows the run of the fields every good day in the spring. Don't wait until you need pig force before you get them. Be ready! Few branches of stock feeding offer better inducements than feeding range lambs.

A fender around the sides keeps the sow from lying out of the pen with her pigs.

At weaning time colts should be taken away entirely out of sight of the mothers.

Pot-bellied, hay fed colts tell the story of improper feeding, slow growth and poor development.

Pneumonia kills many pigs before they get used to sleeping in damp pens, drafts or snow banks.

The pregnant mare is like the cow and sow and needs the same consideration and judicious feeding.

It is expensive carelessness to hitch a warm horse inadequately protected from raw winds and drizzling rain.

DAIRY

MACHINE TO WASH BOTTLES

Ingenious Apparatus Thoroughly Cleanses Glass Receptacles and Than Rinses Them.

An ingenious machine for washing dairy bottles has been invented by a Wisconsin man. It not only washes the bottles thoroughly, but rinses them as well. A series of open ended receptacles with hinged lids revolve on an endless chain. The lower half of this mechanism passes through a tank of hot water and the chain is enclosed in a frame work below the surface of the water, which just permits the bottle holders to pass through with the lids closed. The bottles are thrust into these receptacles as the mechanism revolves and when they come up on the other side they roll out and down a board into a tank of rinse water, which is kept in continual circulation. The lids are so loosely adjusted that they open on the way down, until the enclosing shaft is reached, and are pushed open by the weight of the bottles as soon as the top of the shaft is reached.

PROGRESS OF DAIRY BREEDS

Long Line of Ancestors of Good Character on Both Sides of Family Is Quite Sufficient.

(By W. R. GILBERT.)

Although the general run of dairy cows are of no definite breeding, they are not necessarily the worse for that. Good dairy quality is a natural characteristic which is hereditary in an eminent degree. A long line of ancestors of dairy character on both sides of the family tree is quite sufficient to insure good dairy quality of the offspring.

Dairy character has been developed by careful selection. It is not a quality originally inherent in any one breed, although some breeds prove themselves more amenable to the influence of selection than others. The dairy character is fully alive to the importance of heredity in this respect, and although they favor cattle of certain breeds, they fight shy of cattle of those breeds from pedigreed herds. This is because they have found that pedigree bulls in many instances get calves far inferior in dairy quality to the calves of locally bred bulls.

The influence of an unsuitable bull is very far-reaching, for his heifers do not show of what they are capable until three years after his introduction.

During these three years that bull, if he is a wrong one, will have been destroying the dairy character that probably took many years to establish.

The reason why pedigree bulls in the past have failed as popular sires in the dairy herds is to be attributed to a great extent to the cattle shows.

Wisconsin gives factory operators and milk dealers a chance to show each farmer the amount of dirt in a pint of his milk. This is an index to the conditions under which the milk has been produced.

The test shows whether the milk is fit for direct consumption, or for use in making butter or cheese. Dirty milk is not only dangerous from the hygienic standpoint, but it is likely to produce poor quality in dairy products, thus causing serious loss.

A. C. Baer, the author of the circular, feels confident that as a farmer actually sees how dirty his milk is, he will keep his cows, stables and utensils clean.

This test was first developed in this country by the dairy department of the college, and is now extensively used in the United States by city milk dealers and boards of health.

EXPENSE OF PRODUCING MILK

Interesting Investigation Made by Dairy Department of Ohio College of Agriculture.

The people of cities who complain about the high price of milk may be interested in knowing what it costs to produce and distribute good marketable milk. An investigation made last year by the dairy department of the college of agriculture, Ohio State university, shows that the average cost of producing a gallon of milk in Ohio is about 25 cents, or 6.25 cents per quart, allowing 3,200 pounds per cow per year as the average milk production.

This takes into consideration the cost of feeds, labor, interest on investment, maintenance, insurance, taxes, etc. When the average milk production per cow is increased the cost of milk is decreased. The average cost of distribution is 3 1/2 cents per quart, making a total of 9.75 cents per quart as the cost of producing milk and delivering it to the consumer. This means that when the milk retails at ten cents a quart, the average producer and distributor is making little or no profit in the transaction.

Where the high-producing cows are kept, and economic methods of handling and distributing on a large scale are employed, the above figures are greatly reduced, and there is a fair profit in the dairy business. However, it is the average producer, who keeps average cows, the increasing cost of feeds and labor, and the greater demand for sanitary conditions that are contributing to the high price of milk.

NEED FOR GOOD VENTILATION

Dairy Cow Is Often Required to Work Under Unfavorable Influences—Make Plans Now.

Farmers who are going to build barns next summer should make arrangements now to put in the King system of ventilation in their stables. It is not expensive if you make calculations in time.

The Washington Agricultural college has the following to say on the necessity of ventilation:

"Dairy barns are very frequently poorly ventilated. The dairy cow is then not only required to live, but to work under unfavorable influences, and she often falls a victim to such diseases as tuberculosis, pneumonia, bronchitis and colds. Foul air is one of the prime factors in the production of such diseases."

Since the advent of sanitary science in connection with ventilation, the air space allowed for each animal has been increased, and a number of methods of ventilation have been devised. The exercise of a little care in such matters will protect the health of animals, prevent premature death and also make possible the highest working efficiency of the herd.

DAIRY RATION WITH SPELTZ

Experiments Show It to Be Worth About 13 Per Cent. Less Than Corn for Milking.

A ration consisting of 30 to 35 pounds of silage, 5 pounds of alfalfa hay, corn stover ad libitum, and corn, and speltz, will give very satisfactory results as a feed for dairy cattle.

We can say, however, that if the speltz is worth as much as corn we would not advise using it, says an exchange. Experiments indicated that speltz, more properly termed Emmer, is worth about 13 per cent. less than corn for milk-making purposes.

A mixture consisting of 400 pounds corn chop, 200 pounds bran, 400 pounds speltz, will supplement the roughage suggested very nicely. One pound for each 3 1/2 pounds of milk should give the cows ample nourishment for doing reasonably good work. If speltz is omitted from the mixture, a combination of 500 pounds of corn chop and 300 pounds bran will make a very good combination.

Harmful Milk Can.

A rusty milk can causes trouble any time of year. Bad germs will propagate in the crevices and the milk will lack of fresh, sweet flavor. Throw away every rusty can and get good new ones.

The High Bred Percheron Stallion Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1914 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

DESCRIPTION & EDIGREE. Prince Olsen was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs. and is 17 1/2 hands high. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

Prince Olsen was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olson, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., and from whom he was purchased by me, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olsen was a high bred registered Percheron mare.

TWO FINE YOUNG JACKS, Also at the same place and under the same conditions, I will offer for public service my two fine breeding jacks.

BEN is a black Jack with meaty points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ear, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Ky. His mares are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. His service fee will be $10.00.

DEWEY is another fine Jack, 6 years old and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both Jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Come and see them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

JOSEPH READNOUR, Walton, Ky.

Will make the season of 1914 at my stable one mile west of Ideo, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and euck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1913 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

LANKY BOB Will make the season at my stable at Ideo, Boone County, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and euck.

Lanky Bob is five years old, 15.3 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season.

Helping the Livestock Interests.

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station has announced that it is at the service of the farmers of the State to facilitate the buying and selling of livestock.

The Experiment Station has been receiving so many letters asking for information along this line that it has made arrangements to conduct a livestock exchange for the purpose of putting prospective buyers and sellers in communication with each other. The station's exchange will list horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep and swine. No charge will be made for this service and those who have livestock for sale only need to make the fact known, giving their address and an accurate description of the animals offered, the prices asked and other necessary details.

Buyers and sellers of course, will make their transactions on their own responsibility, as the Experiment Station assumes no liability in the matter, merely serving the purpose of a medium of information. Should its efforts in this way prove satisfactory the scope of operation will be broadened to include the exchange of farming implements and appliances and the getting together of prospective tenants and landlords. In a circular of announcement it is stated: "The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station is the first servant of the Kentucky farmer and if rightly used he can get more assistance there than from any other source."

The exchange should be of importance and value to Kentucky's livestock interests. The Experiment Station is showing a commendable desire to make itself increasingly useful, and if the farmers and stock owners do not avail themselves of its offices they will have no one but themselves to blame.

In this connection it is not amiss to say that the State Agricultural Department is doing a good service to the State's livestock interests in compiling a directory of Kentucky's breeders which is to be published at an early date.—C.J.

It is a strange fact that though the town people don't need good roads half as much as the rest of the country let a meeting be called to consider good road work and there are three times out of five more men from the cities or towns at such meetings than men from the country.—Paducah News-Democrat.

The cities are full of idle men clamoring for work. The country is full of farmers clamoring for workers. But the idle men of the city would rather remain idle than go to the country and learn to work on the farm. Perhaps if the farmers would adopt an eight-hour rule, allowing the city fellows to begin work at 8 and quit at 6, with an hour off at dinner, a few from the city would consent to try it at a union scale of $6.40 a day.—Cynthiana Democrat.

James Whitaker was tried by a jury in circuit court on the charge of shooting at Deputy Sheriff Polk Critchfield. The officer had a warrant against Whitaker, charging him with some trivial offense, and had gone to his house to serve it, but upon approaching the place was fired upon and a load of shot struck him in the breast. However, the distance was so great that the wound was not a dangerous one. Whitaker gave as his excuse that he was frightened and ran away. Each juror brought in a verdict of "not guilty" for the officer approaching. The jury gave him six months in the workhouse.—Dauville Advocate.

There was exciting times on the farm of Col. Jack Chinn last Thursday and Friday. Col. Chinn had a team of young mules attached to a tongueless disc harrow and they began to frighten and run away. Each juror brought in a verdict of "not guilty" for the officer approaching. The jury gave him six months in the workhouse.—Dauville Advocate.

On Friday, with the same team, young Jack Chinn and a negro driver started across the Kentucky river in the ferryboat. They had a load of hogs and pigs. The pigs began to squeal and the mules bolted off into the river, which was about 40 feet deep at this point. Fortunately the apron net so the frightened beasts could get loose. By herculean efforts he managed to pilot them to shore. When he got out on the bank he was almost chilled into insensibility but vigorous and prompt treatment brought him around.—Harrodsburg Leader.

A cartoon illustration of a character with wild, spiky hair and a 'VIR' sign on their forehead. They are wearing a dark bow tie and a skirt. The character is holding a large rectangular sign that reads 'STOP VIR KICKIN' 24m DAY YOU'VE PETCH THE GOUT & FERGIT YRSELF'. To the left, a speech bubble says 'WAS NOT IT?'. The character is surrounded by small flowers and a mushroom. The drawing is signed 'D. 1980' at the bottom right.

John Wood and Tom Stone met on Broadway the other day and stopped to chat a few minutes about tobacco. Presently a young lady wearing a slit skirt came along. When Wood turned to Stone and Stone turned to Wood and they both turned to rubber. La Center Advance.

All persons permitting their stock to run at large in the Burlington, Bullittsville, Constance, Florence, Hamilton and Union precincts are openly violating the law. Each head of such person's stock is liable for $5.00 nor more than twenty-five ($25.00) dollars for each animal. Such person is liable for all damages done by their stock, whether the party damaged has their property insured or not. This person's stock is damaged has a lien on such stock, for the amount thereof. It is the duty of the sheriff, constable or justice of the peace to see stock running at large or so notified that such is the case to at once impound such stock and return it to the owner. The sheriff or officer so doing one ($1.00) dollar per head and the cost of feeding and taking care of such stock. The owner has a lien on such stock for his fees and expenses. It is the sheriff's duty and he is strictly liable for any loss of his stock running at large or so complained is made to him. This notice is given as a last warning to the owners of their animals. Complaints lately made to this office.

The attention of the next grand jury will be called to this matter.

The commencement exercises at Bowling Green promise to be the most interesting that the school has ever held. The plan of the exercises is unique. The plan, which originated here, has been recommended by the State Department for the use of other schools in the State. Never before has a meal been prepared on any commencement stage in a Kentucky school. As before, the graduates shown how to milk a cow in his commencement address. These and other features promise to make this an event that no one can afford to miss. The program is not without its classical features but is a combination of that and the Rhoads will deliver the class address. To those who know, these numbers are enough to settle the matter. It will be good. Library Hall, no charge for admission on Thursday evening May 21.

the Tournament. We shall have our hands full to take care of all the delegates. Considerably over a hundred are expected. Don't get your houses filled up with visitors. Save your room for Tournament delegates. Full announcements will appear later.

A large number of farmers in this county have broken very little if any ground, for corn, consequently they are very much behind with their work and they will be in a great rush during every hour from now on until their corn crop has been planted and this season will be one on which a crop will depend largely on a good stand of corn, which requires seed that will germinate. Have you tested your seed? If you have not there is plenty of time yet.

A strange man clad in blue overalls and wearing a slouch hat arrived in Burlington last Sunday morning inquiring the way to South Fork where he said he had been told hands were wanted to work on a pike that is being built. He remained in town only a short time, but while here told how he was knocked down over on the river pike the night before and robbed of $14. Not much stock was taken in what he said about being robbed.

A good horse belonging to Geo Blyth has been suffering from a strange disease for a week. It breathes hard, bleeds freely at the nose frequently, and occasionally bites at one of its fore legs which the disease paralyzed. A veterinary was called but could not satisfy himself as to what ails the animal.

The committee on entertainment for the educational tournament which will meet in Burlington the latter part of May, will call on the citizens of the town and vicinity in the next few days to ascertain who will entertain and how many of the visiting pupils they will take care of during the tournament.

It looks like the warm weather has given some of the turnpike people cold feet, as the directors of only one of the proposed pikes were on hand to do business with the fiscal court last Tuesday, when it met in special session for the purpose of letting out the contracts for construction.

The real estate of the late C. F. Glacken, of Richmond, is being partitioned this week under the order of the circuit court, among the heirs, R. O. Hughes, J. S. Surface and E. H. Blankenbaker being the commissioners, and county surveyor J. W. Conley handling the compass.

VARIOUS FOOD VALUES

IMPORTANT MATTER UNDERESTI-MATED BY HOUSEKEEPER.

Dishes Served at Family Table Should Be Constitution Builders as Well as Palatable—Sweets Have a Definite Purpose.

The average housekeeper selects her food in a very careless manner. She buys coal and wood for the heat they provide and fabrics for their durability, but she gives very little thought to the efficiency of foodstuffs. She merely gets what is liked and what happens to be in the market and is easily prepared.

It is certain that in years to come, when housekeeping or "domestic science" has taken the high position toward which it is gradually moving, each housekeeper will be compelled to have her little volume on "Food Values" on the shelf with her book of recipes, and she will consult it even more frequently than she consults the other books, because she will have been taught that the importance of food lies in its energy-giving properties.

But until that time comes we must struggle along ourselves and look at the buying and cooking of foods from a real point of view—one which includes the value they have as constitution builders as well as their palatable qualifications.

We must teach ourselves to choose foods wisely, regarding rather the essentials than the nonessentials, and to use discrimination in the processes of preparing them.

Say that we need so many thousand units to live and work. Well, then, our food, properly chosen and prepared, should help to supply the necessary units. You cannot make bricks without straw or bread without flour or energy without the fuel to provide it.

It would be impossible to go deeply into the food-value question in a short talk, but there is one essential which must be mentioned because of the change of view regarding it. When we were all children we were given sweets only as a sort of reward for having eaten the plainer foods. Sweets were not looked upon as necessary, but rather as verging on the injurious.

Now we have learned that sweets, far from being harmful, are beneficial and productive of energy.

There are so many health-giving constituents in the ordinary pudding that it is far more advisable for the dessert of the average child than rich pies or pastries. Almost all puddings require eggs and these add a goodly number of units to the column.

There are also many delicious fruit puddings which contain many more strengthening elements than the plain fruit itself. And yet a decade or years ago the pudding would have been "dead-end" to the younger members of the family with a sparing and grudging hand, while they might have partaken freely of the fruit itself.

Mothers are now beginning to realize the possibilities of desserts as strength-giving factors in their children's lives.

Frozen Custard With Almonds.

Heat one quart of milk in double boiler. Add to this four well-beaten eggs. Stir constantly with wire egg beater until this thickens. Sweeten to taste and set aside to cool. Take one pound of almonds, shell and blanch. Spread over a pan, add one teaspoonful of olive oil, place in a hot oven and allow them to get very brown. Cool and then put through a meat chopper. Add to custard also one-half teaspoonful of almond extract. When the custard is quite cold, freeze.

Baked Sweet Potatoes.

Boil the potatoes until barely done, then skin them and cut in half inch slices. Fill a deep baking dish with alternate layers of the potatoes, bits of butter and a sprinkling of sugar. Make in a moderate oven until the butter and sugar form a rich syrup, in which the potatoes cook until they look almost clear; then allow them to brown.

Prune Custard Pudding.

Stew ½ pound of prunes in water to cover until the stones will slip out easily. Let the syrup boil away. Soak 1 pint of dried cake in 1 quart of milk. Add 2 beaten eggs, a little salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla and the stewed prunes. Bake slowly until a knife will come out clean. Stir at first to prevent fruit from settling. Serve with cream.

Potato and Cheese Loaf.

Take hot mashed potatoes moistened with milk and seasoned with pepper and salt; add in one beater egg to a pint of the potatoes, turn into a buttered loaf tin and cover with one-half inch layer of grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until the potatoes are light, and the cheese melted and brown.

Dark Nut Cake.

One cupful sugar, one-half cupful butter, one and one-half cupfuls milk, two cupfuls flour, one teaspoonful cream of tartar, one-half teaspoonful soda, two spoonfuls molasses, two eggs, cinnamon, nutmeg and one cupful chopped walnuts.

Sallie Lunn.

One-half cup butter, two tablespoons sugar, two eggs, an even teaspoon of salt, two cups flour, one cup milk, two teaspoons baking powder. Bake 20 minutes in loaf, in bread pan.

That You Save Money

In buying new WHEELS is because the repairing costs nearly as much and sometimes more than new wheels. Here is an example: A customer wanted new rims and new tires on his wheels. The cost of this work is at least $10.00 and the price of spokes added to it. I sold that man four good, NEW wheels for $8.00. Putting shaft in a buggy costs you sometimes $2.00. I sell you a complete, new, well ironed shaft for $2.50 to $2.75; also good ironed Buggy and Spring Wagon poles for $4.75 and $4.50.

This material sold twice as high five years ago, but automobiles cause these low prices. Come and look at the wheels.

Notice the Beds on "Thornhill" Wagons

The beds of "Thornhill" wagons are designed and finished with excessive care. The sides are made of first class poplar, because it holds paint better and gives better service.

The bottom of the beds are of Southern pine tongue and grooved and reinforced over front and rear bolsters. A system of construction is employed that prevents the reinforcing from ever falling out and insures longest wear.

Throughout the "Thornhill" Wagon, you will find the features that have proved themselves worthy.

The long sleeve malleable skein (non-breakable) prevents the axle from breaking at the skein. The strength of the bolsters is multiplied by the construction employed. The front bound plate is so made that the gears can never get out of line. You will find in this wagon six big points of superiority that no other wagon possesses. Come in and let us show you the "Thornhill" wagon sold on a guarantee. Do it to-day.

A Splendid Entertainment.

The Petersburg Dramatic Club came up last Saturday afternoon and that night presented "Miss Brown's Strange Adventure" to a full sized audience at Library hall. "Miss Brown's Strange Adventure" is a pleasing comedy in which there are fifteen characters and by careful preparation on the part of those taking them, they were represented to perfection. In no instance was the acting overdone and everything satowed along without a hitch or loss of time. The instrumental and vocal music were delightful features, both being of the highest order. The latter consisting of two solos and a male quartette. These young people possess considerable talent and have profited by the very careful instruction at the hands of Mrs. Earl Whiting and her assistants, and the entertainment given last Saturday night deserved a packed house, and should the club doubt to Burlington again no doubt it will be given a capacity house.

Omer Porter claims to be the first to plant tobacco in this county in 1914. He planted several hundred plants a few days since.

NEW POSTMASTER

After Nearly Seventeen Year's Service Miss Olga Kirkpatrick Becomes an Ex.

Mrs. Emma Brown, New Official Now in Charge of Office at Burlington.

Miss Olga Kirkpatrick, who had been postmaster at Burlington since October 15, 1897, was succeeded last Friday, May 1st, by Mrs. Emma Brown, Miss Kirkpatrick made an excellent official, quick, correct and obliging, and is very popular with all the patrons of the office. The volume of business in the office has increased many folds since she took charge, the sales of postoffice orders now amounting to several hundred dollars annually, whereas when she took charge of the office it was only occasionally that one of those was asked for. Besides the increase beginning in that line, the three rural routes have been established that are supplied by the office and cover nearly one fourth of the county.

The mail order business houses in the large cities use rural routes to a fare-you-well, and are sending large quantities of their wares over these three routes. While the labor in the office is constantly increasing the pay is also growing, and the office is now worth several times what it was in 1897.

Mrs. Brown, the new postmaster, is a daughter of R. A. Brady and wife, of the Bellevue neighborhood, and is as pleasant a lady as one ever met, and it is confidently expected that she will keep the office up to its present very high standard of efficiency. Mrs. Brown is taking hold with a determination to learn the business in every detail and in a short time will be in the best of the business.

Miss Olga Kirkpatrick has been retained by Mrs. Brown as her assistant for a few months, consequently she will have the best qualified instructor obtainable, and the change of the officials will come about so smoothly that the public will not be interrupted in the least.

While Miss Olga Kirkpatrick retires, taking with her the best wishes of all who patronize the Burlington postoffice her successor, Mrs. Brown, will receive the hearty cooperation of all in making her official career a success and a pleasure to her.

W. B. Craven Passes Away.

W. B. Craven, 86, died at his home between Hebron and Lima, Ky., Tuesday morning of infirmities incident to old age. He is survived by two children, a son, James, with whom he lived, and Mrs. R. W. Rouse, who resided on the hundred yard farm near her father's home. He has one brother living, John T. Craven, of Erlanger. Mr. Craven was one of the county's best citizens, a gentleman of the old school, unassuming but ever obliging. In all his transactions his word was as good as his bond. He was a worthy of emulation by all. His children have the sympathy of all in their bereavement. Funeral services will be conducted at Hebron today at 11 o'clock by Rev. Wallace, interment in Hebron cemetery.

County Court.

Three wills were probated by the county court last Monday, viz: Maggie Lockhart's, the late Claud Carpenter, and Walter S. Ryle's.
O. J. Rogers was appointed administrator of the estate of John W. Taylor, and J. G. Renaker, H. T. Tanner and Albert Fisk were appointed appraisers.
S. S. Smith was appointed administrator of the estate of Claud Carpenter, and N. C. Tanner, J. W. Conner and Wm. Smith were appointed appraisers.
An order was entered establishing the Verona Graded School District. The order carries with it a levy of 35 cents on each $100 worth of taxable property in the district and a poll tax of $1.

Slashed His Arm.

One day last week Frank Rouse, president of the county infirmaries, was pruning some fruit trees, and while manipulating the knife he split his sleeve on his left forearm, when he remarked to a person near by, "I'm going to split my arm wide open directly," and in about fifteen minutes he made good by slashing his arm, cutting through several layers of clothing and severing an artery. Not before beginning to grow weak did he succeed in stanching the flow of blood. He was taken to town and had Dr. Yelton dress the wound. The wound, while not painful, is giving Mr. Rouse considerable inconvenience.

A great deal of farm work has been disposed of the past week, and many are busy planting corn while scores of others are just ready to begin. With favorable weather a farmer with an up-to-date equipment does not remain behind with his work very long.

The condition of D. M. Snyder has changed but little in the past week, although he takes nourishment regularly and is resting well.

MISUSE OF MAILS

Charged Against Land Company in Which Name of Rev. Argabrite Was Connected.

Friends Believe Minister Innocent of Intentional Wrong-Doing.

Louisville, Ky., April 28.—On a charge of using the United States mails to defraud while vice president of a Texas land company the Rev. G. W. Argabrite, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, 1032 Washington street this city, was arrested by a Deputy United States Marshal March 26. He gave bond in the sum of $2000 to appear for trial at Corpus Christi, Tex., May 25.

The arrest was made on request of the United States Marshal at Corpus Christi, and on the authority of an indictment returned by a Federal grand jury in that city charging Mr. Argabrite as vice president, J. D. Powers, president; E. D. Downing, secretary, and E. A. Luck director of publicity sales of the Gulf Coast Immigration Company of Arkansas county Tex., with setting up and operating a scheme to defraud and using the United States mails as a means thereof.

The defendants in the indictment are charged with entering into an agreement with Chas. G. Johnson, trustee of certain lands at Rockport, Arkansas county, Tex., to pay him a percentage of the sales of the land which had been subdivided into lots and acre plots. Literature describing the land as exceptionally productive having large vineyards and bearing garden vegetables in abundance and containing statements that Rockport is situated on a deep water harbor on which the Government intends to expend large sums, and that the town is on a railroad, was circulated through the mails, according to the indictment "when" the indictment reads "in truth and in fact said tracts and parcels of land were not in cultivation and not producing grapes, etc." It is further charged in the indictment that there is no railroad running into Rockport and that there is no deep water harbor in the vicinity of the town and that money secured by the defendants named in the indictment was not divided as per agreement with the trustee of the land.

When Mr. Argabrite was arrested and taken before United States Commissioner John P. Haaswell he had no knowledge of the method pursued by the company to sell his property; that he is innocent of any wrong intention and that the company was used by the company without his authority.

Rev. Argabrite resided in Georgetown for a number of years before accepting his present position. He is a native of Kentucky and was in the capacity of State Evangelist for his denomination, and later had charge of the work of the Georgetown College. He was recognized as an able conscientious christian gentleman.

At the request of one of its young lady friends the Recorder sets Thursday, May 14th, as Clean-Up Day in Burlington, when even, odd, young and old, black and white, will be expected to assist in giving the streets and alleys a thorough cleaning. The young lady above referred to was seen to take the street and alley that border her father's premises have been cleaned and now she is ready to assist in a general cleaning.

ANSWERS LAST ROLL CALL

Oscar J. Ryle, Confederate Veteran, Member of Morgan's Command, Dies in Los Angeles, California.

Born and Raised in Boone County, Where He Has Many Friends and Relatives.

About two o'clock last Friday the announcement of the death of Oscar J. Ryle at Los Angeles, California, that morning, was received at this office. Mr. Ryle was one of the few who was Mrs. Elizabeth Garrison, widow of Erastus Garrison, had been residents of Los Angeles about five years. Mr. Ryle was 71 years of age and had been in bad health for several years before he went to California. He was a son of the late Hogan Ryle and is survived by two daughters, Mrs. J. J. Stephens and Mrs. Moses Scott, both of Rabbit Hash precinct, this county.

When the civil war began Mr. Ryle espoused the cause of the South and was soon at the front and participated in several of the battles of the war. He belonged to Gen. John H. Morgan's command and was in the Indiana and Ohio campaigns. He was captured at Fort Mifflin's Island and was a prisoner at Camp Douglas, Chicago, for some time.

He was a man of a most excellent recollection, and remembered every incident of his life as a soldier and could weave them into an interesting narrative. He would entertain anyone for hours. He was of a jovial disposition and his friends were limited only by his circle of acquaintances, and the night was never too late to entertain anyone for hours. He was of a jovial disposition and his friends were limited only by his circle of acquaintances, and the night was never too late to entertain anyone for hours.

Two children survive him, Mrs. Hal Preece, of Louisville, and his first wife, a daughter of the late Thomas J. Stephens; and William Ryle, by his last wife, and who was with him at the time of his death. His remains were interred at Los Angeles.

Take Notice Speeders.

The new automobile law is much more stringent than the old one. In addition to fines ranging from $10 to $50 it imposes imprisonment to the county jail for terms of five to thirty days in the discretion of the court and in addition to the maximum limit is twenty miles an hour; in residence sections of incorporated cities and towns the speed must not exceed 15 miles an hour; in business sections it must be reduced to ten miles. The registration number must be displayed in the specified position and must not be illegible from dust or mud.

Labor Scarce.

If the proposed pike are built in this county considerable labor will be required and the crops will be in the midst of cultivation, but the law will make it difficult to secure road hands. This will retard construction work which will undoubtedly have to be done by persons along the routes of the proposed roads, as the work on neither is sufficient to induce a construction company to undertake it. If the total number of miles to be built constituted but one line of road it might induce a construction company to bid for the work.

Yeggs at Erlanger.

Yeggs entered the postoffice at Erlanger last Thursday night and cracked the safe. The amount of money and stamps taken had not been given out but it is believed to be small. An auto was seen drive away from in front of the postoffice and it was supposed the robbery was committed. No clue to the guilty parties has been discovered. Occurrences the past few months indicate that Erlanger needs several night policemen, which with her electric lights would qualify her as a third class city at least.

The Burlington and Erlanger kick ball teams hooked up on the former's ground last Saturday afternoon and went 12 innings before a contest was decided. Burlington getting the better of the game 12 to 11. In the ninth inning Burlington made four runs, tying the score and they held the visitors until the twelfth. It was a very interesting contest.

It is not generally known that there is a wireless telegraph station at Petersburg, this county. John W. Early's son has equipped the station at Mr. Early's residence on the hill at Petersburg, and among the messages he has caught was the one sent from Vera Cruz, Mexico, announcing the battle in the city. The American soldiers and Huerta's soldiers.

The Aurora Vehicle Co. was on hand last Monday with a dozen vehicles, mostly buggies, all of which was sold at auction except one. The prices ranged from $35 to $85. There could not have been a more unfavorable day for the sale.

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH BOONE COUNTY?

ARTICLE 2.
SCHOOL AND SOCIAL LIFE.
(By J. L. Chambers)

If all my possessions were two leaves of bread, I would sell one of them and buy white hyacinths to feed my soul, said one of our greatest living literary men. We read it and exclaim, Fine! Grand! Super! Superfine! Sublimi! moi, because it doesn't fit our case. Suppose that man had said, If all my possessions were Boone County and I were to run Boone County as a business proposition, I would mortgage the whole of it, if necessary, to secure the proper funds to build first class macadamized roads, to construct decent school buildings, to erect better churches, to organize clubs for the boys and girls to build lecture auditoriums, to buy the proper farming instruments, to beautify the homes, to lay out parks, to secure music for the souls of the people, to secure all these blessings of life, what would he be our waver? We would cuss him out. And yet these are the things the poet had in mind when he said he would buy white hyacinths to feed his soul. In the latter case would not be half as sacrificing.

In my last article I showed the fact that Boone county has lost nearly 3,000 inhabitants in the last twenty years. There is no need of saying that there is something wrong. Yet, I want to say that our schools are at the bottom of this, and our roads are at the bottom of bad schools, and our fear of taxation is at the bottom of bad roads. We fear a debt. A great, rich county like Boone to fear a debt of a million dollars when there are such surpluses of increased returns. James J. Hill once said, "They say I am rich. Why, I am continually going into debt to make my business pay." Any business that never goes into debt never progresses. Investigate the fact.

A certain man walked into a store in Walton the other day and began talking about the school tax in this district. He said, "Well there are two things that are certain to come to us—death and taxation." The merchant answered in a wise manner, "Yes, and there are a lot of us who are thinking more about taxation than death." This man is married to the almighty dollar, and the courts won't give him a divorce.

Dollars are nothing compared to souls. And yet I would not think of bringing this argument before money loving Americans. There are 2,692 children of school age in Boone county. And we spend about $8.50 a year for the education of each one of them. If a boy or girl goes to school eight years the county has spent seventy dollars on the pupil. My, how extravagant we are! A county receiving an income of over a million and a half dollars a year on her crops alone, spending $23000 for the education of her boys and girls!

There are 44 schools in Boone county. They are run with the sum of $23,000 a year, or an average of $523.72 each. But ten thousand dollars of this money goes to graded schools. Mr. Riley tells me that if Boone county had good roads twelve consolidated schools would be a sufficient number. Probably a fewer number would be satisfactory. Mason county has a consolidated school that covers a radius of six or seven miles. The pupils are conveyed to the school house in wagons. These wagons are covered, they are heated in the winter, they are safe, sane, and sensible. They produce efficiency. Boone can have the same sort of schools.

You might ask, of what good is a consolidated school? The answer is, it produces efficiency by having more teachers for the eight grades; it brings a great number of children together; it enables us to put a large sum of money into ONE building instead of using the same sum in a half dozen buildings; it concentrates our powers.

Give this county first class roads and in ten years, it will have ten schools of efficiency instead of forty-four half efficient schools. It will have eighty per centum of children in school in place of 60 per centum.

The people of Boone county are beyond the average. This is shown in the fact that our illiteracy is less than two per centum. But it is not enough that our people be able to read and write. They should be efficient to the highest degree. Many people can read and write who do not know that legumes restore nitrogen to the soil, that every different class of crops demands a certain element of the soil, that germs cause milk to sour, that San Jose scale will kill fruit trees, that a peach tree should live twenty years instead of seven or eight.

Our lack of social facilities is a result of our lack of school facilities, and our lack of social and school facilities is causing our boys and girls to migrate to the cities. A boy or girl likes to hear a good lecture once in a while; a boy or girl also craves entertainment. We will give these things to the young people by and by.

Men who know tell me that Boone county has made more progress in the last few years than in many years previous. Men of faith in the intelligence of the people of this county. After the next census is taken, some people will believe that outsiders will not be frightened away from Boone by the fact that her population is on the decrease, but that they will be drawn hither by the wonder of an increased population which really signifies progress and opportunity.

The poorest economy on earth is to work with a poor tool.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS

2844 A. S. B. A.

Bracken Chief 2148
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Membrino LeGrand 99.

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star, abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet.

By Bracken Chief 2148
by Harrison Chief 1908 by Clark Chief (83) dam, K. H. Hardy, (2530) by Indifer Chief (1718) 1st dam, Miss Berry 4034 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino Le Grande (99) 2 dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112, 3 dam by Gray Eagle (thor). Miss Berry is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Kentucky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever showed, and sold to a party in Texas for $1,000.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons' colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last three years, and they have proven to be the best in the State. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all through the State and sold to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Grumbell (who was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the State and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair, when they were shown for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. Harris and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where 100 colts were shown.

Now is the time for the breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are horses like the Harrison Chief and his sons and his grandsons are still breeding on.

We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzsimmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the State today.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. R. Bell's stable in Walton, Kentucky, at the Season Fee of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

THE MAGNIFICENTLY BRED SADDLE STALLION.

CAMPBELL CHIEF 5039

By Emerald Chief, 2132.

will make the season of 1913 at C. R. Bell's stable in Walton, Boone County, Kentucky, to cover a limited number of mares at the fee of $20 to insure a living foal. Money due when mare is parted with or bred to other stock. CAMPBELL CHIEF is a handsome bay stallion, hind pastern and front heels white, stands 16 hands high weighs 1,100 pounds; foaled 1907, and bred by J. E. Henry, Mt. Sterling, Kentucky.

He has been handled by Charles Wells, of Massville, Mason County, up to 1913, and proved himself a successful show horse.

He is grand a type of the saddle as there is in the State, a natural gallied horse with as much air and style as any horse living.

A glance at his breeding will show he comes on the sire's side in a direct line from Harrison Chief, the great progenitor of saddlers, and on his dam's side from horses that have nicked successfully with his strain and all backed by good trotting and thoroughbred blood.

You are taking no chances in breeding to a horse of such natural beauty, style and action, bred in such stout lines that has proven himself a successful sire and a sure foal getter.

PEDIGREE: CAMPBELL CHIEF is by Eerald Chief 2132; he by Bourbon Chief 978 and out of Kate O'Hara 2777; Bourbon Chief by Harrison Chief 1608 and out of Bell; Harrison Chief by Clark Chief 89 out of Lulu Boyd.

1st dam, Old Mat 5650 by Roscoe 2471; 2d dam, Daughter of Forman's Warfield 82; 3d dam, Daughter of Pharoah a Thoroughbred.

AIDS VICTIMS OF INSANITY

French Physician Has Found Administration of Oxygen of Much Value, If Not an Absolute Cure.

A new and extraordinary use for oxygen has been found by Dr. Toulouse, chief physician of the Villejuif insane asylum. He finds it a most valuable aid in the treatment of madness.

Doctor Toulouse makes certain that the oxygen in the steel cylinders in which he receives it is pure and free from nitrogen; then he fills small glass flasks with it. A rubber bulb enables him to regulate the pressure in the flasks, and a rubber tube connects these with a fine hypodermic needle. Through this 250 cubic centimeters of oxygen are injected under the skin.

A physician who has watched the operation and its effects upon patients, reporting his observations for La Nature, says the results are remarkable among patients in a condition of acute mental confusion, who are always greatly improved and often cured entirely by a few injections. The excited and victims of insomnia become calm and lucid.

In cases of acute mania, dementia, violent fits and certain cases of melancholia good results have been obtained. The oxygen treatment is now being tried upon other forms of insanity.

HARD LINES FOR BUSY MAN

One Unfortunate Circumstance He Could Stand, but the Other Was Almost Too Much.

He was a very busy man, and she was a very pretty girl. She insisted upon having a love letter every day. She got it.

"You write the loveliest letters, dear!" she said. "And when you are so very busy all the time, I think it is splendid of you to think of me!"

"I don't forget you," he replied. "My secretary has instructions to write you a letter for me to sign every morning. He is a most efficient and capable young man."

"And you don't know how greatly I appreciate the flowers and candy you send me every week."

"I'm glad you get them. I told my secretary to make a memo to send you some every Saturday."

"How wonderful! And it is so thoughtful of you to think of the plays I like best and the books I prefer."

"It's a pleasure to know you are pleased. My secretary gets the tickets and picks out the books. He is a very capable fellow."

Two months later the very busy man said:

"Dodgast him! I don't mind so much his eloping with my fiancée, but how in thunder can I break in another secretary?"—Judge.

Time Wasted in Mourning.

Every day I see a certain fellow sitting on the bank of a stream and mourning for the water that has passed. He fails to realize that he can never grind his grist that way. He started out to be a colonel, but corporal was as far as he got, so he quit. He fails to realize that there would be a whole lot more satisfaction and money in being a good corporal than in crying on the banks of a stream because he couldn't be a colonel. If the good Lord intended him to be a colonel he will get there some day—but not by sitting in the corner and crying. The colonels are made of the fellows who were the best corporals, and no one should keep that fact in mind more than the corporals. But the mourner sits and sits and gazes pathetically down the stream at the water disappearing around the bend. You know and I know, but he doesn't. He never returns.—Kansas City Star.

First Aid.

David was capitalist and consequently also philanthropist. To him one day came Simon and begged the loan of a dollar for three weeks. Simon got the dollar on condition of paying back two dollars at the end of the period agreed on. He was hurrying away well content with his bargain when David came to the door and called after him: "Just a minute, Simon," said he; "I've been thinking that you are a poor working man, and that it will be hard for you to scrape together two dollars in three weeks. Now I want to make things easy for you. Suppose you pay me right now one dollar of what you owe me. Then when the loan falls due you'll have only one dollar to pay."

Simon gratefully accepted the suggestion, and David reaped the dollar—New York Evening Post.

Scribes and Paraphrases Defined. Taken from the examination paper of one of my scholars, writes "Teacher" to the Glasgow News:

"The scribes and Paraphrases were cheats and hypocrites now a days they are called lawyers." The perpetrator of the above, a boy of ten, makes up for his want of book-learning in a superabundance of mother-wit. An example of his qualification in this respect occurred only a few Sundays ago.

He had brought me the verbal message that one of the class was down with pneumonia, and he had pronounced the last word with a "p." I took the trouble to correct him. "Oh, I kent fine, 'twis 'neumonia,'" he said, unperturbed. "I list say'd 'pneumonia' so as these yins" and he indicated the rest of the class—"wid unnerstaun' it."

That You Save Money

In buying new WHEELS it is because the repairing costs nearly as much and sometimes more than new wheels. Here is an example: A customer wanted new rims and new tires on his wheels. The cost of this work is at least $10.00 and the price of spokes added to it. I sold that man four good, NEW wheels for $8.00. Putting shaft in a buggy costs you sometimes $2.00. I sell you a complete, new, well ironed shaft for $2.50 to $2.75; also good ironed Buggy and Spring Wagon poles for $1.75 and $4.50.

This material sold twice as high five years ago, but automobiles cause these low prices. Come and look at the wheels.

The Strength of "Thornhill" Skeins and Axles Explained

Note at the bottom of this advertisement the difference between the types of skeins.

One, the old way, gives a natural breaking point, where iron stops and wood begins.

The other, the "Thornhill" way, shows the long sleeve malleable skein non-breakable.

The long sleeve of malleable iron extends and distributing the strain. There is no weak part.

This banishes, forever, the old time weakness of wagons.

This long sleeve malleable skein runs as lightly as a cast skein, is as strong as a steel skein and will outlast either.

A Defiance machine, infallibly accurate, fits each skein to its axle insuring the right pitch and tuck.

A "Thornhill" equipped with these skeins has no equal anywhere at any price.

Learn the great improvements in wagon construction by coming in, and seeing the construction used on this wagon.

SCOTT CHAMBERS, WALTON, KY.

A "Thornhill" Wagon is Not the lowest priced—but the Best—and in the End the Cheapest.

Plantbed Notes.

Barren county growers have plenty of plants. Tobacco plants have come up nicely in Woodford county, and are looking well. Prospects are for a plentiful supply.

Tobacco beds in Kentucky this year are more forward and in a better condition than ordinarily for this season of the year.

Planters in Christian county, are busy plowing for tobacco. With plants plentiful a fairly good sized crop is in prospect.

The weather has been favorable for farm work and farmers around Richmond, are busy preparing for the new crop. A full crop will be attempted of both bright and dark tobacco.

Tobacco plants in Montgomery county, are coming fine and many beds have been weeded and the plants show rapid growth. Some growers anticipate transplanting by May 15, and by the 20th of the month there will be hundreds of acres put out. The acreage will be increased materially this year.

Farmers in Harrison county are reporting one of the finest lots of tobacco plants in their plant beds this year that they have had in years. The warm seasonable weather has been very favorable to the plants, and should this weather continue, there certainly will be no scarcity of plants.

The sheriff has issued a proclamation against cattle running at large in certain voting precincts.

Notice to Stock Owners.

All persons permitting their stock to run at large in the Burlington, Bullittsville, Constance, Florence, Hamilton and Union precincts are openly violating the law and are subject to a fine of not less than five ($5.00) nor more than twenty-five ($25.00) dollars for each offense. Such persons are liable for all damages done by their stock, whether the party damaged has their property inclosed or not, and the person so damaged has a lien on such stock, for the amount thereof. It is the duty of the sheriff, constable or town marshal when they see stock running at large or are notified that such is the case to at once impound such stock and the owner thereof shall pay the officer so doing one ($1.00) dollar per head and the cost of feeding and taking care of such stock, and the officer has a lien on such stock for his fees and expenses. It is the sheriff's duty and he will rigidly enforce this law when he sees stock running at large or complaint is made to him.

This notice is given as a last warning on account of the numerous complaints lately made to this office.

The attention of the next grand jury will call to this matter. W. D. CROPPER, S. B. C.

Frank Smith, son of the late Dr. J. F. Smith, died suddenly at his home in St. Louis, Mo., last Saturday morning. Mr. Smith was 48 years old and leaves a wife and five children. His wife was Miss Carrie Lou Fleck, her mother being Dr. Smith's second wife.

J. F. Blyth tried his luck on Gunpowder creek, one day last week, but the fish gave him no encouragement.

Jasper Beemon, living across Gunpowder creek, has been suffering intensely with an abscess on one of his hands.

The rain Monday was not desired by the farmers, they having gotten their work well under way the week before.

Miss Mamie Hawes has charge of the first toll gate out on the Florence pike, having moved there last Friday.

Quite a delegation of Petersburg young people accompanied the dramatic club to Burlington, last Saturday afternoon.

Squire J. S. Noell, of Beaver, has been knocked out by rheumatism this spring, being confined to his bed part of the time.

Geo. Blyth bought of W. L. B. Rouse, one day last week, a large sorrel horse with bald face and four white stockings, paying there for $200.

Up to noon, last Monday, the crowd in town was very small, but from that time until about four o'clock quite a crowd was on the street.

The frosts of last Thursday and Friday nights, May 1 and 2, got pretty close to the fruit crop. At some places the leaves on trees were burnt badly.

No one about here has signified a willingness to check his baggage for the front to assist in avenging the insults given Uncle Sam by the Mexicans.

By means of a small notice in the Recorder Albert Polt recovered the watch he lost at the N. S. Walton sale. The timer was found by Harry Stephens, of Idlewild.

High water has been unusually annoying this spring to those who use the ford near the mouth of Gunpowder creek. A good bridge is badly needed at that point.

W. L. Kirkpatrick was out last week, looking over the lamb crop in his territory, and found it looking pretty good. He has purchased a few crops of real good ones.

Albert Drinkenberg's new house over on the Florence pike will be ready for occupancy. It is back from the pike about a hundred yards and presents a neat appearance.

The rain Monday and Tuesday called a halt in farm work at a most inopportune time, as the worst of planting corn was ready to be pushed in every neighborhood in the county.

L. T. Clore, near town has a cow that has raised three lambs this season. Often all three of them would be sucking at the same time. The lambs are as thrifty as any other in his flock.

Pooling of wool in Boone County Wool Growers' Association will close Tuesday, May 12th. The committee to sell the wool is composed of J. H. Stevens, Geo. McGlasson, and L. T. Clore.

Dr. Yelton has a rooster he calls Huerta on account of its pugilistic proclivities. It will tackle anything from an ordinary rooster to an automobile, and has some of the boys intimidated so that they will not go about the doctor's premises.

The Burlington and Florence pike is getting so rough that there is not much pleasure in going over it in a vehicle, especially in an automobile. The truck travel on that road during the past winter is largely responsible for its condition.

Charles Birkie, who lives out on the Bellevue pike, is the early gardener in this locality, and his garden is several weeks in advance of any other in this neighborhood. His neighbors are at a loss to know when he found the soil in condition to plant so soon.

Last Monday was the annual wool day for this part of the county, and several buyers were in Burlington to buy the wool which will amount to many thousands of pounds. Boone county wool growers, as a class, handle their wool nicely and the large buyers like to get it and are willing to pay the top price for it.

Rabbit Hash has not recovered from the flood of a year ago. Much of the drift among which was considerable wreckage and sediment, has been moved but enough remains to keep the denizens in mind of the distressing period the river was on the rampage a little over one year ago.

W. I. Mills and his friend, Mr. Swindler, both of Erlanger, were business callers at this office one day the past week, and each plant an advertisement in the Recorder. Mr. Swindler is engaged in furnishing lighting plants, &c., for residences, and Mr. Swindler has charge of the T. Monroe Swindler Co., undertakers and livermen at Erlanger.

A wag of the town has been having considerable fun for the past few days, out of a number of his friends in town and from the county. If a stranger came to town, he would call one of his friends aside and impressively tell him that the man was a representative of the United States War Department, and was here to raise the quota of men for the Mexican war, placing the number in the hundreds, and confidentially volunteering the information that the responses were disappointing, and that drafting would follow at once. Nearly every man told this story was impressed, some of them to the extent that they made it convenient to get out of the way by going home or leaving town.—Greenville Record.

The new court house in Murray has among other admirable features a "ladies' room." By consent of the fiscal court this room is to be furnished and converted in a rest room for women and to be opened to them at all hours of the day. The furnishing of the room is to be done by free-will contributions of the business men of the city and the decorating is to be done by the women. It goes without saying that the room, which is centrally located to the business part of the place, will be a most popular place for the women of the county when they come to the city on shopping bent, and it will make many otherwise wearisome waiting hours and so far as this paper knows this "ladies' room" in a county court house is the excellent one.—Fayette News-Democrat.

NEW WAY WITH DISHES

WILL BE FOUND TO LIGHTEN HOUSEHOLD DUTIES.

Once a Day Sufficient, With Proper Management—After Breakfast the Best Time to Perform the Necessary Work.

It is astonishing to think that after centuries of housekeeping women should continue to wash dishes in the same old way. The mother of a girl who finished her college course last spring sends in this excellent plan which she and her daughter contrived to lighten their household duties very easily. In the first place, it is a small family of four, and they wash dishes only once a day—in the morning. Does that sound slovenly to you? No, it is merely good management. After each meal the dishes are held under a spigot—the hot one if they are very greasy—and that takes care of the "horrid" part. They are then stacked carefully in a large wooden box which stands on the table conveniently near the sink. The lid is closed, the rest of the kitchen put in order, the pots put to cook in an inconspicuous place and the "co-operative housekeepers" are free to spend the afternoon or evening pleasantly.

After breakfast, however, when plenty of hot water is at hand, they begin washing the glass and silver in a big dishpan of sudsy water. These are rinsed and dried; the rest of the dishes are washed, set in wire racks that one can get for that purpose and thoroughly scalded with hot water that comes directly from the spigot through a short length of hose, one end of which is slipped over the spigot and the other end of which carries a bathroom spray nozzle. This hose, by the way, is a home-made arrangement. Most of the water having now run off, the dish rack is lifted on the newspapered top of a sort of butler's tray on wheels. This tea wagon was also made by the college girl, who had had a bit of manual training. The wagon was then pushed into the pantry and by the time the second rack of dishes was ready the first was dry and ready to be packed on the shelves.

It certainly is a pleasure to see and eat from those beautiful shiny dishes. Of course, there were left the pots and pans, which had to be scrubbed and dried. But that isn't a bad job. One is not already tired out with drying and packing away numerous small lots of dishes. To be sure, it takes a great many dishes, but then no one thinks of washing the clothes every day because it takes a lot of going all week. After all it with proper organization one can get well done, all at once, whatever work is really necessary, why stick to an antiquated method?

Sarango Macaroni.
Sarango macaroni is another "tasty" dish. Take half a pound of macaroni broken into small pieces, and boil till tender. Line a dish with a rich sort of paste, which has been brushed with beaten eggs and covered with grated cheese so that the latter adheres to the sides as well as to the bottom. Into this pour about half the macaroni, sprinkling lightly with the cheese, and then a thick layer of plum or raspberry jam, or orange marmalade. Add the remainder of the macaroni and fill the dish with a custard made of two eggs, a small cupful of milk and a pinch of salt. Cover with the crust and bake in a quick oven. This is a good hot or cold, and needs no sauce.

Old German Salad Recipe.
Here is an old German recipe for a salad that is delicious for Sunday night supper when sweet things fail. Finely chopped, it is also an excellent filling for sandwiches. Soak any desired quantity of salt sardines in water for several hours. Sardines put up in oil may be used instead of the soaked sardines. Line a salad bowl with lettuce leaves and fill with stuffed olives, capers and shrimps or crab meat. Garnish with sliced and slices of lemon and pour over the whole a heavy French dressing.

Fruit Suet Pudding.
Sift together two cupfuls and a half of flour, one teaspoonful of mixed ground spices (cinnamon, clove and nutmeg), one-half of a teaspoonful of salt and one teaspoonful of baking soda. Add one cupful of finely chopped beef suet, one cupful of chopped raisins and mix. Into one cupful of molasses stir slowly one cupful of milk, add this to the dry mixture and work thoroughly together. Turn into two well buttered molds and steam for three hours.

Halibut Maitre d'Hotel.
Cut two pounds of halibut into pieces three inches square. Dip each into a beaten egg, then into sifted bread crumbs. Fry in boiling lard until a rich brown. Rub a heaping teaspoonful of butter to a cream, add the juice of half a lemon, half a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one salt-spoonful of salt and a half salt-spoonful of pepper; mix and spread on the hot squares of halibut, set in the oven just long enough to melt, then serve.

Coffee Frappe.
To one pint of cold strong coffee (one-half cup ground coffee to one quart water) add one scant cup of sugar, stir until dissolved, then proceed as usual. After the mixture has been scraped from the sides of the blender the second time, or when it is served, serve in frappe glasses a bit of whipped cream upon each frappe in each glass.

KEEPING MACHINE IN ORDER

Systematic Care Will Make Sewing Easier and Prolong the Life of the Machine.

It is a simple matter to keep the sewing machine in perfect order, but it is a rare thing to find one that is properly cared for. Here are a few hints from a woman who has discovered that if she wants any tool to do good work she must take good care of it.

"In the first place, a lighted match or a candle will do wonders for a sewing machine. You light the match or candle and apply it to the wheels and cogs. All the lint and threads that have caught there and wrapped around them will burn and the char that results can easily be wiped off with a clean cloth. You will be simply amazed at the difference this will make in the running of your machine."

"Then, too, another cause of a bad running machine is that the oil in a machine gums. It is really very little trouble to remove the head, place it in a big pan and wash it in gasoline. It makes an old machine run like a new one, or even easier than a new one."

"Only you must not forget one thing. Gasoline is not a lubricant, so after washing out the gummed parts and cleaning them thoroughly, you must oil the machine with a good lubricating oil. Whenever your machine begins to run a little hard, I think you will be agreeably surprised at the result."

NO EASY MATTER TO SWEEP

Carpets and Rugs May Be Preserved or Damaged, According to How It Is Done.

It is not an easy matter to sweep well. When a broom is put into the hands of the inexperienced, more harm than good generally results from the use of it.

Light sweeping and soft brooms are desirable.

Many carpets are prematurely worn out by careless sweeping.

In sweeping thick piled carpets always brush the way of the pile.

By doing so it may be kept clean for years; but if the broom is used in a different way the dust will enter the carpet and soon destroy it. If the carpet covers the whole floor of the room and it is nailed down, place the chairs and other articles of furniture which can be easily moved in the middle of the room, pin up the curtains and cover the couch with an old sheet.

Pieces of damp paper may be sprinkled round the sides of the room and then sweep with a carpet broom toward one place.

Take short strokes, being careful not to raise the broom much.

Sweep the corners and edges with a small whisk-broom.

Put two tablespoonfuls of ammonia into one gallon of water; wring a cloth out of this and wipe the carpet. This will remove the dust and help to brighten the carpet.

Yorkshire Pudding.

Have the beef for roast rolled and save the bone for soup. Rub well with mustard and salt. Set the roast in a pan on a meat rest. Place in the oven and baste constantly with the hot dripping. About half an hour before serving put in the potatoes and baste quickly. Then pour the batter for the Yorkshire pudding under the meat so the gravy can drop in it. To make the batter take one egg, one-half cupful of milk, a pinch of salt and flour enough to make a thin batter. When cooked cut in squares and serve on platter with the roast.

Fruit Measures Gauged.

An experienced housewife soon learns to know how many jars of jam or quarts of preserves she may expect from a given quantity of fresh fruit. Here is the record of one who knows:

Four quarts of crabapples will make ten glasses of jelly.

Six pounds of peaches will make eight jars of preserves.

Four pounds of plums will make five pint jars of preserves.

Four quarts of quinces will make 16 glasses of jelly.

Eggless Pumpkin Pie.

One quart stewed pumpkin pressed through a colander. Add sufficient milk to moisten it enough to fill two deep pie plates. One teaspoon of salt, half a cup of molasses or brown sugar, one tablespoonful ginger, one teaspoonful of cinnamon or nutmeg. Bake three-quarters of an hour in a moderate oven.—J. C. J.

Coffee Mold.

Scald one pint of milk, dissolve two heaping tablespoonfuls cornstarch (if prefer flour) in a little cold milk or water, add two tablespoonfuls sugar, pinch of salt, one-half cup strong fresh coffee. Stir this into the scalded milk and cook until it thickens. Turn into a mold and set it aside to cool. Serve with cream and sugar.

Pickle Secret.

At last has been disclosed the secret of a housewife famous for her well-dressed, crisp pickles. She has herself divulged the secret of their crispness, which proves to be nothing more than the addition of fresh grated horseradish to the contents of the pickle jar.

Cleaning Old Leather.

A little oxalic acid, dissolved in warm water and applied with a sponge, will make old leather look like new.

GOAT IS PROFITABLE

Animal is Less Liable to Tuberculosis Than the Cow.

Toggenburg and Saanen Are Most Popular, Although There Are Great Variety of Breeds—Need Protection Against Rains.

(By MRS. A. JOSEPH.)
The goat because of its hardy nature is less liable to tuberculosis than the cow. It utilizes food better and gives more milk considering its body weight. They prefer hilly ground and do not do so well on low swampy ground. They need protection against cold rains and should be well housed. Goat's milk is thicker, richer and sweeter than cow's milk and makes an excellent food for invalids and babies, being more like mother's milk than any other.

Although butter is made from the milk it takes longer to make it than from cow's milk because the fat globules are smaller and will not rise quickly.

It makes excellent cheese. The best known goat's milk cheese is the Roquefort. The odor which is so often found in goat's milk is mostly due to outside causes as the milk absorbs flavors quickly, more so even than cow's milk.

A goat should give two quarts of milk a day to be profitable, but the average is three quarts a day. They keep this up for six or seven months. A good milk goat should be milked three times a day.

The two most popular goats are the Toggenburg and Saanen, although there are a great variety of breeds. The Toggenburg is the best milker. The color of its hair is brown with a white stripe down each side with white feet. The Saanen is white.

Both breeds are supposed to be hornless, but occasionally horns are found on some.

When just beginning the business it is best to buy goats four or five years old as they will know how to take care of their kids and will also be broken to milk.

Goats produce milk after their first kid but do not attain their greatest milk capacity until their third year. Beginners usually breed their goats too young which not only stunts them but reduces their flow of milk.

It is best to breed a goat when she is about a year old. They produce offspring twice a year, but unless one is breeding side for market it is best to breed but once a year.

Goats need plenty of exercise in some place where they can climb. A fence four feet high will keep goats inside an inclosure which is a better way than staking them out. They can be kept on the pasture much as our dairy cows are kept.

PORTABLE HOUSE FOR SWINE

Building is Cheap and Often Old Material May Be Used in Erection—Easily Moved.

The Colorado experiment station describes the house shown in the illustration as follows:

It is eight feet wide, eight feet long, and the roof is eight feet in length, making the building seven feet high. The door in front is 2 1/2 feet wide, three feet high, and another at the back, near the top, is 12x18 inches heavy mauling, admitting air and light without draught. The frame is made of 2x4's and is covered with drop siding. No floor is used. When it is desired to move the building, it may be tipped over onto a low wagon or stone boat. This is the house we recommend for beginners. It is cheap, and often old material can be used in building it. It is easily moved and easily disinfected and can be changed so frequently that it may be kept on clean ground, free from disease. When a sow farrows in cold weather, a lantern hung to the roof will keep the building sufficiently warm.

Shipping Breeding Pigs.
In shipping breeding pigs be sure and write or wire—better wire to be on the safe side—the buyer who trains the pig is shipped on, that he will be looking for him and get him home and uncrated promptly.

Pigs that are shipped become chilled when they are crated and allowed to sit around a cold station, often out on the platform for some time.

GRADE DAIRY COW'S RECORD

Ohio College of Agriculture Has Red Polled Animal That Has Produced Much Milk.

During the past ten years there has been owned by the College of Agriculture, Ohio State university, what appears to be a grade Red Polled cow. No special information is known as to her history, for she was bought of a cattle dealer. Each year the total record of her milk production and percentage of fat in the same has been recorded. During this period of ten consecutive years, she has produced 60,936 pounds of milk containing 2,549 pounds of butter fat. The average record for these ten consecutive years is very close to 6,100 pounds of milk, and 255 pounds of butter fat. On the basis of estimated butter, this cow would have averaged nearly 300 pounds a year. The record for 1906 was a poor one, on account of the cow being dry for some considerable period of time. In 1904, she produced 8,777 pounds of milk and 379 pounds of butter fat. For the last three years she has averaged about 6,100 pounds of milk per year, and 230 pounds of butter fat. She originally cost about $50, and is known in the college herd as No. 196. She is an interesting example of what may be secured in continuous production through a term of years, from a fairly good grade dairy cow.

QUITE UNIQUE MANURE SLED

Handy Device for Keeping Dairy Yard Clean and Dry—Can Be Operated by Boy or Horse.

I use this home-made manure spreader on our dairy. It's not only cheap but keeps the manure away from the barn and is dumped by boy daily or every other day on to the land in piles about twenty feet apart, says a writer in the Farm and Home. The manure is taken out of the gutter from the barn and dropped right in the sled. When full a boy can hitch a horse to the sled and haul it on the land, unhook his horse from front and hook the single tree to chain at (a) that passes under sled and pull over to other side as shown in sketch.

Details of Manure Sled.

Drive the horse ahead, the sled turns bottom side up, the dump is made, and as the horse proceeds the sled turns upright ready to draw back to the barn by hitching the horse in front. This is done in one move and takes less time than to tell it. The wheels are turned out of a piece of oak 10 inches in diameter and five inches thick. The sled is mounted on an old buggy axle set in boxes which make it easy running. It must be well braced and made of 2-inch lumber. This system of handling the manure not only keeps things dry and clean about the barn but saves labor.

DAIRY NOTES

The "finicky" cow is not a good milk.

A smoking tank heater denotes a thoughtful farmer.

If you can't pave all of your cow yard, pave part of it.

When butter looks like lard there has been overworking.

Millet hay is considered rather an inferior feed for dairy cows.

Do the calves have plenty of clean dry bedding in their quarters?

The cow neglected while dry will not do her best after freshening.

It is unwise to manipulate a cow's udder or to milk her before calving.

There is no danger in underfeeding a separator but it may be easily overfed.

The man who keeps records on his cows knows just where he stands all the time.

The demand for good dairy products is one thing that keep the price of cows up.

When first opening the silo for feeding, remove the out straw or whatever covering was used.

One of the little things that help the flavor of butter is to let it drain well before salting.

The farm on which dairying is a recognized department of work is the farm that profits the most.

A little corn meal kept in a box in the calf's stall will make up for the absence of fat in the skim milk.

A few cents will get some hooks to hang the lantern on down at the barn. Handy, and much safer than nails.

Roosevelt In The Jungles.

New York, May 1.—Anthony Fiala, the explorer who was in charge of one of the Roosevelt expeditions in Brazil, arrived in New York today on the steamship Dante from Rio Janeiro. He vividly described the experiences of the expedition, both before and after he separated from Col. Roosevelt and Kermit, on February 4. Fiala did not know until today, however, that the Colonel had emerged safely from the jungle. He said he had not expected to hear from Mr. Roosevelt before the latter part of June.

Telling of his 400-mile journey across country with Roosevelt, Fiala said:

"At times we were all forced to dismount from our horses and cut our way with knives through the dense undergrowth. The rainy season was on, and sometimes we would travel for two days at a time without finding a dry spot big enough for a camp."

"When we reached Matto Grosso we rested for a couple of days, and then all went hunting. In one party, I believe, were tiger cats, were Col. Roosevelt, Kermit, a Brazilian chief of police, a Brazilian colonel and several natives. Kermit, I believe, is made of coiled wire, all bound up in bronze. He's tougher than his father, if such a thing is possible. The party started out early in the morning and pushed their way all day through swamps filled with crocodiles and snakes in pursuit of a tiger cat they had scared up."

"The Brazilians did it the best they could, and with the negro boys kept up for several hours. But the pace set by the Colonel even in their own jungle was too much for them. Late at night a boy returned to the camp, and said that the Colonel and Kermit were about two miles off in the jungle. When they finally came out, their clothing was torn to shreds and their arms and legs were bleeding in many places."

"But they were carrying the Brazilians' guns and shoes. The Brazilians had quit and were lying on their backs in a dry place recuperating. The tiger cat got away."

"The principal difficulty everyone in the party experienced was with food. I lost over 20 pounds in three weeks. Kermit and Roosevelt lost some too. I never want to see another bean. Col. Roosevelt, however, ate many of these and didn't seem to mind."

"The greatest hazards in South American exploration are the rapids and falls in the rivers. On the Papagayo river, after I had left the Colonel and with me six canoes. At the rapids of the Devil were we simply sucked under. Everything and everybody went overboard. The natives, stark naked, reached the shore with some difficulty. I had been making a map of the river and left the boat strapped to my wrist. That hindered me some and went down several times. Finally I grabbed a limb and reached the shore."

"I later learned that Col. Roosevelt had also lost some of his canoes."

To Kill Cutworms And Fleas.

Complaints are reaching the Station of injuries by cut worms and fleas. The cutworms, these pests can be controlled very largely by care, first, in preparing the beds, secondly, in keeping them covered and destroying weeds and grass about them, and finally, when worst comes to worst, by spraying the young plants with arsenical lead or Paris green. The cutworms are the young of several species of night flying moths, and have spent the winter in grasses or weeds, about the beds. The burning of the beds destroys those within the area burned over, but others lurk among any vegetation that may be left immediately about the frames. A bare strip of five feet or more should therefore be left outside the beds, and if muslin covers must be removed this strip and wooden frames can be treated with creosote, the odor of which will afford some protection from worms disposed to travel across the bare area.

If gnawing insects have been allowed to get in the beds, the only thing to do is spray with arsenate of lead, three pounds in 50 gallons of water, or else use Paris green, one fourth pound in thirty gallons of water, with about a pound of slaked lime added to prevent burning. The arsenate of lead in the proportion recommended does no harm at all to the plants and requires no lime. The arsenate of lead adheres to the leaves for some time, and should serve to protect them from these insects after the plants are set out in the field, though a second application may be needed after they are well started.

The High Bred Percheron Stallion Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1914 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone County, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Terms: parting with mare forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

DESCRIPTION & EDIGORE.
PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs. and is 17 1/2 hands high. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

Prince Olsen was sired by Blackcomb, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olson, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., and from whom he was purchased by me, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olsen was a high bred registered Percheron mare.

TWO FINE YOUNG JACKS, Also at the same place and under the same conditions I will offer for public service my two fine breeding jacks.

BEN

is a black Jack with meaty points, 7 years old, 15 1/2 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ear, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Ky. His mules are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. His service fee will be $10.00.

DEWEY

is another fine Jack, 5 years old and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both Jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Come and see them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Plutarch 8183

Will make the season of 1914 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1913 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at my stable at $8.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is five years old, 15 1/2 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season.

No business done on Sunday.

Phillip Beverly spent part of the past week with his grandparents at Campbellburg.

Joe L. Vest spent Monday at Williamstown on business pertaining to law practice.

Edgar Kipp, of Cincinnati, spent Saturday here with his friends, and looking after his property interests here.

E. R. Dixon of the Phoenix Hotel, has improved his hotel by a new veranda and other evidences of up-to-date methods.

Miss Ella Crisler, who has charge of the telephone exchange at Sparta, spent part of the past week here with friends and relatives.

Rev. A. Kirtley, of Zion, spent Sunday at Mt. Zion filling his regular appointment at the Baptist church there, and had a fine meeting.

Mrs. George L. Miller and granddaughter, Miss Georgia Carroll, of Big Bone Springs, spent the first of the week here with relatives and friends.

W. H. Beavly, of Latonia, spent part of last week here with relatives and friends, going to Eagle Hill, Owen county, to visit relatives at his former home.

Prof. J. L. Chambers, principal of the Walton Graded School, and Misses Pearl and Erma Stephenson, attended the annual session of the Kentucky Educational Association at Louisville, last week.

Walton Masonic Lodge conferred the fellow craft degree on Chas. E. Stephenson, who is employed at Dayton, Ohio, and J. Edgar Powers near Verona, at the regular convocation last Friday night.

The Master's degree will be conferred on these candidates Friday evening June 5th.

Lee H. Hind, who recently came home from Alabama, where he had been employed in a lumber camp, has entirely recovered from his recent illness and left Saturday for Burnside, Ky., to take a position with a lumber firm, the same he was employed by in Alabama.

Rev. Andrew Smith, of Louisville, who is attending the Baptist College at Georgetown, spent Monday here enroute to Georgetown.

He filled the pulpit at the Baptist church in Warsaw, on Sunday, in place of Rev. Stacey.

His native of Lexington, who preached at the Walton Baptist church, filling the appointment of Rev. H. C. Wayman.

A. W. Smith received the sad information of the death of his brother Frank Smith by telegram Sunday, Mr. Smith dying at St. Louis, Mo., that morning at ten o'clock.

He was a native of Burlington this county, and was about forty years old. He was a printer by trade and leaves a widow and several children.

Friends here were greatly surprised last Friday by the marriage of Mrs. Sarah Glenn and J. L. McCutcheon, which took place at Covington that day. The bride is a daughter of John G. Crisler and has been a resident of Walton all of her life, and has many friends here. Mr. McCutcheon is a native of Livingston county, Ky., and was stationed here for quite a while in charge of the electrical department of the L. and N. Railway, and was moved to Latonia some months ago, where the young couple will make their home.

At the annual election for two school trustees of the Walton district held last Saturday, J. E. Bristol and G. E. Carroll were elected without any opposition.

Mr. Bristol served last year.

B. W. Records and Harry Winn of Sparta, were here last Thursday enroute home in an automobile which Mr. Records bought in Cincinnati that day. It was a second hand machine, but it performed beautifully until they reached the big hill near Verona, when it started against making such a strenuous climb, and started to back down to the foot of the hill. The break refused to work, and it started as if there was going to be a general smash up, as the machine started down the hill at race horse speed. Mr. Winn had his foot opened on and was using crutches and Mr. Records also used a crutch, and as the machine showed a disposition to do strange and wonderful things, men and crutches flew out of the sides of the machine and landed in safety on the road side. The chauffeur had the presence of mind to back the machine into a bank on the road side and it settled down to peaceful meditation.

After the boys climbed into the machine again it seemed to reconcile to pursue its journey, and with a snort it jumped into the middle of the road and raced up the hill like Sam O'Shaner's nag with the witches in pursuit.

On the hill the brake parted company with the machine and as it constituted a piece of wire rope, a neighboring farm house was visited to supply the want, and although it was past ten o'clock the gentlemen of the house was routed out, and he supplied the want by cutting his wife's wire clothes line in two and giving enough to improvise a brake and the journey was resumed as far as Russell Chapman's when the machine refused to budge another inch either from the lateness of the hour or tired feeling. All coaxing and exhortation, and the appliances of all the known remedies failed to elicit a response, and even Mr. Chapman could do nothing with the stubborn contraption, and after working at it until dark in the morning all of the day of Mr. Chapman's residence, and on the following morning the "tourists" were taken to the train at Verona, Mr. Winn completing his journey home to Sparta and Mr. Records to Cincinnati, where the latter told his tale of woe to the firm that sold him the automobile. The expert assured Mr. Records that it was a small matter and he would send a man out to put the machine in running order and take it on to Sparta, but Mr. Records had enough and told the dealer that he would feel more than glad if he would have his man bring the machine back to Cincinnati which was done without any distressing results.

FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

John W. Skillen of Sidney, Ohio, Has Found a Remedy.

Experts declare that the reason stomach disorders are so common in this country is due to hasty and careless habits of eating. Stomach troubles and run-down conditions usually go together.

John W. Skillen of Sidney, Ohio, says: "I had a bad stomach trouble for years, and became so weak that I could hardly walk or do any work. My appetite was poor, and it seemed impossible to get any relief. Since taking 'Vinol' I find a remarkable improvement in my health, my digestion is much stronger, and I have gained in weight. I would not be without 'Vinol'."

'Vinol' makes weak stomachs strong because it strengthens and tones up the weakened, tired and overtaxed nerves of the digestive organs. 'Vinol' is easily assimilated by the weakest stomachs, and is delicious to the taste. Try a bottle of 'Vinol' with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not.

Dairy Farming Encourages the Rotation of Crops and the Growing of Grass and Forage—Constant Growing of Grain Removes Large Quantities of Plant Food

THE ART OF MAKING MOME-MADE JELLY

1. As a rule, use as little water as possible in cooking the fruit to obtain the juice. Excess of water requires more sugar and is inclined to make the jellyropy when finished, because the pectin has been too much diluted.

2. Cook the fruit thoroughly at first. The pectin is imbedded in the woody fiber of the fruit, therefore this fiber must be softened before it can be obtained. Miss Goldthwaite proved by experiment that a jelly could be made from the pulp of grapes, after the first juice had been extracted. It

Few farmers realize the possibilities of dairying for soil improvement. A dairy cow on full feed produces 68 pounds of manure per day, worth present market value of plant food in commercial fertilizers $2.25 per ton, or a value of $32.25 for one year. When the manure is properly saved and applied to the land, a herd of ten cows kept in the stable and fed properly will produce in the five months of winter feeding, about 50 tons of manure or enough to cover over seven acres of land at the rate of seven tons to the acre. That produced during the remaining seven months of the year will, of course, be largely distributed to the pasture by the droppings of the cows and will result in great benefit to the land.

Grape Fruit Marmalade.
One grape-fruit, one orange, one lemon. Remove the seeds and put all fruit, pulp and skin through the meat-chopper. Measure juice and pulp, and for every cup add three cups of water and allow to stand over night. The next day boil ten minutes and allow to stand 24 hours. Again measure and add three-fourths of a cup of sugar to every cup of pulp and juice. Boil until it congeals when tested in a cold saucer or when it drops off the spoon in a jelly-like mass. Pour into glasses. This recipe will fill from 12 to 14 jelly glasses.

TEST FOR THE OVEN

NOW ONE MAY BE SURE IT IS JUST RIGHT.

Employ White Paper to Tell When Right Temperature Has Been Re-sured—Good Recipe for Cleaning Black Woven Clothing.

You can never make a success of baking unless the oven is exactly right. If it is a little too hot or too cold all your cakes and pies will be spoiled. You can always test the heat by putting a piece of white paper on the oven shelf that is to be used and leaving it there for two minutes. If the paper comes out all white, the heat is very slightly below the edge, then the oven is cool. If the paper comes out a good deal browned, but not burned at all, then the oven is moderate. If the paper comes out brown all over and blackened at the edges, the oven is hot. If the paper burns all to a cinder, then the oven is much too hot for any use.

The following is a good recipe for cleaning black woven clothing: Dissolve borax in water and saturate a sponge or cloth in the solution. Wash the greasy spots by rubbing vigorously, then rinse the clear water the same way, and dry in the sun. This is especially good for cleaning men's coat clothes.

Thick, soft gloves are made to wear when lifting pots and heavy stove attachments; thinner ones come for the purpose of protecting the hands while sweeping or dusting; then there are rubber gloves to put on when washing dishes and asbestos gloves to wear when handling hot dishes.

Should the clothes be mided, the stains may be removed by a mixture containing equal parts of soft soap and starch, half as much common salt and the juice of half a lemon. This may be spread over the spots, and the article should be laid on the grass all day and all night until the stain entirely disappears.

The crisp, raw cucumber, appetizing as it is, proves indigestible to many people. Let these try them cooked.
Cooked cucumbers may be served hot with a cream sauce or cold as a salad.
Rather ripe vegetables should be selected and they should be stewed very slowly. Finely shredded chili peppers added to the sauce improve the appearance and take away the slight insipidity of the cooked cucumber without destroying the flavor. When serving the cooked cucumber as a salad cut it lengthwise instead of across, as with the raw vegetable.

A few drops of oil of lavender scattered on the shelves in the library will dissipate the odor of mold which frequently arises from damp weather.

Peanut Butter.

Roast the nuts, shell and take off the brown skins. When making large quantities, the removing of the brown skins is best accomplished by putting the shelled peanuts on a coarse towel, covering them with another towel and rubbing them gently until the husks are broken or loosened, and then blowing them off with a bellows. If you use salt, dust them lightly with it and grind in ones. Mix to a smooth paste with half as much butter as you have peanut powder. It is always well to knead your butter and use its freshness as a guide in the matter of just how much salt you should add to the peanuts, if any. Put the peanut butter in covered jars or tumbler; keep in a cool place.

Mayonnaise Dressing.

The making of mayonnaise dressing is usually a laborious and tiresome task as the oil must be used drop by drop, unless the person is fortunate enough to possess a mayonnaise mixer. By using hot water with the dropping is eliminated, when the task is lightened and the time consumed shortened. Mix with the yolk of an egg, a tablespoonful of hot water, beat them well together, then add the oil in large quantities as desired, a pint may be added at will if desired, without curdling. Use pepper and salt and vinegar to taste. A pint of olive oil is the proportion to use with an egg.

Hot Chocolate for Two.

Melt one ounce of chocolate; add two rounding teaspoonfuls of sugar and one-fourth a cup of boiling water; cook and stir until smooth; add the rest of a cup of boiling water and let boil once, then let simmer two minutes or longer; add one cup of hot milk and serve. Hot chocolate would be a beverage made from chocolate; a cup of "breakfast" cocoa would be made of cocoa, purchased in this, in a powdered form.

Creamed Oysters.

One pint of cream, one pint oysters, one tablespoon flour. Salt and pepper to taste. Let oysters come to boil, mix flour with milk and stir into boiling cream. Let oysters come to a boil in their own liquor. Skim and turn into cream. Serve with toast.

Quick Pudding.

Two eggs, beat yolks with one-third cup sugar, one-half cup molasses, one half cup flour (sifted), one-half teaspoon soda and add egg whites beaten stiff. Bake 30 minutes. Serve hot with hard sauce.

Salt in Custard.

When making custard I always add a little salt, says a New York Press contributor. This keeps the custard from drying and caking in the custard pot and adds to the flavor.

VALUE OF CARD CATALOGUE

System Makes for Efficiency in Housework—And Also is of Great Aid to Economy.

Few women outside of business and academic circles realize the convenience of the card catalogue system.
One energetic woman who had been a very successful secretary, made an efficient housekeeper and housewife because she remembered in her married life the devices that had helped her in business. She had a number of catalogues to indicate the state of her household supplies—linen, etc.—but the most interesting of all was her card catalogue cook book and menu index. It was just like a library catalogue, being composed of a couple of little drawers in a little cabinet filled with cards on which were typed recipes. These cards were grouped under appropriate heads and made readily accessible through a number of guide cards headed, Dinner, Soup, Entrees, Salads, Meats and Desserts. "When faced with the awful problem 'What shall we have to eat today?' she simply ran through her cards for the meal in question and often found the recipe for a dish she had quite forgotten about. For use as a cook book, this arrangement is much more convenient than the old book form. The collection of recipes grows rapidly too, as it is so easy to paste on a card a newspaper suggestion or a recipe from a household magazine, and slip the card into its proper place where it does not get lost, as loose papers have a habit of doing. The catalogue unit is quite inexpensive and the utility of the scheme will certainly repay the original trouble of making.

PROPER STORAGE OF FLOUR

Easily Taken Precautions Will insure the Absence of the Pesilent White Worm.

When flour is stored in quantity, or even when bought in small supplies, care is needed to guard against the presence of that pest, the little white flour worm.

Before putting away new flour, thoroughly clean the receptacle, being sure that not a particle of the old flour remains. It is the old flour that is left, even though it may be a very small amount, that causes these marauders.

If the flour is kept in tin the tin must be washed with absolutely clean water and a good soap, and great care must be taken that the tin is entirely dry before putting in the flour. If a wooden holder, or bin, is used it must be cleaned by brushing and airing.

When flour is brought in paper bags, it is well to look carefully in the creases of the paper at top of bag before untying, for here are found the white flour worms, if there are any at all, and these can be removed without their getting into the flour. But, when a bag is simply opened and turned into a bin, they are in this way in the bottom, and in a short time will work their way all through the flour.

Turkey Rechauffe.

Melt two and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter, add three tablespoonfuls of flour and stir well blended; then pour in gradually while stirring constantly, one cupful of rich milk. Bring to the boiling point and add one teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of celery salt, and one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper; then add one cupful of cold roast turkey cut in thin strips, one cupful of cooked apple cut in one-half inch pieces and one-half cupful of sautéed, sliced mushroom caps. Turn into a buttered baking dish, sprinkle with one-third cupful of grated Parmesan cheese, cover with three-fourths cupful of buttered cracker crumbs and bake until the crumbs are browned.

Cookies.

One cupful of butter, two cupfuls of sugar, three eggs, half a teaspoonful of baking powder, one even teaspoonful of nutmeg, half a teaspoonful of cloves and four for a soft dough. Begin with two cupfuls of sugar, gradually add the butter and mix until the dough is soft but not make them too stiff. Cream butter and sugar, add yolks of eggs, spice, one cupful of flour with baking powder, the whipped whites and the rest of the flour. Roll into a sheet a quarter of an inch thick, cut into rounds and bake in a good oven.
These cookies ought to be of the soft variety if you keep them wrapped in a cloth in a tin box and will not let them dry out.

Broth With Bread Dumplings.

Soak three thick slices of white bread in about a pint of broth, squeeze fairly dry and beat up with a fork.
Melt a tablespoonful of butter over the fire, add the bread; mix well and season with salt to taste and a little pepper. When cool stir in two well beaten eggs, a quarter of a grated nutmeg, and a dash of pepper. Mix well and mold into small balls. Roll these lightly in flour, boil them lightly in broth for two minutes and serve at once.

Oil Pickles.

One dozen small cucumbers sliced and six onions sliced.
Sprinkle one-half cup of salt over them and let stand four or five hours.
Pour off water and to them add one half cup of white mustard seed, one tablespoon of celery seed, one-half cup of olive oil and one quart of vinegar.

Boiling Cracked Eggs.

Add a little vinegar to the water and eggs that are cracked can be boiled as satisfactory as undamaged ones.

The High Bred Percheron Stallion

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1914 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs. and is 17 1/2 hands high.
He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.
Prince Olsen was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Olsen, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., and from whom he was purchased by me, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in the section of the country. The dam of Prince Olsen was a high bred registered Percheron mare.

TWO FINE YOUNG JACKS.—
Also at the same place and under the same conditions I will offer for public service my two fine breeding jacks.

BEN

is a black Jack with neatly points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ear, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Ky. His mares are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. His service fee will be $10.00.

DEWEY

is another fine Jack, 5 years old and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both Jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Come and see them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

JOSEPH READNOUR,
Walton, Ky.

Plutarch 8183

Will make the season of 1914 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1913 get of this stallion, regardless of its sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at my stable at $8.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.
Lanky Bob is five years old, 15.3 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season.

No business done on Sunday.

BE CAREFUL OF PRESEVING

Powders And Canning Compounds.

Washington, D. C.—The attention of the Department of Agriculture has recently been called to the widespread use, especially in rural communities, of salicylic acid in putting up preserves. The head of a large drug and chemical supply house states that people living in Southwest Virginia, North and South Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee, and Western Georgia, have been purchasing salicylic acid in 1/4 lb packages for a number of years and that this practice has grown to an enormous extent. This dealer states further that only a few weeks ago he received an order from one wholesale grocer for 50 cases of these goods.

The Department is aware that this practice is not confined to salicylic acid under its own name, but that large quantities of acetic acid, and of boric acid as well, are sold under fanciful names as preserving powders or canning compounds at prices much in excess of their real value.

In the directions for its use the housewife is told to fill the jar with fruit or vegetables, cover with water and add a teaspoonful of the powder. It is true that these powders may prevent the decay of the fruit or vegetables, but they also encourage uncleanly or careless work, and their excessive use may be attended with very serious effects upon the health. Salicylic acid is one of the greatest value in acute arthritis, rheumatism and certain other diseases. It is well known as a poisonous substance and one of the evils which may accompany its use is derangement to the digestion. It is therefore plain that its extensive use in food may lead to disturbance of digestion and health. It is entirely practical to put up both fruits and vegetables in such a manner that they will not indefinitely be sterilizing the products by means of heat, and there is no excuse for running any risk by using preserving powders.

Apathy on the Road Issue.

Simpson county a few days ago defeated a proposition to issue $100,000 in bonds for road improvement. Only two precincts out of twelve recorded a majority in favor of bonds and the town of Franklin voted with the majority in the negative.

The defeat of a bond issue in Kentucky is not uncommon and the fact that the proposition in Simpson county was beaten by a vote of more than two to one is not so discouraging to the good roads advocates as the discovery from the returns that nearly half the voters in the county were so indifferent as to the result that they did not vote at all. An active campaign was carried on to the day of election. Speeches were made and publications were circulated for and against the bond issue, but a large proportion of the qualified voters refused to become interested, and only a small vote was polled.

Had the men of Simpson county been called upon to make a choice between two candidates for a public office there probably would have been "a large vote and much enthusiasm." That is, they might have been a toss-up as to which of the aspirants was the better—or the worse; tho there might have been good reason for believing that which ever candidate was elected the voters eventually would be sorry they didn't choose the other fellow.

It is a vast more important issue of good roads or bad, nearly half the electorate does not consider it worth while to go to the polls. An amazing loss of campaigning has been required in Kentucky to induce the masses to warm up to the good roads proposition. With it all there seems to be apathy in chunks in almost every county—and of a kind which resists the thawing out process.

Slack Coal and Coppers for Hogs.

Every hog raiser has more or less trouble in keeping his hogs free from worms. Sickness is often caused by worms in the vitality of the animals. Salt, as every farmer knows, is good for hogs, but there are also other things which may be fed to good advantage. Coal, coppers and sulphur are beneficial if properly fed. I find that about a half pound of coppers to a hundred pounds of slack coal makes a good mixture for hogs. If they have never eaten coal in any great quantity, care must be taken in feeding it because they may eat too much. It is a good plan to give the hogs about all they will eat up clean. This can be done about twice a week, increasing the amount at each feed and when they become accustomed to this feed, it can be given more regularly until in a short time they will be safe to let them eat as much as they want.

A very handy way of giving the coppers is to tie up a bunch of it in a cloth sack and fasten it in the fountain so that it hangs in the water. The coppers dissolve and there is little danger of the hogs getting too much. The best way to feed the sulphur is in the slop. A teaspoonful twice a week for each grown hog is about the proper amount. Sulphur can be fed with the coppers as a mixture but it is better to feed it in the slop.

None of these, especially coppers, should be fed to sows that are suckling pigs or that farrow pigs in a short time. These mixtures although excellent worm destroyers if fed to brood sows may cause the loss of the pigs.—F. J. S. in Indiana Farmer.

Beautifying the Lawns.

There is a general movement on the part of the farmers to improve the appearance and conveniences of their homes. Aside from exercising care in keeping the home well painted and in good repair, it is most encouraging to note the general improvement in the care of the lawn. In many rural sections where once were neglected yards with straggling and ragged looking trees, today one finds well graded and well attended lawns bordered with beautiful shade trees and shrubs. As a rule the back yards as well as the front yards are also becoming models of neatness.

The farmer and his wife know that pleasant home surroundings and modern conveniences contribute a great deal to the enjoyment of rural life. The picture of the old homestead, with its protecting trees and wide spreading lawns, is one that the children will ever love to recall. The more attractive it is the more pleasant will be the memories.

There is another side of this question of improving the appearance of the farm that should not be lost sight of and which should appeal to the business side of the owner. A buyer, whether he be a buyer of land, stock or grain, will form his opinion of the business ability of the owner of a farm by the way the farm and surroundings about the home are kept up. If they are neat and attractive the buyer will be favorably impressed but if things appear in disorder and are carelessly managed he will naturally judge that the owner is careless and unbusinesslike.

The best and most suitable trees that we can plant on our lawns are the ones that can be obtained at the least cost. Not that they are sold cheaply at the nursery but they can be obtained from nearby timber and usually for less than the cost of transplanting them. They are our native forest trees, such as the elm, maple, sycamore or buttonwood, pin oak, beech, white oak, etc. All of these are beautiful when properly cared for, and have a great utility in the way of shade during the hot summer days. They will grow better than other varieties of trees because they have become acclimated to our conditions.

Out In the State.

Henderson—While they were playing with an old fashioned cap and ball rifle, Wm. Hancock, five was shot by his brother, age 12. The boys were to their uncle's and finding the rifle which was used as a relic, they took it out to the edge of the woods. The older boy snapped the gun, which was aimed for simply for sport, and the ball made a bad wound.

Maysville—John Mills, charged with neglecting a child, was taken to the county jail, and attempting to pass it at the bank of Maysville here was given five years in the penitentiary by a jury in the Circuit court here.

Madisonville—The 18-months old child of Tom Reynolds, an northern part of this city, died from the effects of hog cholera medicine which the child drank. Reynolds had been told by a preparatory to treating his hogs. The child crawled to the vessel and drank of the preparation.

Frankfort—The next sum of $15,000 for a leg is the amount a Franklin county jury awarded J. A. Johnson, of Winchester, for his right leg, which he lost in a fall by a C. and O. Railroad train. Johnson fell while getting off the train and rolled under it.

TOBACCO GROWING DECLINING.

With the coming high price of cattle comes the decline of tobacco growing. The Kentucky farmer is becoming more and more fact that growing tobacco injures his land and that raising cattle builds it up. He has also learned that he can have his best tobacco in corn, fill two 12x21 silos and feed 64 head of cattle for 3 months, sell the cattle and rake in his tobacco. He has also learned that he can have his best tobacco in corn, fill two 12x21 silos and feed 64 head of cattle for 3 months, sell the cattle and rake in his tobacco.

England has cultivated her land for 400 years yet it is better today than when they began to cultivate. Even potatoes have to be shipped to the U. S. from this land that has been cultivated so long. Tobacco not only wears out the land in the year to grow the crop, so it leaves no time to improve the farm or the man. Twelve acres a year may be grown at odd times, but the farmer has to feed the cattle and improve land.

C. W. GOODRIDGE, County Road Engineer.

Good, Sound Advice.

It is the young man and the young woman of today, with a practical education who will adorn our best homes in the future. It is the manager and the financier, who is the practical one.

It is the young man with good habits who has a bank account, who shows evidence of becoming a financier.

It is the young woman, who trains herself with the duties of work, who will become a manager. It is the observing, the prudent, who will be the practical one. A majority of our young friends of today are beginning at the wrong end, instead of beginning at the bottom and training themselves for the future, thereby making accumulations by patiently and steadily sticking to one purpose and establishing a good character besides they begin as it were, at the top with the dollar invested in the lack of proper training, and in the course of time find themselves where they should have begun years ago.

What a young man neglects before his thirtieth birthday, he can never redeem. The dollar judiciously invested at the age of twenty, will have accumulated at the age of sixty about sixteen dollars, whereas the dollar invested in the manner of the age of thirty, will have accumulated at the age of sixty only about eight dollars.

The most important thing, obtained while meeting with financial success is an established record, which is worth far more than the dollar invested in the manner of the age of thirty, will have accumulated at the age of sixty only about eight dollars.

The bees are at their lowest ebb when taken out of the cellar in the spring. There are only old, worn-out bees from the preceding fall in the hive, greatly decreased in numbers by winter losses. The old bees will die in about five weeks so the queen now begins to lay eggs in the wax cells which the bees feed and keep at a temperature of about 95 degrees. To provide food for the growing swarm the bees begin to forage the surrounding country for honey and pollen. To keep the brood warm they cover it with their bodies and wings. If there is no pollen or honey in the hive, or if the brood gets chilled, the larvae white bodies will be found in front of the hive in large numbers the next morning.

A good bee-keeper will not allow his bees to starve. He will feed his bees sugar syrup if there be no honey in the hive, or a some scented rye flour in a sunny place near by to take the place of the pollen if no natural pollen can be had. It is especially important to keep the hive warm by covering it with tar paper, sacks, or blankets, and closing part of the entrance, and to see that there are no cracks or openings left in the hive thru which the wind may blow. Such management lays the foundation for a large crop of honey.—Jaeger, University of Minnesota.

Spring Management of Bees.

The effects of a rainy day are different on this business of farming than on most industries of the town or city, where men work under cover in the shop and in the office, seldom losing a day's time. It may be well to ask the man on the farm how he spends his rainy days. Think of it, they make up almost one third of the entire year. If they are thrown away it means a great loss of time and money. Farming is a business. Business can not run smoothly in the loss of one-third of the time. There are many things a farmer can do on rainy days to improve his farm and home. He can grease harness, get machinery ready for the spring and summer work, select and clean seed for planting, straighten up the farm books, sharpen tools, repair doors, gates, feed troughs and buildings, put some convenience in the home for the housewife, inspect water-gates, count the stock, cut weeds, improve and clean the poultry yard, attend to his correspondence, and make the farm invoice. The farm invoice is most important and should be made at least once a year, as it is necessary to calculate the profits and labor income from the farm operations.

Theo. Hemple killed a bald eagle on the farm of John Viers on Cedar creek with a shot gun last week, which was the largest bird ever killed in that vicinity. Its wings spread about 4 feet and ten inches from tip to tip. The eagle was carrying a fish in its claws at the time which weighed a pound and one ounce.

Plant Bed Notes.

Plants in Tennessee under suitable weather conditions will be large enough to set in ten days.

Plants are plentiful in Bourbon county and an increased acreage is expected. The plants are in fine condition.

Bracken county will have enough plants to furnish several counties with plants, if nothing happens to them.

Beds in Scott county are looking fine, and though the plants are late in being sown, the plants are very far advanced.

Plant beds in Davies county, which are numerous, never looked more healthy, and are as far advanced at this season of the year as usual.

The tobacco crop for Madison county the coming season promises to be the biggest ever attempted, many predicting the yield will be close to 19,000,000 pounds with a good year.

The probabilities are that no more than the usual acreage will be devoted to tobacco in Maryland this year, owing to the scarcity of farm labor. Seed beds are progressing favorably, and no shortage of plants is anticipated.

Reports throughout the tobacco belt of Kentucky indicate that plants are abundant and doing extra well. Some say the only danger now is that the plants are liable to grow too large before the ground can be gotten ready for transplanting. Everything points to a large acreage being put out.

The farmers of Harrison county report the finest tobacco plants in beds that they have had in years. The warm, seasonable weather has been very favorable to the plants, and should this weather continue there will be no scarcity of plants when planting time comes.

It seems to be the intention of the planters in North Carolina to put in an increased acreage this year, but on account of the unfavorable weather they are very backward in the preparation of the beds. Plants that are plentiful, are from two to three weeks late, which seems to be the condition in all of the bright belt.

Pennsylvania growers have begun making their seed beds, but it is still too early to form any idea as to what this year's acreage will be. All sorts of reports are received on the subject some to the effect that there will be a big reduction, and others saying that the acreage will be very nearly the same as last year.

Growers of Wisconsin have been busy during the past week preparing the seed beds for another year, and the white tops are again dotting the fields, and the process of sterilizing the seed beds is being employed by a good many growers in all parts of the State, with the prospect of becoming quite general in years to come.

Jas. A. Riddell and wife, of Hebron neighborhood, were Sunday guests of their son, M. L. Riddell and wife.

Master Commissioner Chas. Maurer has been out in the country several times this week, making advertisements for sales of land he will make next county court day.

Senator Bradley was in Kentucky a few days the past week but did not make known his intentions regarding the race for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator.

County Judge P. E. Cason and County Attorney N. L. Riddell went to Covington, Tuesday, to appear as witnesses on behalf of D. E. Castleman in suit of Litterell against Castleman.

Cincinnati Shriners will back Joel C. Cloro for election to the office of Outer Guard at the meeting in Atlanta, Georgia. If he is elected to that office he will be in line for Imperial Potentate.

An appeal will be taken by the book concerns on the ruling of Judge Stout, in the Franklin Circuit Court, declaring the State textbook law constitutional, but throwing out the provision exempting cities of certain classes.

The Recorder is in receipt of a copy of the twentieth biennial report of the Bureau of Agriculture, Labor and Statistics of Kentucky for 1912-1913, issued by Commissioner J. W. Newman. It is replete with useful information.

W. L. Kirkpatrick's grocery business has increased until his two store rooms do not meet the demand for space and he will in the next few weeks acquire additional floor space by extending his present building back for a distance of fourteen feet.

The business men of Covington deplore the bad condition of the Lexington pike, it being the thoroughfare that is used by a territory from which they draw a large per cent of their country trade. They are anxious to see it improved.

The Recorder is in receipt of a communication from Helen Lick to which the writer failed to sign name; consequently it is not published. If the writer will sign future communications they will be published, and supplies furnished.

Civil war veterans will be given preference in the forthcoming reduction of the pension office force. One hundred and forty clerks will be dropped in that department, and the Commissioner of Pensions, so far as possible, will protect the old soldiers from dismissal or demotions.

Some of the best judges of business conditions have within a few days confessed to a change of view, or, if not exactly that, nevertheless to a suspicion that the country has practically reached the ebb of depressing business, and that the beginning of the flood seems to be observable.

Glad to report Dr. M. Snyder somewhat better.

For Rent—At $3.00 a year, one share of stock in Waterloo and Burlington telephone line. Renters to furnish box and pay his switching at Waterloo. Apply to Lewis Cloro.

Fowler, Tanner and Conner, with two violins and a guitar, gave the first open air concert of the season on the corner at the bank, last Monday night. The music was fine and was enjoyed by a good sized crowd, which hopes the boys will repeat often.

Black birds have again become quite a nuisance at night in shade trees about some of the residences in Burlington, and the shot gun was brought into play Tuesday evening, and much powder and shot consumed, but only a few birds were killed, while many held the fort.

The sheep farm is notable for the absence of a winter, the condition of the fences, and the general neatness of appearance. Sheep make the soil more fertile; furnish sources of income in wool and mutton; and are usually associated with the best system of farming in every country. More farmers should raise them.

In the death of W. T. Aylor, which occurred at the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. J. Crisler, in Petersburg, the county has lost one of its oldest and most estimable citizens. Mr. Aylor was one of a family of twelve sons and two daughters, only two of whom, John and W. T. Aylor, of Nebraska, and Harry Aylor, of this county, are living. An account of the funeral is given in the Hebron news.

Sheriff John Allison is going to see that the Sunday automobile traffic on the Lexington pike shall not indulge in the dangerous rate of speed on Sunday as reached in many instances heretofore. The Lexington pike is not a speedway for autos and Sheriff Allison will have deputy sheriffs at intervals along that thoroughfare on Sunday to see that the speed limit on public roads is not exceeded. All except the speed merchants will endorse the officer's actions.

Reuben Hager, East Bend.
County Kelly, Waterloo.
Wallace Rice, Idlewild.
Sadie Lee Snyder, Florence.

County Road Engineer Charles Goodridge has succeeded in getting several persons outside of the county to promise to come and look over the routes of the proposed pikes and make bids thereon. These people are equipped with that class of work and should any of them be awarded contracts the work will be put thru much more rapidly than has been the case in the past. It is estimated that two of whom would have their work completed at the same time, it being done at times when it is calculated not to interfere with farm work.

The property owners interested in the pikes that are ready to let their travel over the present effort to fail as a failure now will be a drawback to any effort made in the future. It is hard to revive a public enterprise once handicapped by failure, and especially hard, will it be in a case where the county is putting out half the money required, an encouragement never before extended to assist any community in Boone county in the construction of roads. The construction of turnpikes is largely for the benefit of the property owners in the community, and should not be left to them, but rather to the property owners rather than see them fail, should they see their limit when the county is doing half the work.

A Railroaders' Prayer.

The story is related that an old railroad worker was converted and being present at a meeting at which there were many inquiries was asked to lead in prayer. He hesitated a moment, and then with a trembling but clear resonant voice he said reverently, "O Lord, now that I have flung Thee, lift up my feet from the rough road of life and plant them firmly on the rock of the train of salvation. Let me use the safety lamp known as prudence and make all the couplings in the train with the strong link of love, and let my hand lamp be the Bible. And, Heavenly Father, keep all switches closed that leads off on the sidings, especially those with a blind end O Lord, if it be Thy pleasure, have every semaphore block along the line show the white light of hope, that I may make the run of life without stopping. And, Lord, as the ten commandments for the schedule, and when I have finished the schedule, let me be put into the great dark station of death, may the Superintendent of the Universe say, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant, come and sign the payroll and receive your check for eternal happiness.'—Ex.

John C. C. Mayo.

The Courier-Journal pays the late John C. C. Mayo, who died on the 11th inst. in New York City the following very high tribute: "Kentucky has cause to mourn the death of John C. C. Mayo. No man of the present generation has done so much for the material and substantial prosperity of the state."

"Mr. Mayo was not always a man of wealth. He began life as a rural school teacher in the Kentucky mountains. It was while engaged in this honorable but far from lucrative occupation that he realized the possibilities of Eastern Kentucky. He saw what many others did not see—the buried wealth of the hill country. He saw lands underlain with great and far-reaching veins of coal and of the finest quality. These lands were selling when they sold at all, at nominal prices, some as low as a dollar an acre."

"Mr. Mayo had visions of industrial development and he began buying these mountain coal lands. When he had bought the limited extent of his financial ability he began taking long time options on other lands. In this way his estate ran on for a long period of years, in all of which time he was increasing his holdings. This was no small attainment for a man of meager resources, but it was a simple process compared with what Mr. Mayo accomplished later on. To interest outside capital in these rugged mountain fastnesses was a task of Titanic proportions. He undertook this important work, patiently, quietly and unremittently; and eventually he succeeded."

"As a result of Mr. Mayo's efforts the map of Eastern Kentucky has been made over. The State's importance as a producer of coal has been greatly enhanced. The wealth of the mountain counties has enormously increased. The entire region has taken on new life—and with it all the development has only fairly begun. In all the history of that empire, mineral prominence long before the great majority of Kentuckians had heard of him and before the story of his endeavor had been heralded in the public prints."

"It is a matter of profound regret that so potential a man of affairs should be stricken in the midst of his activities, in the prime of his life and the zenith of his accomplishments. But whatever may be Kentucky's loss by reason of the passing of the work that he has done will survive him. The developments that he set in motion will proceed, and Kentuckians yet unborn will have reason to be thankful that John C. C. Mayo lived and wrought in and for his native hills."

Her mother, Miss Gracie, the bridesmaid, was becomingly dressed in white Crepe Dechene and carried Killarney roses. The best man was Lou Scott, brother of the groom. Wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. The guests being the immediate relatives and friends of the bride and groom. They have a host of friends who wish them a happy and prosperous life.

Indicted for Murder.

Campton, Ky., May 11.—The grand jury of this county this morning returned an indictment against Wayne Bryant, a prominent lumber dealer of this county, charging him with the willful murder of D. C. Miller, at the depot at this place last December, and that he was arrested for Thursday of this week.

A Very Large Docket.

Hazard, May 11.—With Judge Lee Lewis presiding circuit court met in the forenoon today. The docket has some 1,200 cases, mostly for liquor and gaming. Two murder cases from former terms are on the list to be tried. The judge in his charge said he was determined that Perry county should be a safe place for anyone from anywhere to live, and urged that justice be meted out without fear or favor to anyone.

Notice to Stock Owners.

All persons permitting their stock to run at large in the Burlington, Bullittsville, Constance, Florence, Hamilton and Union precincts are openly violating the law and are subject to a fine of not less than five dollars nor more than twenty-five ($25.00) dollars for each offense. Such persons are liable for all damages done by their stock whether the party damaged has their property inclosed or not, and the person so damaged has a lien on such stock, for the amount thereof. It is the duty of the sheriff, constable or town marshal when they see stock running at large or are notified that such is the case to at once impound such stock, and the owner thereof shall pay the officer so doing one ($1.00) dollar per head and the cost of feeding and taking care of such stock, and the officer has a lien on such stock for his fees and expenses.

This notice is given as a last warning on account of the numerous complaints lately made to this office.

The attention of the next grand jury will be called to this matter.

DAIRY

IMPORTANCE OF FARM WELL

Excellent Place for Cooling Milk and Cream—Results Secured Are Generally Satisfactory.

The cooling of milk and cream and the keeping of these products cool in the summer is one of the greatest importance if the results are to be satisfactory, and yet it is a problem on many farms.

A well or pit walled with cement, brick or stone, or with dirt walls in some soils, may be used for storing cream, and results are usually very satisfactory. An illustration taken from Bulletin No. 133 of the Nebraska experiment station, is shown here. The well should be ten or fifteen feet deep. On one side is an elevator to set cream and milk cans on and on the other a weight. The size of the weight is varied to suit the load on the elevator. Guide wires secured at the top and fastened to posts in the bottom hold the elevator in place. In some experiments cream was held at a temperature below 70 in one of these wells when a temperature of 74 was registered in the shade above ground.

Fall Fresh Cows.
Spring fresh cows yield most of their milk when low prices prevail for dairy products and the dairyman is busiest with the crops. In winter such cows yield only a small flow of milk at most. On the other hand, a fall fresh cow gives a large supply of milk during the winter and flushes again with the stimulus of pasture in springtime. Fall fresh cows should annually yield from 10 to 15 per cent more milk than those calving in the spring.

Best is the Cheapest.
It is being gradually understood that the best cow is the cheapest, regardless of the price paid for her, and for such correspondingly good prices are always obtained.

DAIRY NOTES

Every state needs more dairymen on more farms.

Wash the separator thoroughly after each separation.

If a cow falls in milk now, it is hard to bring back the flow.

The runt or pot-bellied calf is a product of irregular or over feeding.

Persistence in milk flow is what makes the really profitable dairy cow.

Deliver the cream to the creamery or cream station early in the morning.

It is always a good plan to give feed of a laxative nature on the first sign of odder trouble.

Protect the cans of cream from the sun by covering with canvas or with a wet sack while enroute.

Co-operative cow test associations in your neighborhood will increase the output of your creamery.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

Cull the old hens.

Give the chickens a variety.

There is a shortage of young cattle.

Do not allow the food to sour in the feed trough.

Good roads are community builders and farm developers.

Young turkeys are very liable to have lice, especially head lice.

In nearly every section of Iowa hogs are used to harvest corn.

When the little pigs are weaned, put the sow out of their hearing for a while.

If the hens are not laying the chances are that the fault is with their keeper.

In Agriculture is the Hope of the Nation. In Applied Science lies the Hope of Agriculture.

Have you any sheep? Then don't keep curs! Have you any curs? Kill them and get sheep!

Good ventilation is essential, but it should be so arranged that the cows shall not be exposed to a draft.

The smaller the quarters the greater the care necessary in order to keep the hen houses clean and sanitary.

Sheep, if given a place on the farm, will help you rid the place of noxious weeds and pay a revenue while doing it.

Sweet clover seed weighs the same as red clover or alfalfa when it is free from hulls; that is, sixty pounds per bushel.

Turkeys always bring a good price from October to March, and in some sections, a flock of turkeys is found on nearly all farms.

It is much better to feed a variety or number of grains to chickens than just one. Wheat is the best single grain that we can feed.

A painted fence post is certainly an addition to the road side, but a painted post hidden by nice thrifty weeds is not exactly a good combination.

Ireland is the greatest poultry raising country in the world. Ireland with a population of only 5,000,000 has 34,000,000 fowls within her boundaries.

Turkey duff feathers net all the way from $9 to $12 per pound when sold to milliners. The other feathers command a price of 35 to 40 cents per pound.

In the drought-stricken sections of this country the dairy cow is the farmer's main hope. She is the last animal he lets go off the farm when he makes a sale.

A cold grindstone is an uncomfortable thing to use in wintry weather. Warm water will take the frost out, but don't have it too hot. Hot water is bad for the stone.

Put a small handful of meal in the pail of milk. The calf in licking the pail will get the meal, and after it learns to eat this way a small feeding box can be used to better advantage.

It is useless to try and protect your farm by fencing if you do not have properly built gates; the poor, almost worthless gate is the most expensive and troublesome thing the farmer has to contend with.

The sow should raise two litters each year, and she must have a period of rest between the farrowing times in order to renew her strength and be able to mother well the following litter.

We do not advise shipping turkeys to market alive because they are very timid and the continual fright they receive reduces their weight from two to even six or eight pounds in some instances where they are kept very long.

The Wyoming experiment station has investigated the subject of alfalfa hay for horses, and finds that alfalfa is a satisfactory feed for all classes of horses and careful horsemen need not hesitate to incorporate it into their rations.

The hoofs of sheep make rapid growth, a provision of nature to stand the wear and tear of stony ground. Consequently when on soft pastures there will not be sufficient wear for the hoofs, and they should be pared at least twice a year.

There is a profit in goats.
Handle the dairy cow gently.
Grow the pigs from the start.
Cows build up worn-out land.
Bones are valuable for poultry.
Low, marshy pastures are unfit for sheep.
Clover or alfalfa hay is just the thing for calves.

Clean nests are very essential in producing clean eggs.
Sheep manure has very aptly been termed "American guano."

Selling young heifers from the best cows is moving backward in dairying.
Do not let the turkeys fall off in flesh when insect food becomes scarce.

Farming is mankind's greatest industry, and the soil its greatest physical asset.
Keep just as many sheep as the grass will stand and that you can rightly manage.

The colony plan for housing poultry may be adopted to good advantage on many farms.
Fresh milk cows are bringing the highest prices ever known this fall in spite of the dry season.

Few men understand the possibilities of a hundred hens when worked up to their limit of capacity.
A recommended preventive for keeping sheep from having stomach worms is salt and cayenne pepper.

The growing of live stock is not likely to be found profitable in any section that buys feed for live stock.

The most successful poultry raisers employ hens almost entirely to hatch their turkey eggs and brood their poult.

Production alone will not make a state. A market is necessary, and to reach the market good roads are a necessity.

Feeding troughs raised above the litter of the floor should be used if soft food is allowed to stand before the chickens.

Sheep feeders in England attach much importance to succulent feeds, like turnips and cabbages, than do feeders in this country.

See that the implements are all put under shelter and kept till they are needed in the field. If you have no shelter build one. It will pay.

Vitality is an important characteristic in dairy cows or any other farm animal. If weak along this line the best returns cannot be expected.

Pullets that are not properly grown or in some way have received a setback while growing will be correspondingly slow in starting to lay.

It pleases the cow to be milked quickly, and gets her in the habit of giving down promptly. It is often the slow milkers that make the strippers.

After the first few weeks a young turkey is able to gain most of his own living, from the insect life he delights in capturing in his wanderings over the farm.

If you are forced to confine your turkeys to some extent, you will find that the White Holland variety will bear confinement better than any other variety.

Contrary to the general belief, it does not hurt a horse to give him water in moderate quantities, even when he is very hot, providing the water is not very cold.

Designed for use in heavy winds without injury, a new windmill has been invented that has vanes that can be turned partly or completely out of the wind when necessary.

Odors get into the butter or they may get into the milk or cream, and then be imparted to the butter. The greatest source of bad flavor is from cream that has not been properly cared for.

An older tree heals up a wound slower than a young tree. An inch cut on a young tree may heal over in one season, while on an older tree, now in its prime or past, it may take three years.

Diversified farming brings the best profits in the long run. With crops and animals that thrive in any kind of season that comes along the average farmer is well fortified against the caprices of nature.

The dairy cow likes regularity. It matters little what hours are selected, provided the cows are milked regularly and go through the same routine at the same hours each day. Irregularity in milking or feed means loss.

Sheep are profitable and are good foragers, but remember they cannot live on nothing more than horses and hogs. Give them fairly good chance and they will generally bring in a good yearly profit, or larger returns during the year than any other animal for its size.

THREE FINE HORSES To Breed to.

BELL'S FITZSIMMONS

2844 A. S. B. A.
Bracken Chief 2148
Harrison Chief
Rhoderick 104
Membrino LeGrand 99.

Dark bay horse, 16 hands, weight 1200 pounds, with three white feet, snip and star; abundant bone, lots of style and action, with all the step you want in harness and under the saddle; has the longest neck, shortest back, and the best legs and feet.

By Bracken Chief 2148
by Harrison Chief 1008 by Clark Chief 89, dam, Kit Hardy, (2830) by Indian Chief (1718). 1st dam, Miss Berry 4034 by Rhoderick 104, by Mambrino LeGrand (99) 2nd dam by Well's Yellow Jacket 112. 3rd dam by Gray Eagle (thoroughbred). Hub Buckner is also the dam of Woodland Chief, one of the finest show horses in Kentucky. Woodland Chief is a full brother to Bell's Fitzsimmons and a full brother to Rhoderick, and one of the finest geldings the Fagan Brothers ever bred, and sold to a party in Texas for $1000.

You have all seen Bell's Fitzsimmons colts shown in Northern Kentucky for the last three years, and they have proven to be the best in the State. There was one suckling colt owned by Robert Chambers, of Walton, last fall that was shown all through the State and said to be by such men as Messrs. Hub Buckner, Ward Lukes, C. C. Harris, John Dolan, L. T. Anderson, Mat Coyne, Robt. Moreland, Walter Baker, and J. W. Crumley. This was the owner of Harrison Chief) to be the best colt in the State and was sold to J. E. Williams, of Walton, for $350.

It was said by all horsemen present at the Florence Fair, when they were shown for the season of Bell's Fitzsimmons, there never was a ring of colts showed like them. Mr. J. E. Williams and Mr. Buckner said they never judged a ring of colts like them, although they had judged the Futurity at Lexington where 100 colts were shown.

Now is the time for the breeders of Northern Kentucky to wake up to the fact that there are no horses like the Harrison Chief and his sons, and his grandsons are still breeding on. We have all been told by the best horsemen in the State that Bell's Fitzsimmons should be numbered as one of the best breeders in the State today.

Will make the season of 1913 at C. R. Best's stable in Walton, Kentucky, at the rate of $20 to insure a living colt, or money due when mare is parted with.

THE MAGNIFICENTLY BRED SADDLE STALLION, CAMPBELL CHIEF 5039

By Emerald Chief, 2132.

will make the season of 1914 at C. R. Best's stable, Walton, Boone County, Kentucky, to cover a limited number of mares at the fee of $20 to insure a living foal. Money due when mare is parted with or bred to other stock.

CAMPBELL CHIEF is a handsome bay stallion, hind quarters and front heels white, stands 16 hands high weighs 1,100 pounds; foaled 1907, and bred by J. E. Henry, Mt. Sterling, Kentucky.

He has been handled by Charles Wells, of Massville, Mason County, up to 1913, and proved himself a successful show horse.

He is as grand a type of the saddle as there is in the State, a natural galloped horse with as much air and style as any horse living.

A glance at his breeding will show he comes on the sire's side in a direct line from Harrison Chief, the great progenitor of saddlers, and on his dam's side from horses that have picked successfully with his strain and all backed by good trotting and thoroughbred blood.

You are taking no chances in breeding to a horse of such natural beauty, style and action, bred in such stout lines that has proven himself a successful sire and a sure foot getter.

PREMIER—CAMPBELL CHIEF is by Emerald Chief 2132; he by Bourbon Chief 718 and out of Kate O'Haran 2777; Bourbon Chief by Harrison Chief 1008 and out of Bell; Harrison Chief by Clark Chief 89 out of Luedy.

1st dam, Old Mat 5650 by Roscoe 2471; 2d dam, Daughter of Forman's Warfield 82; 3d dam, Daughter of Pharoah of Thoroughbred.

THE PREMIUM PERCHERON HORSE, JEAN FAIRBANKS 4478

Will make the season of 1914 at C. R. Best's barn, Walton, Ky., at $12.50 per mare living colt, money due when colt is foaled or mare is parted with or bred to other stock. A lien retained on colt until money is paid. Care taken to prevent accidents but will not be responsible should any occur.

We will meet half way mares from a distance.
Season to best colt shown at Florence Fair, 1915.
Care will be taken in handling the above stock but we will not be responsible for any accident.

Also prepared to break and handle Saddle and Harness Horses, Clean Out Stables Before Hot Weather Sets In.

Never Allow Manure to Accumulate, as it is Disease Breeder—Open Doors and Windows so Fresh Air Can Circulate.

Clean out the stables, sheep and hog pens before hot weather sets in. Fermenting manure, if allowed to remain in the stables and sheds, will produce blindness in sheep and tuberculosis in cattle. Never let the manure accumulate in the stables; it is a fruitful source of disease, and when a disease once enters a herd of cattle or flock of sheep there is nearly always a loss of more than one animal, says a writer in the Baltimore American. A farmer who should have known better lost recently four valuable horses from lung fever, caused by piling a large quantity of manure in an adjoining stable to help keep the stock warm. The gases from fermenting horse manure is very fatal to stock when allowed to remain in the stable.

Fermenting manure under horses' feet will cause scratches and punies, both of which produce lameness, hard to cure. The best way in to clean out the stables every morning, dust the floors with dry plaster to absorb the ammonia, open windows and doors, so that the fresh air can enter and blow out the bad air.

When the day is rainy is a good time to sweep down the walls and ceilings and to whitewash.

The best whitewash for inside work is made as follows:

Stone lime, one-half bushel; add sufficient boiling water to slack it, cover to keep in the steam. Mix together one peck of fine salt previously dissolved in warm water, two pounds of glue dissolved in three quarts of warm water, six ounces of bicarbonate of potash and one-half pound of whiting. Add these to the lime, stir thoroughly, strain and apply hot with a brush or a spray pump.

One bushel of lime makes thirty gallons of whitewash. Put on two coats. This wash will not rub off. To disinfect the stables, add one-quarter of a pound of bichloride of lime to each gallon of wash.

This lime disinfects and sweetens and brightens the stables. If the whitewash is strained it can be quickly applied with a small force-spray pump.

Whitewash for outside of building is made as follows:

Slake in boiling water one-half bushel of lime, cover to keep in steam, strain, add two pounds of sulphate of zinc, one pound of salt and one-half pound of Spanish whiting, thoroughly dissolved. Mix with enough skim milk to make it spread easily and apply hot.

Coloring matter may be added to produce the desired shade. If white is not desired. Apply when the woodwork is dry and when weather is clear. This is a double wash and much cheaper than paint.

PLAN OF MOVABLE HOG COT

One Shown in Illustration Provides More Room Than "A"-Shaped Affairs—Easily Ventilated.

We are firm believers in the individual brood pen. For several years we used the A-shape hog cot, but we like the one we are now using much better, writes Fred Russell of Cass county, Nebraska, in the Missouri Valley Farmer. It provides more room in a pen of the same size. It can be ventilated without having a draught. In cold weather the cot is set facing the southeast and the top door opened so the sun can shine in.

Care of Mare in Foal.

A pregnant mare should always be kept in a box stall. It is afraid to leave the stall for fear of not being able to rise again, and this constant standing up is very harmful.

In mild weather mares may be kept in the open sheds outside, both day and night. Each mare should have a special place where it is tied to receive its grain feed. If fed from an ordinary trough, the more vicious mares may kick the others and gobble most of the feed. Roughage may safely be fed from racks in the yard.

That You Save Money

In buying new WHEELS it is because the repairing costs nearly as much and sometimes more than new wheels. Here is an example: A customer wanted new rims and new tires on his wheels. The cost of this work is at least $10.00 and the price of spokes added to it. I sold that man four good, NEW wheels for $8.00. Putting shaft in a buggy costs you sometimes $2.00. I sell you a complete, new, well ironed shaft for $2.50 to $2.75; also good ironed Buggy and Spring Wagon poles for $4.75 and $4.50.

This material sold twice as high five years ago, but automobiles cause these low prices. Come and look at the wheels.

Pasturing Meadows.

Often, as soon after harvest as possible, stock are turned into the meadows and allowed free range. If turning into these fields is delayed three or four weeks, good pasture from these meadows would be assured, for in that time the grass will have obtained a pretty good growth.

It is sometimes a good plan where pasture needs renewing, to run over it with a disc once or twice, resowing it to grass, and then rolling it down. The cutting with disc, when regulated accordingly, will not destroy the sod or disturb the roots of the grass much. On the other hand it is beneficial, as discing loosens up the ground and serves to retain moisture which gives the old grass new impetus, stimulating it to make new growth.

If you want your pasture to bring in best returns, have plenty of shade in the fields, plenty of fresh water accessible, and a permanent salt box never empty of salt. Provide every comfort possible that tends to make your stock contented. Keep the untrained dog out. Never let your stock be unnecessarily chased or worried as excitement and worry soon show ill effects on animals.

In the Garden.

Grow a short row of salsify and have soup occasionally.

The rural schools are taking up the question of gardening.

Set out a half-dozen bunches of rhubarb and have pie next year.

Plant plenty of potatoes, and let your wife dig a mess or two occasionally without your grumbling.

Many farmers today are doing their marketing by parcel post in boxes made for the business.

Do not plow your ground and do not seed it until broken deeply and it is put in good order.

The United States and State governments are taking hold of many farms in the United States giving demonstrations in farming.

It is reported that Uncle Sam postoffice, said lists to be issued soon to have a list issued containing list of products for sale in vicinity of each large by each postmaster.

The laws of gravitation decree that what goes up must come down. This is a comforting theory to apply to the high cost of living.

Prisoners Will Get Back Pay.

Prisoners in the Frankfort, Ky. penitentiary will receive back pay for their services under the prison labor contract law from June 15 1910 when the law allowing them compensation became operative under August 1st, 1912 when they were first allowed compensation. Judge Stout in the Franklin circuit court decided in favor of the prisoners in a suit brought in their behalf against the board. The amount involved is about $100,000 estimating on the present basis of pay which aggregates about $50,000 per year. Ex.

Notice the Beds on "Thornhill" Wagons

The beds of "Thornhill" wagons are designed and finished with excessive care. The sides are made of first class poplar, because it holds paint better and gives better service. The bottom of the beds are of Southern pine tongue and grooved and reinforced over front and rear bolsters. A system of construction is employed that prevents the reinforcing from ever falling out and insures longest wear. Throughout the "Thornhill" Wagon, you will find the features that have proved themselves worthy. The long sleeve malleable skein (non-breakable) prevents the axle from breaking at the skein. The strength of the bolsters is multiplied by the construction employed. The front board plate is so made that the gears can never get out of line. You will find in this wagon six big points of superiority that no other wagon possesses. Come in and let us show you the "Thornhill" wagon sold on a guarantee. Do it to-day.

The Textbook Law

Frankfort, Ky., May 10.—It became known here tonight that an opinion which will be sent here for filing tomorrow Judge Robert Stout, of the Franklin Circuit Court, upholds the constitutionality of the so-called textbook law, except as to Section 8, which exempted citizens of the first, second, third and fourth classes from the provisions of the law. He also construed the section as to the contract and retail prices to be charged for textbooks designated by the Textbook Commission. It is thought that an appeal undoubtedly will be taken to the Court of Appeals with the view of getting a final opinion on the matter.

The suit in which Judge Stout has just rendered his opinion was filed by certain book concerns to have construed the section as to prices, and it was in this connection that the court also passed upon Section 8, the validity of which has been attacked from the start.

The effect of the opinion was to bring the schools of the entire State, the cities as well as the rural districts, under the provisions of the textbook law and will increase many fold the value of any contract that may be let under it.

It is believed that now that Section 8 has been declared unconstitutional there will be at least 100 bidders for the book contract.

New District Attorney.

Washington, May 10.—A new District Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky, with headquarters at Covington, is about to be selected. Thomas D. Slattery, a well-known attorney of Mayville, has been recommended for the office by Senator James and it is expected the President will send his name to the Senate this week.

Friends of Col. Thomas B. Slattery, of Covington, gave him Sunday at the Orville Hotel, at which he was with his family, a luncheon with an ivory table and umbrella.

For the past several years farmers living in the vicinity of the coal mines in this county have been reaping the benefits of the sale of vegetables, fruits and melons. One man cleared over $600 from five acres planted to melons and later to turnips. This has been a constant source of income to those who have engaged in the business of market gardening. This year the farmer has missed the market for his produce. The mines are not running, and there seems to be no prospect of their resuming operations.—Greenville Sentinel.

At the last meeting of the Nora Kemmion Club it was agreed to make an effort to rid the streets, alleys and lots of Louisville of the unsightly tin cans which had littered them so long. To this end the club offered cash rewards to the boys who should collect the largest and the second largest number of cans, the cans to be counted by a committee from the club. The first prize should be $1.00 and the second fifty cents. Saturday, May 24, was named the counting day, and several hundreds of various ages went to work. The college-campus was made the temporary dumping ground, and there the cans were counted. The first prize was awarded to Heber Byington and the second to John C. Hatcher and his partner, George Mauger, one of the pair had not been very active in the work of collecting, and seeing defeat, likely he pooled with the other. He will maintain his position of first. After the count the money collected was thrown into a gully. More than 5,000 cans had been gathered.—Louisville News.

Tobacco Statistics.

According to the Census Bureau report the supply of unmanufactured tobacco in the hands of dealers and manufacturers on April 1st last is about the same as it was a year ago.

Of the various Kentucky tobacco crops the quality of the one sown in the unmanufactured supply is smaller. The showing is the same with regard to the Henderson and Green River and one-sucker and the Hopkinsville-Clarksville dark leaf are the only varieties of which the supply is larger than was a year ago. The outlook is more encouraging, therefore, to the Burley growers than it is to the planters in the Black Patch. That generally speaking, there is no abnormal quantity in the hands of dealers and manufacturers is encouraging to all.

It is not improbable that Kentucky will have a bumper crop of tobacco this year. Except in a few counties in the stemmings district there has been no effort to restrict the crop. The prospects seem favorable for a large increase in the Burley acreage, and this appears to be justified by the census figures and by the fact that there is little or no unsold Burley tobacco on the farms.

There is nothing in the figures to indicate that consumption is keeping pretty well up with production all around. If the tobacco farmers of the State, therefore, should break the record of production this year there seems to be no reason why they should not be able to dispose of their crops at fair prices.—C. J.

RUN-DOWN WOMEN

Find Health in a Simple Tonic.

How many women do you know who are perfectly well, strong and healthy as a woman should be? They may not be sick enough to lie in bed—but they are run-down, thin, nervous, tired and demoralized.

Women are so active nowadays, and so much is expected of them, that they constantly overdo and suffer from headache, backache, nervousness and kindred ills.

Such women need Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil which will create an appetite, tone up the digestive organs, make pure blood and create strength.

"I was in a run-down condition for months, I had taken several medicines but they seemed to do me no good. Finally Vinol was recommended, and from the first bottle I began to improve until I am strong and well as ever."

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

P. S.—For pimples and blotches try our Sazo Salve. We guarantee it.

BASE BALL.

Burlington and Bellevue base ball teams met at the local grounds for the first time this season last Saturday afternoon, the former winning 5 to 3. Rogers and Hucy were the stars.

Acres for Burlington, were the batteries. It was somewhat a pitchers' battle in which Hucy struck out 7, Rogers 5, and Rogers struck out 5 and allowed eight hits. There were 3 errors on a side. It was Acra's first appearance under the bat, and his performance was very satisfactory to his teammates. D. M. SNYDER PASSES AWAY.

D. M. Snyder, who had been ill for several weeks, died at his home in Burlington, Tuesday about nine o'clock. He lacked two days of being 64 years old, and was the son of the late Henry Snyder, who resided in Petersburg precinct. He was born and raised on a farm, but at early age manifested a love for his books, and being an industrious student he succeeded in obtaining a good education in the county schools, the late D. C. Peck, being his most beloved instructor. Soon after starting the battle of life for himself Mr. Snyder was elected School Commissioner for the county, his election being under the old constitution which assigned the election of that official to the justices of the peace in a county. He filled the office to the satisfaction of all, and after the adoption of the present constitution was elected County Superintendent of Schools by the people. He took great interest in the school work and advanced educational interest in every neighborhood in the county.

Mr. Snyder had long been a member of the Baptist church and was one of the leading members of the local congregation, and for a time was church clerk. September 2, 1875, he was united in marriage to Miss Mary Alice Corbin, daughter of the late Captain Albert Corbin, a distinguished soldier in the Confederate army.

To Mr. and Mrs. Snyder were born three daughters and three sons, four of whom survive their father. Mrs. N. W. Carpenter, of this neighborhood, Mrs. Cecil L. Gaines, of Erlanger, Grover Snyder, of Butler, Pendleton county, and Cleveland Snyder, of Cincinnati, all of whom were at the bedside of their dear one at the time of his departure.

The funeral services, Rev. Campbell officiating, will be conducted at the Baptist church at 10 a. m., today, Thursday, after which the interment will take place in the family lot in the Odd-Fellows cemetery.

Turning the work over to his successor in good shape for continued progress.

ROY KIRKPATRICK

Killed by B. O. & S. W. Train at Riverside, Ohio—Remains Brought to Burlington for Burial.

A telephone message was received here about 11 o'clock, Tuesday morning, from the corner of Hamilton county, Ohio, stating that Roy Kirkpatrick was killed Monday morning at Riverside Station on the B. & O. S. W. Railroad. He was about 22 years old and son of Mrs. Lavina Kirkpatrick, of this place. The train crew that took the body into the city say he was lying on the tracks. A fortunate young man was born and reared in Burlington and moved with his father, John W. Kirkpatrick, several years ago to Riverside. For some time he was a fireman on the Big Four Railroad, but for several years he had been filling that position at the Fleischman distillery, near where he met his death. The body was identified at the morgue, Tuesday, by his foreman. It immediately upon the reception of the sad news, his brothers Jesse and Kenneth left for Cincinnati, to take charge of the remains.

The body was badly mangled, the skull being fractured, the nose broken, a long gash in the right side and the right hand and the left limb severed.

The remains were brought to the home of the mother in Burlington yesterday and will be interred in the family lot in the old cemetery today. The mother is prostrated with grief.

D. K. Stone, Verona. Leven R. Myers, Verona.

Zella Mayhugh, Walton. Stella Getker, Hebron.

Rubie Corbin, Florence. Chas. Ransel, Richmond.

Georgia Aylor, Petersburg. Grace Aylor, Petersburg.

The Locust bloom is coming out and appears to be abundant.

The DAIRY

REVOLVING CHURN IS LATEST

Barrel or Box, Forming Body, Is Revolvably Mounted on Supporting Frame—Works Fast.

A new type of churn has been patented by an Illinois man. In this type, instead of the churn body standing still and paddles operating it, the churn body revolves rapidly and the paddles also are active. A barrel or box, forming the churn body, is revolvably mounted in a supporting frame. By means of a handle the barrel can be revolved on its axis. At the opposite side from the handle is a gearing that operates paddle blades inside the barrel. Consequently, when the handle is turned the churn body revolves in one direction and the paddles are set in operation in another direction, thus making two actions at the same time, and churning the contents of the barrel just twice as fast as it could be churned with only one movement.

BEET PULP CHEAP COW FEED

When Dried It Is Good Substitute for Corn Silage—Now Largely Fed by Dairymen.

For the dairy farm without the advantage of corn silage, a substitute may be had in dried sugar beet pulp. This feed is now being largely fed by dairymen, as it secures the advantages of roots at the lowest cost and is a great saving in time and labor. Dried beet pulp is a far better and more economical food for milk cows than fresh grains or rye or corn slop from the distilleries. While both of these by-products may be had at nominal price, the cost of hauling in all weathers more than overbalances all other advantages. A car load of dried beet food bought the first fall month will be enough to feed a large herd during the five winter and spring feeding months.

Dried beet pulp is what is left of sugar beets after taking out the sugar, and it is worth about as much for making a good quality of milk as before the sugar was extracted. In ordinary stock beets there is only about 10 per cent of dry matter, while in sugar beets the dry matter is about 20 per cent. A popular ration for cows in milk is as follows: Five pounds of dried beet pulp, 4 pounds of corn chop, 1 pound of cotton seed meal, 18 pounds of fine cut clover hay. Dried beet pulp is soaked in water for a few hours before feeding. This ration is divided into two equal parts—one part is given in the morning, the other part in the evening. The cows are given all the wheat straw they will eat twice a day. Some dairymen mix the meal with the soaked beet food and give a little over one large scoop full twice a day to each cow. After this is eaten one quart of wheat bran is given to each cow. The hay is given after the beet food is eaten, and afterward the straw. Wheat straw if not eaten is used for bedding.

MAKE SUCCESS IN DAIRYING

Protein and Carbonaceous Foods Are Necessary for Profitable Production of Milk.

Success in milk and buttermaking depends largely upon the feed given to the cow on properly balanced rations. Cows must have both protein and carbonaceous foods to do well, and these may be readily selected in due proportions.

The protein foods are alfalfa, clover, cowpeas, hay, bran, oil meal, cottonseed meal, oats, barley, gluten meal and soy beans. The carbonaceous foods are corn and rye, corn silage, timothy hay, corn fodder, carrots, sugar beets and other beets. A good balanced ration may be made of alfalfa or clover hay, silage corn or cornmeal.

There may be fed in balanced quantity, and the dairymen will see the quantity required after feeding a short time. Thirty-five to forty pounds of corn silage per day, according to the size of the cow, are enough.

Increase the Butterfat. The only way to increase butterfat in milk is through selection and breeding cows that give rich milk.

POULTRY RAISERS READ THIS.

We Publish Below a Communication from Mr. Rickey, State Agent Poultry Club Work.

Sell, Kill or Confine the "Rooster" Beginning May 23, 1914.

Because roosters are allowed to run with laying hens during warm weather the $150,000 worth of eggs are lost to the farmers throughout the United States each year; and most of this loss occurs during June, July and August. For this reason the raising of poultry are earnestly asked and urged to kill or sell all matured males or confine them in pens away from the laying hens during the summer. Eggs that are laid by hens not mated are sterile and infertile, and do not decay. The fertilized eggs spoil very quickly when subjected to the influence of heat and if they are left too long in the nests or under broody hens or are left in any very warm place the germ cells begin to develop, the chicks begin to grow. These growing cells may die at any stage of development due to unfavorable conditions.

Whether the embryo dies or not, the egg is useless as food and is unfit for market. If the wives of the farmers would once realize how much money they practically lose by allowing the roosters to run with the layers, they would immediately stop the practice. Not one egg more is produced with a male running with a flock of hens than without one, and unless the roosters are valuable as breeders, it is far better to dispose of them at the end of the breeding season and replace them with the younger stock the following spring. If we follow this plan we can always have good strong, vigorous cockerels (young roosters) for breeders, and at the same time get rid of the care of non-producers. Let us at least make the most of what we possess.

In order to have concerted action in this matter the Poultry Department of the United States Government has designated the 23 day of May to be known among poultry raisers as "ROOSTER DAY."

Then Kill, Sell or Confine the Rooster. NOTE: The well-known poultry buyers who are members of the Southern Poultry and Egg Shippers Association have agreed to pay a higher price for roosters on that day.

For Light Cooking.

For summer use we always keep on hand a quantity of wood cut into what we call "half sticks," that is only half the usual length. This is for use when we need only one griddle as is the case often in preparing supper and sometimes the noon meal on Sunday when everything has been prepared before hand. Or, we need the best water yet there is no need for the whole stove being heated. The user of a gas stove learns to economize on space, learning to do a great deal over one burner. This plan holds good when one must use wood for summer cooking. A small fire in but one end of the grate does off so much heat, and dies out sooner than a larger fire. Sometimes a double boiler can be made to do double duty, as, boiling eggs for a salad in the hot water vessel and cooking the dressing at the same time in the upper one. Or, if a larger utensil is necessary, I occasionally resort to a steamer placed over a kettle.

By means of a steam cooker, a whole meal can be prepared with just a sufficient fire of "half sticks" to keep the water hot. Five minutes before dinner the cooker can be set off, and water enough for tea heated; food in the cooker will stay hot for some time.

Not only is this more comfortable, but it is a great saving of fuel over the enormous fires we so frequently see made for every preparation of a meal, however simple. Alice M. Ashton, in Indiana Farmer.

Farmers Should Advertise.

For many years the Times editor has believed that the farmers could make quite an addition to their incomes through advertising. The spring we have noticed how many chicken raisers have sold their surplus eggs at fancy prices thru advertising. Of course they had pure bred chickens, but everybody should have. But all farm animals can be sold the same way. A little ad only costs a few cents, will sell almost anything. Instead of selling half finished stuff on the market, get a better price right at home. Even stuff a farmer is ready to turn will frequently bring more right around home. Find your customer by advertising. Hay or grain can be sold at a long and cheap rate. A farmer ought to invest a few dollars profitably every year in advertising. Remember the few extra dollars above expense are the ones you save. A hundred dollars more on a thousand dollar deal is all profit and is worth working for.—Columbia Times.

Don't Get Soft.

Young man, when you are courted by your best girl, don't get soft. If you do, these little hands will not do a stroke of work when you are mine, and you shall have nothing to do in our house but sit all day long and chirp to the canaries. If any sensible woman could be happy fooling away her time in that sort of style, a girl has a tentative memory of the sad things and silly promises of courtship, and occasionally, in after years, when she is tenting over the wash tub, or patching the west end of his trousers, she will remind you of them in the cold sarcastical tone of voice.

GOOD BARN FOR SMALL FARM

Building Shown Has Accommodation for Four Horses and Five Cows—Ample Grain Room.

The dimensions of barn well adapted to a small farm are 32 by 52 feet. It contains stalls for four horses and five cows, and has a driveway 12 feet wide. It has two haylofts, one 18 by 33 feet, and another 22 by 32 feet. Ample provision is made for the grain bins, the size of which may be regulated to meet the requirements of any farm by reducing or enlarging the hayloft. This barn will take care of the stock and grain, of a 100-acre farm very nically, and costs only about $1,600, the price varying according to the cost of material in different sections. The barn is floored throughout with a good quality of pine, and the roof is of galvanized iron. The entire barn is painted with two coats of paint. If home help is employed in the heavy work and only a single carpenter employed, the cost of the barn may be materially reduced. The estimate of $1,600 is given to include the services of a carpenter and all other necessary help at day wages.

Amount of Silage for Horses.
Horses are very fond of silage, but according to Kansas Farmer there is considerable danger to their getting too much of it. Forty pounds a day is supposed to be about the maximum amount that can be fed to cattle, but here are very few cattle that will average this much, and it should be remembered that the horse has a very much smaller stomach than the cow. A little silage given as a horse ration will be thoroughly relished, and the animal will show its appreciation of it by his improved condition and glossy coat, but be careful not to give him too much.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

A fattening ration will ruin a sow for a breeder.
Separate the young breeding sows from the fattening stock.
Oats and peas sown together make a great forage crop for sheep.
Over-feeding and under-exercising will ruin the best of brood sows.
Flockmasters should never sell a cull sheep, excepting to the butcher.
Better have the love and the friendship of a good horse than that of many bad men.
The fewer sows we keep the better are the chances of saving a large number of pigs per sow.
The winter feed of the ewe should contain the essential food nutrients in their proper proportion.
If hogs are crowded in cold weather in a cold pen they will pile up and smother the weaker ones.
Give the shoats plenty of feed with roots each day. They will then make a steady growth and return a profit.
It is a mistake to confine the breeding stock too closely. They should have exercise in order to develop right.
The hog that is uneasy, nervous and is constantly fighting with the others is usually an unprofitable feeder.
Never feed pigs more than they will clean up. When the feed is left in the trough or on the floor it soon becomes a lowering the lambs in the winter feeding quarters. They need a lot of rooms on account of their natural habit of crowding.

COLONY HAD ITS DARK DAYS

Prosperous Sierra Leone Gave Little Promise of Being a Success When It Was Started.

The first settlement in Sierra Leone, the prosperous British colony on the west coast of Africa, was made in 1786. At that period London swarmed with free negroes living in poverty and on the verge of starvation, and Dr. Smithman's scheme for sending them to Africa to found a colony was accepted as the best solution of the difficulty. The first shipload of colonists consisted of 400 negroes and sixty whites, the latter principally women of bad character. Although land for the colony had been purchased from the native king, the Africans were not friendly, and a hostile attack, together with the selfishness of the colonists, almost brought the venture to ruin. In 1791 the survivors were removed to a new settlement, and in 1793 the population of the colony was increased by the introduction of 800 negroes from Sierra Leone and the Bahamas. In 1794 the settlement was again transferred to Freetown, now the capital of the colony and the greatest seaport on the west coast of Africa. In the early days the government of the idle blacks was no success, and Sydney Buxton, who remained, not without truth, that Sierra Leone always had two governments—one just arriving and the other just leaving. The soil of Sierra Leone is exceedingly fertile, but few white men are able to live there.

SOME "DUTIES" ON THE SIDE

Village Postmaster Had Other Affairs to Attend To Besides Those of His Uncle Sam.

A conversation, printed in the Buffalo News, seems to indicate that in some communities the most burdensome duties of the postmaster are not always those that the government regulations prescribe. Joe Henderson stamped into the postoffice, "Mornin', Mr. Morely." "Mornin', Joe!" "Has Tom Warden been in fer his mail yet?" "No." "Will you be here when he comes?" "Yes." "Well, when he comes, will you tell him that on his way from the cheese factory I wish he'd stop and get that shoot of Herman Langer's and take it down to Fred Wilkins, and tell Fred I said he could have it fer that single harness even up, if he'll fix up that bridle and throw in them russet lines 'stead of the old black ones; and if he won't swap, tell Tom to bring the shoot down to my place, and put it in the extra pen, and be sure and shut that door to the hen house, or all the chickens'll get out. Sure there ain't no mail? Mornin', Mr. Morely!" "Mornin', Joe!"—Youth's Companion.

Making the Best of a Pest.

A farmer in the parish of Maitland, Nova Scotia, recently came across a skunk's nest that had three tiny young ones in it. The little skunks were only a day or two old, and instead of ruthlessly destroying them, the farmer picked them up and carried them home. The family cat had been raising a litter of four kittens, three of whom the farmer had drowned, and after a few suspicious sniffs, she consented to adopt the little skunks in place of the lost kittens. The skunks did not suckle in quite the same way as the kittens, and it was interesting to watch Tabby push and bob them into position. She soon got them in excellent order, and pussy and her quaint family afford lots of amusement for the children of the neighborhood. The farmer intends to make his find the nucleus of a skunk farm, and when the success of the fox farms of the maritime provinces is considered, it appears possible at least that he will find the venture profitable. Skunk is at present among the most valuable of furs.—Youth's Companion.

Captain's Wall.

"It's the office boy," said the captain of a great liner, "who has taken the romance out of seafaring. Steam had nothing to do with it. In the old days the master of a steamer was a great man he stood almost as high socially as did officers of the navy. Now he has to face an impudent little whelp of a boy when he goes to the owners' office at the end of a voyage. At sea, the captain is the absolute master, but in the office the boy is supreme. He looks the captain over and then grunts: 'Sit down; he's too busy to see you. Sit down; the captain cools his heels while later comes march past him. He goes through that on every trip, and yet he dare not quit his ship for fear he may not get another. I can find you 50 captains who had rather stay on the bridge through a No. 1 gale than face the little jeering devil in the owner's office.'"

Prompt Cure for Anemia.

Towns with sealing wax factories have a difficulty in getting girl labor cheap. Girls employed in the resin department of sealing wax factories are probably the plumpest and healthiest class of girl workers. Anemia, that disease from which the majority of young women suffer more or less, is unknown among them except in the case of those who take on the work in order to cure their anemia. And in these cases cures are certain and rapid. Local doctors recommend the sealing wax cure so strongly that in many cases the girls offer their services free.

That You Save Money

In buying new WHEELS is because the repairing costs nearly as much and sometimes more than new wheels. Here is an example: A customer wanted new rims and new tires on his wheels. The cost of this work is at least $10.00 and the price of spokes added to it. I sold that man four good, NEW wheels for $8.00. Putting shaft in a buggy costs you sometimes $2.00. I sell you a complete, new, well ironed shaft for $2.50 to $2.75; also good ironed Buggy and Spring Wagon poles for $4.75 and $4.50.

This material sold twice as high five years ago, but automobiles cause these low prices. Come and look at the wheels.

Notice the Beds on "Thornhill" Wagons

The beds of "Thornhill" wagons are designed and finished with excessive care. The sides are made of first class poplar, because it holds paint better and gives better service. The bottom of the beds are of Southern pine tongue and grooved and reinforced over front and rear bolsters. A system of construction is employed that prevents the reinforcing from ever falling out and insures longest wear. Throughout the "Thornhill" Wagon, you will find the features that have proved themselves worthy.

The long sleeve malleable skein (non-breakable) prevents the axle from breaking at the skein. The strength of the bolsters is multiplied by the construction employed. The front hound plate is so made that the gears can never get out of line. You will find in this wagon six big points of superiority that no other wagon possesses. Come in and let us show you the "Thornhill" the wagon sold on a guarantee. Do it to-day.

MAY CROP REPORT.

"After a drought, a good crop year" is an old saying that is believed by most farmers in truth there seems to be some scientific basis for this. The first crop report for the year 1914 would indicate that this year would be no exception to the rule. Probably never in the history of the State was there a more promising outlook for a "good crop year" than at the beginning of this season.

The wheat acreage of Boone Co. is given at 95 and practically none of this was plowed up this spring. Ninety-seven per cent of the original sowing was left standing May 1st. The condition of this large acreage is 93. This would indicate an unusually large yield of wheat. The original acreage of rye sown last fall was 95. Rye is used more as a cover crop than wheat, a large per cent of which is plowed up in the spring for corn or oats. For the last few years rye has proven a more profitable crop than wheat per acre and it is no surprise to find that 92 per cent of the original acreage is left standing May 1st, while only 62 per cent of the barley crop is left standing. The amount of barley originally sown was 72 and the condition of both rye and barley is given at 93. The corn acreage planned is 91 per cent, while 76 per cent of the plowing intended for corn was done May 1st. Planting is now in full swing with conditions favorable. Deep plowing has been practiced this year more than ever before and favorable weather for the next few weeks will insure a large acreage of corn in a first-class condition. The oat acreage planned is given at 89 with 50 per cent of it sown May 1st.

While the dark tobacco crop planned is only at 78, the condition of plant beds is given at 96. The acreage planned of Burley is given at 81 with the condition of plant beds 91. There is some complaint of insects and cut worms injuring the tobacco beds.

The pastures are unusually good condition. The condition of blue grass is given at 93 with every promise of a large crop of blue grass seed. Clover is given at 85, alfalfa at 85, and orchard grass at 92.

Fruits of all kinds have escaped destruction by freezing and the apple, cherry and plum crops are unusually promising. Pears and peaches suffered some from late frost, especially in the central part of the State, however, we will have more than three-fourths of a pear and peach crop. The strawberries are in good condition with promise of a bountiful yield. Ninety-five per cent of a potato crop is planted.

Live stock of all kinds came thru the winter in good condition. It is estimated that 1 per cent of the horses died in the last twelve months, 3 per cent of the mules and 3.7 per cent of the cattle. The loss of sheep is estimated at 6 per cent and lambs at 10 per cent. The greatest loss is from hog cholera and it is estimated that 11.5 per cent of the hogs of the State were lost by this disease, some sections of the State being entirely free from this disease, while the loss runs as high as 50 per cent in other sections. This report indicates that there is an unusual amount of attention being paid to live stock. The number of brood mares used in increasing and the number of mules used upon the farm decreasing. It is also worthy of note that special deal more attention has been paid to alfalfa this spring than ever before. The amount of ground limestone used upon the clover land has greatly increased.

Summing up the first report of the year, one cannot but be impressed with the determination of the farmers to make the coming crop the greatest ever grown in the State.

J. W. NEWMAN,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

It is the general consensus of opinion among the leading politicians of the Sixth Congressional District, that Arthur B. Rouse, our present Congressman will meet with no opposition in re-election. It is claimed that the party will endorse him. All over the district the voters express themselves very freely in his behalf. His record in Washington has been very satisfactory. If he is re-nominated, which seems to be beyond question, he will have easy sailing. Lee F. Hanks, a Democratic politician of Covington, and former Judge John M. Lassing of the Kentucky Court of Appeals gave it as their opinion when interviewed on the subject, that Arthur Rouse would have no opposition as well as easy sailing—Pendletonian.

Mrs. Martha Snyder Riddell.

Mrs. Martha C. Riddell died at her home in Westside Thursday morning at the age of eighty-six years. Mrs. Riddell had enjoyed good health until a little more than a week ago when she had an attack of acute indigestion. She grew worse very rapidly until last Thursday morning when the final summons came which called her from earth to immortality.

Mrs. Riddell was born in Virginia, coming to this section of the country when quite young, residing in Aurora for about twenty-three years, during which time she has won and held the respect and admiration of all her friends. Those who knew her best loved her most. Friendship and kindness were her dominant traits of character.

A son James A. Riddell and a daughter Lena and many dear friends mourn her departure. The funeral service will be held from the residence Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. H. H. Allen. Burial will be made in the Westside cemetery—Aurora Bulletin.

Mrs. Riddell was the widow of Marcellus Riddell and a daughter of Mrs. Snyder, many years ago the leading business man in this county.

Eighty-six years ago March 6th Mrs. Martha C. Snyder Riddell was born in Albemarle County, Virginia. She came over the mountains in a wagon with her parents to Petersburg, Ky., where about six years of age. At sixteen she gave herself to Christ and she has been a member of the Petersburg Christian church since that time. At the age of twenty-five her husband Marcellus Riddell died and she with her two children who now survive her went back to her father's home.

William Snyder at that time was one of the most influential men in Boone county. He owned the Petersburg Distillery and about a third of the town. Mrs. Riddell from the death of her husband turned her time and attention to ministering to the wants of others. She knew that the Master had "gone about doing good" and she followed in his footsteps. She became the ministering one to the sick. She went into the home of the rich and the poor. She was not a nurse for hire, but a minister of the service. The last 23 years of Mrs. Riddell's life she has lived in Aurora. During these years she did not visit much, but kept her from the active life she had lived. Her daughter, Miss Lena and her son James live in Aurora, Indiana.

With the passing of any one we ask the question, "What was this one worth?" Usually the question is in reference to financial standing but it is applicable to other matters. What are we worth to our fellowmen? We are creatures of God and our worth is determined by the circumstances some of which we can not control.

The inherent tendencies of our nature as we have received the gift to us from our ancestors must be taken into account. Over this we have no control as to what this is to be. We do not know why these are good in some and not good in others but we know that these tendencies are present. Again development has its part in our control in early life but later we can guide and to some extent change our environment. This subject of environment needs a great deal upon us in respect to our responsibility toward our fellow creatures. Then the strongest element of all has its part, the personal equation. It is this element that blends the other elements of life into success or failure. It is this element that asserts itself in Mrs. Riddell's life and made for her friends and caused the halo of His glory to accompany in all that she did. We cannot judge perfectly. When some famous man dies we are prone to think a great community sorrow is upon us, but the God fearing mothers have done more to Christianize our lives and our public sentiment than the spectacular lives that have passed over our horizon. Merit and greatness but God knows true worth.

Once a traveler climbed a mountain of Kentucky to see the beauty of the night. Just at autumn and the leaves were colored with natures dying dress. As the sun broke forth from the eastern horizon the shadows grew longer until darkness faded into light. The sun was reflected from rock to brook and from tree to tree. Beautiful was the scene. A flock of goats were feeding on the mountain. These goats saw only food to satisfy the hunger. The man alone saw the beautiful in God. Some may not be able to see anything but gloom or this world. The Christian through the eye of faith can see into the realm of eternity. Oh how glorious is the beauty of those things that eye physical has not seen.

Notice to Stock Owners.

All persons permitting their stock to run at large in the Burlington, Bullittsville, Constance, Florence, Hamilton and Union precincts are openly violating the law and are subject to a fine of not less than five ($5.00) nor more than twenty-five ($25.00) dollars for each offense. Such persons are liable for all damages done by their stock, whether the party damaged has their property inclosed or not, and the person so damaged has a lien on such stock for the amount thereof. It is the duty of the sheriff, constable or town marshal when they see stock running at large or are notified that such is the case to at once impound such stock and the owner, if notified, shall pay the officer so doing one ($1.00) dollar per head and the cost of feeding and taking care of such stock, and the officer has a lien on such stock for his fees and expenses. It is the sheriff's duty and he will rigidly enforce this law when he sees stock running at large or complaint is made to his office. This notice is given as a last warning on account of the numerous complaints lately made to this office.

The attention of the next grand jury will be called to this matter. W. D. CROMPER, S. B. C.

The time for making gardens is at hand and it is also time to pen up the chickens. There is perhaps nothing that causes as much hard feeling as a commitment for one's chickens to wander on a neighbor's premises and garden. Some say they do not do any harm. That makes no difference, your neighbor does not want to be annoyed with your chickens and you should not cause trouble by letting your fowls run at large. A hen that will not stay in the enclosure will usually make a fine Sunday dinner.

POTATO CULTURE IN KENTUCKY NOT SUFFICIENT TO SUPPLY DEMAND

Blue Grass State Produces Annually Only 5,500,000 Bushels, About Two-thirds of Annual Consumption—Kentucky Has Numerous Advantages for Potato Crop

(H. B. Hendrick, Department of Agronomy, Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station)

The so-called Irish potato (Solanum tuberosum) is a native of America, and next to rice is the most extensively grown and most valuable crop in the world. The total annual yield is about 5,000,000,000 bushels. Of this the United States produced during the five-year period, 1908-1912, an average of 343,557,600 bushels annually. The annual consumption of the United States, as a food product, is about 300,000,000 bushels, or three and one-half bushels per capita.

Irish Cobbler, an excellent early variety.

Kentucky, with a population of 2,288,965 in 1910, is producing annually a little less than 5,500,000 bushels of potatoes, while the annual consumption of the state is about 7,500,000 bushels, making it necessary that 2,000,000 bushels of potatoes be shipped into our state each year.

The potato has become so adapted to varying conditions of soil and climate that it is now grown in almost all parts of the civilized world. The soils and climate of Kentucky are sufficiently favorable to the growing of the potato that it should not only be grown to supply home consumption, but it should be profitably produced as a paying marketable crop as well.

Some of the advantages which Kentucky has for the production of potatoes are:

1. Two crops can be grown in one season on the same piece of ground.
2. It is the most easily grown and marketed of the so-called intensive crops.
3. It fits readily into cropping systems and leaves the ground in good condition for fall seeding of wheat, rye, or barley.
4. It does not draw heavily upon the fertility of the soil. A 300-bushel crop of potatoes requires 63 pounds of nitrogen, 13 pounds of phosphorus, and 90 pounds of potassium, while a 100-bushel crop of corn requires 148 pounds of nitrogen, 23 pounds of phosphorus, and 71 pounds of potassium.
5. It is a good money crop. The labor of one man and team in growing potatoes will produce a greater profit, one year with another, than will the same labor produce in growing tobacco.

The soil best adapted to potatoes is a sandy loam. River and creek bottom lands when well drained are very suitable. The Kentucky clay loams, when well supplied with humus, are good for this crop. The best preparation for the early crop of potatoes is made by plowing under, in the fall, red clover or some other legume crop, which in its decay furnishes a liberal supply of nitrogen to the soil. Potato land should be plowed to a good depth so as to provide a deep, loose bed for the formation of the tubers. Since the potato is an intensive crop, one can afford to use commercial fertilizers in its production. Fertilizers low in nitrogen, medium in phosphoric acid, and high in potash are best. The grades commonly used for tobacco are suitable for potatoes.

In growing potatoes for the early northern market, the soil should be thoroughly worked up in the spring as soon as it is tillable, and the planting should be done when the danger to the plants from frost is thought to be past. First-class seed is very essential. Smooth, medium-sized potatoes, free from scab, are best. In order that the potato crops may not deteriorate in yield and quality, it is necessary that one crop each year be planted from northern-grown seed. It is probably best to use northern seed for the second crop. Potatoes should be planted from three to five inches deep, in rows from three to three and a half feet apart, while the hills from twelve to eighteen inches apart in the row. Thorough, shallow cultivation should be practiced, and there is great economy of labor in using a weeder or harrow two or three times before the potatoes come up.

The first crop of potatoes can be removed and marketed about July first. The ground, if not replanted to potatoes, can be sown to cowpeas for a hay crop, or it can be made ready for the sowing of clover or alfalfa, which should be put in about August 15th. The total cost of producing a crop of potatoes, including rental of land, tilling, fertilizers, seed, planting, harvesting, and marketing, is about $50 per acre. The average production for the United States for the past ten years has been 96 bushels. It is easily possible for a potato grower in Kentucky, with right conditions, to produce 200 bushels per acre. In some potato experiments conducted by the Kentucky Station as early as 1889, the average yield of the best varieties considerably exceeded 200 bushels per acre. The average farm price for potatoes for the past ten years in Kentucky has been 65 cents per bushel. A yield of 200 bushels at 65 cents per bushel would bring $130, or a net profit of $80 over the cost of production. With modern potato machinery, one man and team can grow and handle at least 20 acres of potatoes, except at digging time, when some extra help would be needed.

In many parts of Kentucky the labor problem makes it difficult to grow tobacco in competition with general farming. With machinery for cutting potato seed, and the horse-power implements for planting and digging, it is the opinion of the writer that the potato crop fits better into the labor system of the farm than tobacco. The potato crop also requires less labor per acre than the tobacco crop; draws no heavier on the fertility of the soil; demands less child labor, and provides a splendid money crop early in the season.

The soil best adapted to potatoes is a sandy loam. River and creek bottom lands when well drained are very suitable. The Kentucky clay loams, when well supplied with humus, are good for this crop. The best preparation for the early crop of potatoes is made by plowing under, in the fall, red clover or some other legume crop, which in Pay When Well.

We pay our doctors when we are sick, that is, most of us do. The Chinese seem to have the better of us in that, they only pay the doctor when they are well. When the patient becomes sick the doctor's pay stops. As soon as the emperor is sick it is a notification to his physicians that their salary is cut off until he is perfectly well again. The passionate zeal with which the regulars go to work to get his majesty back where their salaries will begin again is said to be something astounding. The result is that the emperor is about the healthiest man standing on this planet, and his physicians seldom lose a day's salary.

A NEW LIVE-STOCK EXCHANGE AT EXPERIMENT STATION

Inquiries have been so frequently made at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station for information regarding where live stock of various classes could be bought and also inquiries for purchasers have been so numerous that the Extension Department of the Experiment Station has made arrangements to conduct a live stock exchange, or in other words a medium through which live stock of all classes can be bought and sold by the farmers of the state.

The plan is for any one who has stock to sell to make that fact known to the Experiment Station, giving an accurate description of each animal offered for sale, the price asked, etc.

It must be clearly understood that the station assumes no responsibility for the results of a transaction, either as regards the stock being as represented or as regards the reliability of the purchaser. The sole function of the station will be to put prospective buyers and sellers in communication with each other, leaving them to make their own transactions on their own responsibility. The station will make no charge for its services.

INFECTED WITH LEAF SPOTS.

Some fields of alfalfa are infested with leaf spots. The symptoms of this disease are small brown or blackish spots on the upper surfaces of the leaves, which spread and cause leaves to wither, turn brown and die. The effects are likely to show at the season of the year when healthy alfalfa makes a prompt growth, while badly injured fail to start, or show an unhealthy appearance of blight.

When stock that have been listed with this exchange have been disposed of by any means, the one who originally listed them will be required to notify the station, otherwise he will not be allowed to list stock thereafter. The proposed exchange will handle horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep and swine.

Communications with this department should be frequent, as permanent advertisement is not the object of the exchange, but rather the selling of certain individual animals listed as described.

In case this service works satisfactorily, it is hoped later to add a department for the exchange of implements and sundry appliances, also to act as a medium for getting prospective tenants and landlords together. Nearly every profession and industry except farming have effective working organizations, these being local, county and state, or even nation-wide. Any agency that will facilitate the prompt exchange of live stock and other farm necessities should be a great convenience to the farming public. The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station is the best servant of the Kentucky farmer, and, if rightly used, he can get more assistance there than from any other source.

It is known, but this bulletin is published to warn farmers of the danger of using alfalfa from infested fields to inoculate others. Such soil is likely to convey the fungus, and is likely to convey other pests as well, including weeds. If soil is used, one should first make sure that the land from which it is taken is not infested with diseases or pests to which alfalfa is subject. The safest way to inoculate is to apply pure cultures to the seeds. Such cultures may now be obtained from the Division of Entomology and Botany of the Experiment Station.

KENTUCKY AGRICULTURE

Experiment Station to Become Clearing House for Kentucky Farmers and Breeders.

At least one branch of Kentucky's government is seeking to widen the scope of its usefulness to the citizens of the state who make it a possibility. The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station in a recently issued circular, makes the announcement that "it is the first servant of the Kentucky farmer, and if rightly used, he can get more assistance than from any other source, and to this end they have announced that the station is at the service of the farmers and breeders of the state to facilitate the buying and selling of live stock, and to establish a live stock exchange for the purpose of placing prospective buyers and sellers in closer touch with each other. The station will list horses, mules, beef cattle, sheep, hogs, etc. No charge will be made for this service, the only requirement being that you notify the station of what you have to dispose of giving an accurate description as to age, quality and other necessary particulars. Together with the price asked and supplementing this with your name and address. The station of course acts only as a medium of disseminating the information and accepts no responsibility in the matter, the buyer and seller getting together and doing business with each other, the station simply acting as a medium of information.

Should this laudable effort upon the part of the Agricultural Station prove a success, it contemplates widening the scope of its operations to include the buying and exchanging of agricultural implements and other farm necessities, the securing of tenants for landlords, and locations for tenants, and in fact making itself generally useful to the farmers of the state.

The station is also doing a very valuable and well calculated to be a very useful work by compiling a directory of Kentucky breeders, which is to be published in the near future.

County Improvement.

No man who was over Owen fifteen years ago and goes over it again today can't find the vast improvement of his farm lands, with but few exceptions there has been a wonderful change where once you saw barren fields of rock and ravines now you see blue grass, clovers and meadows. The county is fast becoming one of the best stock growing sections in the world. Cattle, sheep and hogs take the lead with some attention being paid to mules and saddle horses. The farms are being fenced, new feed barns are being erected and soon every farm with as much as thirty acres will have from one to three sides of wire fence. Cattle will be shipped out at all seasons of the year.

Every farmer thinks more of his manure and clover crops than ever before and the farms have been cut up into small fields for hog and cattle grazing.

The farmer is getting away from the tobacco and in ten years only very small fields will be raised and it will not be considered the only money crop. Old fields long since thrown out have been reclaimed in the last few years and fence rows and hollows cleaned and sown in grass. Indeed there is no better county in the state than the good county of Owen.—Democrat.

APRIL.

In the spring a nation's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of war, at least so far as this American nation is concerned, this country has usually managed to get into action about the time the sap is running up the trees and the farmers are putting in their vegetables and tubers. The French and Indian trouble started in April 1754, although the clash at Great Meadows did not come until the next month. The Revolutionary war—if one ignores the 1776 claims of the battle of Alamogordo to the distinction—was fought in April 1775, 1776. The Revolutionary war ended, by the way, April 21, 1783. The Black Hawk war was also an April proposition and lasted eighteen months. The Second Creek Indian war really began in April, although the first blood was shed on May 5, 1836. The war with Mexico began April 24, 1846, and the civil war also began in April, the first bloodshed being in Baltimore on the anniversary of the battle of Lexington. That war also ended in April. In April, 1893 this country entered on its war with Spain, and now, April of the year of our Lord, 1914, we again talked of warring on—the hordes to the south of us.

Problem in Higher Mathematics.

A defeated candidate for a seat in the Arkansas Legislature has presented the first puzzle of its kind ever cast to the attention of men or angels. He does not know how to make a return of his election expenses, because he came out ahead.

According to his tale, he started out on a broken-down horse and two dollars in cash, swapped horses eleven times and returned home with eighty dollars and riding a good Missouri mule. Now he wants to know whether to swear he lost or won.

History teaches us that other hopeless candidates have done even better than the Arkansas man. But they were invariably winners. In the presence of a winning loser, arithmetic is helpless and even algebra lame.

We respectfully pass the problem of correctly making out the man's campaign expense account to the astronomers.—Ex.

If it had not been for the knockers the Louisville & Nashville railroad would have been running through Danville and the town would have had a population of 10,000 people.—Danville Advocate.

Munch damage by lightning last week is reported from various parts of Kentucky, several houses and barns have been destroyed. In Cumberland county a young woman was killed and her father fatally injured.

T. C. Taylor has the record for fancy priced hogs. He shipped this week a Duroc boar to Illinois, which he sold for $150. This hog brought the highest price of any ever shipped from the county.—Campbellsville Enquirer.

The State Insurance Department is renewing the certificates of authority to do business in Kentucky of all companies whose financial rating is good, including such as have given notice of their intention to cease writing policies in Kentucky.

Estill county is now 105 years old. The wheels of progress are stuck in the mud, and developments are retarded or entirely stopped throughout the greater part of the county simply because we have not seen the need of some money and construct some real roads.—Irvine Sun.

A large stone crusher arrived here Tuesday and went to work on the farm of Geo. Berger near town. The stone will be crushed very fine and used on the land for fertilizer. It is said that many of our farmers are arranging to follow this plan. It will restore wornout and tired land quicker than anything else.—Falmouth Outlook.

Speaking of old things. Col. W. L. Crabb has a clock that has a most interesting history—a history, too, that makes it very valuable. This clock was brought to Kentucky by Col. Callaway, who it will be remembered, was a companion of Daniel Boone and a conspicuous character in pioneer times in Kentucky.—Emmence News.

L. B. Brown, colored, one of our subscribers, was in town last Saturday and came into our office to show us a fiddle which he made from a piece of timber and a cigar box. Like calls a cigar box fiddle. And while here he demonstrated that he could make splendid music with the thing, looking "music box."—La Center Advance.

In the breach of peace cases between James Ware and Robt. Beckett in the Quarterly court last week an unusual verdict was rendered by the jury. Both were found guilty of breach of peace, with a fine of $1 and costs for Mr. Beckett and $5 and costs for Mr. Ware. The verdict including a recommendation that both defendants attend Sunday school.—Flemingsburg Gazette.

Monday afternoon a buggy started on the side of the street near Rain & Sheeler's undertaking establishment was struck by a strong gust of wind and started down the incline toward Main street, in the meantime "keeping in the middle of the road." It was under considerable headway when it straddled a post in front of F. M. Young's store. A shaft struck the cement pavement and was shattered.—Mt. Olivet Tribune-Democrat.

Charles McGee, an enterprising citizen of Wisemantown, is apparently paying no attention to all this talk about building turnpikes over the county by bond issues and State aid, but with shovel and hoe and a tenacity of purpose in his eyes, he is busy clearing away wood and saw nothing, he is building a road along his premises that, when completed, will enable our road engineer take to the woods.—Irvine Tribune.

The Hungarian quail is evidently a pest of some kind here, and it is to be hoped that it will meet a better fate than the supply of Ring-necked Pheasants and quail which this county has about seven or eight years ago. The Warren County Fish and Game Protective Association bought a number of these birds and released them on farms where they would be most likely protected. For a year or two the birds could be seen and they were much appreciated, but they suddenly disappeared. Whether they fell before the aim of the pot-hunter or emigrated to another climate is not definitely known.—Bowling Green Messenger.

After Kentucky Coal Lands.

Evansville, Ind.—That he intends to take a lease on 400,000 acres of coal land in Western and Central Kentucky for an English syndicate was the statement today of J. H. Coupland, of London, England, who for several days past has been taking options on coal lands in Kentucky near this city.

It is believed the syndicate he represents intends to enter into active competition with the Deep Water Coal Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., which recently took options on coal properties in Western Kentucky. Mr. Coupland says the syndicate he represents is prepared to spend $20,000,000 in the development of Western Kentucky. He says the coal will be shipped from here by river to New Orleans, bound for South American ports.

The High Bred Percheron Stallion Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1914 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. I retain on colt until season money is paid.

DESCRIPTION & EDIGREE. PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs. and is 17 hands high. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

Prince Olsen was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Oleson, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., and from whom he was purchased by me, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olsen was a high bred registered Percheron mare.

TWO FINE YOUNG JACKS, Also as the same and under the same conditions I will offer for public service my two fine breeding jacks.

BEN is a black Jack with neatly points, 7 years old, 15 1/2 hands high, large bone and big body, very young ear, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Ky. His jacks are quick sellers and several have been sold at $25 at weaning time. His service fee will be $10.00.

DEWEY

is another fine Jack, 5 years old and has a brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both Jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Come and see them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

JOSEPH READNOUR,
Walton, Ky.

Plutarch 8183

Will make the season of 1914 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1913 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at my stable at $8.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is five years old, 15 1/2 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season.

No business done on Sunday.

DAIRY

USE FOUND FOR BUTTERMILK

Since It Results In Utilization of Large Quantities of Waste is Worthy of Mention.

In the recent bulletin from the Wisconsin experiment station the making of cheese from buttermilk is pretty fully described, says Hoard's Dairyman. This caused somewhat of a stir in the dairy world, and since it results in the utilization of large quantities of buttermilk wasted every year it is well worthy of consideration. It makes a very acceptable cheese sandwich and the profit in the enterprise will depend entirely upon whether or not a steady market can be developed for it. Being a perishable product, very much like cottage cheese, it will keep only a few days. The fact of the matter is there is very little difference between buttermilk cheese and cottage cheese, except that the former has a buttermilk flavor.

Packing and selling this cheese requires special attention, since the public is not familiar with the product. It may be shipped in butter tubs and retailed in paper pails or other small packages. It will keep for a week or ten days in a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees, but it can be kept longer if the temperature is lowered to 32 degrees or below. It has been sold at 3 to 5 cents a pound at the factory and retailed at 7 to 12 1/2 cents. If color is desired this may be secured by adding cheese coloring as used in cheddar cheese.

The making of this buttermilk cheese is inexpensive, as the drainage racks, syphons, etc., can be constructed by anyone. When only a very small amount is desired the ordinary utensils of a creamery can be utilized.

DAIRY COW PAR EXCELLENCE

Enormous Yields of Milk Are Quite the Rule Among Good Animals of This Breed.

The Shorthorn, particularly the Lincoln Red, is in my experience, the dairy cow par excellence. Enormous yields of milk are quite the rule among good cows of this breed. True, the milk is not over-rich in butterfat, but it is sufficiently rich to make the cow a large yielder of butter. It is not uncommon for Shorthorns to milk over 1,000 gallons in a year, but putting the yield at 800 gallons, or 4 per cent milk, we get 240 pounds of butter, while a cow yielding 500 gallons of 4 per cent milk gives a little over 200 pounds of butter.

Shorthorns' milk is suitable for any purpose that Ayrshire butter can be turned to. When the Shorthorn has done with the dairy she can be probably fattened to a good carcass of beef, which is more than can be said of the dairy breeds, except the Dexter.

DAIRY NOTES

Never feed moldy food of any kind to cows. Don't fool away time and money by using a scrub sire.

Every man can attribute a part of his existence to milk.

Milk houses are built neither for men roasts nor tool sheds.

City folks are expecting stores to sell butter by the carat soon.

The best milker in the herd doesn't always show the biggest udder.

A cow will never do her best unless she has perfect confidence in you.

It costs less to haul butter or cream to market than any other farm crop.

Veal is high, but not high enough to warrant sacrificing a promising heifer calf.

The dairyman with a good well and windmill can supply his own refrigerator.

There is no much play about dairying, but no other job pays better for hard work.

A good sire is half the herd, but a scrub bull comes nearer to being the whole herd.

The fall cow gives her largest flow of milk and yields her butter-fat when prices are highest.

Cow barns should have plenty of light, and it should come through windows, not cracks.

The only plausible excuse a dairyman can have for not testing his cows is that his wife objects to it.

Selling butter or cream from the farm robs the soil of less fertility than does any other farm product.

If a boss cow is always nagging at a timid staminate, the results are disastrous to the timid, sensitive cow.

NOTES from MEADOWBROOK FARM

By William Pitt

Keep the stable clean.

Give the hens clean nests.

Milk is susceptible to odors.

Give vegetables plenty of room.

Nature uses no judgment in the production of fruit.

When the small weeds are killed there will be no big ones.

Ducks will not do well when confined. Turn 'em loose if possible.

Disinfecting the incubator between hatches is a precaution worth taking.

Apple scab is caused by a fungus known scientifically as Venturia noma.

Musty oats make dull, lifeless looking coats on the horses which eat them.

Musty oats make dull, lifeless looking coats on the horses which eat them.

"Setting" milk in pans means a loss of anywhere from 10 to 50 per cent of the cream.

Well-drained yards and pens will help to keep the hogs more thrifty and profitable.

The ground for sweet clover seed should be prepared the same as for alfalfa or clover.

The irritation caused by a poor driver lessens the ability of a good horse to do its best work.

More turkeys are injured by over-feeding than wrong feeding. Feed often but little at a time.

Cockerles intended for caponizing should have no food for about 24 hours previous to the operation.

Buffalo berry, Mayday tree and the flowering currant are three plants that flowered early this season.

Let the dairy heifer have plenty of growth before breeding—two years old is better than eighteen months.

A pleasant, cheerful, fearless disposition is a valuable quality in a roadster or a general purpose horse.

Fill in about the houses and barn wherever there are low, wet places. No matter what the weather, go dry shod.

There is one thing certain, you can't cure a kicking cow by beating her with the milking stool or abusing her in any way.

Soil taken from a well-established alfalfa field and spread on land to be sown to alfalfa is a very good way to inoculate it.

The sweet cherry is the only tree fruit that can be universally set out in the fall successfully and be better than for spring setting.

A restless hen will never answer to use as a hatchery agent in the season, when steady warmth is an imperative condition of success.

Stopping the churn at the right time has a good deal to do with making good butter. Stop when the grains are about the size of wheat kernels.

The milk producers knocked a home run in their war for a better price. Now let's see them knock a few harder cows into the butcher shop.

When wooden or concrete floors are used sufficient bedding should be supplied so that the cows may rest in comfort and that surface dampness will be absorbed.

While lambing is progressing, grade the lambs according to their age, as the little fellows will get the worst of it if they have to run with their bigger relatives.

Back end to is the way to hitch a horse when the wind is blowing. When they are loose so they can do so they like you never saw a horse stand facing a storm.

The growing pigs may be helped along in two ways: one is by feeding sows liberally on those feeds that tend to produce milk, and the other is by giving the pigs clean food of the right kind, such as clover and alfalfa.

From the day the pigs are dropped the sow is nothing less than a milk machine and in order to keep her up to full capacity she must be supplied with plenty of digestible, milk-producing feed. It is a good plan to boil her ground grain and feed in the form of slops for a few days.

Tag your shipments.

Low fruit trees are best.

Good horses are in demand.

Keep eggs in a cool, dry place.

Regular milking improves the cow.

It pays to have good stock water all the year round.

One way to increase the profits of your farm is to build a silo.

Movable, separate nest boxes, with wire bottoms, are easy to clean.

Never feed little chicks wet, sloppy food. It is bad enough for mature stock.

Pure food judiciously given is the only material the hardy, working hen needs.

The currant bush is a great producer and it seldom fails to yield a good crop.

Split carrots, turnips, beets, etc., in two, and allow the hens to pick at them at will.

The horse cannot rest while fighting flies. Better shade or screen the barn windows.

Whenever a farmer gets the auto fever he at once becomes a good-road preacher.

The prime purpose of fruit trees in their natural conditions is to reproduce their kind.

Alfalfa can be cut as soon as the new growth is well started from the crown of the plant.

Two or three times a week rub a kerosene rag over the horses' legs to kill the bot fly eggs.

Seeding alfalfa after early potatoes has proved the most satisfactory method at the Ohio station.

Cheese may be kept moist and free from mold by wrapping in a cloth moistened with vinegar.

The clover-seed crop depends very largely upon the conditions of the ground and the weather.

To kill Canadian thistle in a field put the field in some cultivated crop and keep the weeds down.

In vineyard grape vines are planted nine feet apart in the row with the rows eight to ten feet apart.

The boy who can test milk is a bigger hero than the hired man with an endless string of dirty stories.

Hogs are mortgage lenders, but if allowed to "root hog or die" the lifting will not be in race with airships.

Study your birds closely and learn their habits. The better you know them the better success you will have.

If from a well-nourished dam and a healthy strain of animals the pigs rarely need attention at farrowing time.

There is no stock about the farm that will not eat good silage. If care is exercised working horses may be fed on silage.

Sheep are such sensitive creatures that little things in care and feed make for success or failure, no matter what the breed.

When setting any of the bush fruits the top should be pruned to correspond to the root pruning the plant gets in transplanting.

The farmer often makes a mistake by trying to do too much. Till less ground and cultivate it better and there will be more profit in it.

As a rule the helpers calving at about two years old develop milking tendencies which grow with her strength and strengthen with her strength.

Properly managed, the silo will increase the amount of milk that can be produced upon the farm and will also aid to cut down the cost of production.

Sheep that get lazy and don't want to go round are apt to be sick. Make them exercise, if only to go a half mile to get a drink. Better for them every way.

It is a good plan to have a grazing lot of new green crop near the barn, where the cows may pick at night. It helps to keep up the milk flow during the hot months.

While more good dairy cows will be found among the dairy breeds than anywhere else, the mere fact that a cow belongs to a dairy breed is not proof positive that she is a good dairy cow.

Have a truck patch for the bulk of keeping the hog where a profit is to be made from the crop of potatoes, sweet potatoes, sweet corn, etc., as more than two rows of each of these take up too much room in the regular kitchen garden.

When a lover of horses goes into a man's barnyard and the horses all come up and nose him, and ask to be petted, he knows what sort of a man owns them. When they all crowd toward the other side of the lot, he also knows what to think of the owner.

Notice to Stock Owners.

All persons permitting their stock to run at large in the Burlington, Bullittsville, Constance, Florence, Hamilton and Union precincts are openly violating the law and are subject to a fine of not less than five ($5.00) nor more than twenty-five ($25.00) dollars for each offense. Such persons are liable for all damages done by their stock, whether the party damaged has their property inclosed or not, and the person so damaged has a lien on such stock, for the amount thereof. It is the duty of the sheriff, constable or town marshal when they see stock running at large or are notified that such is the case to at once impound such stock and the owner thereof shall pay the officer so doing one ($1.00) dollar per head and the cost of feeding and taking care of such stock, and the officer has a lien on such stock for his fees and expenses. It is the sheriff's duty and he will rigidly enforce this law when he sees stock running at large or complaint is made to him. This notice is given as a last warning on account of the numerous complaints lately made to this office. The attention of the next grand jury will be called to this matter. W. D. CROPPER, S. B. C.

HORSE TROUGH IS SANITARY

Device Shown in Illustration Will Provide Horse With Clean and Individual Fountain.

(By F. W. FITZPATRICK, in the Scientific American.)

It has been found that the horse trough has proven a prolific means of carrying infection. Hundreds of horses have taken glanders and all sorts of things that mean death. Not that the horses touch the iron part of the trough and leave germs there, but simply that a healthy horse drinks immediately after a diseased one and gets the germs, spume, etc., left in the water by the other. The idea suggests itself that the horse be given a hygienic drinking fountain, as is provided for us humans. We can't expect a horse to put his mouth over a little stream shooting in the air, but the device that is roughly sketched herein will do the trick of giving the horse an individual drinking fountain. A is a drinking fount of sufficient size to hold a normal drink for a horse, and set high or low as deemed best for checked or unchecked horses. It is set upon a standard G that serves as a waste pipe. Inside of this is a supply pipe E and a stopper D. H is perforated drains around a fountain to carry off the water that is sloped over, and D is a little dog fount that simply catches the waste from the overflow above. At some point near the fountain, where a horse has to place his front feet in order to drink from the fountain, would be a platform device J, not unlike a scale platform. Normally, the stopper C is in position D and the fount is dry. By a simple system of levers, etc., when a horse approaches to drink he is bound to get his front feet on J (that yields sufficiently to operate the mechanism, but not enough to bother or fuss a horse) which closes down stopper C and opens the valve in E, and as long as he stands there that valve is open and the water is running. When he leaves that position the water is closed off, the stopper rises, and the fount is empty of any residue water. Each horse gets a drink of fresh, clean water and the tank is flushed after every drink. The saving of water over the continuous running tank is also an item in its favor. Plus which, it is an anti-freezing fountain. The water valve can be, as in most hydrants, well below freezing and a self-drainer; and there being no water left in the tank, it is a fount that can be kept in operation all winter. And it would be a simple enough matter to so protect J that that mechanism wouldn't necessarily fill with water and freeze.

Sanitary Horse Trough.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

Rape is a valuable forage plant for hogs.
Red clover makes an excellent pasture for hogs.
An old straw pile is not the worst kind of winter hog pen.
In shipping lambs, keep the culms at home or sell to local buyers.
Keep a record of each sow to determine her worth as a breeder.
Never kill a pig for market or home consumption until it is ripe or fit.
Hogs are among the most cleanly animals if they are given a fair chance.
Avoid an excessive amount of forage that has been more or less affected by frost.
Handle the young boar carefully. Teach him to obey the word, and to walk ahead of you.
Oil meal is greatly relished by lambs and helps greatly in the fine finish obtained in feeding.
When outdoor exercise and sunshine are lacking, the pig should have a wide variety of foods.
Arrange for plenty of yard room, and on all fair days keep the sheep in the open air as much as possible.
Fattening sheep must be made to eat as much as possible, but must never be made to turn from their food.
The shoeing of the farm horses should receive the same attention that is given the road horse or the trotter.
It is a great mistake to keep sheep in a warm pen in winter. Their fleece protects them, and if they are kept dry they will require nothing else.
Corn gruel is not suitable for Hild pigs. They should have new milk and lime water and gradually this might be thickened with middlings, oatmeal and flaxseed meal.

VALUE OF PROPER SPELLING

Attribute Highly Valued in Commercial Life, and is a Sense to Be Developed.

Good spelling and intelligent punctuation are the accomplishments that keep many gray-haired women drawing good salaries as stenographers in downtown offices. The manager of a typewriting office from which are sent hundreds of stenographers makes no secret of the fact that good spellers are scarce.

"We had a customer come in the other day," said the manager, "who had evidently had a run of hard luck in the spelling line. He wanted a woman who could spell. 'No matter if she's cross-eyed and has a hunch on her back,' he said, 'if she can spell and write an intelligent letter.' While this was a rather extreme case it shows that employers are beginning to grow impatient over the careless spelling of today."

Another office sending out many stenographers has a series of test letters prepared especially with spelling catches for the unwary. Common words, famous as pitfalls for careless spellers, are strewn throughout these specimen letters. Fully half the applicants put an extra e in separate; in many cases the e before the last syllable in noticeable is missing, while the correct placing of the l's in the word parallel reduces many of the applicants to a state of discouragement.

"Good spelling is a pretty sure sign of mental alertness," said a business man with several offices and many stenographers. "I find that if one of our stenographers is naturally a good speller she is interested in the correct spelling and use of new words that come to her attention in reading or in dictation. Now as a matter of fact it is no small job to keep up with the spelling of the hundreds of new words."

"Our oldest stenographer and our best speller keeps on her desk a little book not more than an inch thick, but it has more first aids to poor spellers than anything I've ever seen. She doesn't use it much, but everybody else does."—Chicago Record-Herald.

UNDERSTOOD ALL THE REST

On Only One Comparatively Unimportant Point Was the Juror at Fault.

It quite often happens that in addressing a jury, the lawyers will deliver their remarks to the one member who seems to them the most intelligent. "They consider that by so doing they can impress him and his influence upon the other members will be valuable."

In a recent case, all the testimony had been taken, the lawyers had summed up and the judge had charged the jury, when the juror who appeared the most intelligent, and to whom both counsel had made their impassioned appeal, arose, and stated that he wished the court to give him some information.

"I have been bothered a great deal," he said, "about two words the lawyers have been using all the time."

"What are they?" asked the court, expecting to be called upon to explain the meaning of some words like "res inter alios acta."

"Why, the words that I don't know the meaning of," said the juror, "are plaintiff and defendant."—Exchange.

An Improving World.

A somewhat old-fashioned Bostonian who more than a score of years ago was very prominent in public life remarked recently: "I have observed with interest quite a change in the personal habits of men during the past 25 years. It used to be very common to see business and professional men, as well as those in public life and holding official positions, wearing silk hats and Prince Albert coats every day in the week, and if they smoked at all they smoked cigars. Nowadays silk hats are rarely seen on week days downtown, anyway, and cigarette smoking seems to be quite the thing. do not think the new fashions are quite so dignified or manly as the old, but on the whole I am convinced the world is growing better all the time."

Horse's Tobacco Habit Is Expensive.

A Beverly teamster is lamenting the fact that his horse has acquired the tobacco habit and he is wondering if his employer would "stand for" an expensive account.

The horse, which started in one the habit by taking an occasional nibble of "fine cut," now expects a plug a day and the driver says the animal will "loaf on the job" unless he receives that tobacco.

The habit has become an expensive one for the driver, and he declares it has reached a point where he must do one of two things, quit using tobacco himself or get "the boss" to advance money for the horse's share.—Boston Post.

"Rabbit Drives" Advocated.

The western fur dealer, the coyote, and a bounty is offered for its pelt; the result is that the coyotes have greatly diminished. But, says the Portland Oregonian, the killing of the coyotes has resulted in a great increase of rabbits; many experiments have been made to diminish their number by inoculating them with disease, but without satisfactory results. Rabbit "drives" are the only sure remedy; 18,000 jack rabbits were killed in one county in Oregon in this year last winter.

That You Save Money

In buying new WHEELS is because the repairing costs nearly as much and sometimes more than new wheels. Here is an example: A customer wanted new rims and new tires on his wheels. The cost of this work is at least $10.00 and the price of spokes added to it. I sold that man four good, NEW wheels for $8.00. Putting shaft in a buggy costs you sometimes $2.00. I sell you a complete, new, well ironed shaft for $2.50 to $3.75; also good ironed Buggy and Spring Wagon poles for $4.75 and $4.50.

This material sold twice as high five years ago, but automobiles cause these low prices. Come and look at the wheels.

The Strength of "Thornhill" Skeins and Axles Explained

Note at the bottom of this advertisement, the difference between the types of skeins.

One, the old-way, gives a natural breaking point, where iron stops and wood begins.

The other, the "Thornhill" way, shows the long sleeve malleable skin non-breakable.

The long sleeve of malleable iron extends underneath the axle strengthening it and distributing the strain. There is no weak part.

This banishes, forever, the old time weakness of wagons.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce Hon. A. B. Rouse as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Sixth Congressional District, subject to the action of the Democratic party at the Primary Election, Saturday, August 1, 1914.

(Copyright, by McClure Syndicate.)

Weeds grow despite dry weather.

Next Saturday is Decoration Day.

Good old summer time is here again.

Burlington will now drop back into the old groove.

The cool man has been succeeded by the ice man.

The dry weather is cutting short the hay crop.

Indications point to a large blackberry crop this year.

The Burlington cooks have been on the hustle this week.

Maple trees about town have shed a bountiful crop of seeds.

A little whitewash adds greatly to the appearance of the premises.

A new auto curtain found near town awaits the owner—at this office.

The dust on the two main streets in Burlington is something terrible.

Indications are that the poor man's fruit crop will be large this year.

Some of the growers are becoming anxious for a good tobacco season.

Fourteen automobiles are owned in the town of Burlington and still they come.

B. B. Hume sold and delivered to M. L. Riddell, last Thursday, a new Ford auto.

The crop of dust on the streets in Burlington is far in excess of any in past years.

Elder Currey will preach at Mt. Pleasant church next Sunday morning at the usual hour.

The large locust bloom is affording honey bees a splendid opportunity to fill their hives.

Peter Hager, of East Bend, began eating home grown new Irish potatoes Wednesday of last week.

The farmers have about caught up with their work and about all the corn has been planted the past two weeks.

There were two funerals in Burlington last Thursday. D. M. Snyder's in the forenoon and Roy Kirkpatrick's in the afternoon.

Gov. McCreary says he will not resign that he may be appointed United States Senator by Lieutenant Governor McDermott, who would succeed him.

From this distance it looks like there will be several candidates for the Republican nomination for U. S. Senator at the coming August primary election.

Owen Blankenbaker caught a five pound German carp in lower Gunpowder creek one day last week. If there are any fish in the creek he is sure to get his share.

W. L. Kirkpatrick made a trip in his auto last Saturday that convinced him he needs an air ship instead if he intends covering the same route again other than on foot.

The sorrel horse belonging to George Blyth, which has been ill from some unknown cause for several weeks is now recovering rapidly. No one has been able to determine what ails the animal.

Of all his friends here only his father and mother knew that Cleveland Snyder was married last December. The young man and his wife have the best wishes of a host of friends here where he was raised.

The awful dust the past few days has increased the desire for old streets in Burlington. The heavy traffic of the past winter, combined with hundreds of automobiles, makes the dust almost unbearable.

Grover Snyder, who has been operating a creamery at Butler, Pendleton county for some time, will be V. O. Key's successor at the Burlington creamery. He and his wife will be gladly received back at their old home.

BY HARD WORK

Congressman Rouse Has Made Himself Popular With the Rank and File of the Party.

Probabilities Are He Will Have No Opposition at the Primary.

In this issue appears the announcement of Hon. A. B. Rouse as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the Sixth Congressional District, composed of the counties of Boone, Carroll, Campbell, Grant, Gallatin, Kenton, Pendleton and Trimble counties.

Having been a hard worker and looking after the interest of the district closely Mr. Rouse has succeeded in maintaining his popularity with the rank and file of the

A Good Entertainment.

The entertainment given by the Literary Society of the Boone County High School last Saturday night drew a large crowd and the efforts of the young people to entertain were eminently successful. "Lost: A Chaperone" is an interesting drama and it is hard to decide which of the young ladies and young men excelled in the very successful presentation of the characters they assumed.

Edward and the two acts Miss Carrie Porter recited "Shakespeare" in a very pleasing manner. Misses Mabel Riggs, of Erlanger, and Sadie Lee Snyder, of Florence, at the piano and Messrs. Chas. Fowler and Kirby Tanner with violins and Albert Conner with guitar furnished excellent music for the occasion.

An estimate made by the Ohio Station indicates that not over one-third of the cows in this state will produce 300 pounds or more of butterfat in one year, if reasonably fed. No dairyman should be satisfied unless the poorest cow in his herd is capable of producing at least 300 pounds of butterfat per annum. The estimate is further made that if the cows in this State were developed to this point, the value of the increased production of butterfat would amount to approximately $17,000,000 annually—an amount equal to the value of all butter now made in the State. What is true for the rest of the country.

Last Friday evening Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick went to the barn, where she heard a noise in the loft. She began an investigation and discovered a man lying on the hay. She called a neighbor lady who also took a peep into the intruder. Her husband was not at home and she telephoned for the sheriff to come and dislodge the intruder. Deputy Sheriff L. C. Conner hastened to the scene and, with fire and light in his eyes, he climbed into the loft to investigate. When he was in the hold there lay a large red sow apparently enjoying her surroundings, and now the puzzle is how did the sow get into the loft.

Free seed distribution has been having its ups and downs in Congress for a number of years, and finally the appropriation for sending out these seeds was stricken from the agricultural appropriation bill by the Senate a few days ago after a long and heated debate. Senator Kenyon, who comes from the rich agricultural state of Iowa, declared that he believed that the farmers object to the sending of seeds to them as a "cheap attempt to curry favor." The action was denounced as false economy by Senator Nathan McKim of the Lower House expect to be able to save this custom before the law is finally enacted.

B. B. Hume is doing more than anybody else to hasten the era of good roads in this county, and at the same time he is getting well paid for his labor. Every acre he sells in the county makes from one to half a dozen advocates of good roads and at the rate he is selling his land he is adding rapidly to the ranks of the good roads people.

The old-fashioned habit of New England whitewashing everything from the front fence to the stable at least once a year, was a most excellent one, and is one of the old time customs which the present generation might well adopt, aside from the beautiful appearance, it is also a great disinfectant.

Mrs. H. Clay Duncan, of Bullittsburg neighborhood, died last Saturday after an illness of several months. Funeral last Monday afternoon at Bullittsburg church, of which she had long been a member, Rev. Campbell officiating. Mrs. Duncan is survived by her husband and two grown daughters.

The United States Department of Agriculture has endorsed a method of curing eggs, and this prompts a contemporary to remark that the Postoffice Department would do well to devise a quicker method of curing Republican postmasters, who are essentially bad eggs.

The failure of Alexandria & Co., bankers in Paris, Bourbon county, last week, caught a large number of depositors, cleaning up the mess, and the result was a large number. It is the worst financial disaster that ever overtook that part of Kentucky.

Kreitcher, the Sedamsville livestock dealer, passed thru Burlington Friday morning with a considerable drove of cows and young calves. The car in on the East Bend road, and had evidently cleaned up a considerable territory somewhere.

The mail auto limped into town last Sunday, it having had a blowout of one of the front tires, which was removed and loader into the machine several miles out on the Florence pike. By careful driving the rim was not injured.

As has been customary for several years the Erlanger baseball team will spend next Saturday, Decoration Day, in Burlington and will play a game here, one before and one afternoon. Come out and see the games.

The Recorder is under obligation to Mrs. Abe Graves for several old copies of the Cincinnati Enquirer, some of them bearing dates in the early sixties when this country was engaged in the civil war.

B. B. Hume sold a five passenger Ford auto to John and Edward Rogers, of Bellevue, and Charles Goodridge, of Burlington. The first named two received their machines last Sunday.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Witnessed by Large Crowd at Library Hall Last Thursday Night.

The 1914 commencement of the Boone County High School is now numbered with events of the past, but it will be remembered as one of the biggest and best in the history of the school. The crowd in attendance at Library Hall, last Thursday night, to witness the exercises, was the largest ever present at a like occasion there in standing room could not be had.

It was about eight o'clock when the exercises began, and the students assigned to the several gradations were well rendered and showed depth of thorough and earnestness in preparation, and were well received by the audience.

Miss Mabel Riggs, of Erlanger, entertained the crowd with several beautiful and inspiring musical numbers on the piano, while Mrs. Bernard Gaines sang two beautiful solos.

After the program of the graduating class had been disposed of Prof. E. L. Dix and the graduates—eight in number, occupied chairs on the stage, forming a half circle. Supt. Riley and Prof. Rhodes also given seats of honor with the class.

Prof. McHenry Rhodes, of Lexington, was then introduced and in a short speech delivered the class address. His entire speech was full of many good things and it would require too much space to recount them here. Let it be sufficient to say that all who heard his address were well pleased. The presentation of the diplomas was dispensed with, in account, as Supt. Riley stated in his remarks, they had not been received from Frankfort. The benediction by Rev. E. C. Riley the exercises were closed.

Library Hall nor the stage there is large enough for graduation occasions.

Misses Sadie Lee Snyder and Osceola Castleman were recipients of many beautiful flowers.

The large crowd was a strong testimonial of the appreciation of the Boone County High School.

The evening was warm and the hall was so crowded as to detract considerably from the exercises.

Besides the parents of Misses Osceola Castleman and Sadie Lee Snyder several Florence people were noticed in the audience.

The parents of the several graduates were present to witness the exercises, and were pleased with the showing their children made.

The decoration of the stage was in keeping with the program in that no effort was made at display—except the very day subjects being presented.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hager, of East Bend, came up with their son, Reuben graduate. They were delighted with the progress Reuben has made in acquiring and education.

The subjects were out of the ordinary for commencements and required considerable labor in their preparation, but each of the young men and young women proved equal to the task.

The class address delivered by Prof. Rhodes was a gem. It was devoid of humor but was masterful, every sentence of which was the choicest of language, and rounded out as only a first-class orator knows how.

Several have been heard to say that they were very much annoyed during the delivery of the class address by persons who were talking in an undertone. It is strange that people sometimes so far forget themselves on occasions like this that Thursday night as to interrupt those near them.

Prof. Rhodes complimented the program for the evening in the highest of terms, saying it was nearest the ideal that he had ever seen, and that when he received a copy of it several weeks ago he had it manifolded and sent to many of the High schools in the State. He also sent a copy to a prominent educator in New York, who wrote back saying it approached the ideal and that he was so favorably impressed with it that he had it manifolded and sent to educators in eleven different Southern States. This was a compliment which Prof. Rhodes appreciated as do the patrons and pupils of the school, and is a great advertisement for the Boone County High School.

The Baccalaureate Sermon. The baccalaureate sermon delivered at the Universalist church last Sunday morning by Rev. S. S. Lappin, of Erlanger, was heard by a large congregation. Rev. Lappin preached from the text, "I press toward the mark for the prize the high calling of God in Christ Jesus"—Philippians 3:14. The course was a most practical and abounded with good advice to the old as well as to the young.

THE TOURNAMENT

Large Crowd in Attendance and Visitors Having a Good Time—Contests Close and Exciting.

The North Kentucky Graded School Tournament began its third annual session at the court house promptly on the last Monday evening with about 150 teachers and pupils in attendance.

About five p. m. the visitors began to arrive in automobiles with banners flying and to "yells" designating what particular school they represented. The committee on entertainment, who had already made assignments of homes, began the work on the list of names as they appeared on the program, met the visitors at the court house from where they were escorted to their places of entertainment. The work the committee had done was subjected to changes in only a few instances, and in a couple of hours the visitors were all located.

Shortly after eight o'clock the tournament was called to order in the large circuit court room by Prof. Dix, who introduced Prof. Lucy, of Independence, president of the Tournament, and Mr. L. A. address was brief but appropriate. When the exercises began the large court room was well filled and Walton gave an exhibit in Calisthenics and Folk Dance which received hearty applause. Of the several young ladies who were on the program for a solo, Miss Alberta Kelly of Burlington, only sang and she made a decided hit, surprising even her home people.

Four of the five entries in 5th and 6th grades reading responded, each reading the same selection. Each of the contestants appeared to have had a good knowledge of the others in some particular, and upon the whole they were pretty well matched.

When the male declamation was reached on the program, three of the four entries were ready for the start, the contestants and their selection being as follows: Griffin Chapman, Dry Ridge, The Old Fiddle; Wilford Mitchell, Erlanger, The Sermon on the Mount; Harold Crigler, Burlington, The Fish in the Spirit.

Mrs. A. B. Renaker at the piano, and Chas. Fowler and Kirby Tanner with violins and L. A. Conner with guitar furnished music for the evening.

The judges of the several contests were: Prof. Rott, Georgetown; Thomas Danville, Weaver, State University and Hunt, Berea. Medals were awarded as follows: Reading 5th to 6th grades—Rosa Gale, Erlanger, Gwendolin Goodridge, Burlington.

Male Declamation, Griffin Chapman, Dry Ridge, Harold Crigler, Burlington.

Second Year Algebra, Augustus Adams, Independence, Rachel Pottenger, Walton.

Solid Geometry, Elizabeth Taylor, Erlanger, Carl Anderson, Burlington.

It was impossible to obtain the few rewards omitted from the program, a revised list will appear next week. The Tournament still being in session.

The night sessions at the court house and the meetings were attended by large crowds, consequently the Recorder does not hesitate to announce the Tournament a grand success.

LIGHTNING PROTECTION.
Proper Methods of Protecting Buildings.

Protection from lightning is a subject that recurs with the frequency of an atmospheric electric disturbance, accompanied by the awe inspiring flashes of lightning, so common to this thunder country, there are few who have not desired the protection of a lightning proof shelter. The probability of obtaining such a shelter is really very slight but there is always a possibility of such an occurrence and also that the stroke might be attended by considerable violence; more than that, the building might take fire.

That lightning rods are a real protection for buildings from lightning has been proven so many times that their value is no longer questioned, but the possibility of obtaining a substantial data is so limited that definite rules for the establishment of the rods and conductors have never been formulated.

The formation of lightning is very imperfectly understood but experience with its vagaries and its tendency to follow the laws of high-tension electric currents has established a fairly good understanding of the methods of constructing lightning conductors for all ordinary buildings. It is very well known that lightning is the discharge of a large amount of electricity in a very short space of time and that it is apt to pass a passage to the earth is apt to be badly damaged, unless the vehicle happens to be a good conductor of electricity of sufficient size to transmit the amount of electric energy the flash contains; in which case it passes away doing no damage at all.

As a storm develops the electrically charged clouds pass over the earth and when the electrical intensity becomes great enough to break down the resistance of the intervening air, the resulting charge will pass into the earth by the most convenient path. This is commonly some high object of the landscape, a building a pole, tree or any other object that extends from the earth. If the object is a conductor of electricity and connected with the earth, the lightning will pass into the ground without the least damage being done but if it is not a good conductor, the havoc that is wrought in an instant is sometimes appalling.

Buildings with metallic roofs that are properly connected with the earth are far better protectors from lightning than could be given by rods. Buildings that are completely covered with sheet metal and well connected with the earth are practically lightning proof. Covered by this manner, buildings have been known to be repeatedly struck by lightning without the least damage. The sheet-iron garany, so common in the west, when well connected with the earth may be considered lightning proof. The ground connections mentioned above may be made of metal rods that extend well into the earth and securely fastened to the metallic covering of the building.

It must be remembered that the ground connection is a positive necessity and too much care cannot be exercised in its construction. The earth is the great reservoir of electrical energy and it is always a potential. In a discharge of lightning can be directed into the moist earth by a conductor, its energy is soon dissipated but the ground connection must be of considerable area and extend well into the moist earth. A piece of galvanized iron pipe driven into the ground seven or eight feet makes a good "ground." Large buildings must have two or more such "grounds." The connecting wires must be of good material and to the ground connections.

In the matter of conducting wires, the U. S. Weather Bureau in a bulletin on Lightning and Lightning Protection recommends a number three, galvanized iron wire as amply sufficient in size for ordinary lightning protection. If metallic downspouts are used as conductors the connections should be made, with the "grounds" with heavy copper conductors. These give a better protection than iron if the iron is kept covered to prevent it from rusting.

It is very important to remember the cause of damage by lightning because of the method of construction. If the fence wires are grounded the danger of this is increased. Ground wires may be made of ordinary fence wire and should be connected with each of the wires of the house and extend into the ground three feet. Such "grounds" should be made for each 100 feet of fence.—Prof. E. S. Keene, North Dakota Agricultural College.

PRIMARY LAW

Provisions of Measure Since Amendment Appear to be Source of Much Confusion.

As the time draws near when candidates who intend to go before the coming primaries must take the necessary steps to get their names on the ballot, a great deal of interest is being shown in the provisions of the compulsory primary law, several sections of which were amended by the recent General Assembly.

A great deal of confusion, it appears, exists in the minds of people generally as to the provisions of the measure, since its amendment; and some prospective candidates are in doubt as to the steps necessary to be taken in placing their names upon the ballot.

The most important alternation made in the Thompson-Eaton act, which became a law March 3, 1915, was the repeal of the sections which made it necessary for prospective candidates for nominations to file petitions with the signatures of a percentage of the electors in their district in order to have their names placed upon the ballot. Under the 1912 law it was necessary for county officers, for example, to get the signatures of three per cent of the electors in the county to their nominating petition.

The recent Legislature abolished this necessity. Under the law, as amended, in order to get his name on the candidate list, a candidate has to do is to file with the proper officer, the County Clerk, a "notification and declaration" setting forth his intention to eligible, and the affidavits of "two reputable electors, members of the same party," making oath to his qualifications for the office. The "notification" of the candidate and the affidavit of the two electors, who testify to his qualifications, will be furnished by the County Clerk.

Another important change in the law is an amendment to those sections which prescribe the qualifications of candidates and voters at primaries. Under the law as originally passed, the candidate was required to make oath that "I am a member of the political party and affiliated with it; and I supported its nominees at the last regular election."

As amended, the candidate is required to swear: "That I believe in the principles of said party, and intend to support its principles and policies, and vote for its nominees at the coming general election, and that I have affiliated with such party and that I supported its candidates at the last general election, or was prevented from doing so by reason of—"

Elsewhere shall be deemed to have affiliated with the party whose nominees he intends to cast his vote, if he voted against the nominee or nominees of such party at the last general election. At the close of this section, the law as amended adds: "The qualifications above prescribed shall apply to candidates and voters alike."

This is taken to mean that no candidate is eligible to get before a primary unless he supported all the candidates of his party at the last general election.

Section 2, of the original act, which provided for the nomination of candidates by the party, was stricken out, separate provisions being made for this in another bill passed during the session.

Another interesting amendment provides that the ballots used at primaries shall be numbered consecutively in the same manner that the stubs are numbered.

Other amendments adopted by the recent General Assembly simply make the act conform to the alterations already described.

Crop Conditions in the South.

The latest report as to cotton acreage planted shows an increase of upward of three per cent over last year, while conditions to date are much better, take the area sown, than it was at the same period of 1915.

The condition to-day of the cotton area, of course, cannot be accepted as a correct indicator of the crop for several climatic chances are before the planters, but take the cotton sections in their entirety it is much more favorable for results to have them so fine to start with. The area east of the Mississippi is in especially good condition, and it is from this region that the business men of Cincinnati derive the greatest patronage, therefore it is quite encouraging to note the really brilliant prospects for these Southern States with which we are so closely united in the bonds of interstate commerce.

Foreign advices, formulated after carefully considering the prospective demands of the various rice fields of the world, fix the actual consumption of our cotton during this present year at 15,200,000 bales, and say that a crop of 16,000,000 bales will be none in excess in order to have sufficient for contingent increases in the demand.

Sixteen million bales of cotton, if raised in the U. S. will not break cotton prices per pound below the figures now prevailing, but the exports of our surplus cotton is such a crop will bring the country a much larger sum of money than our exports of cotton produced last year, and last year's exports were the greatest in total value that ever were recorded in our favor.

Barring abnormal weather, the Southern agriculturists are again in position to realize immense returns from the products of their soil, and this is not only encouraging to the residents of the South, but to the merchants and manufacturers of the North and their employees, who know that Southern prosperity benefits all sections of the nation and creates a demand for the outputs of mills, shops and factories located in the states north of Mason and Dix's line.

The wheat fields of the West are said to be ready to produce abundantly, and this latest report from the Southern fields adds much hope to the business situation in the Union.

Young Corn and Cotton Should Be Harrowed.

The beneficial effect of a well prepared seed bed and the use of good seeds may be wholly or partially offset by improper insufficient cultivation is the advice of crop specialists of the Department of Agriculture.

Proper cultivation is an important factor in crop production. Cultivation should begin immediately after planting by running the section harrow or the weeder or harrow in the case of corn before the regular cultivators are used. Run diagonally across the rows with either of these implements using the section harrow with the teeth slanted backward with an angle of 45 degrees and repeat a week after at right angles with the first cultivation.

The use of the weeder or section harrow is strongly advised for the early cultivation of corn, cotton and many other crops. It is best to use the weeder on very loose or sandy soils while the section harrow is preferable on clay or buckshot soils. This early cultivation with the weeder or harrow destroys all young grass and weeds and leaves the soil in fine shape and the cotton ready for chopping or thinning.

The use of the section harrow for early cultivation is especially important in the South is comparatively recent but is rapidly becoming general. One of the greatest advantages of its use in addition to the excellent work done, is the extra amount of land that can be cultivated in a given time.

A Good Entertainment.

The entertainment given by the Literary Society of the Boone County High School last Saturday night drew a large crowd and the efforts of the young people to entertain were eminently successful. "Lost: A Chaperone" is an interesting drama and it is hard to decide which of the young ladies and young men excelled in the very successful presentation of the characters they assumed.

Between the two acts Miss Carrie Porter recited "Armeda" in a very pleasing manner. Misses Mabel Riggs, of Erlanger, and Sadie Lee Snyder, of Erlanger, at the piano and Messrs. Chas. Fowler and Klibb Tanner with violins and Albert Conner with guitar furnished excellent music for the occasion.

An estimate made by the Ohio Station indicates that not over one-third of the cows in that state will produce 300 pounds or more of butterfat in one year, if reasonably fed. No dairyman should be satisfied until the poorest cow in his herd is capable of producing at least 300 pounds of butterfat per annum. The estimate is further made that if all cows in the State were developed to this point, the value of the increased production of butterfat would amount to approximately $17,000,000 annually—an amount equal to the value of all butter now made in the State. What is true for the rest of the country.

Last Friday evening Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick went to the barn to hear a noise in the loft. She began an investigation and discovered a man lying on the hay. She called a neighbor lady who also took a peep and the intruder. Her husband was not at home and she telephoned for the sheriff to come and dislodge the intruder. Deputy Sheriff L. A. Conner hastened to the scene and, with fire and light in his eyes, he climbed into the loft to investigate the man, when he and his hold there lay a large red sow apparently enjoying her surroundings, and now the puzzle is how did the sow get into the loft.

Free seed distribution has been having its ups and downs in Congress for a number of years, and finally the appropriation for sending out these seeds was stricken from the agricultural appropriation bill by the Senate a few days ago, after a long debate. Senator Kenyon, who comes from the rich agricultural state of Iowa, declared that he believed that the farmers object to the sending of seeds to them as a "cheap attempt to curry favor." The action was denounced as false economy by Senator Hager. Members of the Lower House seemed to be able to save this custom before the law is finally enacted.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES

Witnessed by Large Crowd at Library Hall Last Thursday Night.

The 1914 commencement of the Boone County High School is now numbered with events of the past, but it will be remembered as one of the biggest and best in the history of the school. The crowd in attendance at Library Hall, last Thursday night, to witness the exercises, was the largest ever present at a like occasion there even standing room could not be had.

It was about eight o'clock when the exercises began, and the subjects assigned to the several graduates were well rendered and showed depth of thoroughness and earnestness in preparation, and were well received by the audience.

Miss Mabel Riggs, of Erlanger, entertained the crowd with several beautiful and inspiring musical numbers on the piano. While Mrs. Bernard Gaines sang two beautiful solos.

After the program of the graduating classes and the disposal of Prof. E. L. Dix and the graduates—eight in number, occupied chairs on the stage, forming a half circle. Supt. Riley and Prof. Rhodes also given seats of honor with the class.

Prof. McHenry Rhodes, of Lexington, was then introduced and in a short speech delivered the class address. His entire speech was full of many good things and it would require much space to recount them here. Let it be sufficient to say that all who heard him were well pleased.

The presentation of the diplomas was dispensed with on account, as Supt. Riley stated in his remarks, they had not been received from Frankfort. After the Benediction by Rev. E. C. Riley the exercises were closed.

Library Hall now the stage there is large enough for graduation occasions.

Misses Sadie Lee Snyder and Osceola Castleman were recipients of many beautiful flowers.

The large crowd was a strong testimonial of the appreciation of the Boone County High School.

The evening was warm and the hall was so crowded as to detract considerably from the exercises.

Besides the parents of Misses Osceola Castleman and Sadie Lee Snyder several Florence people were noticed in the audience.

The parents of the several graduates were present to witness the exercises, and were pleased with the showing their children made.

The decoration of the stage was in keeping with the program in that no effort was made to display anything but every day subjects being presented.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Hager, of East Bend, came up to see their son, Reuben graduate. They were delighted with the progress Reuben has made in acquiring and education.

The subjects were out of the ordinary for commencements and required considerable labor in their preparation, but each of the young men and young women proved equal to the task.

The class address delivered by Prof. Rhodes was a gem. It was devoid of humor but was masterful every sentence of which was the choicest of language, and rounded out as only a first-class orator knows how.

Several have been heard to say that they were very much annoyed during the delivery of the class address by persons who were talking in an undertone. It is strange that people sometimes so far forget themselves on occasions like that of last Thursday night as to interrupt those near them.

Prof. Rhodes complimented the program for the evening in the highest of terms, saying it was nearest the ideal that he had ever seen. He said that he had a copy of it several weeks ago he had it manifolded and sent to many of the High schools in the State. He also sent a copy to a prominent educator in New York, who wrote back saying it approached the ideal and that he was so favorably impressed with it that he had it manifolded and sent to educators in eleven different Southern States. This was a compliment which Prof. Rhodes appreciated as do the patrons and pupils of the school, and is a great advertisement for the Boone County High School.

The Baccalaureate Sermon.

The baccalaureate sermon delivered at the Universalist church last Sunday morning by Rev. S. S. Lippin, of Erlanger, was heard by a large congregation. Rev. Lippin preached from the text, "I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." He was a fine speaker and his course was along practical lines and abounded with good advice to the old as well as to the young people present. Rev. Lippin graduated from the Boone County High School.

Petit-Horton.

Albert Petit, 24, son of Samuel Petit who lives down on Gunpowder creek, and Miss Eunice Horton, 20, of Locust Grove neighborhood, were married last Saturday afternoon at the home of Rev. Edgar Riley in Burlington.

DAMAGE DONE TO YOUNG FRUIT TREES

Field Mice and Rabbits Cause Considerable Trouble In Kentucky

BY GIRDLING THE TREES

Simple Remedy to Clean the Sod Away For Several Inches in the Fall and Make a Mound Six to Eight Inches High Around Each Tree Packing It Quite Firm.

(J. H. Carmody, Department of Horticulture, Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.)

Field mice and rabbits frequently cause considerable damage to young fruit trees in Kentucky by girdling. Oftentimes the trees are completely girdled for a space of several inches in length and in extreme cases the injury extends even down to the roots. This form of injury is especially noticeable where the young orchard has been in sod. In order to protect a tree against injury of this kind it is best to clean the sod away from the tree for a space of several inches in the fall and then make a mound about six or eight inches high around each tree, packing it quite firm. This will not only serve as a protection against rodents, but it will act as a brace for the tree and prevent it from whipping in the wind.

Young tree girdled by mice or rabbits. Note the jagged edges of the bark that must be trimmed smooth.

Treatment of this kind is usually not thought of in time and the orchardist is often dismayed in spring to find his trees seemingly entirely ruined. The outer bark will be easily removed, and it is plain to see that the tree will die unless something is done immediately.

A very simple way to repair this damage is by means of bridge grafting. First trim all the injured bark away to sound, live bark. Next select some dormant clones about the size of a pencil and cut each end to a smooth, slanting edge. Make an opening in the bark above and below the wound with a chisel or knife and insert the sharpened clones. The clones should be cut a little longer than the exact distance between the openings, so that they will not fall away. The exposed wood should be painted with white lead or it may be wrapped with fresh cow manure. The edges of the bark and the points where the clones are inserted should be covered with grafting wax. The number of clones to use will depend upon the extent of the injury. A more speedy recovery will take place where a larger number are used.

A. Method of inserting clones. B. Clones ready for insertion.

If the tree is completely girdled at least four should be inserted. Keep down any growth that tends to start from the buds on the clones.

Grafting wax may be made as follows:

- 4 pounds of resin.
 - 2 pounds of beeswax.
 - 1 pound of tallow.
- Crush the resin and cut up the tallow and beeswax. Boil all three together until they are completely dissolved. Pour this dissolved mass into a pail of cold water and allow to cool for a few minutes. Grease the hands well and pull the wax until it is light brown in color. Wrap in greased paper and use as needed.

Introducing New Hogs.

When the new stock sow or boar is received at the farm, put it by itself for a month or six weeks at least. If at that time it seems perfectly healthy, and has been improved in flesh, it is safe to put it with the other stock. This is a safe preventive of the introduction of disease on the farm.

It requires careful management to plan farm work so that the work horses, like idle men, are an expensive luxury. Try to avoid a "rush" season.

Rapid milking is an advantage if it is done without hurting or irritating the cow, and she is milked clean.

The cow that gives the most milk when fresh is not always the best milker in a year's time.

BUDGET FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

Necessary to Know Amount of Money Available for Expenses

RECORDS MUST BE KEPT

What Assurances Has the Average Housewife That She is Successful? Must Place Every Dollar Where It Will Give the Greatest Benefit to the Largest Number.

(Miss Mary E. Sweeney, Head of Home Economics Department, Kentucky State University.)

Are you a successful housekeeper? What assures you that you are? The answer of many is, "I know my housekeeping allowance." Is that the highest test for efficiency in home administration? What are the fundamentals by which you judge the success of any system of industrial management? By three things—the quality and quantity of the output, the labor required and the cost of production. Can we judge the home by these same fundamentals? The output of the home is citizens, and the state and society have the right to demand that they be healthy, happy and useful; that the housewives keep their families in such a condition of health and mind that they can maintain their highest working capacity for the longest period possible; that this be done with an economical expenditure of brain, muscle and money. The world of today is stamping as inefficient the housewife who with an undue amount of physical labor and mental stress produces the kind of citizenship which society demands.

When a person determines to build a house he first decides upon the sum of money he expects to spend; he then engages the services of an architect, who indicates by drawings and specifications the dimensions of the structure, the number and size of the rooms, the windows and doors, the porches and closets which such a sum of money will secure. Every detail of the building is provided for before the foundation is dug. This set of drawings, known as blue prints, is indispensable to the architect, the contractor and the workmen.

In housekeeping the budget is to a housewife what the set of blue prints is to the builder. In her household expenditure, which includes food, clothing, lights and coal, rent, or, if the property is owned, taxes, insurance and repairs, ice, telephone, dentist bills and other miscellaneous expenditures, a budget is simply fixing the amount of the family purse that will be eaten, worn, lived in, burned, or otherwise expended. In the methods adopted in using this household allowance probably the most universal is the "hit and miss" method in which the housewife keeps within her household income by spending almost recklessly when crops are good or business is flourishing, or skimping unreasonably when crops are poor or when there is a financial stringency in business.

Every one is more or less familiar with the second method, where no records are kept, and bills are paid so long as the income lasts. There is on the part of the housewife no idea of the proportion of the money available for running the house, that is spent for groceries, the cost of a servant in wages, additional food consumed and in the waste; and if she fails to live within the amount apportioned her, she finds no way to reduce her deficit. Probably the cause of the failure of women to adopt these methods of conducting their housekeeping is a business-like way is the lack of previous systematic business training and a half-hearted belief that the many items which enter into the daily routine will not yield to household accounting.

The third method is the budget system. In which method she knows the amount of the family housekeeping appropriation; that her rent must fall within twenty per cent if the salary is $1,000 to $2,000; she understands that nine to twelve per cent must be allowed for clothing; that the food demands twenty to thirty per cent of the total amount (these estimates were based upon budgets which were in use by families in various parts of the country and collected by Bruere). Operating expenses, including heat, light, water, ice, telephone and miscellaneous expense, cost the family with $1,000 to spend $200 per year; the amount spent for education, such as books, magazines, daily necessities, music, clubs and societies must be determined by the individual family group, but they are almost invariably an index of the culture of the family. In building the family health, efficiency and happiness the woman with the budget plans to place every dollar where it will give the greatest benefit to the largest number of the family group; she puts into her plans and specifications for every month the same amount of brains, administration, and system that her husband puts into his business.

STATE NEWS.

Mrs. Robert Ashcraft, who lives on the road between Shaker's town and Brooklyn, had a thrilling experience last Tuesday. She left her young baby alone in the room for a few moments and when she returned was horrified to find a large snake coiled on the bed beside the baby and another reptile on the floor. She called Willie Lambert and with his aid, the snake on the bed was killed, but the other made its escape. The child was unharmed.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Last Saturday at the store of Luther Scott, West Irvine, Miss Gladys Scott, while pulling bananas from a bunch was frightened by a small snake which was coiled about the stalk and extended its head as if to strike her hand. The snake, which was two and one-half feet long, was yellow spotted and very ugly. A specimen of the tropics and was shipped in with the fruit.—Irvine Tribune.

GROWING PEANUTS.

A Profitable and Interesting Crop for Boys to Raise.

There is nothing equal to peanuts for arousing the interest of the boys in the garden. The habits of growth of peanuts are a little peculiar and it is very interesting to watch their development, especially if you have never seen any of them in their natural habitat. The peanut likes a warm, fertile sandy soil which is reasonably well drained. Secure the seed of some peanut man but be sure the nuts have not been roasted. The common varieties on sale at these stands will produce well in our latitude if planted early—just as soon as the ground will do for early potatoes. Furrow out as for potatoes in rows two and a half to three feet apart and drop the kernels two in a place and twenty inches apart for the hills. Cover these some two inches deep if soil is moist in the bottom of the furrows.

A scattering of wood ashes and well rotted compost will help much and should be thoroughly worked into the soil before the nuts are planted. We have had good success in planting in the garden—just a few rows, so we may have a few pounds of nuts going through the winter. Keep free from weeds and cultivate as for potatoes. It is well to slightly ridge up the soil about the plants when the small yellow blossoms appear. These show for a day or so and at the dropping or falling off of these small blossoms the sprouts grow out from the blossom stems and penetrate downward into the soil. It is on the ends of these shoots that the peanuts are to come after the nuts have gone down a sufficient depth, usually about two inches. Therefore, it is important that we keep the soil loose and free about the plants all through the blooming season. Be careful not to tear the vines loose from the tender rootlets that have started to grow down all along the stem for these are the nut bearing stems or rootlets from which we are to expect a crop later. It may be best to cease cultivation after the blooms have shown some three weeks and merely keep the patch free of weeds.

Peanuts require a long hot season so they should be planted as early as possible and allowed to grow until killed by frost, so as to ripen all the nuts possible. The peanut begins to flower in the early summer and continues if not checked by some means till ripened down by frost. No matter how early you plant, you may expect some half filled shells at digging unless the entire crop of runner like vines are clipped off and a certain number of the nuts thus forced to develop. In digging we loosen up under the vines with a fork then take the vine in both hands and pull it up with the nuts attached. Turn the vines over and over and let them dry to dry before picking off the peanuts to store. Be sure the kernels are well dried before storing and then place in some dry room away from the mice. Usually we get about a pint of good nuts from each hill and a small patch will astonish you in the autumn. Some cover their vines with a light covering of soil after blooming—all but the outer ends of the vines—but they do not need it. The peanuts cover themselves. All we need to do is to furnish plenty of rich loose soil and good tillage.

Don't's.

Don't forget that prevention is better than cure. If this old adage was followed the chatter, men, beasts and fowls would be better, and diseases and deaths would become so few that the doctors and undertakers would boo-hoo adieu.

Don't mix salt and mash dry. Dissolve salt in hot water, and with this moisten the mash.

Don't feed ducks the same quantity as chickens. Ducks grow faster and need more grub.

Don't put all middlemen in the chest case because you occasionally meet a slick one.

Don't try to squeeze blood out of a turnip. Sell a good article at a fair profit and be satisfied.

Don't bleach white fowls with peroxide. It does not remove crassiness, but rots the feathers, and the judge will catch you.

Don't show fowls with stubs or feathers on their shanks toes and webs, when the standard calls for those varieties to be clean shanked and shod.

Don't pull feathers and stubs and fill up the holes with beeswax with the idea that the judge will not see the trick and not disqualify the faked specimen.

A current newspaper item is as follows: The wife of a Methodist minister in West Virginia was married three times. Her maiden name was Patridge; her first husband's name was Robins; her second, Sparrow; and the present is named Quale. There are now young Robins, one Sparrow and 3 little Quales in the family. One of the grandfathers was a Swan and another a Jay, but he's dead now and a bird in Paradise. They lived on Hawk avenue, Canary Island, and the fellow who wrote this is a live bird and a relative of the family and now lives in Goose Valley, Missouri.—Ex.

It would be interesting to know how many cheap-state politicians in the State of Kentucky owe the estate of John C. Mayo, and just how much.—Elkton Times.

IDEAS FOR THE SICK ROOM

Preparation of Proper Food, and Other Matters That Will Be of Benefit to Invalid.

Beef Tea.—Out a pound of fresh, juicy beef without fat into an small piece of cloth, and place it in cold water on it; let it stand for two hours, then pour off, and add a pint of boiling water and a little salt, and simmer it in the oven for two hours; pour off and mix the two liquids together, and heat with added salt.

Linseed Poultice.—Put a quarter-pound crushed linseed in a basin previously heated, and pour on half a pint of boiling water, stirring carefully until of proper consistency, then spread evenly on soft linen and apply as warm as possible, covering the position with dried salt.

Arrowroot.—Take two teaspoonfuls of best arrowroot, mix with it as much cold water as is necessary to make it into a paste, then pour on half a pint of boiling water and stir briskly, when it will become a clear, smooth jelly; add sugar to taste.

Barley Water.—Wash two ounces of pearl barley in boiling water until thoroughly clean, then add the washed barley to two pints of water; heat gently until a nice thickness; strain and add lemon juice and sugar to taste.

Mustard Poultice.—Mix one or two ounces of pure mustard with tepid water until smooth. Apply on paper, or mixed with linseed poultice.

IMPORTANT PART OF SERVING

Garnishment of Dishes Adds Immensity to the Stimulus of the Appetite.

How to garnish artistically is an important secret in lending zest to a dish. Fritters and vegetables are attractive and delectable accompaniments of meat dishes during cold weather, and the garnishes that can be formed from hard boiled eggs, tomatoes, cucumbers, aspic jellies and pickles make a long list in themselves. The red radish cut fancifully is a pretty garnish, and when the little red buttons topped with small green leaves are placed on a slice of green pickle a most attractive combination of color is obtained.

Instead of the heavy old-time wreath of green about meats and fowls, it is better to use a few sprigs at one side of the dish. Nut meats can be used advantageously in savory and sweet dishes, and croquettes are delightfully adapted for garnishment. Flowers and fruits should never garnish any dish, but a sweet one, except nasturtiums, which are of the crest family and combine better with meat and vegetables. In preparing the toast, an attractive variety can be given by lightly buttering after toasting and sprinkling partly or wholly with minced green parsley.

Baked Vegetable Soup.

Convenient to make on baking day, as it can occupy the back of the oven and be taken out for a time if space is needed and returned without detriment. Put into a jar or deep pan that can be tightly covered, about two pounds of lean beef or mutton cut into small cubes, season with salt, pepper, one scant teaspoonful of pepper, four onions, two parsnips, four carrots, two turnips, six potatoes, six tomatoes scalded and skinned, the other vegetables being pared, scraped and cut into pieces the size of a pigeon's egg. Add to this three quarts of cold water when put into the oven. Never use cooked meat for this soup and keep tightly covered always. Two hours will be sufficient to cook it. If water falls below three quarts add boiling water when opening to serve.

Plum Cakes.

One cup butter, two cups brown sugar, yolks of three eggs, whites of two eggs beaten separately, one-half cup milk, one-half cup molasses, one-half teaspoonful soda, one-half teaspoonful cream of tartar, one-half pound stoned and chopped raisins, one-half pound currants, two tablespoonfuls fruit sirup, four cups of flour, two teaspoons mixed spices. If not dark enough add a little melted chocolate.

Celery Salad.

Two heads of celery, one tablespoonful of salad oil, one-half teaspoonful of vinegar, a teaspoonful of granulated sugar, pepper and salt to taste. Wash well the celery, removing any unsightly parts, lay in ice water until wanted, then cut into pieces about an inch in length. Season with remaining ingredients. Mix well, line a salad bowl with lettuce leaves, put in celery and serve.

Creamed Salmon.

Make a cream sauce of two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour and one of milk. Into this put the contents of a can of salmon, free from bones, skin and fat; beat thoroughly, season with salt and pepper, add two eggs beaten. Stir constantly till eggs are cooked, and serve at once.

Lemon Pudding.

Juice and grated rind of one lemon, yolks of three eggs, six tablespoonfuls of sugar, five tablespoonfuls hot water. Cook until thick, then add the beaten whites. Serve with whipped cream. This is very nice.

Worth Knowing.

Scraps of cream cheese may be made useful by mixing them with butter and milk or a little cream. This should be spread on thin, wafer-like crackers, made into sandwiches and served with salad.

Huston, containing 2 acres more or less, and being the same property conveyed to said Carl Neumeister and W. F. Dennis by W. O. Rouse and W. H. Tillman, and known as the Walton Flour Mill property on which is situated Flour Mill and also all machinery and fixtures and wheat warehouse and crib.

For the purchase price the purchaser, with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Commissioner's Sale.

J. D. Cloud, Admr. of Jennina Popham, Plaintiff.
vs.
James H. Popham, etc., Defendants

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale rendered by the Boone Circuit Court at its April Term, 1914, in the above styled cause, I shall proceed to offer for sale to the highest bidder, at public sale on Monday, the 1st day of June, 1914, at one o'clock p. m. or thereabouts being county court day, upon a credit of 6 months, the following property, to wit: The land ordered sold is described thus:

Lying in Boone County, Kentucky, on Elijah's creek beginning at a stone, the east corner of Joel Gar-net's tract of 1,000 acres, and also a corner with William McNeal in Peachy's old line; thence with the line of said McNeal's 28 1/2 poles to a stone; 54 1/2 poles to a poplar tree on a point; thence 44 1/2 poles to a stone in Peachy's line; thence with line 49 1/2 poles to the beginning, reserving an outlet of 15 ft Peachy's line to the road on Elijah's creek, containing 29 1/2 acres and 16 poles, excepting the 8 1/2 square poles which was conveyed on the 2nd day of September, 1867, to William McNeal by deed recorded in deed Book 117 page 208 of the Boone county records.

For the purchase price the purchaser of said real estate, with approved security or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a Judgment, with a lien retained therein until all the purchase money is paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

CHARLES MAURER,
Master Commissioner.

A big effort is being made to grow crop of tobacco in 1914. It seems to be only the better part of wisdom to grow a large crop in 1914 and curtail the 1915 crop, for the price for the 1914 crop may be better. The farmers of Kentucky cannot afford to plow land, and grow tobacco when cattle and less tobacco in 1915.

(Owen County Democrat.)
Never was there a better prospect for tobacco plants, every man is weeding and taking care of his beds, and who use any care in selecting places and burning will have plenty of plants. Ground should be put in good condition, and tobacco set and worked early that Owen may raise a banner crop. It is certain that prospects were never better or more prosperous looking.

HUSBAND RESCUED

DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Carroll, Ky.—Is an interesting letter from this place. Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could feel it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without my husband, and am doing my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of wonderful success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

The High Bred Percheron Stallion

Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1914 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone County, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a mating colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs. and is 17 1/2 hands high. He is beautiful black and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

Prince Olsen was sired by Blackmon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Oleson, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., and from whom he was purchased by me, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olsen was a high bred registered Percheron mare.

TWO FINE YOUNG JACKS, Also at the same place and under the same conditions I will offer for public sale two fine breeding jacks.

BEN

is a black Jack with neatly points, 7 years old, 15 1/2 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ear, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Ky. His mares are quick sellers and several have been sold at $125 at weaning time. His service fee will be $10.00.

DEWEY

is another fine Jack, 5 years old and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both Jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Come and see them before breeding. It may pay you.

They will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Plutarch 8183

Will make the season of 1914 at my stable on the farm of J. E. Dewild, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1913 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at my stable at $8.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is five years old, 15 1/2 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season.

No business done on Sunday.

WALTON DEPARTMENT.
D. B. WALLACE, Manager.
Hand your news items to Mr. D. B. Wallace at the Walton Equitable Bank and Trust Co.'s building. He is also authorized to receive subscriptions and collect other accounts.

Tim Westbay, of Covington, was here last Friday soliciting business for a hay and grain firm.

John C. Miller spent part of last week in Ludlow, guest of his cousin, Dr. J. G. Slater.

Alex. H. Young, who is making his home at the Soldiers' Home, at Dayton, Ohio, is on a visit to his old home here.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Baker, of LaGrange, arrived here last week on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. F. Curley.

Cardwell Griffith and Miss Relia Tompkins, of Ghent, spent part of last week here guests of their uncle A. B. Tompkins.

Mrs. M. E. Hance and daughter Miss Alpha entertained the Ladies Aid Society of the Walton Christian church last Thursday.

Mrs. Herman Mathews and son Robert Lee, of Petersburg, spent the past week here with her brother Scott Chambers and family.

Britt Senour, one of our progressive farmers, has had his residence handsomely painted by the knight of the brush Joseph Reed.

Mrs. Oscar M. Huey, of recent Hills, Louisville, returned home Monday after a pleasant visit to relatives and friends in this quarter.

Saturday next being Decoration Day, a national holiday, all of the business houses, including the banks, will be closed here that day.

Scott Chambers has added to his undertaking business a handsome new funeral car, and is keeping up-to-date in all of his business.

Judge J. G. Tomlin has been suffering severely from a boil on his face and was obliged to remain at home part of the time. He is much better.

A. Ricketts Johnson who has been in Christ Hospital, Cincinnati, for treatment for blood poisoning, returned last Thursday on the road to recovery, though his hands are bandaged because of an operation.

The elegant new home of Dr. G. C. Rankins in north Walton is about completed, and is a very handsome and commodious residence. The building was erected by Contractors Wm. Ransler and son Charles.

The Kenton county pooled wool was bought last Thursday by Albert Day of Flemingsburg, at a good price, which however is private. There will be about 300,000 pounds of wool in this pool, and Mr. Day will receive it at Walton.

Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Northcutt who have been enjoying a delightful visit to different parts of Florida the past month, returned last Saturday much benefited by the trip. Their daughter Miss Mamie will remain in Florida for a more extended visit.

The work on the building of the Walton Electric Company has been begun and will soon be completed. The structure is being erected on the lot where the old tobacco warehouse stood at the L. & N. Railroad crossing. W. O. Richey & Son have the contract to erect the building.

Frank Whitcomb who has been ill for a couple of weeks, became violently insane last week, he was adjudged of unsound mind and ordered to be committed to the asylum at Lakeland. It is a difficult matter to understand the reason of his insanity and it can be traced to nothing except the insanity of his illness which was caused by gall stones.

Miss Eula Cram, located at Etowah, Tennessee, had the misfortune last Thursday to lose all of her stock of millinery by fire, the building in which her store was located being totally destroyed. The loss is heavy but is partly covered by insurance.

Miss Cram is the daughter of W. H. Cram of this place and is only temporarily located at Etowah.

At the meeting of Group Six of the Kentucky Bankers' Association held at the Ft. Mitchell Country Club last Wednesday, the banks here were represented by R. C. Green, J. D. Mayhugh and D. B. Wallace. The members were elegantly entertained by the Covington Bankers, and a very interesting program was discussed.

R. C. Green of the Walton Bank and Trust Company, was elected Chairman of the Executive Committee for the current year, which means that he will be made Vice President of the Group next year. The other officers elected were Judge E. S. Clark, of Falmouth, President; Hugh P. Colville, of Covington, Vice President; F. J. Herms, Secretary; J. W. Webb, of Williamstown, and Price M. Witt, of Newport, on the executive committee.

Hon. W. B. Johnson, of Ardmore, Oklahoma, spent last Sunday here the guest of his cousin John C. Miller, enroute home from Washington, where he held a conference with President Wilson relative to some needed legislation in Oklahoma. Mr. Johnson was born and reared in the Big Bone neighborhood, but has been in the west for many years. He was the U. S. District Attorney of Oklahoma during the last Republican administration and was the Republican nominee for U. S. Senator from Oklahoma. Mr. Johnson is one of the ablest posted men on the conditions in the west, and his advice was sought by those who desire legislation to upbuild the interests of Oklahoma. Sunday over forty of the old friends of Mr. Johnson called at the home of Mr. Miller to renew the pleasant acquaintanceship of years gone by and to pay their respects and affectionate regard to Mr. Johnson who left Monday for his home in Oklahoma.

The Commencement exercises of Walton High School last Friday night were very pleasing and a very large number were in attendance. The program was well rendered and the eight graduates acquitted themselves in a most creditable manner. The program was added to by the excellent music on violin and piano by Fred Miller, Miss Luttie Miller and Miss Lulu Carroll. Rev. W. W. Evans invoked the blessing of God in the opening and pronounced the benediction at the close. Prof. J. L. Chambers presided over the exercises, and County Supt. E. G. Riley of Burlington, occupied a position on the stage. Dr. J. T. C. Noe, of the State University, at Lexington, delivered the Class Address in a masterly manner, and it was greatly enjoyed by all, and Prof. Chambers presented the diplomas to the graduates and their subjects were as follows: Address Agnes Haley; Gifforian, Isabel Tompkins; "Hoosting with a Gentle Knock," Elizabeth Johnson; "Art of the 20th Century," Sybil Hurt; Class Poet, Porter Kennedy; Class Prophet, Mary Rensler, Class Will, Susan Johnson; Class Historian, Zada Rouse.

Last week a man giving his name as C. P. Williams and claiming to be from Michigan, as his place of residence, visited here with the alleged view of purchasing a farm on which to have his parents move. He finally selected the 96 acre farm of W. S. Wayland near Walton, and agreed to purchase it for $7,500. The deed was written and executed, and he gave Mr. Wayland his check for the amount. He then agreed to purchase the town residence of L. P. Vallandigham, and gave him a check for $50 as a preliminary payment. Williams represented that he was an electrician, employed by the Western Electric Company, and was making the investment for the benefit of his parents who had recently sold their farm in Michigan, and wanted to move to a warmer climate, and decided on Kentucky as being the suitable place. Williams endeavored to take a small check cashed at the banks but was unsuccessful. He had a woman with him that he represented as his wife, registering as such at the Phoenix Hotel. On Saturday evening, Williams hired a horse and buggy from A. M. Edwards to drive a party to the country but failed to return. He also failed to pay his board bill at the hotel. Search was made for the horse and buggy next day, and it was found at Port Mitchell where the horse had been hitched to a telephone pole the major part of the night. He took some of his effects at the hotel, and from the correspondence found it was learned that he had a wife in Michigan who was pleading with him to return, and the correspondence indicated his name to be Davis. The parties with whom he dealt with here are endeavoring to secure the apprehension of Williams, and if he is found a prosecution on several charges will follow. Williams is about 40 years old, is about five feet six inches in height, smooth shaven, and is bald to a considerable extent. It is said he was in the Verona neighborhood the week before looking at farms with the alleged purpose of buying. It is well to have all strangers coming into a community to purchase or deal with the public on business matters present proper credentials before they are given any consideration, as there are too many of the stripe of this Mr. Williams going about working all kinds of schemes to get an advantage of honorable people.

COUGH TWO YEARS OLD Yields to Vinol, Read Why.

Strong vigorous men and women hardly ever catch cold; it's only when the system is run down and vitality low that colds and coughs get a foothold. Now isn't it reasonable that the right way to cure a cough is to build up your run down condition against Mrs. D. A. McGee of Waycross, Ga., says: "I had a chronic cold and cough which kept me awake nights for two years and I felt tired all the time. Vinol cured my cough and I feel stronger in every way."

The reason Vinol is so efficacious in such cases is because it contains in a delicious concentrated form all the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil, with tonic, blood building tonic added. Chronic coughs and colds yield to Vinol because it builds up the weakened, run-down system. You can get your money back any time if Vinol does not do all we say. F. Some of the prisoners in the Frankfort Reformatory are said to be preparing to file suit to compel the Prison Commission to carry out the law which gives eighty-four days' good time to every convict.

There is no question as to the existence of such a law, but the Prison Commission has no seen proper to apply it to those prisoners who were convicted under the indeterminate sentence law. This seems to have been in accordance with common sense. A prisoner sent up under the indeterminate sentence law for a term of, say, one to five years is eligible to parole after he has served his minimum term of one year. If the good time allowance also is applied such a prisoner, one of the commissioners has pointed out, would have to serve only about nine months to be eligible for parole.

The absurdity of making good time allowance to those who are serving the so-called indeterminate sentence is more apparent when the case of a prisoner convicted of manslaughter is considered. This prisoner was sentenced to serve from two to twenty-five years. In the natural course of events he would be eligible to parole after two years. Given the benefit of the annual good time allowance he would have to serve only about eighteen months before being eligible for parole.

The Attorney General has given an opinion to the effect that the prisoners convicted under the indeterminate sentence law are entitled to the good time allowance. Evidently there has been a good deal of legislative bungling in connection with these prison laws. With a few more amendments it is much to be feared the State will be unable to keep anybody at all in the penitentiary longer than the time required for hearing a mandamus suit.—C.-J.

Luke McLuke Says

There would be a lot more compliments paid in this world if other people were not so sure that you are going to make a touch as soon as you get thru praising them.

Cheer up. Even if you don't get what you want, be glad that you are not getting what you deserve.

A man never bothers about forgiving an enemy if he thinks he can whip him.

It could be worse. There is no law compelling you to smoke the cigars your friends give you.

A man may be so busy all day and part of the night that he can't remember the names of his children. But he can tell you the batting average of every man on the home team.

Some old girls are so anxious to seem young that they would feel flattered if they got chickenpox.

The lads who go over Niagara Falls in barrels are not the only fools in the world. Some men get divorced one week and get married the next week.

A Princess doesn't object to being kissed by the right fellow. But she will say that he is a gentleman if he doesn't pretend to use force when he tries to kiss her.

The reason a man hollers about the size of the Grocery Bill at home is because his check for his daily lunch and drinks down town is never less than $3.00.

Always keep your heart softer than your head and people will be sorry when you die. And they won't have to pass the hat to bury you, either.

It costs money to have your mind on the girls all the time. Luke had a fun time at the Douglas Park last Saturday. He looked at the mutual machine and saw September 1911 in the race. Of course the rosy girl with the curves got Luke's dough, but she was so chilly that she ran last. Missy won at about 14 to 1.

A girl will go to a party and wear a corset that gives her the cramps, shoes that brings tears to her eyes, a skirt that she can't sit down in and a waist so tight that she can't raise her arms to doll up her hair. And then she will go home and say that she has had a "perfectly lovely time."

Farm Butter Making.

Cool the cream from the separator as soon as possible to 55 degrees F. or lower.

Never mix warm cream with cool cream.

Mix all the cream to be churned in one vat or can at least 18 hours before churning.

Ripen at a temperature of 70 to 75 degrees F. for from six to eight hours, stirring frequently during this period.

Cool cream to churning temperature as soon as ripe.

Let the cream stand eight hours or more, over night, at the churning temperature.

The temperature of churning should be such as to make the butter come in from 35 to 40 minutes, usually 55 to 60 degrees F.

If it is desired to use artificial coloring, it should be added to the cream just before churning.

Stop churning when the granules are about the size of peas, varying to wheat, and draw off the buttermilk.

Wash the butter once with pure water at the churning temperature agitating three or four times, and drain.

Add the salt wet while the butter is in granular form, using about one to one and one-half ounces for each pound of butter, according to the demands of the market.

Work the butter just enough to distribute the salt evenly.

How to Succeed With Alfalfa.

A few years ago alfalfa in Indiana was in a sort of an experimental stage and on many farms a patch of it was seeded simply as a trial to see if it would grow. Many of these cases it did not prove successful for various reasons, chiefly because it was not put in under proper and favorable conditions, and as a result it was pronounced a crop that could not be grown in that particular section. But since then we have been better informed on its culture and have heard from every hand its great value as a feed.

As a result, now alfalfa is successfully grown in every county in the state and on all types of soil and the number of its enthusiastic supporters is increasing rapidly. In 1910 there was a total acreage in Indiana of 17,839 acres with a yield of 4,320 tons. Dearborn county had 4,883 acres; Switzerland 1,316; Franklin 807, Ohio 750 and Jefferson 709. Since that time area devoted to alfalfa has greatly increased in every part of the state and it would be difficult to estimate. See total acreage this year because the increase has been so rapid.

The feeding value of alfalfa outranks all other common farm crops. Henry's Feeds and Feeding gives the per cent of crude protein as 16.3, and its digestibility as 72, that is to say 11 per cent of its digestible protein. The second cutting seems to be more digestible than any other.

The alfalfa committee of the Indiana Corn Growers Association is doing some good work in encouraging and instructing alfalfa growers of the State. In a letter sent out recently to all members of the association, the following ten reasons why alfalfa may fail are given:

Perhaps your land is wet. Alfalfa has a long root and it won't grow in water. Land should be drained not less than three feet deep.

Perhaps your land is sour. Alfalfa needs sweet soil. Try two tons of the acre of ground limestone.

Perhaps your land is poor in fertility. Alfalfa needs soil well supplied with phosphorus and food and plenty of organic matter.

Perhaps you did not inoculate. In most cases alfalfa needs inoculation. Do not use an old alfalfa field, or soil in which sweet clover has grown, or use a commercial culture.

Perhaps you did not have a well prepared seed bed. Alfalfa must have a good seed bed. Labor expended on the preparation of the seed bed will show high returns in the crop.

Perhaps you didn't sow good seed. Do not use seed south of Kansas. Northern grown seed is safer from winter killing. Send a sample of your seed to the Seed Laboratory, at Purdue. It will be examined free of charge.

Perhaps you sowed too late. It is hardly safe to sow after August 15. Try a field sown in July or early August.

Perhaps the weeds choked your crop. Clean land is desirable. Clean your land by cultivation before you sow it.

Perhaps you pastured the alfalfa the first year. Pasturing is not desirable at any time in Indiana and not at all the first year, only lightly at any time.

Perhaps you expected too much. Three cuttings with a total of three tons to the acre is a reasonable expectation. Seed is rarely harvested in Indiana.—Igdiana Farmer.

The Worth of the Farm Agent.

Fiscal Courts are not especially noted for the good judgment with which they appropriate county funds. Information to the effect that the Fiscal Court of Whitley county has made an appropriation for the employment of a county farm agent is to be welcomed as an evidence that now and then these bodies may be relied upon to do the proper thing.

The last Legislature passed an enabling act which makes it possible for Fiscal Courts to make these appropriations. Whitley is the first of the mountain and the magistrates who voted for the appropriation have demonstrated their wisdom and progressiveness. Most of the counties in Eastern Kentucky are increasing in population. Some of them in the course of their industrial development are neglecting the needs of their interests. This should not be the case. Some of them already are near the end of their timber resources. That is the great mineral wealth, but the coal when once mined cannot be replaced. Their one abiding resource is the soil. The mountain counties of Kentucky are not now producing enough foodstuffs to supply the needs of their population. They are paying out millions of dollars annually for products that might be grown at home. This is a condition that can be rectified by improving the farmer by conserving the soil by reclaiming the worn-out lands, by adopting better methods of farming and by increasing the production of livestock.

It is just here that the services of the farm agent are valuable. The average farmer has never seen an agricultural college, and he pays scant attention to the vast amount of printed advice that is served up to him in various ways. But there are plenty of farmers everywhere who are glad to avail themselves of the services and the advice of a county agent. He lives and moves among them and his practical assistance is of more effect than tons of literature.

No county makes a bad investment by employing a capable farm agent. It has been estimated that every thousand dollars spent for farm agents will give at least $10,000 in better farm returns.—Courier-Journal.

Swindling Farmers.

The office of Information of the Agricultural Department at Washington, is sending out the following:

Evidence of what appears to be a well organized campaign to defraud farmers throughout the country into buying an alleged cure for hog cholera, under the impression that this has been investigated and approved by the U. S. Government, has reached the Department of Agriculture. Articles praising this medicine, Benetol by name, are being sent out widespread to farmers. These articles are so worded that it appears as if the Department of Agriculture had received reports from the state of Minnesota showing that the medicine had proved most beneficial. As a matter of fact the one report received by the Department was an unofficial and unsolicited statement sent presumably from the promoters themselves. The Department attaches no importance whatever to this statement. It has no reason to believe in the efficiency of any proprietary cure for hog cholera and does not recommend any. Under certain conditions it urges farmers to protect their stock with anti-hog cholera serum but that is all.

In connection with this attempt it may be said that the medicine, which is now put forward as good for the cure of cholera, is some time ago as a means of killing tuberculosis, typhoid, and cancer germs, according to an article published in the Journal of the American Medical Association. At that time it was asserted that the Army was interested in it. As a matter of fact the Army was more interested then than the Department of Agriculture is now. In view of the evidence that the attempt to create this false impression is persistent and wide spread, all hog owners are warned to communicate with the United States authorities before accepting as true any statement that the Government recommends any treatment other than the serum already mentioned.

DIRECTORS OF BANK

Will Resist Effort to Make Them Pay Losses.

Lexington.—Information from Paris is to the effect that the Directors of the defunct bank of George B. Alexander & Co. will resist the effort of the State Banking Department to compel them to pay the losses accruing from the alleged speculations of the President. It will be the contention of the Directors that they might sanction the transaction of the President which so badly involved the bank, and that they had no knowledge that there was anything wrong in the speculation, because much of the paper to which Alexander attached his signature was carried outside of the bank and not through it. Judge Dundon visited Colonel Thomas J. Smith, the State Banking Commissioner, at Frankfort, and he was informed by Colonel Smith that the attorneys of the department were of the opinion that the Directors of the Alexander bank are liable, and that since they are perfectly able to pay the depositors it is his intention to compel them to "come across" if he can do so with the aid of the courts of the state, which he will invoke.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

William Pitt

The fly is a nuisance.
Work for a reputation.
Look out for the curculio.
Gather eggs at least once daily.
The Kelfer pear is the standby of the masses.

The farmer is known by the amount of clover seed he sows.

A bran mash and a day in the pasture—for the horse off his feed.

Outdoor subjects animals to sunshine and compels them to exercise.

Be sure the masses and colts in pasture have shelter from the hot sun.

Charred corn fed to the fowls occasionally will prove an aid to digestion.

Egg growing rests not solely with the hen, much depends on the man in charge.

We cannot grow pigs profitably without feed enough to keep them gaining steadily.

After the crop expert has prescribed for your sick soil, introduce him to the boarder cows.

In setting out strawberries, pinch off most of the leaves and the plants will take hold better.

Cornmeal and skim milk make the best of feed to hurry chicks along to the fry and broiler stage.

The calf should be cleaned immediately after birth by carefully rubbing it with a dry cloth or straw.

Give the hens a chopped onion occasionally in the mash. It is excellent as a disease preventative.

Red cedar, Colorado blue spruce and Black Hill spruce are excellent evergreens for the yard or windbreak.

Since the first reaper was invented and put on the market the silo is the greatest boon that has come to the farmer.

If your asparagus turns yellow it is a sign of rust. Every affected plant should be cut out and burned or well sprayed.

When setting any of the bush fruits the top should be pruned to correspond to the root pruning the plant gets in transplanting.

A good many farm gardens are too large. A small patch well cared for will prove more satisfactory all around than a field of weeds.

After the third day a mixture of broken grains is good for the chicks. Before that they are better off for having nothing but grit and water.

There is no danger of having an oversupply of good country butter. In the metropolitan centers it has become almost an unknown quantity.

A wide range in summer feeding may be used at the start of the feeding period with profit, but it must get narrow as the feeding period advances.

If everybody would begin feeding new oats carefully, horses would not have so much trouble with colic. Begin very light, gradually increasing the amount.

Bee-keepers who do not keep queens for more than two years clip the right wing of queen in even years and the left in the odd years. The age of queen can thus be told.

Do not use poison on any of the trees or plants while in bloom. The so many result in the death of many trees, which are of great necessity in the garden and the orchard.

Hens forced for egg production by high feeding and stimulants may give the desired number of eggs, but the future generations will show the effect in weak constitutions.

Forcing a cow for a short period cannot always be accepted as the legitimate measure of the capacity of any breed, no matter how well authenticated any great performance may be.

When pigs are once afflicted with "bull-nose" there is no cure. The disease may be arrested by smothering with camphor gum. This is done by confining the animals in a tightly covered box and placing a little camphor gum on a red hot stove lid. They will inhale the fumes. The trouble is no doubt infectious.

Market the cockerels.
There's meat in an egg.
Young trees need fertilizer.
Cows and men both appreciate paved lots.

Never set a thin, lousy hen. She won't stay her time out.

Alfalfa pasture and hogs make a combination that is hard to beat.

Save muscle and time when cutting bands by having a keen-edged knife.

When the silo is thoroughly dry it is well to treat the inside of it with coal tar.

Many a poor and unprofitable dairy herd can be traced to a nondescript sire.

Bad luck in the garden is usually the result of some sort of bad management.

Boiling the oats or wheat makes a good ration and a desirable change occasionally.

Almost always the cow that gives the most butter fat does it the most economically.

The secret of successful stack building is to keep the middle full and well tramped.

Warming the cream to about 56 degrees for winter churning will make less work of it.

Keep the wheel-hoe going all through the month, particularly if the ground is dry.

It is a good plan to occasionally scald the dropping boards and roosts with boiling water.

No two fruits should touch each other. The largest and most perfect fruit should be left.

Holstein breeders can spend their time more profitable than in arguing over the color question.

Success in the sheep business depends as much or more upon the care taken as upon the sheep.

A hopperful of bran is always seasonable feed and the whole flock should have access to it.

Be sure you are up with the times before you say there is no longer any money in the dairy business.

Repeated croppings of corn have a tendency to wear the land. Better rotate and use some grass crop.

Belgium has 164 head of cattle to the square mile, Denmark 144, Netherlands, 135 and the United States 23.

Changing locations of the different crops in the garden will make them less liable to disease and insect damage.

The foresighted dairyman is not the kind who is caught these days selling heifer calves for veal, because prices are good.

If one has a large flock of sheep much time will be saved and better results obtained by the use of the machine clippers.

A horse that is exhausted and reeking with sweat should never be allowed to stand in a draft no matter what the weather may be.

As soon as the ewes have dropped their lambs and all danger of fever and caked udders is past, most liberal feeding should be practiced.

Do not plant many varieties of trees in the new apple orchard. The apple buyers like to find as many of one variety as they can together.

It is possible to change cows from dry feed to pasture without the creamery man's nose detecting the difference, but not many farmers do it.

Palms and other foliage plants can be kept clean of scale and other insects by washing the leaves with soapy water and rinsing immediately thereafter.

For the best pork we must have the healthiest system, consequently the system of feeding that is the most conducive to perfect health makes the best pork.

You can feed and care for a good grade cow so that she will be more profitable than a full-blood half starved. The man is at the bottom of his own success.

After corn is too big to cultivate, lambs, if turned into the field, will eat out all the grasses and weeds and a few of the lower blades of the corn before they touch the grain.

A tomato vine trained against chicken fence gauze is very ornamental. Only two shoots should be allowed to grow until the vine is three feet high. The scarlet plum and yellow plum are better for this culture than the large fruited kinds.

Do not forget about the potato patch and the bugs. Treat the latter to a dose of paris green. If you do not do that the chances are that you will not have the pleasure of digging this fall. So, if you love to dig potatoes, keep the bugs away now.

That You Save Money

In buying new WHEELS is be cause the repairing costs nearly as much and sometimes more than new wheels. Here is an example: A customer wanted new rims and new tires on his wheels. The cost of this work is at least $10.00 and the price of spokes added to it. I sold that man four good, NEW wheels for $8.00. Putting shaft in a buggy costs you sometimes $2.00. I sell you a complete, new, well ironed shaft for $2.50 to $2.75; also good ironed Buggy and Spring Wagon poles for $1.75 and $1.50.

This material sold twice as high five years ago, but automobiles cause these low prices. Come and look at the wheels.

Every Part of "Thornhill" Wagons Must Pass Extreme Tests

Out at the saw mill the makers of this wagon select the pick of the oak and hickory. From three to five years they keep it under shelter—so piled that the air can circulate freely. When finally it is ready to go into a "Thornhill" Wagon, it is as dry as a bone—tough—well nigh unbreakable.

The straight grained hickory for spokes and axles is steel-like in its strength. The oak for hubs and felloes is as sturdy as tough oak grows. As it goes thru the mill, each part is inspected again and again. All defective parts are thrown out. Each part must have the O. K. of scores of men. The steel and iron must pass extreme tests—twice as severe as ordinary service will ever demand. Machines, sensitive to the thousandth part of an inch, gauge the work for accuracy—perform the work that can best be done by machinery. It is this excess of caution—this surplus of strength—in every part—that makes the "Thornhill" come pretty close to utter perfection. Before anyone buys a wagon, they should find out about the six big points of superiority built into the "Thornhill."

Let us show you this wagon.

BOONE CO. RECORDER

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce Hon. A. B. Rouse as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this the Sixth Congressional District, subject to the action of the Democratic party at the Primary Election, Saturday, August 1, 1914.

Governor McCreary has appointed John N. Camden, of Woodford county, to fill until the next regular election the vacancy in the office of United States Senator caused by the death of Senator W. O. Bradley.

General Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, commander-in-chief of the Confederate Veterans, has announced as a candidate for the short term of United States Senate, and is seeking the Democratic nomination in the August primary.

Hon. J. C. W. Beckham, who is making a vigorous canvass of the State for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, will address the Democrats of Boone county at the court house in Burlington next Wednesday at 1 p. m. Everybody is wished regardless of his political belief.

At the Democratic primary election held in Dearborn county, Indiana, there were two candidates for the nomination for Clerk of the Court and 288 votes were cast. The winning candidate coming under the wire leading by only five votes. For Joint Senator Joseph Hemphill, of Ohio county, was nominated, defeating Warren Tebbis, of Lawrenceburg.

It is said that there are several applicants for the principalship of the Boone County High School, a position that has been so very satisfactorily held by Prof. E. L. Dix for the last five years. It is evident that the principal who follows Prof. Dix will find that he will have to be up and doing all his time if he succeeds in keeping the school at the high standard to which Prof. Dix has brought it. The board cannot afford to experiment with a teacher but should require that the one employed hold unquestioned credentials as to his ability and success as an instructor in the field occupied by the Boone Co. High School. Every safeguard possible should be exercised to avoid any backward step in a school which now occupies a very prominent position among the best rural schools in Northern Kentucky. The future usefulness of the school depends largely on the person coming year, and a slip in the selection of the new principal may set the institution back many years by dwarfing the excellent progress it has been making. It is believed that the board of education fully realizes the importance of its duty and will take no steps towards the employment of a principal for the school until it is fully advised and thoroughly satisfied that it is securing the best principal who is available. The people of this part of the county are proud of the school and are anxious to see it continue the progress it has been making, and they rely on the Board of Education to seek its best interests.

BAPTIST SUMMER ASSEMBLY

At Georgetown, Ky., July 6-10.

The Baptist Summer Assembly will be held at Georgetown, Ky., from July 6th to July 10th inclusive. Mr. George M. Newel, Local Chairman, Georgetown, Ky., assures us that ample accommodations will be provided for all who wish to attend. He desires all those who are going to the Assembly to write and reserve for reservation. First come, first served. Please do not delay writing him. The assembly has arranged an excellent program. The speakers are among the best we have in the Southland. They are Field Secretary Arthur Flake of the B. S. W. work, east of the Mississippi; Secretary L. P. Leavell of the Baptist Sunday School Board, Dr. C. B. Williams of the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary, Fort Worth, Texas, Dr. Lincoln Hulley, president Stetson University, DeLand, Fla., Dr. B. D. Gray, Cor. Secretary Baptist Home Mission Board, Atlanta, Ga., Dr. F. D. Perkins, Cor. Secretary, Kentucky Baptist Educational Society, Louisville, Ky., Dr. T. M. Hawes of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Ky., Dr. C. M. Thompson, pastor First Baptist church, Hopkinsville, Ky. Among others on the program are Miss Margaret A. Frost, Elementary Specialist, Nashville, Tenn., Miss Kathleen Mallory, Cor. Secretary, W. M. U. Auxiliary to the Southern Baptist Convention.

We are putting special stress on the music this year. Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Schofield will have charge of same. Mr. Schofield will use "Immanuel's Praise" and desires that we have a vocal chorus to assist him. There are several other interesting features, namely, "The Sunset Hour," Pastors' Conference and a Musical Entertainment, B. Y. P. U. Convention on Thursday, July 9. For any further particulars in this regard write to J. J. Leutner, 205 E. Chestnut Louisville, Ky.

The 35,000 pounds of Boone Co. pooled wool was delivered to the purchaser, M. S. Sabie, Louisville, last week, the price being 25.3 cents a pound, the three tenths being retained to defray the expenses of the pool.

SLASHING Of Kentucky Tax Rate

Is Possible If Property Is Assessed at Fair Cash Value.

Frankfort, May 30.—In a statement issued today by the Board of Equalization, County Assessors are urged to co-operate with the board in an effort to reduce the tax rate and equalize the burden of taxation. This can be done says the board, by requiring every person to assess his property at its fair cash value, as is required by law.

The statement follows: "After a thorough examination of the Assessors' returns, as of September 1, 1913, the state Board of Equalization, while endeavoring to perform its duty as required by law, has become convinced that if the laws are literally enforced by the Assessors the burden of taxation can be properly equalized and the tax rate in the counties, cities and state materially reduced.

"In order that the State Board of Equalization, which will convene in February, 1915, may not encounter the troubles which have confronted us, and in view of the fact that you have been entrusted with the discharge of your duties as Assessors of your county, we take the liberty of advising you when making your assessments as of September 1, 1914, that you follow literally the laws as contained in the statute. Upon being induced to go to an office of an Assessor you were required by Section 1044, of the Ky. Statutes to take the following oath:

"I do swear that I will administer to every person the value of all property to be listed by me at its fair cash value estimated at the price it would bring at fair voluntary sale, without favor or impartiality, and I will diligently search and inquire so that no person shall be passed over, or shall fail to have an opportunity to give a list of his taxable property, and I will not refuse to list their taxable property after being duly called on by me for that purpose, or who have given in a false or fraudulent list, so help me God."

"Section 172 of the Constitution directs that all property shall be assessed for taxation at its fair cash value estimated at the price it would bring at a voluntary sale. 'Before an Assessor can receive pay for his labor, he and his deputies must appear in open Court before the County Judge and make the oath as set out in Section 1071 of the Kentucky Statutes. 'The Constitution and the Statute requires you to assess all property, except such property as is exempt from taxation, at the fair cash value of each property, and it further provides that the standard is the price at which the property would sell at a fair voluntary sale.

"Section 1047 of the Kentucky Statutes requires that you shall administer the oath as set forth in the statute to each property owner before taking his list. 'The tax laws are sufficient. If enforced uniformly throughout the state, to produce all the revenues to support the city, county and governments on a tax rate much lower than the present rate. This uniform assessment can only be obtained through the co-operation of the assessors. We urge you to join with this board in an effort to reduce the tax rate and equalize the burden of taxation by requiring every person to assess his property at its fair cash value, as is required by law. We hope that the returns from your county for the year 1914 will show a more perfect assessment than has been returned in the past years.

"Trusting that you will carefully study the statutes, and will enforce the law as therein written, for the best interest of Kentucky.

SELECTING THE BREED SHEEP

Wide Variety for the Farmer to Choose From—Mutton and Wool Varieties.

Farmers who contemplate the raising of sheep on their farms are urged by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to give considerable thought to the selection of breed. In all there are thirty breeds of improved sheep that have been brought to fixed types. Of these twelve are already well established in the United States and others are gaining in popularity. Each has its own points of superiority and the farmer must be guided in his choice by the individual conditions, bearing in mind, however, the fact that any breed is superior to no breed.

Although it is hardly to be expected that every farmer in a neighborhood will select the same breed of sheep, there are several advantages to be derived from a number doing so. For example new rams can be purchased for the common benefit when any individual owner might well hesitate at the expense; and if the lambs are ready in large numbers for market at the same time, they may be shipped cheaply by the carload or the buyers may find it worth their while to come after them.

In selecting a breed it should be remembered that no system of sheep farming is likely to be long successful which leaves out of account either wool or mutton. One or the other, however, may be emphasized according to local conditions. Thus if pasturage is sparse, feed expensive and marketing arrangements poor, wool will usually be the first consideration. On the other hand, where conditions are more favorable a breed will be selected for its mutton qualities. Even then, however, there is a wide latitude of choice.

In order to assist the farmer in this choice, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has just published Farmers' Bulletin 576, "Breeds of Sheep for the Farm" descriptions and photographs of the principal breeds, together with the addresses of the secretaries of various breeding associations, from whom additional information can be obtained. These breeds may be divided into three main groups, the Middle Wool, the Long Wool, and the Fine Wool. All the Middle Wool breeds have been developed primarily for mutton. The Long Wools also are bred chiefly for mutton. They are the largest of all sheep and thrive best where food can be obtained without much travel. They do well also in regions of excessive rainfall. The Fine Wools, including the American Merino, Ramboulet and Rambred, have been bred almost entirely for their wool alone.

Some of these many breeds says the bulletin, should be selected and maintained as they are, good policy to cross sheep.

Law Against Carrying Pistols

Following is a copy of the pistol toting law passed by the recent Legislature and which becomes operative about the middle of June. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

Sec. 1. That Sec. 1309, Kentucky Statutes, Carroll's Edition of 1909, be stricken out and in lieu thereof the following section be enacted:

Sec. 1309. If any person shall carry concealed a deadly weapon on or about his person other than an ordinary pocket knife, such person shall upon conviction be fined not less than $50 nor more than $100 and imprisoned in the county jail for not less than 10 nor more than 40 days in the discretion of the court or jury trying the case. The offense of carrying concealed deadly weapons is declared a high misdemeanor and any person convicted under this statute of the offense of carrying concealed deadly weapons shall be disfranchised and such conviction shall operate to exclude such person from the right of suffrage for the period of two years from the date thereof. Any person convicted the second time under this statute shall be confined in the penitentiary for a term of not less than one nor more than five years.

Plant Bed Notes.

Fulton county's plants look thrifty.

Davies county growers have been delayed in getting out their plans because of a lack of season.

++++
Garrard county farmers report the finest beds in years. Many began setting last week and the prospects are that a goodly proportion of the county's crop will be set during this month.

++++
Reports indicate that about one-half of the tobacco land around Clarksville, Tenn., is ready for planting with plenty of plants. There is yet about one-fourth of the corn to plant and in some localities the growers are plowing up and replanting where they had planted before the hard rains. Wheat and grasses are reported as looking well.

++++
Henderson county tobacco growers are greatly encouraged by the appearance of their plant beds which are declared never to have been as fine this early in the season, and less cut worms, or bad weather conditions injure the plants, the growers expect many plants to be ready to set out soon after the 20th of this month. Plants have grown splendidly, but the cool nights of the past several days have not aided them, because of the presence of cut worms. These pests come to the surface during cool weather and in some sections of the county they have damaged plant beds to some extent. If the growers have good luck this season, the largest crop of tobacco grown in Henderson county in ten years will be pitched.

Uniform Accounting.

Frankfort.—Contract for installing a uniform accounting system in all public offices handling the State funds was let by the Sinking Fund Commission to Edward T. Perine, former Controller of the State of New York and Walter J. Nichols, of New York, for $3,600. They are to install the system in fifty-seven days beginning next week when the contract will be signed. This system will reach all county and magisterial offices, as well as State Departments, where the officers have anything to do with receiving or disbursing money belonging to or due the State.

Comparison Sells the "Studebaker"

Studebaker

THE CAR FOR THE COUNTRY.

If you are thinking of buying a real Automobile, let me show you the superiority of the "Studebaker." Where Strength, Easy Riding, Latest Improvements and Low maintenance are considered the Studebaker has no equal. No other car in the world selling for the same money—$1050, has the construction and conveniences of the Studebaker—a full floating rear axle with Nimken Roller Bearings throughout, eliminates all axle troubles and adds 50 per cent. to the strength and power of the car; electrically started and lighted makes driving a pleasure. Model R. Schibler Carburetor, the latest and best manufactured, with direct feed adds power on the hills.

If interested and for full information write me at Union or call Beaver 90. You put yourself under no obligation whatever by asking for a free demonstration. See the "Studebaker" before buying, compare it with any other car before deciding.

Another SHOOTING BEE

Pulled Off at Railroad Construction Camp Near Richwood.

Another shooting bee was pulled off at the railroad construction camp at Richwood after working hours, last Thursday afternoon, in which one negro is supposed to have been fatally shot. The shooter making his escape.

It was just after 5 o'clock p. m., when Sheriff W. D. Cropper was called by telephone to go to Richwood, and arrest the negro who did the shooting, and he and his deputy Albert Conner hastened to the scene in John White's auto, but before their arrival the man who did the shooting had disappeared and the officers could not locate him.

As the officers came through Florence on their return they noticed a negro on Myers' corner who answered somewhat as they thought, the description of the man they wanted. The machine was stopped and when the officer approached he ran and was soon out of sight having dodged behind some buildings. The man was in such a hurry to get away that he forgot a load of bread, and the officers believe he was the man they were after, although they were told that he was a man who belonged to Florence.

The negro who was shot was taken to the hospital that evening.

The bunch of railroad workmen located at Richwood are a scrappy set and have indulged in several rows during the past year in which life was taken. The good people of there are becoming very tired of the camp.

SUCCESSFUL TOURNAMENT

The Biggest Thing That Ever Came to Burlington Successfully Cared For.

Local School Breaks Record in The Lead Head Over Competitors.

A better behaved crowd of people never came to Burlington than the 150 delegates who spent the better part of three days in the exercises of the Northern Kentucky Tournament, last week. A beautiful spirit of harmony prevailed in all the contests. Unkind remarks and comments so often heard among crowds of young people out from home were unheard. Burlington is delighted with their visitors, each house claiming to have entertained the nicest part of the Tournament.

Pride in the local school is second only among our people to their delight with the behavior of the visitors. The Burlington school as will be seen from the table below took first prize in exactly half of the contests she entered. She took exactly one-third of the total points taken by all the schools.

In the results as tabulated below the column marked "Medals" means first place whether medal banner or some other prize was given.

Sanders and Verona did not come forward with many of their entries, and a few entered from other schools but not contest but as we are not able to ascertain just who these were without great labor and as no reasons were offered for their non-appearance we have counted the original entries with a few that were made after catalogs were printed to get the first column below.

Discus—Dix, Burlington, 112 feet, four inches, Dorman, Walton.

Tennis—Independence, Walton.

Base Ball—Burlington the only entry.

Burlington being the only school that made entries of corn the principal did not have those contests considered.

Prof. Weaver, State University; Prof. Thomas, Centre College, Danville; Prof. Hunt, Berea College, and Prof. Rhodon, Georgetown College, as first set of examiners as it would be possible to get together. Everybody fell in love with that school and individually they were so kind, fair, painstaking and conscientious that they have the good will of everybody who came in contact with them. Perhaps it should be stated that these men gave their services to the Tournament, we paying only their expenses. The only financial statement will appear next week as all bills have not been presented.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, God in his infinite wisdom and mercy, has called from labor on earth to refreshment in that celestial abode our beloved brother, O. B. Utz, who departed this life April 26th, 1914, therefore be it Resolved, That we, the Boone Lodge in the death of Bro. Utz has lost a true and faithful member, his family a kind and loving husband and father.

Resolved, That we deplore the loss we have thus sustained and we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our minutes, a copy sent to the family, and a copy sent to the Boone County Recorder for publication.

A FINE RAIN

Fell Monday Refreshing the Crops and Reviving The Spirits Of the Farmers.

A fine rain visited this county last Monday about 10 a. m., and refreshed the crops and revived the spirits of the farmers who had become very much discouraged over the prospects, owing to the dry weather which had prevailed about three weeks. All those who had their tobacco ground ready were given an opportunity to save their plants which were beginning to wither in the beds. Land which had been broken and could not be worked on account of the large clods was put in a condition to harrow and plant and as a result very little corn in this county will remain to be planted after this week, while that which was planted has not come up is through the ground and will grow rapidly. Some of the early planting is nearly knee high and growing rapidly. The meadows and oats were badly in need of the rain which will bring them out considerably. Also the effects of beginning to quit in the weeds at the very time. It is seldom that the farmers are as sorely distressed by a long period of dry weather this early in the year, but it is never so bad but what it could have been worse. By the way, the potato crop is one that will be materially improved by the rain.

Sheriff John Allison of Kenton county, sent a number of letters to owners of automobiles in Cincinnati and vicinity warning them against violating the speed limit on the Lexington pike. An officer has been stationed on that thoroughfare with instructions to make arrests if the nuisance continues.

IN PLACE OF THE PIE

SOME RECIPES THAT WILL PROVE OF VALUE.

Amber and Chutneys of Jelly Are Among the Best—How to Prepare Macaroni Rosettes—Cocoanut Cream Also Good.

Amber Jelly—Two tablespoons gelatin, one-half cup boiling water, one-half cup cold water, three cups sweet cider, sugar.

Soak gelatin in the cold water for five minutes. Dissolve in boiling water, add cider and sugar. Stir until dissolved and pour into mold.

Chutneys of Jelly—Cut out the center of a round sponge cake, leaving the bottom and sides thick enough to hold a quart of jelly. Prepare a lemon, strawberry, orange or wine jelly, and when it is cold and just ready to form turn into the cake and set aside in a cool place or on ice. When ready to serve cover the top with the chilled froth from a cup of dove cream and a cup of milk beaten with a whip chura. Flavor the cream with vanilla or wine and add one-fourth cup of confectioner's sugar before whipping.

Macaroni Rosettes—One tablespoon gelatin, one-quarter cup cold water, three eggs, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one teaspoon vanilla, two cups milk, one-third cup sugar, two-thirds cup powdered macaroni.

Soak gelatin in the cold water five minutes. Make a custard of the yolks of eggs, milk, sugar and salt. Add gelatin to the hot custard and serve in a cool place. As it thickens add the beaten whites of the eggs, macaroni and vanilla. Serve on rosettes or in patty shells, and garnish with red jelly put through a ricer.

Cocoanut Cream—One tablespoon gelatin, one-quarter cup cold water, one-third cup sugar, one teaspoon vanilla, three eggs, two cups milk, one cup cocoanut, pinch of salt.

Beat yolks of eggs and add sugar. When milk is about boiling stir in eggs and sugar and cook until mixture thickens slightly. Remove from fire and add gelatin, which has been soaked in the cold water five minutes. When cool and beginning to set add cocoanut and whites of eggs beaten stiff, and flavoring. Line a mold with sections of orange and pour in the custard. Serve ice cold.

Corn Beef Salad With Cream Dressing—Select a lean piece of beef and boil it the day before using in enough water to cover it, pouring on the water cold. Do not let it boil hard, but come gradually to the boiling point, then cook slowly until perfectly tender. Pull out the bones, place in a dish, cover with a plate on which place an iron to press the meat and so let it remain until the beef is cold. Cut one pound into half inch pieces. Should there be any fat, remove most of it and make the cream dressing. Two eggs, three tablespoons of vinegar, one tablespoon of rich cream, salt to taste, a quarter tablespoon of mustard and a sprinkle of cayenne. Beat the eggs well, add the salt and mustard, then the vinegar and cream. Put the bowl containing this mixture into a basin of boiling water on the stove and stir until about the thickness of rich cream. Cook and when cold mix part with the chopped meat. Just before time to serve have a head of nice lettuce washed and dried in a cloth. Place the larger leaves on a platter, mix the small ones with the meat and over all pour the remainder of the salad dressing.

Caramel Custard—Cook four tablespoons of sugar until it is a light brown. Put into a baking dish. Beat three eggs with three tablespoons of sugar. Add a cupful and a half of cream or rich milk, and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour it into the baking dish on top of the caramel. Bake in a pan of water until it is set. Instead of cooking this custard in a big dish, a little of the caramel can be put in each of half a dozen custard cups, and the custard mixture poured over it. Then they can be baked and when they are done turned out on individual dishes. Serve cold.

Fruit Salad—Beat yolks of four eggs till very thick; beat into them gradually one cup powdered sugar and one-half teaspoon salt. Beat until light and dissolved. Add juice of two lemons and beat again. Peel and slice thin six bananas and four oranges; put in a deep dish a layer of bananas, then of dressing, then of orange and so on, having bananas on top, and pour the remainder of dressing over it. Serve very cold.

Whipped Cream Sauce—Whip a pint of thick sweet cream, add the beaten whites of two eggs, sweeten to taste; place pudding in center of dish and surround with the sauce; or pile up the pudding surrounded with molded blanc mange or fruit puddings.

Cold Water Cake—One and one-half cups sugar, one-fourth cup butter (1 use half hard), 2½ cups flour, two eggs, one cup water, two teaspoons of baking powder, sifted with some flour. Flavor to taste and frost if you like. This makes a good-sized loaf.

Chinese Salad—Equal parts of cold macaroni cut in small bits, minced ham, lobster and cold boiled carrots, chopped. Mix well and add some good mayonnaise dressing, with a few capers.

KITCHEN AS A LIVING ROOM

A Little Thought Given to Decoration and Appearances Will Make It Attractive.

It is possible to have the kitchen as attractive in its own way as the living room, especially when the woman does the greater part of her work and takes pride and pleasure in having the reputation of being a good housewife.

The display of gaily delft ware kitchen boxes on view in a hardware department is enough to tempt the housewife to redo a dingy kitchen. These boxes, which are made to hold sugar, salt and spices, are labeled and have quaint Dutch scenes in blue and white on them. Half a dozen of these boxes on the kitchen shelf, with a background of clean paint or tiling, present an attractive appearance, as well as a very convenient way of having these articles close at hand. The newest bread boxes have rounded glass windows in the lid, so that the contents may be inspected without raising the lid and admitting the air.

What would our great-grandmothers say to the array of mechanical contrivances which make the up-to-date kitchen resemble a laboratory? There is about as little resemblance between the present methods of cooking and the utensils used, and the ways of yore as there is between our modern gas stove and open fire and hanging crane.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

FOODS DESIGNED FOR SEASON

Apple and Grape Have Been Especially Set Apart by Nature to Serve at This Time.

The wise housekeeper is devoting some attention to the apple and the grape at this season, for they are the most beneficial of all the fruits.

And we need them more now than at any time during the year. Our systems require the proteins, sugars and fats, etc., that they contain in order that we may build up for the long winter which is before us.

The wise housekeeper knows these things. She studies food scientifically and understands just what it is expedient to give her family at each season, just what food will be most nourishing and health-giving for them.

A famous doctor in Germany has said that apples should be placed on the table three times a day and every day in the year.

Uses for Bones.

Almost any bones can be used for soup making—left-over bones from the roasts, bolls, chops, steaks, vegetables, sauces and gravies. There are few bones and left-overs that are at all to be wasted during the year. The basis of good soup. Rib bones of beef can be grilled or roasted, and spare ribs of pork is a favorite dish when well browned and served with cabbage and onions and apple sauce. The ribs of beef with some of the meat attached can be braised and the marrow bones make a very palatable dish boiled or baked.

If some of the sauce as well as chicken is left over for a second day, try to scallop them with the addition of a cupful of canned tomato pulp and rolled crackers.

Method—Place a layer of the seasoned tomatoes in pudding dish, cover with a layer of rolled crackers and bits of butter. Mix the chopped chicken and bread sauce and spread over tomatoes. Now put on rest of tomatoes, crackers enough to form a crust and dot with butter. Bake in moderate oven to heat well and brown top.

Hashed Brown Potatoes.

Peel and wash some raw white potatoes, cut them into inch-square dice. Boil them in salted water until they are tender, then drain off the water. Pour into a buttered pudding dish and pour over them a rich, well-seasoned white sauce. Cover and bake in a good oven for 20 minutes, then, uncover and brown richly and serve. These are delicious with cold-meats and hot biscuits or graham gems.

Buttered Carrots.

Scrape and wash carrots, cook in rapidly boiling water salted until soft. Cut in rather thick slices (one-quarter inch). Pour over them a sauce made by placing a tablespoon of butter on back of stove to melt. Season slightly with salt and pepper. Stir over carefully with fork to blend, garnish with parsley.

Hard Cooked Eggs (Not Boiled).

Put the eggs into a saucepan, pour over them one cupful of cold water for each egg, and one cupful extra. Cover the saucepan and place over a moderate fire. As soon as the water bolls remove it at once and set it in a warm place for twenty minutes.

Cheese and Pimiento Salad.

To one cream or Neufchatel cheese or to three-quarters cupful of cottage cheese add two canned pimientos, cottonseed oil and alfalfa hay and form into small balls. Serve on lettuce leaves with French dressing.

Tomato Salad With Cream.

Slice tomatoes in rather thick slices into sauce bowl, sprinkle with pepper and a little sugar if desired. Chill, and just before serving put over them some whipped cream and sprinkle with chopped olives.

When Frying Eggs.

When frying eggs, add a spoonful of flour mixed with butter in which they are fried and they will look and taste much better, and will also turn without breaking.

DAIRY

PROVIDING SHADE FOR COWS

Farmer Will Find It Profitable to Plant Trees Along Pasture Fence for Resting Place.

The milch cows must have shade in the summer time if they give the best results. The cow will dil herself up with green grass by noon or a little after if the pasture is good, then she will want to lie down and rest. If the weather is hot, she cannot rest in peace in the hot sun. She should have a dense shade made by large trees or a shed where she may find refuge from the sun's beaming rays.

It will pay the farmer to plant trees along his pasture fence rather than let his cows suffer. A wooded pasture is an ideal place for the cows. They will drink at the brook and recline beneath the shade and be comfortable. All their surplus food, writes W. D. Neale in an exchange, will be used for manufacturing milk and not in fighting flies. A cow that must stand out in the hot sun all day and fight flies will fall rapidly in her milk. She utilizes her food in strength for fighting flies. That is one reason cows often fall in the quality of their milk during the hot months.

A shed can be constructed cheaply in case there are no trees in the pasture. Posts can be set in the ground, a frame work made on top of them, which may be covered with straw or old hay. The shadow of this will be quite a refuge for the cows in the heat of the day.

With good shade, plenty of clean water and an abundant pasture, the milch cow will be a profitable animal to the farmer. She may lose him money without these.

REAR CALVES ON SKIM MILK

Some Additional Feed is Necessary to Replace Fat—Flax Seed and Oil Meal Recommended.

(By G. E. MORTON, Colorado Agricultural College.)

Question: "What should be mixed into separator milk to be fed to calves? I had poor luck with my calves last summer, they seemed to be hungry but didn't grow very much. I always took the froth off as quickly as I finished turning the separator, but didn't mix anything with the milk. How would ground corn and barley mixed, or either of them put into the milk? And when should calves be put on separator milk, or at what age?"

Answer: "Calves need some feed in addition to skim milk, in order to replace the fat which has been taken off the milk. Cook whole flax seed, or flax seed meal, and feed about a double handful at a feed mixed in the milk. If you cannot secure the oil meal or flax seed, use ground corn and oats preferably, or ground corn and barley."

"In raising skim milk calves, you should dilute the whole milk about a week after calving, replacing whole milk with skim milk at the rate of an additional quart each week, so that at six weeks they should be on skim milk without any whole milk."

WAY TO KEEP A GATE TRUE

Trouble Caused by Warping and Sagging Overcome by Hanging Slide Affairs on Boards.

My slide gates gave me a great deal of trouble by warping out of shape until I remedied it by hanging them on short boards, a when closed, and b, when opened wide, writes Keeps Gate True.

Joseph Stewart of Missouri in the Independent Farmer. This keeps them always in the same position and they do not warp any more as they did when one end rested on the ground.

Feeding Dairy Cows.

At the Oklahoma station, on a ration of wheat, bran, corn crop, alfalfa hay and roughage the cost of milk per gallon was 11.2 cents. When on a ration similar to the above, with the addition of cottonseed meal, the cost of milk was 10.9 cents per gallon, but the quantity was slightly decreased.

In another test the cost of milk production on a ration of bran, corn crop, cottonseed meal and alfalfa hay the cost was 11.7 per gallon. On a similar ration with silage as a supplement, the cost was 10.4 per gallon, and the yield was slightly increased.

Cause of Bowel Troubles.

Bowel troubles in calves are sometimes caused by milk that is excessively rich. Milk that is moderate or low in butter fat is usually better for young calves. Indigestion in older calves is usually due to unclean vessels, close confinement in dark, unsanitary stalls and irregular or excessive feeding. In some cases it appears to be due mainly to shock weakness and inability to digest.

Colds

should be "nipped in the bud", for if allowed to run unchecked, serious results may follow. Numerous cases of consumption, pneumonia, and other fatal diseases, can be traced back to a cold. At the first sign of a cold, protect yourself by thoroughly cleansing your system with a few doses of

The High Bred Percheron Stallion Prince Olsen

Will make the season of 1914 at my farm, 2 miles west of Walton, Boone County, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a living colt. Persons parting with mares forfeit the insurance money. A lien retained on colt until season money is paid.

DESCRIPTION & EDIGREE.

PRINCE OLSEN was foaled in 1907, and is one model of his class. He weighs 1700 lbs. and is 17½ hands high. He is a beautiful black, and is a picture of symmetry and fine points of the draft horse. His breeding qualities are excellent.

Prince Olsen was sired by Black-moon, a registered Percheron stallion owned by Ole G. Oleson, of Shabbona Grove, Ill., and from whom he was purchased by me, selecting this horse over many others because of his excellent qualities. Prince Olsen is eligible to registry, and is one of the highest bred draft horses ever in this section of the country. The dam of Prince Olsen was a high bred registered Percheron mare.

TWO FINE YOUNG JACKS.

Also at the same place and under the same conditions I will offer for public service my two fine breeding Jacks.

BEN

is a black Jack with meaty points, 7 years old, 15.3 hands high, large bone and big body, very long ear, and has proven himself to be one of the best breeders in Ky. His mares are quick sellers and several have been sold at $25 at weaning time. His service fee will be $10.00.

DEWEY

is another fine Jack, 5 years old and a half brother to Ben. His fee will be $10.00.

Both Jacks are high in class, and are excellent breeders. Come and see them before breeding. It may pay you.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

JOSEPH READNOUR
Walton, Ky.

Plutarch 8183

Will make the season of 1914 at my stable one mile west of Idlewild, Boone County, Kentucky, at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when the colt is foaled or the mare is parted with.

I will give a return season for the best colt, the 1913 get of this stallion, regardless of sex, to be shown at the Boone County Harvest Home this fall.

Write for pedigree and particulars.

LANKY BOB

Will make the season at my stable at $8.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Lanky Bob is five years old, 15.3 hands high and a splendid individual.

In handling the above stock care will be taken to prevent accidents, but I will not be responsible should any occur.

Parties breeding to either of these animals must follow up the season.

No business done on Sunday.

MILK AFTER JULY 1

Must be Pasteurized as From Tuberculin-Tested Cows.

After July 1 all milk offered for sale in Cincinnati must either come from a tuberculin-tested cow or must be pasteurized.

This edict went forth from the Board of Health yesterday and the ruling will be rigidly enforced.

Chief Food Examiner Blume's report on the subject shows that only about 19 per cent of the milk sold here is not pasteurized.—Enquirer May 23.

Handsomely Entertained.

Last Friday night Miss Sadie Lee Snyder entertained most handsomely at her delightful home near Hopeful, the members of the recent graduated class of the Boone County High School. The supper service consisted of the delicacies of the season, the preparation of which required a supervision by one proficient in the culinary art. Miss Sadie Lee proved herself a most delightful hostess and there was not a dull moment during the evening. Those present of the graduating class were Misses Gessie Castaneda, Sadie Lee Snyder, Messrs. Harold Crigler, Courtney Kelly, Reuben Hager, Carl Anderson and Wallace Rice. Of the friends of Miss Snyder other than the graduates present on this occasion were Prof. and Mrs. E. L. Dix, Miss Ruth Kelly, Robt. Rice and wife and Mrs. John S. Surface.

ULSTERMEN DRILLING WITH CONTRABAND ARMS

Law Enforcement in Brethitt.

In sentencing to prison the three men convicted of the murder of Ed Callahan in Brethitt county, Circuit Judge Benton took occasion to say in court at Winchester Saturday that the whole trouble came about because the law had not been enforced.

"If," said Judge Benton, "the law had been to be enforced fifteen or twenty years ago and the people who started the trouble, had been punished by a penalty of life imprisonment, the conditions would have been stopped long ago." All of this is true. For many years one of the feudal factions was in practically complete control of affairs in Brethitt county. During that time court trials were a farce, and a long series of murders went unpunished. Callahan himself was sheriff of the county during a portion of that period, but was a mere automation whose movements were directed by able and shrewd men. When his enemies met him on a common level, stripped of his official and political power, they made short shrift of him by the same methods that had been so successfully employed by the ruling faction.

The malign conditions which once prevailed in Brethitt county were abnormal. That they persisted so long was a disgrace to the State no less than to Brethitt county. In recent years it has been possible to punish crime in the long suffering section of the State and the good effects of law enforcement are visible. The law abiding element should be grateful to Judge Benton and other judges who have been called upon from time to time to take a hand in the adjustment of criminal affairs. Assassination has ceased in that section of Brethitt county and there are good citizens in plentiful number to see that the law is enforced. By lawlessness Brethitt can be made as peaceful as any county in the State.—C. G.

Won a Reputation.

The Southern States at one time years ago produced large numbers of hogs and cured in quantities all of the bacon necessary to feed the people. At the present time the demand for cured hogs and bacon is said to be a single southern State and of but few counties in any of these States. There is one county in Georgia, however, that is showing the signs of being done in raising hogs. Brooks county holds the distinction of producing and selling more bacon than any other county in Georgia. Recently 22 wagon loads of cured bacon were delivered at Quitman in one day. This amounted to 45,000 pounds.

Last year Brooks county raised the meat necessary for home consumption, shipped out several carloads of hogs, and in addition sold 150,000 pounds of bacon at an average price of 14 cents a pound. This year it is estimated that Brooks county will sell 250,000 pounds of bacon in addition to what is needed for home consumption, and the large numbers of hogs shipped to the markets. About 1,000 head of fat cattle will also be marketed from the county. The raising of live stock has been accomplished at a sacrifice of other crops, but has been profitable, with the result that those who have taken up this line of work are becoming the leading and most prosperous farmers in the county. The cash receipts for the live stock and bacon sold from the county is near $100,000.

What is being done in Brooks county is believed could be done in other counties. This would put the farmer on a better financial footing. The boys of Brooks county have manifested a great interest in the organization of pig clubs and an exceedingly creditable exhibit will probably be made by the boys at the county fair in the fall.—Indiana Farmer.

Of Interest to Women.

The triumph of taffeta is proclaimed aloud by coats and skirts, ruffles and hats.

The little handbag carried in to dinner get smaller and smaller and even richer.

A Hundred Years Ago.

The world has changed more in the last one hundred years than in the thousand years that have gone before. To get some idea of the wonderful changes that have taken place, let us go back to 1811 and note how many, many things our great-grand-parents did not have which we have today. It will not only astonish us but it will also make us realize how much we have to be thankful for.

There were no canned goods of any kind. There were no tin cans, neither were there any cars to bring fresh fruits and vegetables—like strawberries and tomatoes and lettuce—from the south and from California. In fact, there were no such places in the U. S. as Florida and Texas and California. They were all of them waste places or foreign lands. They belonged to England and Spain and France and Mexico. Oranges, bananas, pineapples, Malaga grapes, grapefruit, olives and other tropical fruits which are so familiar to all of us, were never seen in the markets of 1811. Boys and girls of that day only heard about them from travelers or read of them in books.

Dinners were cooked in fire places. There were no ranges. There were no gas stoves; no oil stoves; no coal stoves; no cook stoves of any kind. Housewives had no baking powders, no yeast cakes, no self-raising flour, no granulated sugar, no flavoring cocoa, no potted meats, no cat-sup, no prepared breakfast foods, no soda crackers, no macaroni. All the coffee had to be roasted and ground at home. Housekeepers had no vacuum cleaners, no carpet sweeper, no ammonia nor borax nor gasoline nor moth ball nor fly paper, nor fly screens. And they had no matches, no electric lights, and no kerosene.

There were no sewing machines in 1811. All clothes were made by hand. There were no ready-made things of any kind, not even shoes nor hats. Nearly every family spun its own wool and flax and made its own thread and yarn and cloth. The clothes for the boys and girls and the men and women were made at home. So, also, were the carpets, the candles, the soap, the mattresses and the chairs and tables. There were no furniture factories, no ready-made desks, nor bookcases nor bedsteads nor anything else. Such things as were made at home were made to order by the shoemaker, the hatter, the tailor or the cabinet maker. Clothing stores, shoe stores, furniture stores, and so on, were unheard of in 1811. Nobody wore rubbers. That was because there were no rubbers. There were no rubber goods of any kind—overshoes, waterproofs, rain coats, rubber balls, pencil erasers, hot water bags nor anything else. There were no garden hose nor fire hose. There were no water mains nor fire engines. When a house caught fire, men put it out if they could, by throwing buckets of water on the flames.

Fireplaces were the only means of keeping a house warm. There were no furnaces, no coal stoves. Here and there a wealthy family owned a wood stove, but that was not a luxury. Steam heating and hot water heating were unheard of, so, also, were kitchen ranges and hot water boilers. There were no bath rooms, there were no plumbing and the towns had no sewers. And not only had they no sewers, but they had no street cars.—Selected.

A Remarkable Trial.

One of the most remarkable trials ever witnessed in the Clark Circuit Court, will begin June 29, when the Callahan feud cases will again occupy the attention of the court for a 66-day special term. There are 14 murder cases and 23 false swearing indictments to be tried, and it is thought the dock will be cleared at this term. "Red Tom" Davidson whose mule, it is a legend, figured in the assassination of Callahan will probably be tried first.—Winchester Democrat.

Deep Cultivation vs. Shallow.

Deep cultivation should not be practiced during the growing season of the year and is not necessary if the soil has been properly prepared previous to the sowing of the seed. If so prepared it will not be sufficiently compact to make a penetration by means of the roots an uncertain feature. Surface cultivation will accomplish both processes of conservation, namely, the conservation of soil moisture first, and second, the eradication of noxious weeds and the like, both procedures being necessary to reserve for the growing crop its full complement of soil moisture. In most instances the greatest damage done to a growing crop by weeds and the like is caused by their withdrawing from the soil of this soil water which we are so anxious to conserve. Consequently cultivation which aims at the conservation of soil moisture stops short of accomplishing its full purpose, namely, the eradication of weeds and the like at the same time.

NOTES From MEADOWBROOK FARM

Start a good hedge.

A windmill saves money.

Goats like sunflower leaves.

Silage never goes out of season.

Market eggs at least twice a week.

Get rid of the hen that is never caught on the nest.

The warmer the weather the less corn should be fed to poultry.

It is better to cut a chicken's head off than to let him eat it off.

The cow that is always bawling is seldom best at filling the pail.

The modern poultry house have everything inside it easily movable.

The dairy cow offered for sale "cheap" these days is not to be trusted.

Head off the lice and mites. Now is the time to thrust in the whitewash brush.

Just because the calf is large and thrifty is no sign it will be a wonderful cow.

Unless very poor, better give bluegrass a top-dressing instead of trying to re-seed it.

Feed at regular hours and the fowls will always be ready and waiting for their last meal.

The common curly lettuce is the best for early use. Head lettuce is better for late sowing.

Breeding stock cannot be divorced from outdoor exercise without being injured more than benefited.

In a corn-growing territory cowpeas are mostly grown with corn, sowing broadcast or otherwise.

Be sure the stock has plenty of fresh water. If the sheep drink from springs, keep the approaches dry.

Corn silage is a safe feed for lambs when it is free from mold and does not contain an excessive amount of acid.

Commercial growers of plums and peaches who have tried thinning consider it very important in getting good fruit.

Rotation of crops is one of the simple, practical methods of increasing the productivity of the farm and distributing labor.

An acre of corn yielding eight tons of silage will keep four cows 180 days — an acre of pasture will keep only one cow that long.

A well built grape trellis not only improves the looks of the back yard, but affords excellent shade, besides increasing the yield of fruit.

The sweet cherry is the only tree fruit that can be universally set out in the fall successfully and be better than for spring setting.

These are gala days for lice. Fight them strong and hard. Kerosene will do deadly work. Pour it in every crack and crevice. Don't spare it.

In picking strawberries it should be borne in mind that bruised fruit will not stand shipping. A careless picker has no place in a strawberry field.

What a young sow loses in growth, that she should make before farrowing her first litter, it is questionable whether she can ever be made to make it up.

With hogs it is not best to crowd the breeding stock to their full capacity. A thrifty growth without too much fat is best for the stock intended for breeders.

Corn breeders claim that it is possible to double their crops by improved methods. Is it not possible for us to double our pig crop without keeping more sows?

The richest color of the cream is when it first rises to the surface, and is churned in that condition the butter will be yellow. If it remains exposed to the light and changes of temperature the rich yellow color disappears.

Live stock men say that improved methods of feeding and marketing hogs, together with the public demand for more lean meat and less fat in the pork line, explains the decrease in weight. The same is true about cattle. Best steers are averaging much lighter than thirty years ago.

Cater to the public.

Spray the vegetables.

Never pasture too closely.

Sheep are sensitive creatures.

It takes about eight weeks to grow a broiler.

Warm barns do not always conduce to health and vitality.

It is well to have cows and heifers in good flesh at calving time.

Don't use second hand packages for your comb or extracted honey.

Measure out your grain according to the work your horses are doing.

Hogs are susceptible to rheumatism if allowed to sleep in wet or damp beds.

Underfeeding is responsible for more small milk yields than is a poor cow.

The home garden needs rotation just as much as any other part of the farm.

The health of every animal should be carefully watched and every symptom treated.

Keep the mud cleaned off the horses' legs and they will not have cracked heels.

One of the big arguments in favor of the incubator is that the chicks are not born lousy.

A little more elbow grease used in keeping the premises clean will often prevent disease.

Sweet corn is a very profitable crop. One reason for this is because it is so easily handled.

Keeping two cows to do the work of one constitutes the biggest leak in the dairy business.

Handle the young boar carefully. Teach him to obey the word, and to walk ahead of you.

Handle the brood sows so that the young pigs will begin to grow from the time of their birth.

A half pint of carbolic acid in two gallons of water makes a good disinfectant for any purpose.

Fine rotted manure from the stables may be applied with great benefit to grass if spread early.

Try a few moth balls in the nesting material of setting hens and the vermin will be less troublesome.

Can you get ten pounds of pork out of a bushel of corn? That is what the big men tell us we ought to do.

Butter for market containing coloring matter must be so labeled where the coloring matter is injurious as a food.

The amount of milk in the pail is about the only "mark" of a good milk cow that may always be depended upon.

A dipper of very warm water turned over cabbage heads several times during the season, will destroy cabbage worms.

Many growers say that weeds are as valuable as fertilizers as clover and cowpeas if they are turned under every year.

Keep on the constant lookout to destroy insect eggs and cocoons frequently seen near rubbish heaps and on the bark of trees.

To rid the hen house of mites get a 25-cent spray pump and spray every crack and crevice with coal oil. Repeat this every two weeks.

'Some fruit growers say that it is not a good plan to plow an orchard when the trees are in blossom — better do it before or after.

Good digestion is the result of feeding enough to sustain the animal, but not enough to keep the stomach in an overloaded condition all the time.

It is better to give the crop a thorough soaking once a week, than to sprinkle lightly over it. Light sprinkling tends to keep the roots near the surface.

The summer silo is a grand thing for the dairy farmer, but it takes a tremendous amount of pounding to wake some of us up to a realization of that fact.

It is a mistake to think that hogs or any other animals can shift for themselves. If they are young, and then expect that you can make up for such neglect in the end.

Warts on cattle or horses can be killed by applying castor oil well rubbed in twice a day for a week or two. Biting warts out with acids does not give satisfaction, but castor oil seems to destroy them root and branch.

Indigestion in older calves is usually due to unclean milk or feed, unclean vessels, close confinement in dark, milking stalls and irregular or excessive feeding. In some cases it appears to be due mainly to sheer weakness and inability to digest.

That You Save Money

In buying new WHEELS is because the repairing costs nearly as much and sometimes more than new wheels. Here is an example: A customer wanted new rims and new tires on his wheels. The cost of this work is at least $10.00 and the price of spokes added to it. I told that man four good, NEW wheels for $8.00. Putting shaft in a buggy costs you sometimes $2.00. I sell you a complete, new, well-trimmed shaft for $2.50 to $2.75; also good ironed Buggy and Spring Wagon poles for $4.75 and $4.50. This material sold twice as high five years ago, but automobiles cause these low prices. Come and look at the wheels.

STATE NEWS.

Trenton—Fire destroyed a stock barn containing thirteen head of mules, a fine jack, provender and harness, the property of Dr. R. R. Grady, of Runnymede farm, near this city. The loss is estimated at $4,000, only about one-third covered by insurance.

Bowling Green—Reports come from Woodburn vicinity, this county, that the army worm, one of the most destructive pests of the farm, has attacked crops in that section, doing great damage. The worm's work is plainly visible in wheat fields and in orchard grass meadows.

Paducah—Wheat stalks six feet in height are on exhibition here by the Board of Trade. They were brought in from the county by County Agent Kippatrick as examples of the value of fertilizer. The wheat was grown from soil treated with manure lime and phosphate and is pronounced the highest grade of wheat.

Elkton—The army worm continues to do considerable damage to crops in various sections of the county, especially to corn and meadows. While wet weather is said to be destructive to the pests, farmers are taking no chances and are ditching their land in order to drag with hogs when the worms are thus imprisoned in the course of their destructive march.

Frankfort—A unique plan for raising funds for the erection of a Kentucky building at the Panama Pacific Exposition and at the same time advertise Kentucky's resources and reveal the home life in this State, has been adopted by the State Commission. The plan is a moving picture exhibit. Those who wished to be represented in the moving picture show in the Kentucky building will be charged according to the number of feet of film they use.

Winchester—Probably one of the oldest men in Eastern Kentucky is Uncle Johnnie Shell, of Leslie county, who if he lives will be 105 years old in September. Mr. Shell has as good eyesight as a man 75 years old or younger, and bids fair to live for many more years. He rode horseback to Harlan last week to pay his taxes in that county. His wife, who died about one year ago, was more than 100 years old, and both his parents lived beyond the century mark.

Judge John D. Carroll came down from Frankfort Saturday morning and was at work in his garden by 7 o'clock. He finds that bugs and worms are as busy in his patches and beds as Villa's army. It is discouraging to the Judge. He says that in the future he intends to adopt a plan of a man he read about and plant his garden on the first of July. This man, when ridiculed by a friend and told that the gardens would not do any good when planted so late, replied that he didn't expect to raise much stuff, but would save a whole lot of work. —Newcastle Local.

Historic Fools.

Christopher Columbus was a fool to think that the earth was round and also might contain lands hitherto undiscovered.

Martin Luther was a fool to defy the established church of his country and to preach salvation by faith rather than by money.

Galileo was a fool to insist that the world moved around the sun, particularly as the statement involved his life imprisonment.

Napoleon was a fool to look for courage and a sense of honor in a people who had just succeeded in murdering their king and a great part of their aristocracy.

William Wordsworth was a fool for trying to write interesting poetry by merely describing what he saw.

George Washington was a fool to claim that a British colony could be governed in any other way than that of the British empire.

Benjamin Franklin was a fool because he thought that the lightning could be harnessed.

Richard Stevenson was a fool to believe that steam could be utilized for making a machine travel on wheels.

Richard Wagner was a fool to use the operatic stage for the production of realistic and dramatic effects.

Woodrow Wilson was a fool to demand that the Union be preserved on a basis of freedom and quality for all men.

Bismarck was a fool to attempt an organization and centralization of the heterogeneous German kingdoms.

Woodrow Wilson was a fool to place morality and conscience above expediency and the line of least resistance.—Ex.

Notice the Beds on "Thornhill" Wagons

The beds of "Thornhill" wagons are designed and finished with excessive care. The sides are made of first class poplar, because it holds paint better and gives better service.

The bottom of the beds are of Southern pine tongue and grooved and reinforced over front and rear bolsters. A system of construction is employed that prevents the reinforcing from ever falling out and insures longest wear.

Throughout the "Thornhill" Wagon, you will find the features that have proved themselves worthy.

The long sleeve malleable skein (non-breakable) prevents the axle from breaking at the skein. The strength of the bolsters is multiplied by the construction employed. The front hound plate is so made that the gears can never get out of line. You will find in this wagon six big points of superiority that no other wagon possesses. Come in and let us show you the "Thornhill" wagon sold on a guarantee. Do it to-day.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce Hon. A. B. Rouse as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this the Sixth Congressional District, subject to the action of the Democratic party at the Primary Election, Saturday, August 1, 1914.

Too bad, Johnnie Bull will not participate in the Panama Exposition at San Francisco.

Eighty-two thousand men are needed in the West for the harvesting of the crops this summer.

Some of the Williamson bootleggers were given pretty stiff fines in the Grant circuit court last week.

Indications are that the Congressional campaign in the 7th District will reach a white heat in the next three weeks.

Falmouth, Pendleton county, has free mail delivery, which will require the numbering of all the houses in the city.

It seems some Democrats are disposed to bolt the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator if their candidate is defeated.

The new law governing the operation of automobiles in Kentucky has some good features as well as several that are extremely foolish.

The Equitable Life Insurance society rates a base ball player four years older than the man who works at a "non-hazardous" occupation.

Having secured free mail delivery for Falmouth, Pendleton county, Congressman Rouse is working to secure a free delivery for Carrollton.

The Williamson treasury is depleted, and the Grant County News attributes its condition to tax dodging on the part of wealthy property owners.

The race for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator has not caused much discussion in this county, but now on it will begin to warm up.

According to reports from over the State about ninety per cent of an average tobacco crop has been pitched and there are enough plants left to plant as much more. It now looks like a bumper tobacco crop will be produced in Kentucky this year.

Claude M. Thomas, the Paris banker-lawyer and former State Senator from the Bourbon-Scott-Woodford district, has formerly announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress in the 7th district, against Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill, of Georgetown, who defeated him four years ago for the same nomination.

A big swindle was successfully worked on a Cincinnati bank one day last week. It has developed that the party who put it over had been working to that end for some time, having acquired the confidence of a prominent business man whom he used successfully in his scheme, which was worked along unusual lines well calculated to remove all suspicion of evil intentions.

By actual figures growers of lettuce at Paducah have shown that every acre of lettuce in the county association brought in $2,000 this year. The growers averaged 105,600 plants to an acre and the plants weigh a half pound on an average. The lettuce brought 5 and 6 cents per pound and the growers base their profit on an 80 per cent yield, which is conservative. The lettuce was sold in Detroit.

A bill making it unlawful for any cabinet officers, department heads or clerks to lecture for pay other than traveling expenses, during the time he occupies his position and forbidding members of Congress to lecture for pay while Congress is in session has been introduced in the House of Representatives. A ten thousand dollar fine and imprisonment not exceeding two years is the penalty the proposed law carries.

In speaking of Judge Cammack's successor on the bench, last Sunday's Lexington Enquirer puts in the running Attorneys Botts and Cunningham, of Owen county, and Judge P. E. Cason and Attorney Strother, of this county. It is said Judge Cammack will not stand for reelection, consequently those who have the bees in their bonnets will begin to get busy at an early date.

These hot days are making the members of Congress anxious to get back to their homes where they can enjoy the shade and pure country breezes. The numerous devices for making the capitol comfortable during the heated term does not render it as attractive at this season of the year as a shady nook in the rural precincts. There is no place like home even to a Congressman when the weather is excessively sultry.

The RECORDER desires to suggest to the fiscal court that it would be doing the proper thing by tearing up the stone pavement on the south and west sides of the court house square and replacing it with concrete.

The RECORDER is aware that there are some people who will charge that the above is a selfish suggestion, made in the interest of the town of Burlington, but men who are broad minded and progressive enough to hold the office of Justice of the Peace will not look at the matter from that standpoint in view of the facts.

The pavement on the west side of the lot is in a miserable condition and is criticized by every stranger who passes over it. The pavement on the south side of the lot is in better condition but far from what it should be considering the ability of its owner to have better.

In so far as the citizens of Burlington are concerned they use these two stretches of pavement very little, but on them the court day crowds assemble for hours at a time and no wise in a comfortable position owing to the uneven surface of these pavements.

The people of Boone county who go abroad return, and never fail to extol the public improvements they saw. This proves that Boone county people appreciate and admire good public improvements, then why not have something along that line at home?

The court house is all that the business of the county demands, and would be a much more pretentious looking building were it surrounded by a good pavement, which the wealth of the county justifies.

The RECORDER is reliably informed that the principalship of the Boone County High School has been tendered J. C. Gordon, of the Hebron neighborhood, who has asked a few days in which to consider the proposition.

Mr. Gordon has had considerable experience as an educator having held for many years the position of principal in a college at Eminence, Henry county, where he has the reputation of being a very fine instructor.

Being a native citizen of this county and having children to educate, Mr. Gordon is particularly interested in the success of the school, and can be relied on to give it his best efforts, and it appears to the RECORDER that there are several reasons for the employment of Mr. Gordon that can not be advanced in favor of any other applicant of whom the RECORDER has any knowledge.

Mr. Gordon is a man of mature age and his presence will command the respect of the pupils, which is very necessary to the success of any school.

Mr. Gordon appears to be the man to take up the work of the Boone County High School where Prof. Dix left off and to continue its success.

The RECORDER does not question the ability of any of the applicants to teach a splendid school as their credentials, it understands, show that they have been eminently successful along that line, but it considers Mr. Gordon has more to energize his efforts to keep the school at its present high grade of efficiency than could be expected of a principal who is a stranger to the patrons and who has no interests in common with the people of the county.

Nine hundred million bushels of wheat, a new record for the United States, is the prospective total yield of the country this year, according to announcement by the Department of Agriculture.

Hon. Richard P. Ernst, of Covington, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator. There will be several other Republicans entries in the primary election.

An Old Relic.

Willie D. James, of Bethlehem, exhibited to the editor Wednesday a plover that is truly a relic. It belonged originally to his great grandfather, Thos. James. From him it descended to a son, John James, and from him to his son, David James. The latter is now living at the age of 88 years with his son, E. T. James, Jr., who is the father of Willie D. It is a remarkable fact that this plover has been all the time on one of the farms owned by Mr. James—at least 125 years—New Castle Local.

Hendrickson Arrested.

Pineville, June 8.—Press Hendrickson, who, with his brother "Happy John" Hendrickson, is charged with having shot and killed Tom Miller at Four Mile on December 23 and having wounded Deputy Sheriff J. W. Haynes in a pitched battle with officers sent to arrest them was captured near St. Charles, Va. last night by Sheriff Rufus Wilson. He was brought to Pineville this morning and lodged in jail. So far bail has been denied.

The Meat We Eat.

The Lexington Board of Health is about to institute prosecutions against the slaughterhouses as the result of a report made by the City Meat and Dairy Inspector.

A dispatch from Lexington quotes the City Bacteriologist as having said among other things that "every slaughter house is infested with a million flies and the conditions are horrible." The further opinion was expressed that if the citizens of Lexington were acquainted with the actual state of affairs "not a respectable man or woman in the city would allow a piece of home-killed meat to enter his or her home."

This is not pleasing information for persons who believe in patronizing home enterprise, but it accords very well with the usual official reports on slaughter-house conditions in Kentucky cities.

There are few places where the meat supply is entirely satisfactory from a sanitary standpoint.

tion is how long are these things to be tolerated by the people of Lexington and other cities?

Meat is generally considered an essential article of human food. There are persons who claim to thrive on a strictly vegetarian diet and they are to be envied by those who feel that they require meat and are compelled to take pot luck with the products of the average Kentucky slaughter house.

We have had much talk about cleaning up the meat supply. Persuasion does not seem to have had much effect. It is high time for a change of tactics.—C. J.

Studebaker

THE CAR FOR THE COUNTRY.

If you are thinking of buying a real Automobile, let me show you the superiority of the "Studebaker." Where Strength, Easy Riding, Latest Improvements and Low maintenance are considered the Studebaker has no equal. No other car in the world selling for the same money—$1050, has the construction and conveniences of the Studebaker—a full floating rear axle with Nimken Roller Bearings throughout, eliminates all axle troubles and adds 50 per cent. to the strength and power of the car; electrically started and lighted makes driving a pleasure. Model R. Schibler Carburetor, the latest and best manufactured, with direct feed adds power on the hills.

If interested and for full information write me at Union or call Beaver 90. You put yourself under no obligation whatever by asking for a free demonstration. See the "Studebaker" before buying, compare it with any other car available.

Crows have destroyed considerable young corn in the northern part of the county.

The rain Sunday washed the plowed land in some of the fields in this neighborhood.

Judge Ben Stephens, of Florence, was a business visitor to Burlington last Friday.

Wheat harvest will be on hand in a few days. The acreage in this county is very small.

A fine shower and considerable wind visited this locality last Sunday about one o'clock.

Wallace Rice, who is employed in the Boone Co. Deposit Bank, is boarding at W. J. Rice's.

The Odd-Fellows' lodge at Bellevue will conduct memorial services next Sunday afternoon.

A lawn mower and an adequate amount of muscle will keep the sides of the streets looking nice.

A moving picture show struck the town Monday and is capturing all the spare dimes and nickels.

W. L. Kirkpatrick, local dealer in livestock, has begun gathering his this year's purchase of lambs.

The construction of the proposed turnpike in this county should have been well under way by this time.

If you are not done planting corn you would better postpone the work until next year for an early start.

About two hundred newspaper the annual Kentucky press outing at Dawson Springs.

The first tank of oil for use on the streets arrived Monday afternoon and Washington street was given a good coat.

The weather is beginning to justify those feminine fashions that are chiefly remarkable for their irreducible minimum of clothes.—Pittsburg-Gazette-Times.

The weather this week has been tough on men and teams in the fields. When the mercury is climbing up to the century mark men and teams should go slow.

The ladies on the North Bend road will give a strawberry supper for the benefit of the pike at Dr. F. L. Sayer's, in Hebron, Saturday night, June 13. Everybody invited.

Hardin county grand jury returned eight indictments after being in session a week, all for minor offenses and the smallest number ever found by a grand jury in that county.

Some of the Burlington autoists had their troubles last Sunday on account of mud and sand that was encountered in their travels. Autoing is not all pleasure and is anything else some times.

T. W. Finch and family, who have resided for many years in Los Angeles, Calif., have moved to Oakland, that State, where his son-in-law, J. Griffith, has charge of a large piano house.

It is strange but nevertheless true that many persons can tell exactly how road should be worked, but when they undertake the job they make a failure—the difference between theory and practice.

Farmers throughout the Burley belt are now jubilant over the prospects of a good tobacco crop, as they can now go ahead and put out their plants, the setting of which has been greatly delayed by the drought.

Sandford, pitching for Maysville and Black for Lexington in the Three States League, have made good this season, and stand very high with their respective clubs. With some luck and a lot of good pitching, Black has made a wonderful record this season.

Caused by Lightning.

Last Sunday between twelve and one o'clock lightning struck the building over the ice house in the farm belonging to John Jones near Bullittsville. The structure was destroyed in short time by the fire that resulted. Loss about $150. No insurance.

Good Lamb Sale.

W. L. Kirkpatrick bought of Rice Bros. of Pleasant Creek, Ind., one day last week, 150 lambs at $5 per head. This is the biggest lot of lambs sold off of this year. They have sixty lambs which they did not sell.

They Know How.

If this county had properly located 1000 road men at good Hubert White, Chas. Gaines and Temp Graves, there would be very little demand for the building of turnpikes. Traveling over the roads they have looked after the past year is a pleasure.

Erlanger is Easy.

The Burlington base ball team visited Erlanger last Saturday afternoon, and defeated the team there 9 to 3. Carter who has heretofore been a puzzle to the boys was easy last Saturday and they made a runaway game of it. Huey and Slayback were the Burlington battery.

Love-Cason.

Lennie Love, son of Jos. Love, of Union neighborhood, and Miss Runda Cason, daughter of Mrs. Ben Cason, of Middle creek neighborhood, were married in Covington, last Tuesday. The young couple and many of the bride's friends were entertained at the home of the bride's mother last Thursday evening.

Teachers Employed.

About all the teachers for the schools in this county were employed for the ensuing school term last Saturday. The securing of teachers for the schools is a very important matter and placed upon those who have that duty to perform a responsibility of far greater moment than people generally realize.

An Ownerless Gun.

One day last week Sheriff W. D. Cropper, when out in the country came upon two men whose horse had been acting ugly and turned their buggy over. While assisting the men to get straitened out the officers found a nice pistol lying on the ground near the scene of the accident. Neither of the men claimed the gun and to date he has not found an owner for it.

Well Known About Florence.

Mrs. Wallace Cox died at her home, Crestwood, Oldham county, several days ago. Mrs. Cox was the adopted daughter of Mrs. W. D. Cox, of the late J. J. Boyd, who many years ago lived where Batty Long now resides near Florence, and will be remembered by many of the older citizens of Florence vicinity. Mrs. Cox was a noble, christian woman. The remains were interred in Evergreen cemetery, Newport.

Everything Lovely in Oldham.

Under date of June 4th, Milton Goodridge, of Oldham county, writes the Recorder:

We had a fine rain, Monday, which was much needed. Wheat is fine, oats looking well, some corn knee high, some corn to plant yet, tobacco plants fine and ample took advantage of the rain and planted some tobacco, pastures fine, and gardens look well. I have had some potatoes large enough to use, beans are in bloom.

Fell and Broke Her Arm.

Mrs. Sarah Carpenter, one of Burlington's aged citizens, slipped and fell on her porch last Friday, breaking a bone in her right arm near the shoulder. Accompanied by Dr. Yelton, Rev. Edgar Riley and Mrs. Edgar Riley and Mrs. Chas. Goodridge she was taken to a surgeon in Cincinnati where an X-ray photograph was taken of the injury to determine its character and extent, after which the fracture was reduced and the injured arm placed in plaster. Mrs. Carpenter came home that evening and has suffered considerably from the injury. Her right arm has been particularly unfortunate, it having been broken twice before.

David A. Platt Married.

David A. Platt, a member of the editorial staff of The San Diego Union, and Ethel I. Holford were married last evening by Rev. Howard B. Ward. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few friends of the bride and the bridegroom. The bride is the daughter of Professor Joseph Holford of the Model Boy school of Norwich, England. Platt has been connected with The Union for nearly a year, before which time he was on the staff of the Commercial-Tribune of Cincinnati.

The bridegroom kept the fact that the wedding was to take place a secret from his fellow workers with great success. It was only at the last moment that the discovery was made that a routine source of news—the daily list of marriage licenses, if it is said by close friends of Platt, that on his wedding day, it was a case of love at first sight—San Diego Union, June 2d.

Mr. Platt is a native of this county and has many acquaintances in Petersburg, being a son of the late Jacob Platt.

Everybody Reads.

Everybody reads the newspapers these days. We are a nation of readers.

We read the daily papers for the world's news of the day, for the market reports, for the works of our legislators in national and state capitals.

But we read the local paper for the news which comes straight home to us—the news which is necessary to our growing intelligence—which is an essential part of our being.

We read the local paper because it alone keeps us in close touch with local affairs of moment—with our neighbors and the community, with conditions which are of prime importance to us.

We read the local paper because we are living in ignorance of the happenings of which local conditions make it imperative that we be constantly informed.

Present day necessity requires that we read the papers and especially the local paper.

Covington to Celebrate.

Covington is preparing to have a birthday party next September which will be prolonged for six days in honor of the fact that the city's centennial has been attained.

September 13 to 19 will be the date of the celebration and will be a sort of continuous carnival and general home-coming. Occurrences of the pioneer days are to be commemorated by pageantry and Simon Kenton, the grandfather of Kenton county, will reappear in counterfeit presentment, navigate his flatboat along the river, and Licking Rivers and kill a few Indians for the entertainment of the populace.

The soldier, who sold the town site for a keg of whisky and the improvident individual who purchased it and subsequently traded it for a soldier's supply of buffalo meat will be among those present in the pageantry.

Probably Simon Girty will be trotted in his cage, and the descendants of those whom he persecuted a century or more ago.

Much history has been made at the mouth of the Licking, which was the scene of many interesting and exciting events when the pioneers were engaged in wresting the country from the control of Indians. There is an abundance of material out of which Covington can put a show which ought to have no difficulty about getting into the moving pictures and thus spreading the fame of the second city of the State in point of population.

Real estate is much higher in Covington now than it was over a century ago when it was being traded for beads, booze and buffalo meat. Probably many of the residents do not realize how far the town has traveled and the production of brush-breaking incidents will convince them that life is much safer and more satisfactory now than in the "good old days."—C. J.

Mrs. Sarah Barriacklow Pate, formerly of this county, died Saturday at her home at Arcola, Ill., aged 102 years. Mrs. Pate was the widow of Jeremy Pate. For many years Mrs. Pate resided on what is now known as the Henry Delmer farm on Camel ridge. They left Ohio county for Illinois soon after the close of the war.—Ohio County News.

Some Horse Don't's for Summer.

Don't compel a horse to pull a heavy load when the collar and harness too tight. If you don't make a balking horse out of him you will gain the back or a weeny a might good horse to stand all this without balking.

Don't take all the ginger out of your horses by compelling them to cut grass with a dull sickle or pull a heavy binder that squeaks for him.

Don't let your team, hitched to a binder or mower, stand untended in the field while you go some distance to get something. A dangerous practice, yet sometimes indulged in by ruined horses and a smashed up machine as a result.

Don't hitch your team to a wire fence or draw them up under a tree when a thunder storm comes up. Both are lightning conductors, drive to the barn, no matter if you do get wet, rather than ruin the horses.

Don't let your small boy drive a team hitched to a dangerous machine, such as the binder, mower, etc., unless he is a thoroughly reliable team. Anyone who reads newspapers can see with what disastrous results such things often attended.

Don't compel the colt to trudge along all day with its mother while working. Much of the colt's early life is in the cool shade of the stable is the place for it, away from the hot sun and the flies. It usually worries the mother to have the colt follow her in the field while in harness.

Don't let the smell of gasoline and the buzz of automobiles worry you or frighten you into giving up colt raising, in the fear there will be no demand for horses in the future. Horses will never be supplanted, in fact the number of horses on the farms and ranches of this country increased by about 385,000, and mules increased by about 63,000, and as good as held good there is no occasion for alarm.

Don't over drive nor over work your horse during the heat of summer. It is claimed that 1,400 horses died during the heated term of 1911, in New York. Forty-five horses belonging to one breeder died from heat exhaustion. Although the heat may be more severe in a congested city like New York it is not much less in the country, often times to do a great deal of damage to man and beast if one is not careful.

Don't neglect to salt the horse about once a week. It is better to keep salt always before them as they know better how much they need and when they need it.

Don't urge your team into a forced and unusual gait; and it also worries them to be forcibly held back. If you want the best work from the team let them keep their own gait. For this reason it is well to train a team to walk the right gait while they are colts.

Don't forget that kindness pays very big dividends in the upkeep of a horse. It keeps him in good condition on less feed, saving on the feed bill; it enables him to give better service, increasing profits; and a horse brought up in kind atmosphere of kindness will sell better, at a high price, as he is nice appearing, more sound, gentle and reliable than a horse brought up under adverse circumstances.—J. A. R. in Indiana Farmer.

WARM SLOP BEST FOR HOGS

Helps to Break Down Feed Better and it induces Better Circulation of Animal's Blood.

Whether intended for breeding hogs or for fattening hogs, it is better at this time of the year to mix the slop up with hot instead of cold water.

A great many of our best feeders, says the Farm, Stock and Home, now make it a practice to feed slop or at least considerable water up until the very last of the feeding process.

Under ordinary conditions, as soon as water begins to get real cold, hogs refuse to drink much of it, and so they require a larger ration of other food before they are satisfied.

COTSWOLD SHEEP IN FAVOR

Experience Proves Them to Be Better Shearers and Make Improvement—Use of Rape Ueget.

Men that think at all usually have a reason for doing things. Hence, when I began breeding Cotswold sheep I chose them not because my father bred them 40 years, but because from experience with other breeds they proved to be better shearers.

PLANT BED NOTES.

No tobacco has yet been planted in Trimble county, except by machinery.

Mercer county farmers are only awaiting a season to transplant their tobacco. The plants are in a thrifty condition and plentiful.

Plants in Anderson county were never so fine as this year, and growers expect that nine-tenths of the acreage will be under cultivation at the close of May.

Tennessee growers are also getting anxious for a good season, as most of the land has been prepared and plants are getting too large.

Plants in Caldwell county are large enough to set, but so far not a plant has been transplanted.

Although the ground is dry and no season is in sight, tobacco men have used the plant, setting and thousands of acres were set in Montgomery county in the past ten days.

Farmers of Harrison county have been compelled to water their tobacco plant beds to keep them from firing. Should not relief come soon, conditions may become serious.

The tobacco crop of Western Kentucky is in a precarious condition from the drouth. Farmers have made arrangements to set out a large acreage and all have big plant beds.

DRY CLEANSING BEST

MOST EFFECTIVE METHOD OF PREPARING CURRANTS.

Use of Squash Strainer and Flour Will Do Away With Much of the Tedious Work Heretofore Made Necessary.

This tiresome work has been greatly lessened by the introduction of currants already cleaned and put up in convenient packages, but many housekeepers, either from choice or necessity, use the currants which come in bulk, and have not yet learned the easiest way of thoroughly cleansing. Instead of putting them directly into water, a sort of dry cleansing is a great help in removing the grit and other foreign substances. Put the currants in a squash strainer and sprinkle them thickly with flour. Rub them well between the palms of the hands until the bunches are separated, and the fine stems rubbed off, then rub them on the strainer until the flour and stems have passed through the meshes. Then place the strainer with the currants in a large pan of lukewarm water and wash thoroughly. Lift the strainer and currants together and change the water until nothing more is washed from the flour, and the water is clear. This is much easier than to leave the currants directly in the pan and simply pour off the water, for they are mixed with the sediment.

When the fruit is clean and well drained turn it out between two towels and spread it apart, drawing the perfect fruit to one end and carefully removing any stones or poor fruit which did not pass through the strainer. Let them dry thoroughly in a sunny or warm place, but do not harden by putting them in the oven. When well dried put them in glass jars carefully covered and keep in a cool, dry place. Enough may be done at one time for the season's supply of fruit cake and pies.

Tomato Jelly.

One-third cup of sherry, two cups of stewed strained tomatoes, two level tablespoons of jelly powder or gelatin, salt and paprika.

Either canned or fresh tomatoes may be used. These must be cooked with a little parsley, onion and bay leaf, if liked, and then strained so as to eliminate the skin and seeds. Follow directions for preparing the jelly powder or gelatin. When soft, add to the hot cooked tomatoes, seasoning at the same time with salt and paprika. Let the mixture stand until nearly cold; then add the sherry and turn into wet after dinner coffee cups or very small molds to set. At the time of serving, unmold, place on lettuce leaves and put a generous spoonful of mayonnaise over each.—Pictorial Review.

Pudding for All Seasons.

One pint milk, four level, two ounces large raisins, four tablespoons marmalade, a few slices stale cake, five lumps sugar and a little grated lemon rind. Put the sugar to dissolve in the milk, add lemon rind. Whisk the eggs and stir into the milk. Have ready the raisins and cake, cut each in halves and with the halved raisins pressed against it, line the inside of a well-buttered mold. Now pour in the custard, tie a sheet of paper over the mold and a cloth over that and boil gently one hour. Serve cold with hard sauce.

Ginger Puff Pudding.

Cream half a cup of butter, add two tablespoons of sugar, two eggs well beaten, one cup of milk, 2½ cups of flour mixed and sifted with three teaspoons of baking powder, one-quarter cup of ginger cut in small pieces and one tablespoon of ginger syrup. Turn into a buttered mold and steam 1½ hours. Serve with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with ginger syrup and a speck of salt.

Baked Apple Meringue.

Pare and core six apples, put in baking dish with a little water and sprinkle the apples with sugar; when baked, beat the white of one egg stiff, add two tablespoons sugar, and put a part of the meringue on the top of each apple. Bake about six minutes in a moderate oven.

Carving a Ham.

Before a boiled ham has had a chance to cool, a certain cook cuts out the bone carefully, fills the hollow left with the trimmings made by the cutting, then ties the whole up tight and lets it grow cold, then slices readily and without waste.

Good Broom Holder.

A good broom holder can be made by nailing two spools to the wall, about two inches apart. Hang the broom up side down between the two spools.

For Unripe Lemons.

Lemons when unripe are very hard to squeeze. A few minutes baking will overcome this and increase the amount of juice many times.

After Washing Woolen Blankets. After washing woolen blankets beat them well with a carpet beater and they will be as soft and fluffy as when new.—Farm and Fireside.

When Boiling Potatoes.

Add a little milk to the water in which potatoes are boiled. It will prevent their turning dark and improve their flavor.

WAYS OF PREPARING SAGO

Dessert That All Children Like May Be Served With or Without the Apples.

With Apples.—Wash thoroughly one cup of sago, put in a double boiler with one quart of cold water. Cook over slow fire until clear. Have ready pared and cored whole enough apples to stand closely in bottom of pudding dish. Their size will regulate number; and fill apples where cores were cut out with white sugar. Can flavor as desired. A few whole cloves stuck in apples are nice, but lemon peel, or orange peel, cut very fine, is nice also. Use first one flavoring, then another. As soon as sago is clear pour it over the apples and bake in quick oven until the apples are done. Serve with rich cream.

Without Apples.—Prepare sago as before, using a little less water. When clear pour into pudding dish, and pour on top a custard made of three eggs and pint of rich milk. Bake slowly until custards is set. This is best served cold. Makes an excellent dessert.

Dry sponge cake smothered in custard makes a delicious dish. Coconut matting should be well rubbed with hot water and soap.

Tops of old shoes, cut into shape and covered, make excellent iron holders.

Clean flat irons, brass and nickel ornaments with rotten stone and sweet oil and polish with a chamolis skin.

When boiling cabbages try placing a small vessel of vinegar on the back of the stove. The odor of the cabbage will not be so unpleasant.

The most convenient and cheapest of disinfectants to use in the cellar is quicklime. It may be placed in dishes, in bins or cupboards or scattered loose in dark, damp corners.

A cut or wound should be thoroughly cleaned from dirt, bits of glass, stone, etc., by washing it with clean water, in which a tablespoonful of salt has been dissolved to every pint of water.

It is claimed that woody house plants that grow a bark can be strengthened and made to flourish like the proverbial bay tree if given iron-water, soaked from rusted iron and poured into the soil.

If a cork is too large for a bottle in which you wish to use it lay it on its side and with a little board or ruler roll it under all the pressure you can put on it. It will be elongated to fit in a very few minutes.

Raisin Pie—Without Eggs.

Two cups raisins, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-half tablespoon butter, one-half cup sugar, tablespoon flour and pinch salt. Cover raisins with boiling water, add cinnamon and cook twenty minutes. Mix sugar, salt and flour and sprinkle one-half on lower pie crust, and raisins and sprinkle with other one-half of sugar, etc. Add few dots of butter and upper crust and bake.

Lobster Chowder.

One quart of milk, three lobsters, two crackers powdered, one-third of a cup of butter, six crackers, butter and the soft part of the lobster into the boiling milk, then season with pepper and salt; cook about three minutes. Then chop the remainder of the lobster and add to it, cooking the whole three minutes more.

Cream Cheese Salad.

Molten one Neufchatel cheese with a little milk. Form into small egg shapes and serve in nests of lettuce leaves with a French dressing made of four tablespoonfuls of oil, two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-quarter teaspoonful of pepper.

Roast Beef Warm.

Fry half a minced onion in a tablespoonful of butter, then add a small can of tomatoes, mashing any lumps until the whole is smooth. Season with pepper, salt and sugar. Allow this to become very hot, then lay in slices of cold beef and heat through.

Country Succotash.

One pound country pork (mixed), boiled tender; then add two quarts lima beans, boil one-half hour, then add four ears of corn cut off the cob, one cup of milk (boil ten minutes), remove the pork, add one large tablespoon of butter.

Rice Omelet.

One cup of boiled rice, four eggs, a dash of salt, pepper, mustard. Beat all well together and pour into a hot buttered skillet or shallow baking pan. Cover and cook on the stove ten minutes, or bake 15 minutes in hot oven.

Sweet Potato Croquettes.

One beaten egg, one tablespoonful cream, a little salt, beaten with cold boiled sweet potatoes; shape into balls, dip in beaten egg, then in crumbs; fry to a golden brown.

Butter Economy.

Take half butter and half cream, beat together and spread on bread. This makes it very good and also saves on the butter bill.

To Remove Ink Blots.

Ink blots can be easily removed from books by covering them with salt and rubbing gently with the fingers.

ONLY FLAKY PASTRY

NOTHING ELSE IS FIT FOR HOUSEHOLD TABLE.

Care in Making Pies is Well Repaid in the Enjoyment of the Delicacies—Suggestions That May Be of Value.

Judgment and taste is good in choosing pie for dessert, providing it is the kind of pie which is made from a pure vegetable fat, and good material is put between this vegetable fat and pastry.

Every woman who does her cooking should know how to make nice flaky pastry. She can make enough for two or three days and keep it in the refrigerator ready for use at any time.

Pies are not the only desserts which can be made from pastry, and if good, plain paste is once accomplished, then it is only a step higher in making puff paste, which delights any housekeeper when she succeeds in making it light and flaky. It may be used in patty shells, lady locks and turnovers. The plain pastry makes dairy tarts, turnovers, meat patties, fish patties and cases for apple tart pies, lemon and many other pies of like nature.

Cranberry Pie.—Materials—Cranberries, one cup; seeded raisins, half cup; sugar, three-quarters cup; egg, four, one tablespoonful; lemon juice, one tablespoonful.

Directions—Cut the cranberries and raisins in halves before measuring; mix well with all the remaining ingredients and bake between two crusts for a pie or turnovers. They may also be baked in patty pans with fancy twisted strips of the pastry over the top.

Orange Filling for Pies and Tarts.—Materials—Sugar, one cup; orange juice, half cup; flour, three tablespoonfuls; lemon juice, one tablespoonful; butter, one tablespoonful; orange, one; eggs, two; pastry (plain).

Directions—Cover an inverted pie pan or patty pans with a good, plain pastry, pricking it well with a fork. Bake a delicate brown. Put the sugar and flour, well mixed, into the double boiler. All the grated rind of the orange, lemon and orange juice, and the eggs lightly beaten. Stir over the fire until it begins to thicken and stir occasionally in the double boiler while it cooks about 15 minutes. Add the butter and cool a little. Fill the baked pastry and cover with a meringue made from the whites of two eggs, beaten stiff, and two tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar added, and beat again. Flavor with one teaspoonful of vanilla, and bake in a slow oven until the meringue is well puffed and a bright brown. Half of the same filling is fine for layer cakes.

—Alice Getchell Kirk in Cleveland Leader.

German Potted Kieassee. Mash cold boiled potatoes with potato ricer, one stalk pint of potatoes mashed, one-half pint of flour, one egg, one even tablespoonful of salt; blend together with a knife into a dough, form into balls the size of a large plum; boil moderately in water twelve minutes; boil one to see if they are right. If they do not hold together, add just flour enough to keep the shape when boiled. Take care they do not stick to the bottom of the kettle when boiling. As they cook they will rise to the top of the boiling water.

Tongue Sandwiches. Tongue sandwiches can be made in many varieties. This is one good sort: Chop cold boiled tongue fine, add to it a little chopped onion and parsley, and spread it between buttered slices of whole wheat bread. Another filling is made with cold boiled tongue that has been pounded to a paste and mixed with a little currant jelly. Still another tongue sandwich is made by putting slices of boiled tongue, garnished with crisp leaves of watercress, between thin slices of buttered white bread.

Hamburg Eggs. Cream two tablespoonfuls of soft bread crumbs, one tablespoonful butter and a little minced parsley seasoning with salt, paprika and celery salt. Work all to a smooth paste, and with it line small individual patty tins that have been brushed with melted butter; break an egg carefully into each, and after dusting lightly with salt, cover with a mixture of melted butter and brown bread crumbs, cook for six minutes in hot oven. Serve in the pans.

Barley Meal Scones. Mix together two pounds of barley meal, a small teaspoon of baking soda, three-quarters of a teaspoon of cream of tartar and one-half a teaspoon of salt. Add enough butter-milk to make a nice soft dough. Sprinkle little moist on the baking board and roll out the dough to a quarter of an inch thick. Cut into three and bake at a moderately hot grid.

Raisin Brown Bread. Three cups of yellow corn meal, one and one-half cups of brown flour, one and one-half cups of white flour, one cup N. O. molasses, one heaping teaspoon soda dissolved in one-half cup hot water, one teaspoon salt, enough sour milk to make a soft batter. Mix flour and salt, then molasses with soda. Stir until mixed, then add milk and one and one-half cups raisins. Fill mold half full and steam three hours.

Worn Out?

No doubt you are, if you suffer from any of the numerous ailments to which all women are subject. Headache, backache, sideache, nervousness, weak, tired feeling, are some of the symptoms. You must rid yourself of them in order to feel well. Thousands of women, who have been benefited by this remedy, urge you to Names That Live. It would be interesting to ascertain how many people have given their names to the English language in the sense that Macintosh and Macadam gave theirs. To Captain Boycott we owe the word boycott; to Lord Sandwich, the most popular of light refreshments; to Doctor Gullotta, the process by which our ministers gag the house of commons; to the brave soldier of the great Napoleon, Sergeant Chauvin, the word Chauvinism; to Jean Nicot, the French ambassador to Portugal, the word "nicotine"; to Thomas Fowler, the word "fowlerize"; to Mr. Gladstone, a popular form of handbag, and to Wellington and Blucher, two styles of footwear. Mr. Hansom supplied the name for the once popular cab.—The Referee.

For the Birds in Winter. A brush heap of some sort is a welcome protection to the birds in cold weather. In a sheltered corner of the garden pile some brush closely and watch the birds collect there on stormy, bitter winter days. The brush that is piled on the perennials in the flower garden can serve for the birds winter shelter. But if you plan to make a shelter for the birds and the flowers at the same time, be sure not to include any evergreen boughs—which the birds find warm and comfortable. For the mice also like evergreen. Their thorns apparently, on pine needles and therefore make their winter home, sometimes, in gardens mulched and protected with pine boughs. When they finish eating the pine needles they burrow into the ground and eat the roots of your perennials and spring bulbs.

Defining the Difference. Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, at one of those sumptuous Newport entertainments that have made her famous, talked with her shrewd humor of a mercenary marriage.

"And that man," said Mrs. Fish, "interlocutor, in a shocked tone, 'and that man to marry that beautiful girl! But isn't there a tremendous difference in their ages?'"

"Yes," said Mrs. Fish, "about $22,000,000."—Washington Star.

A Bourbon county writer says the outlook for Blue-Grass is promising, but reports from other Central Kentucky counties are not so favorable. The Winchester Democrat says the weather has not been so unfavorable for Blue Grass in years and that the grass has been greatly retarded in its growth. The seed harvest is a big thing in many of the counties in this section and the owners of Blue Grass farms are particularly fortunate in that almost every year they sell a crop of seed for a price that would be considered a good value for a farm in some of the less favored regions of the State.—Blue Grass Clipper.

Wayman has been the pastor of the Walton church since he entered the ministry about six years ago, and he has developed into an excellent expounder of the gospel of the most entertaining and impressive character. He and his family have a host of friends here who tender them their best wishes for a happy and successful future in their new home.

Fell Dead at Wife's Side.
William McClanahan, aged 49, a prominent cafe proprietor residing in South Brancher, died suddenly Monday afternoon in the side yard of his home on the Lexington pike. Mr. McClanahan had just stepped out of his house with his wife when he collapsed. McClanahan had been ill for some time and was confined to his home. He conducted a cafe in South Brancher for several years and enjoyed a wide acquaintance. He is survived by a widow and two children, Raymond and Christina McClanahan.
—This is Bluegrass week in Clark county and two hundred or more strippers are busy gathering the seed for the market. The crop is better than was at first expected, as the recent rains and warm nights have helped it greatly. The cool nights in April and the first of May were calculated to do great harm to the crop, but it has come out wonderfully in the past three weeks. The yield will be over a two-third crop. Several hundred bushels have been sold at 25 cents at the stripper, which means about 40 cents for the matured seed and it is not likely that this price will be very much higher. There is a large quantity of old seed now on hand, which pulls the price down now, even for the matured seed.—Winchester Democrat.

The first flat disagreement between the envoys at the mediation conference at Niagara Falls, came Monday afternoon when the American envoys refused to agree to the plan submitted by the Mexicans for the forming of the provisional government. Huerta wants to be allowed to name his successor as Minister of Foreign Affairs in his Cabinet and then have him elevated to the presidency. As this would involve the virtual recognition of Huerta the envoys of the United States opposed it. An extension of time to await the Carranza reply was granted at the request of the American envoys. The Administration at Washington seems confident that Carranza delegates will be sent to the mediation conference yet.

God Liver Oil and Iron
Two Most World-Famed Tonics Combined in Vinol.
Cod Liver oil and Iron have proved to be the two most successful tonics the world has ever known—iron for the blood and the medicinal curative elements of cod liver oil as a strength and tissue builder for body and nerves, and for the successful treatment of throat and lung troubles.
Two eminent French chemists discovered a method of separating the curative medicinal elements of the cod's livers from the oil or grease which is thrown away, but to these medicinal elements tonic iron is now added, thus combining in Vinol the two most world-famed tonics.
As a body-builder and strength creator for weak, run-down people, for feeble old people, delicate children, to restore strength after sickness; and for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis or pulmonary troubles we ask you to try Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.
P. S. For pimples and blotches try our Sazo Salve. We guarantee it.

THEY BOUGHT A CRUSHER.
Last week a company of enterprising farmers organized and purchased a Jeffrey Lime-Pulver for reducing rock into a powder for spreading on soil, and as soon as the machine is received a demonstration will be given at the home of Chas. F. Rouse, near Verona to show the general public what the machine will do. Those who feel interested will gladly attend to the demonstration. Griffith and he will then inform them of the time the demonstration will be given, as soon as the machine will be received. The machine will no doubt be of great advantage to this section where there is such an abundance of limestone that can be crushed into a dressing for the land that will insure the growth of alfalfa or almost any other crop, as where the limestone is so appropriated by the soil it insures the growth of every legume. The machine is portable and is moved by hand. It can be operated by an ordinary gasoline or steam engine. The cost of the machine is $750. It promises to reduce a great deal of limestone to a powder at the rate of two tons per hour. The following gentlemen purchased the machine and each in turn will have the use of the machine: C. L. Griffith, R. O. Hughes, Chas. C. Sleest, Jos. C. Bedinger, John C. Bedinger, Dr. R. E. Ryle, John Conley.

DROWNED

Robert Eggleston Goes Down While Bathing in the Ohio.

No One Witnesses the Drowning

Finding of Clothes First Intimation of Young Man's Fate.

Body Found at Mouth of Garrison Creek, Seven Miles Below the Fish Trap.

Last Sunday afternoon Benjamin Sweeney and Robert Eggleston each aged about fifteen years, sons of Walter Sweeney, who keeps the first toll-gate out on the Burlington and Petersburg pike, and John Eggleston who resides in the northern part of the county, went in swimming at what is known as the fish-trap at the Home City lock and dam on the Ohio river. Having enjoyed themselves some time in the water the boys came out and started home, when young Eggleston concluded he wanted to take another swim and returned to the river, his companion, Sweeney going on to his uncle's, where he makes his home. A few hours after some person discovered young Eggleston's clothes lying on the dam and suspecting something had happened began a search for the owner of the clothing, and when he could not be found the clothing was searched and articles found thereon by which the name and ownership were established. The parents of the young man were notified and a search for the body was begun and continued for many hours but without success. Tuesday morning a body supposed to be that of young Eggleston was found floating in the river at the mouth of Garrison creek. Friends were notified and proceeded to the spot and identified the remains as those of young Eggleston.
Esq. E. J. Aylor held the inquest, and returned a verdict of accidental drowning. The remains of the young man were then taken home.
There is a very dangerous whirlpool at the fish-trap and it is supposed the young man was drawn into it and drowned there being no one present to assist him or describe how he went down to a watery grave.
Benj. Sweeney, who left young Eggleston at the river, was not aware of his fate until he was called out of church Sunday night and asked where and at what time he last saw the young man.
The parents of young Eggleston are almost prostrated with grief over the fate of their son.

KNOCK-OUT

Given Kentucky's Anti-Trust Law By Supreme Court In Recent Decision.

Washington, June 11.—Because Kentucky endeavored to exempt tobacco pools from the operations of anti-trust laws, the laws against combinations were declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court of the United States in the appeal of the International Harvester company from conviction in five Kentucky counties in which it had been fined an aggregate of $10,000. The court pointed out that the penalties were in conflict with another State law which permitted tobacco growers pools to enhance prices. Justice Holmes stated that the law of Kentucky allowed the enhancement of prices by combinations up to the "real value" of the articles in question.

The court held that it was beyond human ingenuity to determine what the real market value of a commodity was and hence the law was beyond the power of a State to enact.

Pointing out that in 1890 Kentucky passed an anti-trust act against combinations in restraint of trade, Justice Holmes said: "Kentucky grows tobacco and the farmers were dissatisfied with the prices that they were able to get for their tobacco, as they alleged, because of a combination of buyers."

"So," he added, "in 1906 the state passed a law legalizing the pooling of crops for higher prices. The seeming conflict between the pooling law and the general law was avoided by the Court of Appeals by holding that the law was to be taken to mean that a combination for the purpose of controlling prices was unlawful unless for the purpose or with the effect of making prices that were greater or less than the real value of the article."

"The result seems to be that combinations of tobacco growers are held to do no more than restore an equilibrium that has been disturbed by a combination of buyers."

As a matter of fact justice held there was no standard of conduct possible for any one under Kentucky law to arrive at what was the real price of an article. He said the State contended that the Harvester company, in arriving at that would have been the price if the combination had not existed, was not entitled to consider the increased cost of materials because it brought materials of a subsidiary company.

Members of the Kentucky congressional delegation was assailed when they heard of the court's decision, but, as the opinion was not available, Senator James and the House members here declined to venture any comments upon it. The court's decision leaves Kentucky in a bad way as far as having weapons to go after the trusts is concerned.

Talk of an extra session of the State Legislature being called to enact an anti-trust law to take the place of the one knocked out by the Supreme court, met with no favorable sanction from the delegation, as it was recognized that an extra session is out of the question while the senatorial race is on.

The Farmer's Creed.

It would be no easy matter to amend this "farmer's creed" which is found in the Breeder's Gazette.

We believe in the good earth and its soil. We believe that all men should love the soil and understand it. We believe that soil culture and soil culture go hand in hand. We believe he nobly serves who makes two blades grow where one grew before.

We believe that blood will tell. We believe that good seed should go into the enriched soil. We believe that good animals should crop the grass.

We believe in the divine right of man to labor. We believe in helping men get full reward for their toil.

We believe in better farms, with better roads passing by them. We believe in better rural schools and better teachers in them. We believe that the housewife is the better half, and that to her home should come all manner of comforts.

Afraid of Congress.

A manufacturer of merchandise that is used all over the country and by people of all classes, commenting upon the fact that the volume of business this spring has not been up to the average, states his belief that the industry has not been due to any lack of material resources or of the production of the necessities of life but to a feeling that the Congress, may, in the rush to finish its work, enact legislation without due consideration. It would be of course very wise for the Congress to put new laws on the statute books without taking time for a thorough and careful investigation of all the conditions. It is better to have no legislation than to have hurry-up legislation. We hope, however, that our legislators in session at Washington will follow Davy Crockett's famous maxim, "First be sure you're right, then go ahead."

Gas at Greendale, Ind.

A promising flow of gas was obtained from the well being drilled by A. D. Cook on his land in Greendale near Tanner's creek. Gas was struck at a depth of between 300 and 400 feet. The pressure exceeds thirty pounds. The well, however, will have to be abandoned on account of water. A new drilling will be begun at a different location.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Hogs and Things.

Hogs are made up principally of other things than hog. A pig at weaning time would amount to very little if it was not for the things we put into him in order to make a hog. To make a good large and fat hog we must know what things are best fitted to make growth, health, vigor, bone, flesh and fat. It is because men have studied out these questions that the present day porker is enabled to reach perfection or ripeness at the early age of six months which 40 years ago required two years to produce.

Many people say it matters not what kind of a hog one takes, it is the management that counts. We do not agree with this. We believe more in the feeder and feed than the hog, but we must know what to feed the hog to become a bulk of lard with some lean meat or a carcass of lean meat streaked or marbled with fat. Of course, all the breeds are more or less purpose bred, swine, but if heavy, fat hogs are wanted and the corn belt calls for this class—then we must have big Berkshires, Poland Chinas and Duroc Jerseys. These breeds will utilize an abundance of corn and some pasture and lay on flesh and fat economically. They form the bulk of hogs going to the central markets and can perhaps be called the typical American hog, but then there is another and distinct class, the bacon hog, represented in general by the Tamworths—the rangy, growthy, lean meat fellows that thrive on good pasture with little corn. These make the choice bacon most sought after, especially by English people and epicures. They have their place in the production of pork and have not yet come into their own properly. They are liked out West in the alfalfa belt, chosen by farmers in the South where they mature and come to the market with little or no corn. They are increasing largely in demand because of their economical production.

It would be useless for a State or section or a farmer that has an abundance of milk, alfalfa, clover, bluegrass and soy bean pasture and little corn to try to make lard hogs; they would waste the bacon type. These hogs would utilize the best advantage and make money and would find a ready market with the packers and butchers. On the other hand, in the corn belt where corn is the cheapest and most plentiful foodstuff, the lard hog is the type best suited for feeding, and the market is unlimited. In the production of pork, things cut a big figure. For instance, lard hogs are grown and fatted quicker and more economically than a variety of corn concentrates, corn middlings, tankage milk and plenty of pasture but corn must predominate in order to lay on the fat, while the lard hog must have a preponderance of pasture, preferably legumes in order to grow the lean meat. Alfalfa, milk, clover and soy beans will make bacon hogs, but to their ideal finish with little or no corn, but some corn helps this process along.

Among the lard hogs are several breeds, all good, some better suited to certain sections, perhaps, but it must be a matter of local conditions. The farmer who likes best, whether he prefers white, black or red, whether the snouts turn up or are long-slanted, whether the ears are long or if ears stand erect or lay over, or if ears stand erect or lay over, and the same bears out with the bacon type. The breed that suits a farmer's conditions and choice is the best hog for that farmer, and he will come nearer making a success than if he attempted any iron-clad rule for what the other person has laid down by any other person. Our Country always refrains from advising a farmer what is the best hog. There is no best.—Our Country.

The Army Worm in Mercer. Millions of army worms have made their appearance in the eastern part of Mercer county and are literally destroying all kinds of crops. Brothers, who are the biggest farmers in that section, report that these pests have totally destroyed a twenty-acre field of barley on their place, besides a very large amount of clover, timothy and other crops, and they say they are almost any kind of vegetation and whatever they attack. The grass field they make a clean sweep. They are considering putting paris green on their wheat and corn. One of the best men on a month ago Davis Brothers had an eleven-acre field of hemp destroyed by what was thought at the time to be the worst pest. The ravages are checked the loss in that county will amount to thousands of dollars. These pests have appeared about five years ago, when they played havoc with crops of all kinds.

CROP REPORT.

AS OF JUNE 1st, 1914.

The month of May was an unusually dry one in Kentucky. The crop reports coming to this office as of June 1st, show that there was practically no rainfall in Kentucky from May 8th to June 1. Almost every report speaks of the drought, but the damage up to June 1st has not been serious. Since this time copious rains have fallen in many portions of the State, but the best rains have occurred in the central and eastern portions of the State, and showers over limited areas have occurred in the western sections.

Wheat cutting has begun in the southern portion of the State, and the indications are that we will have a record-breaking crop in Kentucky. Condition is given a 90 per cent at the beginning of the harvest, and it is now too late for weather conditions to prevent the maturing of a large yield of wheat of splendid quality. The crop has but one danger to run now, and that is, an excessive rainfall while in shock. Rye has held its own, and the condition is given at 93 per cent. The crop is practically made. Another crop that is made and ready for harvest is the Bluegrass seed crop, which will be large and of good quality. Condition of Bluegrass is given at 88 per cent.

The corn acreage is given at 95 per cent while the condition is stated at 87 per cent. The drought to a certain extent has affected both the planting of the corn and the condition of the crop. The damage to corn however, is probably not very great as the rains that have fallen since the first of June have remedied much of the trouble indicated by the reports. Oats however, with an acreage of 89 per cent has suffered materially in condition the latter dropping to 74 per cent. Potatoes have held the oats crop some but this can not possibly be a heavy crop this year.

Tobacco beds have suffered in a measure from the drought. Lack of moisture has prevented the transplanting of plants at the proper time and there are complaints of the plants getting too large for transplanting. This damage however can not be considered as very serious. Condition of Burley tobacco is given at 86 per cent and that of dark tobacco 81 per cent. Cut worms are doing considerable damage to both corn and tobacco.

Alfalfa and orchard grass are both given at 86 per cent and have not suffered as much from the drought as young clover and timothy which show a condition of 74 per cent. Potatoes have suffered materially dropping to a condition of 74 per cent. Garden conditions are given at 80 per cent. The prospects for a large fruit crop remain good but the strawberry crop was cut to about 60 per cent of a crop as the result of the dry conditions at maturity. Indications are for a large blackberry crop this being given at 96 per cent; grapes at 87; peaches 84; pears 72 and plums 78 per cent.

All live stock is in good condition comparatively speaking, and lambs beginning to show the effect of short pastures. Condition of horses is given at 95 per cent; cattle 84; hogs 81; and sheep and lambs at 90. Young turkeys have suffered from the heat and their condition is given at 82 per cent; ducks at 90 and chickens at 85.

The hay crop has been cut down some by lack of moisture. Taken as a whole the wheat, hay and bluegrass seed crops are considered where the corn and tobacco crops are not injured to an irreparable extent. Seasonable weather can yet make this year a prosperous one to the farmers in Kentucky.

Commissioner of Agriculture.

Governed by Weather Conditions.

Chicago June 11.—The wheat markets of the country will from this time forward be governed entirely by the weather conditions throughout the Southwest. Later the weather in the Northwest will prove a help in the making of prices. With favorable conditions in the winter wheat country the movement of grain will be on an enormous scale as large purchases have already been made of wheat to come to Chicago as well as to the markets of the Southwest. This grain will be fed in the pit and it will be a heavy load for the bulis to carry in cases they attempt to carry values up around the present level.

It would be an idle claim to say that there is but one side to the wheat market at the present time as there is a likelihood of a change in conditions. The weather has been entirely too favorable in both the great wheat belts to date, and any change will mean for the wheat.

The Tobacco Crop.
Tobacco around Campbellsville Henry county, was greatly damaged by hail last Saturday afternoon. A drought of three weeks was broken, making a season for tobacco setting.

Thousands of acres of tobacco were transplanted in Nicholas-co., Friday of last week. Heavy general rains Thursday night broke a distressing drought and produced the first tobacco season.

Every available man in Henry county was gathered up by the farmers by daylight last Saturday morning at wages from $3 to $5 a day, to set out tobacco plants, which had long been ready awaiting a season.

A drought of forty days was broken in Montgomery county, Friday of last week by a heavy rain that made a splendid tobacco season. Plants were transplanted all over the county. Hands demanded and received 19 and 20 cents per hour. The season was the best of the year. The plants were fine, and the rain has been of great benefit.

Tobacco growers of Nicholas-co. have finished up the work of transplanting their crop for this season. In the two days following the season of the latter part of last week Nicholas county's acreage of about 2,500 acres was planted and the remainder was finished Monday. The season was one of the best ever seen and it is believed a good stand will be obtained, as plants were excellent.

Fifteen indictments charge the receiving of deposits when Alexander knew the bank was insolvent. Others charge embezzlement, making false entries, failing to make deposit entries, &c. Bench warrants were issued returnable next Wednesday. Bail was fixed at $2,000 on each indictment.

Experts are still working on the books of the closed bank.

Did you ever notice that it always rains on the ninth day of June? Nobody seems to know just why it should, but it is a fact that for many years some rain always falls on that date. Tuesday the record was kept up by a slight shower about 11:30 which hardly sufficed to lay the dust, but nevertheless, was rain—Winchester Sun.

FRUIT GROWERS SHOULD GIVE THEIR ATTENTION TO GREEN APPLE APHIDS

Nearly Every Section of Kentucky Was Attacked By This Scourge In 1913 and the Same Trouble Can Be Expected Again This Year—The Methods of Control

During the spring of nineteen thirteen, Kentucky passed through a very severe scourge of green apple aphids, more commonly called plant lice. Nearly every apple-growing section of the state was attacked and in some instances the crop for the season was a complete loss due to the ravages of this little pest. Since we are liable to a repetition of this same trouble again this year, it is well to call the growers' attention to it before it is too late.

The work of the aphids is familiar to everyone who has had any experience in an orchard. Their presence is usually characterized by the curling of the leaves and malformation of the blossoms and fruit. In orchards where the aphids have been particularly bad the previous season, many gnarled, ill-formed apples will be found clinging to the tree long after the leaves drop. If the injury were confined to the fruit alone, it would not be so bad, but the aphids also attack the young growing shoots, thereby weakening them and the tree so that the chances for a stand of fruit another season is greatly lessened.

Twig infested with green aphids.

The life history of the green apple aphid is quite complex. Small, shiny, black eggs are laid in the fall usually on the tips of twigs under the bud scales and on roughened areas of the branch. About the time the leaves are beginning to burst forth in the spring the aphids appear. They are small, greenish yellow insects, and are usually found on the under side of the leaves. As the season advances and their numbers increase, they spread to the nearby stems, leaves and branches.

The insect that hatches from the eggs in the spring is known as the "stem mother," because she is the mother aphid of all the future generations produced during the summer and fall. She produces her young alive and later on, in succeeding generations, winged forms appear that are able to migrate to other hosts.

THE SEED CORN MAGGOT AND OTHER INSECTS ATTACKING SPROUTING CORN.

Complaints of injury to germinating seed corn by a small footless maggot have recently reached the station, and on examination the mischief proves to be the work of the above insect. It is the young of a small gray fly resembling in a general way the house fly, and belonging to the "same insect order," but very much smaller. The maggots work into the sprouting corn, often along the germ, and once inside devour the substance so as to weaken or destroy the young plant. Specimens sent to the experiment station from Harrodsburg and Mayesville are about one-fifth of an inch long, yellowish white, the body blunt behind and tapering to the front, the mouth provided with two black hooks, the tips of which, protruding from the mouth opening, can be seen with a hand magnifier. There are no legs, its means of getting about being by a somewhat labored wriggling.

This insect attacks a good many other plants besides corn in cultivated ground, and is especially common and injurious to onions, beets and hemp, and is thus likely to be common in corn following these crops. It is not to be regarded as one of the more serious corn pests, however, its appearance in cornfields being occasional and its depredations generally local.

Where it is giving trouble, it is suggested that the corn used for replanting be treated with coal tar as follows: Soak the seed corn for a couple of minutes in warm water, then stir among it quickly a couple of teaspoonfuls of coal tar so as to bring a little

Since the aphids appear in successive broods, growers must be on the watch for them and apply some remedy for their control immediately upon their appearance. Special effort should be made to check the first broods so as to lessen the danger of attacks later on.

Aphids belong to a class of insects known as sucking insects, hence the methods of control must necessarily be some form of contact insecticide. Thorough spraying with strong lime-sulfur in the spring just before the buds start to swell is beneficial in that the coating of lime-sulfur will cause the death of some of the eggs. This application luckily coincides with the application for San Jose scale and it is another argument in favor of the dormant spray.

However, this application does not get all of the eggs and in many cases the trees become affected before the growth of the leaves, and anything is wrong. A condition of this kind calls for prompt attention since an application of spray material will not be as effective after the leaves have once curled. Strong lime-sulfur can not be used at this time in combating aphids because of the danger of raising the foliage. The common practice is to use kerosene emulsion or some form of tobacco extract.

Kerosene emulsion consists of oil emulsified with soap and may be prepared as follows: Hard soap half pound, water one gallon and kerosene two gallons. The soap should first be thoroughly dissolved in boiling water and then the kerosene added. The mixture should then be thoroughly agitated until it is creamy white in color. It may then be diluted at the rate of one part of emulsion to ten or twelve parts of water and applied.

The tobacco sprays are more commonly used than any other and are generally more effective. They may be safely used against all kinds of aphids and on all plants. Tobacco sprays may be purchased already prepared or they may be made at home. For all ordinary purposes the commercial product is to be preferred because it saves the time and labor of preparation and because it is usually more uniform. The most widely used commercial form is known as "Black Leaf-40." The tobacco spraying may be used alone or may be combined with the arsenate of lime-sulfur application that should be given for scab, codling moth and curculionid at this time. When it is desirable to use the "Black Leaf-40" at the rate of one part to 800 or 900 parts of the diluted solution.

The aphids take advantage of the curled leaves, thereby protecting itself from any of its natural enemies. It is of little use to spray after the leaves are badly curled because it is almost impossible to reach the aphids in its leafy folds. If the leaves are just starting to curl, a spray applied with great force into the folds where the plant lice are working will be effective. For best results an angle nozzle is to be preferred to the ordinary straight nozzle because it will be easier to reach the under side of the leaves where the plant lice are at work.—J. H. Carmody, Department of Horticulture, Ky. Expt. Station.

In contact with each grain. Then spread out to dry before planting. It will be ready in about twelve hours. It has been proved in this division of the experiment station that no harm results to the corn from this treatment.

A further suggestion may be made: Maggots of this sort are most likely to attack enfeebled seeds, due either to unfavorable soil conditions or to the use of moldy seed corn. Some of the injured seed corn shows evident traces of a pink fungus (a Fusarium), which is frequently observed on ears of corn grown in the state. Such corn is likely to germinate feebly and to become the prey of insects. Care taken to avoid corn bearing the mold, and treatment before planting with tar, should greatly help in avoiding this maggot and also other pests which prey upon germinating corn.—H. Gorman, Head of Division of Entomology and Botany, Kentucky Experiment Station.

KEEPS THE CHICKS HEALTHY.

A good outdoor run on clean, fresh grass will do more than anything else to keep the chicks healthy and it pays to move them to a fresh place as often as it is necessary to keep their run clean.

DEVELOPING THE COLTS PAYS.

Nothing on the farm pays more in cash returns than so treating the young colts that they will develop into the most useful animals that their peculiar composition will allow.

The diet that does not turn adds heavily to the draft.

NOTES from MEADOWBROOK FARM

Cows must have salt.

Don't keep irritating dogs.

Use care in the cow's ration.

Sheep help rid farms of weeds.

Brooder lamps should be cleaned every day.

Chicks should not be fed until they are 36 hours old.

Every home should have an abundance of strawberries.

Powder the chicks occasionally during the first eight weeks.

Experience is of more value than capital in poultry raising.

The specialist succeeds in any line of business, while others are failing.

Plowing is at best the hardest work our farm horses have to perform.

An orchard, if you have one, is the very best place in which you can raise chicks.

Cornstalks are valuable as a fertilizer and should be left on the field after cutting.

A field of corn after it is a few feet high makes an ideal place to raise chicks in.

A few strips of tile will often turn a mud hole into the most productive spot on the farm.

An egg may be fertile and hatch and still the chick will not live because of lack of vitality.

In cold weather place from ten to thirteen eggs under the hen; in warm weather from thirteen to fifteen.

The coop for hen and chicks should be well ventilated, easy to clean, and of sufficient proportions to insure comfort.

Eggs from hens that have made a fair showing in laying this winter will be more fertile than those that did heavy laying.

It may not pay to keep any very great surplus of corn in the crib, yet it is sometimes mighty comforting to know that it is there.

Scarcity of stock cattle of all kinds and high prices asked and offered is a common local condition reported from the corn belt states.

When mow creepers into the meadows and pastures they need to be broken up and the soil exposed to the sun and air before reseeding.

Raspberries produce good crops in the same soil for year, while strawberries produce their best crops the first year they come into full bearing.

As a rule, the cause of a flock being unprofitable lies largely with the keeper and the care they receive rather than a superiority of one breed over another.

By raising standard-bred poultry one will be able to sell stock and eggs for breeding purposes, and get much better prices than when selling eggs and fowls for food only.

Busy hens are not only the best egg producers, but their eggs show the best fertility. In order to keep them engaged at work strew the floor of the pen with hay or straw and scatter the grain in this.

One of the safe things to tie to on the farm is a good brood sow—pure-bred. In a few years she and her offspring, if properly cared for, will put many dollars into the pockets of the farmers of the country.

Hens prefer the morning sun to the afternoon sun when they cannot have both. Therefore, arrange to open a window in the east end of the hen house when bad weather does not permit of the entire south side being thrown open.

The last United States census shows that there are 307,706 women farmers in this country. The numbers has gained since the census was taken and promises to increase. Many women have homesteaded claims in all of the western states and have made successes of farming.

If your supply of manure is limited and it is fine in texture better make application after plowing rather than before. It may pay to use part of the manure in the hills, especially for such plants as eggplants, tomatoes, cucumbers, melons, muskmelons and lima beans. Manure used in hills should always be fairly well decayed.

Keep all hatching eggs.

Keep the calves' pails clean.

Some sows are kept too long.

Insulation produces bad results.

Use insect powder freely to exterminate lice.

Green bone is very rich in phosphate of lime.

Not enough care is given to teaching colts to work.

A well-ventilated cellar is the best place to operate the incubator.

The modern farm buildings should be so arranged that they will be rat proof.

Boost the acre yield, cut down on the acres, and so solve the hired help question.

Well-drained yards and pens will help to keep the bogs more thrifty and profitable.

The peach tree responds more quickly to good treatment than any other fruit tree.

Shallow cultivation following deep plowing precedes clean fields and profitable crops.

Norway spruce trees make a good windbreak and right now is a good time to plant them.

Whole corn is a good feed for sitting hens. Water, grit, and dust baths should also be provided.

Beans are very susceptible to frost and should never be planted until all danger from that source is past.

New planting of blackberries, raspberries, currants or gooseberries may now be made. Cut back the plants.

In Europe cows serve a triple purpose. They are used for the production of milk and meat and for draft purposes.

Trees and small fruits generally like application of ashes and bone dust. By fertilizing liberally good crops may be assured.

Pure-breds should be culled as well as the grades. Many poor producers result from the idea that a pure-bred is without flaws.

Be careful of the ration of a dry cow. Every pound lost in flesh before calving time will be taken out of the next milking period.

The early bird catches the worm, and the first hen out for feed and last on the roost with a full crop is the one to depend on for eggs.

The native wild highbush cranberry, dogwood, junberry, black haw, and wild grape all make good plants for the home yard if properly set.

Improved implements will do much to increase the efficiency of the men on the farm and will at the same time increase the productive capacity of the land.

For average yields it has been estimated that it takes 400 tons of water to grow a clover crop; for corn it takes 350 tons; oats, 375 tons, and potatoes, 450 tons.

There is little doubt that the incubator has not always been given the credit it deserves for having brought the poultry industry up to its present enviable position.

Where alfalfa hay is fed as the roughage part of a ration for farm horses at hard work, less grain is necessary to prevent them from losing weight than where timothy hay is fed.

In the case where cowpeas hay and alfalfa are fed together, there is no question but that better results would ensue were alfalfa hay used instead of the cowpea roughage for this purpose.

The cows that gives fifteen quarts average milking and kicks over the pail as she is being stripped, is like a good many people whose good intentions and virtues are spoiled by one mean trait.

A breeding sow should have plenty of nourishing food, such food as will cause a healthy growth and development without inducing the laying on of surplus fat, as a fat sow often has difficulty in farrowing.

Top-working apple trees may be done now. Try setting a few grafts. It is not a very difficult operation and it is always interesting to watch the results. Many worthless seedling that are hardy may be changed to be good fruit.

Tomatoes are best grown upon single stalks. All suckers should be kept off, allowing only the original stem to grow, and this should be tied to a stake. This prevents rot, and makes better fruit. Dwarf, medium-sized varieties give the best results.

The mowing machine that chugs under ordinary conditions is sadly in need of attention. In nine cases out of ten the fault will be found in one or the other or both of the cutting edges. The sickle may be dull or the edges worn off the ledger plates. It is only a half remedy to sharpen the sickle and leave the dull ledger plates in.

The Strength of "Thornhill" Skeins and Axles Explained

Note at the bottom of this advertisement, the difference between the types of skeins.

One, the old way, gives a natural breaking point, where iron stops and wood begins.

The other, the "Thornhill" way, shows the long sleeve malleable skin-non-breakable.

The long sleeve of malleable iron extends underneath the axle strengthening it and distributing the strain. There is no weak part. This banishes, forever, the old time weakness of wagons.

This long sleeve malleable skin runs as lightly as a cast skin, is as strong as a steel skin and will outlast either.

A Defiance machine, infallibly accurate, fits each skin to its axle insuring the right pitch and tuck.

A "Thornhill" equipped with these skins has no equal anywhere at any price.

Learn the great improvements in wagon construction by coming in, and seeing the construction used on this wagon.

Mr. Sudnor, superintendent of the Burlington and Florence turnpike, has been making the best repairs on the road that are possible with the material at his command. The road needs a vast amount of metal, which it will be almost impossible to secure.

Bert Smith, carrier on R. D. 2, says he makes his delivery route in less time than he did before his course of travel was reversed. Mr. Smith has a hard route to cover and he is entitled to every advantage it is possible to give him.

Charles Stevens of Idlewild neighborhood has his patent farm gate on the market quite a number of which he has sold in the north part of the county. It is a gate a farmer can not fail to appreciate when he sees it.

Master Walter Brown and several other boys were running a foot race last Friday evening when he fell and sprained a muscle in one of his lower limbs which has caused him considerable suffering.

Rev. Edgar Riley is having a new metal roof put on his residence. A metal roof was put on the building not to exceed two years ago, but it ran the water into rather than off of the house.

The first picnic of the season will be given at the Harvest Home grounds near Limaburg, on the afternoon of Saturday, June 20th. All are invited to attend and have a good time.

County Engineer Goodridge has been a busy man all this spring looking after the county roads. He finds it is hard to secure persons to do work on the highways.

Densel, son of William Carpenter, who resides in Locust Grove neighborhood, fell out of a cherry tree one day last week while gathering fruit, and broke his arm.

Mrs. Cora Strouse's little girl has been suffering considerably since last Saturday. She bruised one of her knees and blood poison threatened to develop.

The rains which have visited this county the past few weeks were local and some neighborhoods are very much in need of a thorough wetting.

The show that harvested the spare dimes and nickles in and about Burlington last week is making a like collection at Lebanon this week.

A large delegation of Burlington Knights of Pythias expect to attend the big meeting at Carrollton on the night of the 20th inst.

The Erlanger Fishing Club is in camp down on Dunpown creek, having pitched their tent Tuesday morning of this week.

Some of the farmers are trying to buy corn for delivery this fall, but the price being offered has not reached this office.

The price at which lambs sold the past week was encouraging to those who were putting them on the market.

Clover hay harvest is on hand and for several weeks to come farmers will be busy in the hay and grain harvest.

Are you getting your ankles aching for the picnic next Saturday afternoon at the Harvest Home grounds?

It rained in Burlington last Monday, which causes rain on more days this week to be expected.

If you want to make black birds go, get after them with Roman candles shortly after dark.

The acreage of wheat in this county is small, but it is said the yield will be good.

Marshall Hall is the owner of a nice new buggy, which he received last week.

The Burlington base ball team is booked to play at Lakeland on July 3d.

Coats were very comfortable again Tuesday morning.

The southern part of this county needs rain badly.

Did anybody see frost Tuesday morning?

Lots of cherries this year.

BASE BALL.

The Bellevue ball team came up last Saturday afternoon and gave the Burlington aggregation a very decent drubbing the score being 6 to 3 in favor of the visitors. It was a pitchers' battle of which Rogers got the better of Huey owing to his excellent control and the very fine support given him by three batters.

Kelly the first man up for Burlington made a hit but Rogers tightened up immediately and got the next three men and for the next four innings Burlington was retired in one two three order. In the sixth inning Huey got a double stole third and scored on Cloro's single. In the seventh Smith made a clean three bagger but was left out in the eighth. Burlington failed to connect but in the ninth they got on to Rogers' curves. Cloro the first man up was short to first. Conner came across with a hit and scored on Tolin's double. Slayback connected and scored Tolin but the next two batters were easy.

In the first inning for Bellevue Cloro first man up, doubled but failed to score with the assistance of an error and Deck's single.

In the second inning it was one two three. In the third inning Brady's and Ryle's hits and an error gave Bellevue one run.

Nothing doing in the fourth. The fourth inning was a for one for Bellevue. Two men were hit by pitched ball and Brady singled. Ryle doubled and Berkshire singled making four runs.

Nothing doing again in sixth and seventh.

In the eighth one run was made by a hit by Brady and the assistance of two errors.

The visitors drew a blank in the ninth.

Innings 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9
Bellevue 0 0 0 0 1 0 1 0 6
Burlington 0 0 0 0 1 0 0 2 3

Three base hit—Tolin Huey.
Two base hits—Tolin Huey, Willard Cloro, Ryle.

Struck out by Huey 3; by Rogers 7.
Hit by pitcher—Huey 3.
Base on balls—Rogers 1, Huey 1.

Base hits—Cloro, Conner, Slayback; Brady, 2, Ryle, Deck, Scott, Rogers.

Earned runs—Burlington 3; Bellevue 6.
Errors—Burlington 5 Bellevue 2.

FOUL TIPS.

Some of Rogers' curves looked like rainbows.

Kelly at second and Cloro at third worked hard but in bad luck.

Conner's miff of a pop fly was the greatest surprise of the game.

Tolin's work at first was alright, but it was a case of pulling the sensational stunts.

Besides making two hits Brady took care of several tricky grounders that he handled easily.

Deck played a very fast game at third, but showed his ability to fan by striking out four times.

It took Huey a pretty good throw to escape Ryle at first. He is Johnny on the spot over there.

Berkshire put up a good game at short on what few chances he had.

Earl Smith broke up his long batting slump with a clean three base hit.

Rogers and Cloro make a strong battery and with good support they are hard to get by.

Slayback is a pretty good fielder behind the bat and he captured many balls that were hard to "ake."

There has been no work done on the diamond for a long time and it is not in condition to play on.

Hager made a great throw from far out in the field and cut a runner down at the plate.

The Bellevue outfielders had very poor opportunity to display their skill.

The Burlington team can play better ball than it put up last Saturday—in fact it would be hard for a club to do worse.

Huey's splitter was unrelentingly caused him considerable trouble which combined with bad support kept him in a hole most of the time.

As usual the Burlington team went out to the ground soon after dinner and broke themselves down practicing before the game began. It is strange the boys do not learn better than to do that, but it has always been their custom and they just can't help it.

Edgar Cropper sold to William Seikman his 771 acre farm about two miles northwest of Burlington and on the waters of Woolper creek the price being a little above $44 per acre. This farm is well improved and in a high state of cultivation and none of its fertility will be allowed to waste under the control of Mr. Seikman.

Mr. Seikman is an industrious good citizen who will be welcomed to the neighborhood. This is the largest and best site that has been made in this part of the country for some time and a farm that has belonged to one party for a very long time has changed owners.

A small cyclone visited the neighborhood immediately south of Burlington, Wednesday of last week about 4 p. m. and did considerable damage. J. F. Tanner it carried away a lawn swing, a ladder and wrecked some of his out buildings, while at Clinton a portion of the metal roof on his large barn was blown off and the remainder of the roof more or less damaged.

Bulletin No. 13 issued by the Department of Agriculture and Statistics is a directory of Kentucky Breeders of pure-bred livestock. Among the hundreds of names appear those of Dr. J. F. Cleek, of Walton, C. E. Tanner of Limaburg, and T. E. Garrison, of Burlington of this county.

EDGAR C. RILEY, Supt.

Needham Divorced.

The Cincinnati Enquirer has the following item of interest here: In the circuit court of Williamstown, Judge Cammack dissolved the marriage of Hubard S. Needham and Alma Rhinock. Needham's daughter, a daughter of Congressman J. L. Rhinock, of Covington and New York, who is widely interested in Eastern theatricals, was in the papers in the case. She was withdrawn after judgment, it is said that there was no capacity on the part of other persons and that it was a case of incompatibility. Needham is Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue at Covington, while Mrs. Needham has been at her father's home on Riverside Drive, New York. This divorce will recall the romantic elopement of the pair by automobile in New York several years ago. Mr. Needham was formerly a student in Kentucky Wesleyan College and will remember the place by many friends.—Winchester Democrat.

Home Coming at Rising Sun.

It will be pleasing news to many persons to know that the old soldiers are not to be overlooked during the home coming to be held Aug. 10-12. On the other day and on day to be set apart as Grand Army day.

The Eighty-third and Thirty-seventh regiments and Rabba's battery will hold a joint reunion here on that day. The soldiers' reunion will really last through-out two days but one of these days will be devoted to business routine.

It is earnestly desired by members of the two regiments and the battery that every old soldier in the country be present on Grand Army day.—Ohio County News.

Card of Thanks—I desire to extend my heartfelt gratitude to those who were so kind to me in my recent great affliction, the loss of my son Roy Kirkpatrick, who was killed by a train at Riverside, Ohio. I also desire to thank the friends of my deceased son for the beautiful floral offerings, Rev. Riley for the services at the grave and undertaker Chambers, of Walton, for his efficient services.

Mrs. Lavina Kirkpatrick.

In its report of circuit court proceedings last week the Grant County News says:

During the week three well known farmers from various sections of the county have been fined and given jail sentences of 24 hours because they refused to tell the grand jury what they knew about alleged misdemeanors in their respective neighborhoods.

About one hundred and twenty-five people heard Gov. Beckham's speech at the court house Wednesday afternoon of last week. He spoke for about two hours and held the crowd. He made no attempt at oratory, his time being devoted to his past political career and to a defense against Stanley's attack upon his official record.

According to the report published in another column only a few teachers have been employed for the schools in this county, and there remains several openings for those who desire to engage in that work.

Realizing that jurors as well as other mortals suffer from excess of sleep, Judge Tracy, of Covington, had a jury in his court shed their coats last week while hearing testimony in cases on trial.

Fair Weather for the Week.

Washington, June 14.—Generally fair weather is forecast for the coming week, though it will be unsettled and showery the first day or two from the Missouri Valley eastward to the Atlantic Coast. Toward the end of the week a disturbance is expected to develop in the extreme north-west.

"Temperatures will not change materially in the South," said the Weather Bureau's bulletin tonight. "Over the central districts they will be normal or a little below, while over the North and West they will be somewhat low for the season, with a recovery to warmer conditions over the North-west after the middle of the week."

Pruning Tomato Vines.

It rarely ever is necessary to trellis tomato vines that have been kept carefully trimmed back as they stand up straight, having no heavy tops to lop over. Then, where tomato vines are kept well-trimmed, the sustenance which usually goes to the development of the long branches is utilized in developing and ripening the fruit. This not only produces an early and heavy crop, but fruit of excellent size, fine color and superior qualities.

Tomato vines should be kept well trimmed back till there is little or no drop to the branches, so the fruit will not be far enough away from the trunk of the vines to bend them downward toward the ground, thus preventing the fruit coming in contact with the damp earth, causing rot; and also holding the fruit in the correct position to reach and handle; while the full benefit of the sun will be received to promote growth and development.

There is hardly any set rule for pruning tomato vines, as it must be done according to the size, age and thriftiness of the plants. They should be trimmed in such a manner that there will not be an excess of foliage—so the sunlight will penetrate down to the roots. The pruning should be done in the evening, so that the soothing, cooling effect of night may act on the wounded branches before the heat of the sun strikes them. Cuts should be smooth, and care should be taken that the vines are not strained nor damaged in any way while the pruning is in progress. Trimming should be begun shortly after the plants begin to branch, and after the main stem is formed, none of the trunk or main branches should be entirely removed; the small branches and the extreme ends of the larger ones being the ones to clip back regularly.—Indiana Farmer.

HOGS DURING BREEDING TIME

Of Much Importance That Sow Should Be In Good Flesh to Produce Healthy Litter of Pigs.

Sows eight months old or over may be bred, if strong and vigorous, for spring farrow, but gilts that are younger than this had best not produce their first litter until next fall. In order that a sow may produce a strong, healthy litter of pigs it is important, according to Swine Breeders, not only that she be fed well during pregnancy, but that she be in fairly strong flesh for several weeks previous to the time of breeding. It is stated by those who know that a sow which is gaining rapidly in flesh just before breeding is more likely to produce a large, healthy litter. To secure this condition in sows we would gradually increase the grain ration during the period extending from three weeks to a month before breeding time. We do not mean that a sow should be fat at breeding time, but merely that she should be in her most vigorous condition.

A boar is not at his best until he is two or three years of age. He may be used on a few sows when 8 or 9 months of age and on more the following year, but he should not be put into heavy service until two years or more of age. One service a day is plenty for the average boar. Feed for the boar should be such as will keep him in the strongest and most vigorous condition. Three parts of corn, one part of shorts, and one-third of a part of oil meal or one-sixth of a part of tankage, with skim milk, if available, makes a splendid ration for both boar and sows. He should be given a lot to himself, or with barrows, where he can secure plenty of exercise and yet not bother the sows. If it is necessary to buy a boar, this should be done at least three weeks before the breeding season, and the newly purchased animal kept by himself. This is simply a precaution to avoid introducing lice and possibly disease into the herd. While being kept by himself the boar should be thoroughly washed with dip every ten days.

CLIP FOR A HORSE BLANKET

Little Device Saves Animal Much Suffering When Cover Is Blown Off During Severe Weather.

No matter how carefully a man may blanket his horse, the wind or the animal's own restlessness may cause the cover to be either blown off or thrown off. The horse then suffers from the cold and the blanket is trampled on and torn. But along comes a Pennsylvania man with a simple little fastener that prevents any such mishaps.

Horse Blanket Clip.

A piece of wire is bent into a hook that opens upward. At the top is a large safety pin by which the device can be fastened to the blanket in an instant, or it can be left fastened. All that need be done, then, to keep the cover on is to hook the wire under the breeching strap, and no matter how hard the wind blows or how much the horse stamps and switches his tail, there it will stay until the owner unhooks it.

A Lucrative Investment.

The hog is a valuable aid to fertilizing land and pays a good return on the crops he consumes. He will devour large quantities of inferior fruit or waste grain and vegetables, which are not otherwise marketable. He will thus yield a profit on what might otherwise be wasted. A yearly increase in young pigs keeps the supply rapidly increasing from a small beginning. He is a lucrative investment. The secret of success in farming, as in other industries, lies in finding a use for everything. There is no reason why such products as are the waste of the orchard should be thrown away. There is a use for everything on the farm if the farmer will but seek until he finds it, and the hog is a great help in putting all sorts of feed to a profitable use.

SYSTEM FOR MARKING PIGS

Best Method is Making Notches in Ears and Having Each Notch Represent Definite Number.

(By GEORGE MORRIS)
When a farmer raises pigs for sale as breeders, he should have a definite system of marking each litter. There are several methods of doing this, of which perhaps the best consists of making notches in the ears and having each notch represent a definite number. By means of the following method as many as a hundred litters may be marked with not to exceed four notches in the ears of each pig. For example: Let a notch on the lower edge of the left ear represent No. 1; on the same edge near the tip, No. 10; on the upper edge of the same ear near the tip, No. 20. On the right ear, lower edge near the head, let the notch represent No. 3; and on the same edge near the tip, No. 30; on the upper edge of the same ear, No. 5; and on the same edge near the tip, No. 50. This system is easy to remember. All you have to keep in mind is that No. 1 is on the left ear near the head and No. 5 just above it.

Marking Young Pigs.

on the upper edge, and that on the right ear No. 3 is on the lower edge near the head and No. 5 is just above it on the upper edge. Near the tips the numbers are just ten times as large as those near the head. Each pig of litter No. 1 should have the notch on the upper edge of the same ear, those of number three should have the notch on the lower edge of the right ear near the head, those of No. 4 should have a notch on the lower edge of both ears near the head. By following this system any number may be marked up to 100.

By studying the illustration, one may get a good idea of this method of marking. The key head shows the method already described, while the other three figures show how the ears are marked for litters 5, 17 and 41. Each year the litters should be numbered in the order of their birth, each pig in the litter being given the same marking. Always record the litter identification marks in a book kept exclusively for the purpose.

Treatment for Scours.

Good success was attained at the South Carolina station in treating calves affected with scours by adding formalin to the milk at the rate of one part to four thousand. Eleven calves out of twelve treated recovered without any further attention, seven on the second day, three on the third and one on the ninth. The calves were young ones fed chiefly on skim milk.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Always use a thoroughbred boar. Winter shoeing should be most carefully done. There never was a better time than now to start in sheep. Epidemics among hogs are more easily prevented than cured. The novice should start with a few first-class ewes, never any culls. Fatten the rattle-headed sow that is hard to handle at pigging time. Whoever heard of a horse getting thrush if his stable and feet were kept clean? Wheat middling and barley are fine as a feed for growing pigs or fattening hogs. In all cases where perfect cleanliness has been enforced there has been no disease. Epidemics among well conditioned lambs are the ones that bring home the money from any market. Meats are high the world over, and lamb and mutton more in demand by consumers than ever before. Planning to be right on hand and serve every pig may mean many dollars to you at farrowing time. With lamb chops selling at twenty-five cents a pound in the markets, there is surely "something in sheep." When the pigs begin to eat they become almost self supporting and are demanding less and less of the sow. Hogs do not waste corn in the field except in muddy weather. They gain faster, more evenly and more economically in the cornfield than in the dry lot. Eggs for Sale. S. C. Rhode Island Reds, S. C. Black Minorcas, and Cornish Indian Game. All pure blood stock. WILSON'S POPULARITY

Not Waning as His Political Enemies Would Have the Public Believe.

There are certain people who seem to have succeeded in convincing themselves that President Wilson has suffered greatly in popularity, and that he has lost his hold on the people. We do not suppose that these people are in the country who are less concerned than Woodrow Wilson about his personal popularity. He would, no doubt, be sorry to see his popularity suffer, but we imagine that he would rather see it suffer while doing the right thing than prosper while doing nothing. On the broad ground of principle the people are still with him. He has been loyally sustained in his Mexican policy. There is an undoubted demand that some step be taken, and at once, in the direction of the solution of the trust problem. The banking and currency bill has been received with favor. The objection to the tariff bill is merely the objection that would have been raised against any low tariff measure. Of the business world will have its effect. For many of us have not ceased to credit the administration power with prosperity and to charge it with responsibility for depression.

There can, we think, be no doubt that there is an element in the Democratic party or closely associated with it—that would be glad to see Mr. Wilson fail. And it is perhaps significant that much of the talk of his waning popularity comes from this source. These men were lukewarm toward the tariff bill, doubtful as to the banking bill and have opposed the President on the tolls question. From the start they have sneeringly condemned his Mexican policy. The Democratic party, as well as the Republican, has its reactionaries. Tammany hall is no fonder of Wilson than it was at Baltimore. The change of heart in Tammany's Indiana allies. The men who were beaten at Baltimore are looking forward to 1916 to "meet things right." Nothing would please them better than to have the President lose his hold on the people.

Mr. Wilson, however, is going steadily forward in carrying out the policies not of himself but of the Democratic party. His object is, not primarily, or even chiefly, to carry an election, but to keep faith with the people. Least of all is he thinking about what may happen to him. Having no personal ambition, he can not be influenced or controlled by the fear that haunts those who save such ambition. It may, after all, be found, and it will not be a new discovery, that the surest way to win popularity is through faithful and fearless service of the people. The intrigues and plots of the men who are thinking and dreaming only of 1916, may have a rude awakening in store for them. The man who honestly tries to do his work without a thought of the effect on his own fortune, is bound to make enemies. There is nothing to indicate that the American people will place them better than to have the President lose his hold on the people.

The intrigues and plots of the men who are thinking and dreaming only of 1916, may have a rude awakening in store for them. The man who honestly tries to do his work without a thought of the effect on his own fortune, is bound to make enemies. There is nothing to indicate that the American people will place them better than to have the President lose his hold on the people.

Mr. Wilson, however, is going steadily forward in carrying out the policies not of himself but of the Democratic party. His object is, not primarily, or even chiefly, to carry an election, but to keep faith with the people. Least of all is he thinking about what may happen to him. Having no personal ambition, he can not be influenced or controlled by the fear that haunts those who save such ambition. It may, after all, be found, and it will not be a new discovery, that the surest way to win popularity is through faithful and fearless service of the people. ROUSE IS GETTING BUSY

In Campaign to Secure Armor Factory For Covington.
Washington, June 21.—Representative A. B. Rouse is preparing to make a determined effort to secure a Government armor plate factory for Covington, Ky.
The naval appropriation bill now in Congress provides for the creation of a commission of three to investigate the availability of various sites offered for this eight million-dollar Government project.
Paducah and Ashland are both offering the factory and are backed respectively by Representatives Barkley and Fields.
Johnson N. Camden, the new Senator from Kentucky, deprecates this tendency to divide forces and says the congressional delegation ought to get together and create the claims of one site in Kentucky.

The wedding party consisted of the bride and groom, Miss Ethel Sturge, of Louisville, immediately after the ceremony and congratulations, they left for Louisville. The bride and groom were accompanied by several friends to the station. The relatives and friends of the couple join with the writer in wishing the newly married couple every happiness in this wedded life.

Killed Alligator in Ohio River.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., June 17.—"Kid" Furnice J. Aylor, manager of the Lawrenceburg base ball team, and Edward J. Sortwell, a local sportsman, caught a large alligator on the Kentucky sandbar, opposite this city, this morning, while fishing with a large seine in the Ohio river. The reptile showed fight when the men attempted to take it alive, and it was finally put to death by long pole spears. The alligator measured four feet 3 1/2 inches and is supposed to have escaped from a park or show-bus. Aylor will have its skin mounted and placed in the clubhouse of his baseball organization. The alligator was seen by fishermen at Anderson Ferry and other points near Cincinnati.

Converting Stone Into Fertilizer.

Some of the farmers in this and Grant counties have decided to pulverize their own limestone by converting the stone on their land into lime, and with that in view they have invested in a crusher. The crusher will grind stone as fine as meal. To spread the fertilizer thus obtained some will use spreaders made especially for the work. Others will use the shovel which they claim is as good if not better than the spreader. There is a vast amount of rock in this county available for fertilizer and as nearly all the land that has been cultivated for any length of time is in need of it. The stone that has heretofore been an annoyance may prove a very valuable asset for the land owners.

SUPPLY OF BABIES

Some Statistics About the Number Born in a Minute.

It has been computed that about 36,000,000 babies are born into the world each year. The rate of production is therefore about seventy per minute, or more than one for every beat of the clock.
With the one-a-second calculation every reader is familiar, but it is not everyone who stops to calculate what this means when it comes to a year's supply. It will, therefore, probably startle a good many persons to find on the authority of a well known statistician, that could the infants of a year be ranged in a line in cradles, the cradles would extend around the globe.
The same writer looks at the matter in a more picturesque light. He imagines the babies being carried past a given point in their mothers' arms, one by one and the procession being kept up night and day until the last hour in the twelfth month had passed by. A sufficiently liberal rate is allowed, but even in going past at the rate of twenty a minute, 1,200 an hour, during the year, the reviewer at his post would have seen only the sixth part of an infantile host.
In other words, the babe that had to be carried when the tramp began would be able to walk with the rest of the year's supply of babies was drawing to a close. There would be a rear guard of not infants, but of romping old-year-old boys and girls—London Tit-Bits.

No Tobacco Will Be Raised In Muhlenberg County.

Drouth conditions were never more serious than now and no rain has fallen here since May 1st. Gardens are practically ruined. Little tobacco will be raised as the plants have been ruined and if rain should fall now it would be too late to save the tobacco crop. As this is the staple crop in this county and as farmers have considered it trouble in preparing for the crop its loss will be keenly felt. Corn is standing the drouth reasonably well and wheat appears to have been a successful crop. Water is scarce and a famine is predicted before the summer is over.

In Memory of Robt. Eggleston.

Robert Eggleston, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Eggleston, of Sand Run met his death Sunday, June 15th by going in bathing at the river the angry wave came and swept him away without warning. He united with Sand Run church last fall and had been faithful both in church and home. He was a good worker and was a great Bible reader. Surely the Lord must have sent for him in this unexpected and mysterious way. He was ready when the summons came for we never know the day or the hour when he calleth thee. I am sure he is ready to meet the Father of Spirit in another sphere. If we do as the Lord directs us we will be welcome in the New Jerusalem.
Written by his Sunday school Teacher.

Give the Cows a Good Home.

A good dairy barn, warm, well lighted and well ventilated and converted to modern management means that the cows will do their best, because they are warm and comfortable; they will keep healthy because of high ventilation; they will drop stronger and better calves; it means a much easier proposition to secure good help. It means more success in doing chores. It means a better product in the way of milk and cream, and consequently an opportunity for a better market, and last, it means a big element in the personal pride that you take in your business, and that in particular goes a long way toward spelling success.

Automobile Accident.

Dr. T. B. Castelman, Mack and Fen Duane, of Florence, and Myron Smith, of Union, were riding on Monday morning about three o'clock in Dr. Castelman's machine, and when near Powers' shop near Richmond, the machine got off of the pike and before it could be started, ran into the road it turned turtle, hurting Dr. Castelman and Ben and Mack Duane. The machine was entirely demolished, the wind shield shattered and the steering gear badly damaged. The men had a narrow escape.

Clyde Kennedy, of Roulean Sack Canada, sending a subscription to the Recorder writes: "I came here to see the northwestern country, which is beautiful prairie land. I am working for M. J. Worthington, formerly of Grant county, Kentucky. He has the finest wheat crop in this neighborhood. There will be a Tuesday of wheat thrown out of southwestern Canada. The weather is fine!"
The hot dry weather is hard on the blackberry crop.

SUFFRAGETTES MEETING.

As per appointment Miss Little Ray Glenn, of Washington, D. C. spoke at the court house last Thursday evening in behalf of woman suffrage. She was introduced to a moderate sized audience by Rev. Edgar C. Riley, who endorses the movement.

Miss Glenn made the statement that men have not always had the right to vote, and that British liberty had its beginning from the time that the barons forced King John to sign the Magna Charta. The Puritans came to America for religious freedom but no sooner had they landed on the shores of Massachusetts Bay than they declared that "freedom" would be granted only to church members. This was not much better than the religious bigotry from which they fled. As taxation without representation is tyranny, so all just government is based upon the consent of the governed. Women pay half the taxes of the United States. Miss Glenn says that the people who cannot vote under the law are idiots, criminals, imbeciles, insane persons, infants and (in most states) women. Women she thinks should have more pride than to be content with being placed in the company of idiots, imbeciles and criminals by a government which they help to support. Even though all the women do not want to vote, there were

Love and Good Roads.

Spring to the country swain is not so prone to bring thoughts of love as it is to inspire thoughts of the easiest way to have done with the farm work which begins almost immediately after the last thaw, and which keeps up—or should keep up—until the first frost. Thoughts of love to the bucolic lad come with the harvesting of the nut crop on hills of gold and bronze. In the spring, he's too busy.

And this brings us to an appreciation of the swains of Letcher county who, instead of dabbling with thoughts of love and writing for Bessie Buttler's "Advice to the Moonstruck," are organizing "good roads clubs" in practically every precinct of the county. They are seizing upon the fundamentals of a prosperous year to come—the requisite of getting the county's highways in such condition that they are inviting to all sorts of traffic from the big traction thrasher which will winnow out the wheat at harvest time to the narrow-tired little buggy which will thread its happy way down the shady road to picnics, prayer meetings and choir practice with just enough room for two. And without good roads for buggy travel the course of true love could not run smooth.

The Letcher Fiscal Court will shortly call an election on a proposition to issue bonds for building a complete system of good roads throughout the county, and other counties in Eastern Kentucky are awakening to the necessity of improving their roads in order to keep pace with their neighbors. The spirit of good-natured rivalry among the various counties of this section which is beginning to manifest itself is an indication that the civic pride of the people is being aroused, and that when this once has been accomplished, good results are bound to follow.—Louisville Times.

The new cigarette law is now in force and boys and girls of eighteen years of age are not allowed to smoke them nor is a merchant permitted to sell them to boys under that age. The youthful consumer and the merchant selling them are alike subject to a fine.

never so many men who wanted anything in the history of our country as there are women who want to vote. To refuse the argument that the majority should want freedom before it is given she cited the speech of Patrick Henry in the little Virginia church, when he was taunted with the fact that the majority of the colonies did not want freedom from British rule. "I care not what others may think, but as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"

She explained the Shafroth-Palmer resolution that is now before Congress, which provides that upon the petition of any number exceeding eight per cent of the legal voters of any state voting at the last preceding general election held in such state, the question of whether women shall have equal rights with men in respect to voting at all elections held in such state shall be submitted to the legal voters of such state, and a vote of the majority of the legal voters in favor of the question shall establish the right.

At the conclusion of the speech an invitation was extended to all who wished to join the Boone County Woman Suffrage League and membership cards were given out. This invitation is extended to all who live in this county. No dues are obligatory, and all that the members pledge themselves to is a belief in woman suffrage. Memberships may be sent by mail to Mrs. Desha Breckinridge, Lexington, Ky.

Miss Glenn has organized twelve counties in the state under the direction of Mrs. Desha Breckinridge, president of the Kentucky Equal Rights Association, and in Lexington recently spoke at a neighborhood meeting at Mrs. Breckinridge's home, when Miss Laura Clay also gave a short talk. There are now over thirty fully organized county leagues in the state, chairman in 21 and membership in twenty-five others.

Use Arsenate of Lead.

Tobacco growers in Kentucky, Tennessee and adjoining States are advised by Government specialists to use arsenate of lead in freeing their crops of hornworms—the greatest pest that the grower in the dark tobacco districts has to face. Arsenate of lead is said to be both effective and safer than Paris green which has been used extensively against the pests for some years. With it there is no risk of burning the tobacco and this alone, in the opinion of the United States Department of Agriculture, makes its use advisable despite the somewhat increased expense. In addition it appears unlike Paris green, to have no injurious effect upon the operator.

A Sad and Unusual Funeral.

That was a sad and unusual scene enacted at Sand Run Baptist church on the night of the 16th inst., when the funeral and interment of Robt. Eggleston, the young man who was drowned in the Ohio river on the afternoon of the 5th before, were conducted. Rev. Baker, pastor of the church, conducted the services, although the remains were not in a condition that they could be taken in the building. It was nearly midnight when the interment was completed and the grief-stricken relatives and friends departed for their homes.

The RECORDER is authorized to announce Hon. A. B. Rouse as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this the Sixth Congressional District, subject to the action of the Democratic party at the Primary Election, Saturday, August 1, 1914.

The new auto law says that when passing a horse that is frightened by the machine, the machine must be stopped. If this law is obeyed there will be serious trouble every time, because if the machine is stopped when passing a frightened horse the animal will be scared worse and turn around in spite of all that can be done. If you are passing a frightened horse the thing to do is to get by as soon as possible. No doubt the draftsman of the law intended to say that "a machine approaching a horse that is frightened by it shall stop."

The U. S. Government's force of workmen began the construction of the cofferdam at Dam No. 39 at Minkland last week, and have made fine progress with the work to date. About 250 men are now at work to date. About 250 men are now at work on the dam, and the work of construction is proceeding with that system and reg-

The G. A. R. at Rising Sun, Indiana, desires that every old Rebel soldier in this county be present and participate in the reunion to be held in that little city in August, and that each of these old soldiers may receive an invitation it is desired that each send his name and address on a post card to R. T. Stephens, post card to R. T. Stephens, Grant, Ky., R. D. L.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt is suffering from an affection of the larynx as a direct result of the hardships he endured in his recent Brazilian trip, which will effectually prevent him from taking part as an orator in the political campaign in the United States this fall and compel him to exercise the greatest care for some months to come.

The date for entries in the August State wide primary election has past and Hon. A. B. Rouse has no opposition for the Democratic nomination. Emmet Orr is the only candidate for the Republican nomination, consequently these gentlemen will each have a walk over in the primary.

Local option elections will be held on Monday, September 28, in the counties of Scott, Fayette, Bourbon, Clarke, Montgomery, Franklin, Shelby and Anderson, the eight remaining "wet" counties in the Blue Grass section of Kentucky.

The Carroll County Board of Education has issued a notice to the effect that the High Schools of the county are discontinued on account of lack of funds to operate this branch of the school work the coming year.

Not much is being said about taking a vote next fall on the proposition to issue bonds for the construction of turnpikes. Some declare the proposition will carry easily while others are quite of the contrary opinion.

The ballot at the coming August primary election will contain quite a number of names of candidates to be voted for. The Senatorial nominations have brought out the candidates.

W. Marshall Bullitt, of Louisville has formerly announced as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the short term in the Senate.

It has been a long time in Kentucky since the office of U. S. Senator sought the man as in the case of Senator Camden.

Col Roosevelt's throat has gone back on him to such an extent he will not be able to deliver public speeches for quite a while.

Fine Crop Grass Seed,

Winchester, June 1.—Thomas W. Brock will finish the gathering of his grass and seed crop this week, and the yield will be in excess of ten thousand bushels. The crop has been sold for August 1 delivery at 50 cents a bushel. J. Garlick Gray will have a crop of nearly two thousand bushels gathered by the close of the week, and this together with a crop left over from last year will give him probably the largest holding of seed of any farmer in the county.

It is freely predicted that the price for August delivery will go down last year will give him probably the largest holding of seed of any farmer in the county.

Army Worms Kill Turkeys.

The army worms made their appearance on Lou-Boone's farm near Ely last week and his crop of 15 turkeys ate them ravenously. The next day Mr. Boone noticed that many of the turkeys were sick and seventeen of them turned up their toes and gave up the ghost. He examined some of them and found their craws crammed with the worms which had undoubtedly caused their death. The rest were penned up to keep them away from the worms.—Palmyra Mo., Spectator.

Horse Runs Away, Driver Unhurt.

Henry Pfalzgraf, of Idlewild, Boone county, had a thrilling experience Thursday morning when the horse attached to his huckster wagon ran away, tearing up Elm. Mr. Pfalzgraf stayed in the wagon and escaped injury, as the horse in its dash fortunately did not collide with any other object.

Feeding Mules.

A mule twelve hands high, weighing eight hundred pounds, requires as much food as a horse of the same size and weight. To be kept in good condition and fit for proper service either animal should eat from ten to twelve quarts of grain per day, with hay in proportion, say 12 pounds. It is said that whole corn assists the shedding of the teeth. It may be well to give ground feed occasionally, but mules should have plenty of hay and they are very fond of corn fodder. Great care should be taken to give an animal about the water he wants. Plenty of pure, fresh water should be placed every night in the stable in easy reach. Give a plentiful supply of oats and hay and be careful to see that the hay is sound and sweet, and that the oats are of good quality. There is no danger that a mule will injure himself from over eating. There is danger of his drinking too much water, but only when he has been kept so long without water that he is suffering greatly with thirst. It may not be generally known that a mule is much more particular than a horse about the quality of the water he drinks, and he will often suffer a long time before he will drink muddy or impure water.

Unconstitutional.

Washington, June 22.—The Kentucky statute making it legal for farmers to pool their tobacco was today annulled as unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

The court held that the conviction of Patrick Collins, a farmer of Mason county, Kentucky, for selling his tobacco to an outsider, after agreeing to pool with the Burley Tobacco Society, a tobacco growers' organization, was invalid. Collins had been fined $150.

The conviction of Thos. Malone another Kentucky tobacco grower, also was set aside.

In substance the court found that as a result of the passage of the tobacco pooling act the Kentucky State courts held that the true law of the State was that any combination was legal that did not enhance or depress prices above or below real value.

It was held that the act was an invasion of the power of Congress to regulate interstate commerce, and that it was an attempt to determine what was "real value" of an article under imaginary conditions.

They're Coming.

The 17-year locust last seen in 1897, is due to re-appear this year, according to a late bulletin sent out by the Experiment Station at Lexington, warning farmers and fruit growers.

The 17-year locust is harmful because in the warm state it lives by sucking the sap out of the roots of trees and shrubbery and when the eggs are laid, trees and plants on which they are deposited die. The locust is the longest lived insect known to scientists. Seventeen years ago the eggs from which this year's crop of locust will be hatched were laid on trees and shrubbery. The eggs, after three weeks develop into worms, which dropped from the trees and burrowed into the ground where they have lived since 1897 preying on the roots of trees. Early in June the forms are expected to re-appear and will develop into the locust.

Gentle Tip to Tobacco Growers.

It is claimed by many experienced tobacco men that loose leaf tobacco warehouses will do more to control the acreage of tobacco than any other method or argument. The reason is plain. Tobacco is supposed to sell for its actual value on the loose leaf floor. Good tobacco brings good prices, and the weed that is poor in quality is almost certain to bring the grower a poor price. As soon as the growers realize that they can no longer depend on the extra fine crop of their neighbors to boost the price of their poor crop, they too, will pay more attention to quality and less attention to quantity, with the result that an average crop will be grown, the buyer will be better satisfied and the grower will receive a higher price than he has ever before received.

The rattle of the mowing machine is heard in the land again.

The dry weather has knocked the Irish potato crop out entirely.

A little three year old girl at Hickman was found smothered to death in a can of lard.

Wheat harvest began in this county the latter part of last week. It is said the yield will be good.

Boone is the only county in this part of the State the assessment was not raised by the State Board.

In another column appears the advertisement of Thomas E. Fowler, at one o'clock next Saturday.

Notwithstanding the drouth in the larger part of this county, corn has made a very good growth.

The Florence base ball team will come over next Saturday afternoon to clean up on the Burlington aggregation.

The dry weather this month has reduced the acreage of tobacco which it was intended to be put out in this county.

An unknown negro was struck by a train at Erlanger and killed last Sunday evening. Coroner Riffe held the inquest.

It looks like the Federals and Rebels have returned to business in Mexico, and some hard fighting may be the result in the next ten days.

The grower who has not his tobacco ground prepared may as well consider himself out of the business this year so far as that crop is concerned.

Edgar Berkshire has been catching a great many fine fish in Woolper creek this month. He has it on the other boys who visit that creek with pole and line.

It has been excessively hot weather for the last few days, but so far no prostrations from heat, either as to man or beast, have been reported at the track.

Hon. A. O. Stanley, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, will address the Democrats of this county at the court house next county court day.

Automobilists who have a disposition to "speed up" a little have better have a care. Read the summary of the new law in another column of this paper, and govern yourselves accordingly.

The person who remains away from Erlanger on the fourth inst., will miss fun in great chunks. It will be one of the biggest fourths of July celebrations ever pulled off in this part of the country.

Burlington and Florence play ball at Burlington next Saturday the 27th. This is the first time these teams have ever met and a good game is expected, as Florence claim they are the class of the league.

The drought is a very serious matter in the greater portion of this county. Gardens are drying up and pastures are getting short. It is very seldom that there is so long a dry period this early in the year.

If an anti beffum cannon and a balloon ascension were substituted for the baby show and the game of base ball at Erlanger on the fourth, the performance would smack largely of the old time celebration.

According to the newspaper reports from Dry Ridge, Grant-co., woman suffering is very popular in that locality, as shown by the very large attendance and great enthusiasm at a meeting held there one evening last week.

Erlanger has prepared for an elaborate celebration of the 4th of July, which is Saturday next week. The advertisement for same appears elsewhere in this issue and calls for features that will interest everybody. There will be fun for all.

Summer began last Tuesday with a temperature about one hundred when at the highest point during the day. Some of the thermometers registered several degrees above the hundred mark but they caught the heat coming and going.

Enough tobacco plants have gone to ruin in this county to plant several hundred acres of the weed. Providence can reduce materially or cut out the tobacco crop entirely when it takes a hand along that line and succeeds without making any to do about it.

KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

J. A. McMillan, son of Rev. McMillan, of Big Bone.

J. A. McMillan, 19, of 122 East 2nd street, Covington, was struck by an auto last night while he was crossing the Suspension bridge which he died a few minutes later. McMillan was walking home from the L. & N. Railroad office where he was employed.

He started across the bridge but near the tollhouse on the Ohio end of the bridge the plank was torn up and McMillan crossed the bridge from one path to that on the other side. When he was in the middle of the driveway an automobile belonging to William Bergin, of Newark, O., struck him. The machine was driven by Claude Tattrell, of Newark, Ohio, who used his emergency brakes but was unable to avoid striking the man.

McMillan was thrown several feet. He was carried to the tollhouse where the men in charge of the bridge notified the police. Patrol No. 3 answered the call and took the injured man to St. Elizabeth Hospital, in Covington, where he died.

The police did not at first believe that the man was seriously injured. The owner and driver of the car were allowed to go. Their names and the number of the machine were taken.

The above is taken from the Commercial-Tribune of last Saturday morning. The unfortunate young man was a son of Rev. William McMillan, pastor of Big Bone Baptist church. Young McMillan was well known in this county and had a host of friends who mourn his untimely death.

A Valuable Dog.

Archie Acra, who resides down on Middle creek, called at this office one day last week to relate a few of the happenings in that locality and on which he had faithfully kept tab. Having told the boys of many strange and exciting incidents which he had witnessed in the last year and a half, he called their attention to an innocent looking canine that stood upon its hind feet. Mr. Acra said, "you may not believe it but that dog has killed 157 ground hogs in the last 18 months during the last one this morning I wish you'd put his picture in the paper. Always endeavoring to please its friends the RECORDER had its artist take a snapshot of the dog, and the picture, the best that could be obtained, is reproduced below of Flip.

Under the new marriage law many pertinent questions are proposed that must be truthfully answered, has a tendency to reduce the divorce record. A complete record of the contracting parties will be necessary before the license can be granted, including a health statement from both bride and bridegroom, age of both, residence, place of birth, name of parents, occupation, whether single, widowed or divorced. If the clerk has any doubt as to the truthfulness of the age, health or occupation report of the contracting parties, he can require a bond in the sum of $100. The justice of the peace performing the ceremony is required to furnish the couple with a certificate of marriage. It applies to both white and colored people alike.

Black birds are unusually annoying in Burlington this year. One night the past week so many of them congregated in a tree to roost that their weight broke off a large limb which came down with a crash that startled the citizens. Some evenings when the boys get after them with their shot guns, a person at a distance and not familiar with the proceedings, would suppose the citizens of Burlington were engaged in a Mexican pastime.

Elmore Ryle, of Locust Grove neighborhood, was a business visitor to Burlington last Friday. He said his corn was growing nicely, but on account of the prolonged, hot, dry weather he had only about one-third of a stand of tobacco.

County Clerk W. R. Rogers purchased of James W. Huey the Studebaker five passenger auto which he advertised for sale a couple weeks in the Recorder. When you see Rupert coming take to the corner of the fence.

A daughter of Mr. Buchert, who resides out on the Bellevue pike was thrown by a horse one day last week, and for a while it was thought she was badly hurt, but she was only badly shaken up.

Saw a curiosity on the Lexington pike one day the past week—a load of loose hay headed towards Covington. Several years ago a proverbial hay wagon on that road was not uncommon.

For Sale—One three burner gasolent new range for oven, one new range with tank, one refrigerator. The above just used one year. Mrs. G. W. Ranson, Richwood, Ky.

The fishing was not good nor the weather suitable for camping last Sunday. The Erlanger Fishing Club cut short its outing down on Gunpowder creek.

There was an automobile accident over on Banklick, Kenton county, last Sunday, in which fortunately, no one was killed. The machine met a horse and a spring wagon on a sharp curve in the road. The horse was thrown up on the front of the machine and kicked itself loose from the wagon. The horse and the machine each were injured considerably by the collision.

For Sale—Good cow that will be fresh in October; also a mare and a spring wagon. Apply to A. L. Nichols, Burlington, Ky. R. D. No. 2.

For Sale—Black Hampshire sheep eligible to register. One two year old ram, 15 ewes, eight year lambs. Telephone 347 or address R. E. Tanner, Florence, Ky.

FARM STOCK

FRESH WHEY FOR YOUNG PIGS

Should Be Fed in Combination With Grain, Corn and Barley Meal Being Preferable.

(By PROF. G. C. HUMPHREY, Wisconsin College of Agriculture.)
For pig feeding whey that is fresh from the factory or at least only slightly fermented is considered to be worth about one-half as much as skim milk. It should be fed in combination with grain, corn and barley meal being preferable.

Fed in this combination, experiments indicate that 1,000 pounds of whey have a feeding value equal to 100 pounds of corn meal. Ordinary whey has been found to be 25 to 30 percent more valuable than whey which has been separated to recover the butter fat. One to two pounds of corn meal, however, added to 100 pounds of separated whey will compensate for the fat that has been taken out. As it is doubtful if sour or stale whey is fit to feed any animal, pains should be taken as far as possible to feed whey in sweet condition only.

It requires more or less whole and skim milk and the utmost care to raise calves on whey. After calves have been raised to a month or six weeks only, ten to fourteen pounds of fresh sweet whey fed daily with the best of hay and a choice grain mixture will grow calves, but as a general rule not as successfully as skimmed milk.

FATTEN SHEEP FOR MARKET

Cull Animals Can Be Prepared Early in Season by Turning Them Into Rape Field as Pasture.

All old and such young ewes as the owner does not desire to keep should be culled out to fatten a short time before the ram is turned in with the breeding ewes. The cull sheep can be fattened earlier in the season by turning them into a rape field as pasture, but if you put off too late special food is required. In pure-bred flocks the ewes are often kept until they die of old age, as their lambs are worth more than they are, but in a graded flock it does not pay to keep ewes that do not have sound mouths. An old ewe is likely to prove unsatisfactory.

In selecting rams the aim should be to select those that are strong in the points in which the ewes are weak.

Prize-Winning Dorset.

For instance, ewes that have an open coat and are narrow breasted should be bred to rams that are strong on those points. By this method a very uniform flock can be established in a very few years. It is a good idea to turn the ram with the ewes in the evening after he has been fed and take him out in the morning before being fed. A ram should be well fed. Bran, oats, roots or vegetables make a good ration, with clover as roughage.

HORSE IS A POOR REASONER

With the Exception of Sheep He is the Weakest Mentally of All Our Domestic Animals.

The horse is a very poor reasoner. Mentally it is the weakest of all our domestic animals except the sheep. Therefore, says a writer in Denver Field and Farm, when once taught a trick or allowed to do a certain act it wanted it is with deep difficulty that the horse can unlearn on account of mental weakness.

A horse kicks his master to death when turned upside down with foot in stirrup, because in that position the horse does not know what his master is, and suffers from imaginary fear. He kicks the shafts of a buggy until his legs are broken because he does not know that the shafts are harmless and that he himself is doing the damage. He runs away in the saddle or in the harness because he has not sense enough to know better.

We heard a man, and one who claimed to be a horseman, say not long ago that a certain horse had more sense than the average boy. We saw the same horse shortly afterwards nearly turn a buggy over trying to get away from a piece of paper fluttering across the road.

CAUSE OF COLT DISTEMPER

Disease Affects Horses Only, Rarely Attacking Mules and Donkeys—How to Treat Animal.

The trouble, commonly called colt distemper, affects horses, and rarely mules and donkeys. It is such an infectious disease that nearly all horses contract the disease when colts and usually remains immune to future exposures. The cause is a very small organism or germ which enters the system when a healthy colt comes in contact with a diseased one or when fed and watered in infected vessels. The seat of the trouble is largely restricted to the respiratory organs, occasionally causing difficulty in breathing owing to swelling in region of throat or to accumulation in air passages.

The symptoms start out with more or less sluggishness. The animal eats little, and does not care to take much exercise. A little watery discharge frequently appears from the eyes, and about the same time a watery discharge from the nostrils, which soon becomes thicker and more yellow in color. Usually the glands between the lower jawbones become enlarged and undergo suppuration with a rupture of them and free discharge of pus. The temperature of the animal may be slightly or very greatly increased from 103 to 105 degrees.

Cause of Disease.

The pulsations may also be considerably quickened. When complications do not occur this disease usually runs its course in two weeks, leaving the animal little the worse for having passed through the affliction. The milder forms of this disease will need little or no treatment other than careful feeding and nursing. A laxative diet, with something green, if possible, should be given. The colt should be placed in clean, airy and comfortable quarters, but not in a draught. To hasten the suppuration of the glands poultice of hot bran or flaxseed may be applied to that region, and as soon as softening can be detected within, puncture the gland containing abscess with a clean knife blade and allow the escape of the collection of pus. During the course of the disease the animal should not be worked and care should be taken that it be not exposed to conditions likely to produce a cold.

sacrifice the quality of his product for a few pounds of wool.
The appetite of the sheep is something that needs watching. Feed only the amount they will eat at a time. Over feeding is no advantage to them and is, of course, a loss to the feeder.

Sheep must have plenty of exercise or they will run down at a rapid rate. They must be kept strong on their legs.

If a larger proportion of our farms were stocked with improved sheep the hired-help problem would be solved at once.

One man can grow a large flock of sheep and grow enough food to winter them in good condition with very little labor.

No animal deteriorates so rapidly from neglect or shows so marked an improvement for good as a well-bred sheep.

To make these animals pay keep the best obtainable and give them the best care possible.

One trouble with the sheep business in this country is that it has not been made enough of a business. It has been played with, so to speak, and putting the real effort into things which seemed to us more important.

When buying sheep go in for those that are close-wooled. If the wool comes clear up to the eyes so much the better.

Sheep have many good points to recommend them as farm animals of profit: They are prolific, the manure is very rich and evenly distributed over the soil surface and the wool and flesh will always command a good price in the market, not to mention other favorable qualities.

GOOD ROADS

SENATORS FAVOR GOOD ROADS

Growing Belief That Government Should Concern Itself With Construction of Highways.

National roads come in for repeated reference in the senate debate relating to the post office appropriation bill. It is evident that there is a constantly growing belief that the federal government before long should concern itself with the construction of trunk line roads, thus encouraging and making more convenient the great food of interstate travel.

During the debate in the senate Senator Swanson of Virginia made this comment: "We are now confronted with the proposition whether the federal government shall or shall not extend aid for the development, improvement, and construction of highways. The time has arrived, or will very soon arrive, when the people of the United States will demand that the federal government shall extend proper aid. Whatever may be the views of some, it is a question that must be inevitably met, and one that cannot be shirked. When a government comes to extend aid for roads there are two ways by which it can be done: It can furnish the money and construct the road itself, or it can aid, stimulate and lend inducement to the local authorities to do the work of road construction and improvement."

Senator Heyburn of Idaho believes: "When the government enters upon this class of work it should be for the construction of roads up to the standard of the highest use, not all at one time, but continuously and gradually; not roads one part of which would be worn out before the other was constructed, but a system of progressive construction that would result within a reasonable time in a system of permanent good roads."

Senator Williams of Mississippi is a contender for first class construction. Said he, "You must make one road good, then you must make another good, and then a third and then a fourth. There must be some scheme whereby they could be done with fairness to the states and the several sections of the country."

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts contends: "If we are to enter upon the policy of federal aid in good roads it will involve an expenditure of more millions than the Panama canal, and it ought to be done only after most careful consideration on a broad, well understood, well arranged plan, so that for the millions expended we may get value in the return we desire in good roads."

Senator Bourne of Oregon, who is chairman of the senate committee on postoffice and postroads, said: "I am heartily in favor of good roads. My opinion is, however, that we have not sufficient information to take intelligent action as to the best method of procedure."

POOR ROADS ARE EXPENSIVE

Inefficiency Costs Southern States $300,000,000 a Year to Cart Cotton to Railroads.

The cost of bad roads is strikingly set forth by Wm. C. Redfield, secretary of commerce in President Wilson's cabinet, in this manner:

The inefficiency arising from bad roads makes it cost something like $300,000,000 a year to cart our cotton crop from the fields to the railway station. I think few people realize the immense tax put upon all by bad roads and inefficient handling. I have said that if our farmers once realized the awful tax that bad roads impose upon them public opinion would sternly demand the making and maintaining of good roads everywhere. It now costs the farmer twelve, yes, twenty or more, times as much per ton mile to move his goods to the railway station as it does to move them on the railway after they leave the station. The farmer, indeed, in bad cases and at certain seasons may have to pay as much as $1 a ton mile, while the railroad carries the freight, when it once gets it, at an average of three-quarters of a cent per ton mile.

Among the factors which bring up the cost of living there are few which stand ahead of the useless cost of transportation, due to poor and often impassable roads. Poor roads not only make the consumer pay more for produce, but they rob the producer of that which should be added to the price paid him for his produce. There are few subjects on which the public is so unanimous as this one of the cost of poor roads, and yet at the same time few subjects on which it is harder to make people agree as to the remedy and where the initiative should be taken.

Producing Pork.
At the Iowa station corn and soy beans hogged down produced 15.7 pounds of pork per bushel of corn. At eight cents per bushel that is $1.23 per bushel for the corn.

KENTUCKY BUSINESS HEN; HOW TO GET HER AND KEEP HER WORKING NOW WELL

More Interest Taken in the Raising of Pure Bred Poultry Than in the Common Stuff or Mongrels - Small Per Cent of Eggs are Fit for Market

It will pay every farmer to raise only pure bred poultry. You will take more interest and pride in them and thereby give them better care; they attract more attention and therefore are in greater demand; they are better layers; their eggs are more uniform in size and color and by having pure bred first-class stock you are more apt to dispose of your excess stock at a premium. You may claim it costs too much to get started, but this is only fencing, as most farmers have scrap iron around their place which it would bring enough to buy several settings of good eggs or even a pen of good stock. We have never known of a single instance where a man has made a success of the poultry business to any great degree where he has used common stuff or mongrels. A very small per cent of the eggs from common fowls are fit to sell as first class. Then you do not get the same value for your feed. There is no mongrel or common chicken that will compare with the egg producing breeds.

White Wyandottes—strong vigorous males are more valuable than females, for they are valued at half the flock.

Having settled the question of pure bred stock or mongrel we have next to consider the breed, then the variety. Surely there are enough of these to satisfy any taste. Breed is a race of fowls the members of which maintain distinct characteristics which they possess in common. For example, the Wyandottes possess in common, same size, shape, style of comb, color of eye, color of skin, but differ in plumage. The color determines the variety.

It is also well to mention a portion of this mass with buttermilk and feed all they will clean up greedily, once a day.

A good type for the farm—White Wyandottes.

breeds and others we call egg breeds. In egg breeds we have those whose one purpose in life is egg producing. Among these are the Leghorns, Minorcas and Spanish are most used. While there are other good egg laying breeds, they have not been bred exclusively for laying.

Egg breeds are not adapted to general purpose, their business is to lay eggs and not to live fast and rear a family, nor do they produce as much meat. The business hen is in reality an egg machine and should be thought of as such. If a hen is to produce two hundred eggs in one year, she has to eat and digest a wonderful amount of food. She should go on the roost night after night with her crop packed. Many farmers in attempting to reach a high egg average in their flock make it a practice to feed the crop of the hen after she is on the roost and if it is found fabby every night she is discarded.

This is why pullets, which are destined to become the layers of the flock, should not be reared in small quarters. The feeding of growing poultry kept in cramped quarters must necessarily be complicated if it is to be successful and the pullet reaches maturity with disposition weakened and unable to stand the strain of the work of heavy egg production. If people of the cities and any others who are keeping hens in small quarters would realize the advantage of buying free range pullets instead of trying to raise their laying stock they would realize considerable gain.

All pullets that are to be kept as winter layers should be fully matured by October 1st. They should then be placed in their winter quarters. Experience has proved that a house with a floor space of five feet per hen and an open front, canvas covered with one square foot canvas to each hen, is best. The first few days after moving the feed should be light as a hungry hen will scratch around and explore, thereby becoming acquainted much sooner than a hen that is not hungry. There should always be about eight inches deep inviting litter in which the hens can scratch. After this there should be an especial effort to supply her with the proper proportion of green and meat food which are so lacking at this season of the year. I do not think the hen should be confined altogether at this season, but in bad weather she should be kept housed and at all times the runs should be limited. Before placing the birds in their winter house they should each be carefully gone over for lice or scaly legs. Every bird with signs of these must be treated.

No attempt is made to bring about summer conditions so far as warmth is concerned. The cold is valued as an aid to good appetites and heavy feeding, but the aim is to supply them with all the food elements they would get in summer and enough to take care of the cold besides.

Put floors off the ground. It avoids dampness and allows a loafing place in hot days.

However, after all else has been said and done the ultimate results are with the feeder. A good dry mash should be kept before the fowls at all times. Of course, this should be kept in hoppers. A good mash is composed of the following:

- 100 pounds bran.
- 200 pounds middlings or shortings.
- 200 pounds corn meal.
- 300 pounds ground oats.
- 35 pounds powdered charcoal.
- 250 pounds dry beef craps.
- 75 pounds alfalfa meal.
- 50 pounds gluten meal.
- 25 pounds old process oil meal.
- 8 pounds fine table salt.

It is also well to mention a portion of this mass with buttermilk and feed all they will clean up greedily, once a day.

Then for grain feed in winter mix 200 pounds cracked corn and 100 pounds wheat and feed one quart to each twenty-five hens twice each day, morning and noon. This should be thrown in the eight inch litter on the floor of the poultry house as this raises the hens exercise. In summer we change this mixture to 100 pounds cracked corn and 20 pounds wheat and in spring and fall feed equal parts cracked corn and wheat. They are fed as much grit, shell and sprouted oats or other green food as they will eat. We generally use about two square inches of sprouted oats per fowl—D. D. Slade, Poultry Department, Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

White Wyandottes—plenty of grass for a good egg yield. A very good type of house.

Hon. A. B. Rouse's name will not appear on the primary ballot on the first Saturday in August, because no Democrat in the district could see any chance to defeat him, consequently he will be handed a certificate of nomination by the proper authorities, and he can restrain his political activities until the Republicans trot out the lamb they are willing to sacrifice this fall. Mr. Rouse's faithful service at Washington has so entrenched him in the esteem of the Democrats that there is no doubt but he will receive the largest majority ever given a Democratic candidate for Congress in the Sixth District in an off year.

A dog that was making its way home passed thru the toll gate on the Florence pike one day last week. The animal was wet and frothing at the mouth, and the gate keepers thought it had hydrophobia, and the telephone called to Burlington to look out for it, and in a few minutes several parties were out with guns, but the dog saved its life by going around the town.

John Powers, of Richmond, got one of his eyes badly hurt several days ago when he was chopping wood. For a while it was thought the sight was destroyed, but it is believed otherwise now. Mr. Powers lost the sight of the other eye many years ago, and it is devoutly hoped that his present injury will not prove so severe.

The colored people had their annual meeting with the church at Florence, last Sunday, and a large number from Burlington and the surrounding country were in attendance. The church and church lot were packed with colored people until late in the afternoon.

A BAD SMASHUP

Royal Palm Special from Chicago Bound for Jacksonville, Florida, Wrecked Near Richmond.

The Fill Gives Way and The Engine and Three Coaches Go Down the Steep Embankment.

ONLY TWO PERSONS HURT.

The engine and two cars of the Q. & N. southbound last passenger train No. 11, the Royal Palm Special, were wrecked near Richmond, Florida, Wednesday night. A third passenger coach was turned cross ways at eight o'clock on Sunday morning when the rails gave way under the engine. The train was speeding over a new "fill" or grade, a mile south of Richmond. The train, running between Chicago and Jacksonville, was crowded with passengers, but none is reported to have been seriously injured, although several received bruises. The engineer and fireman received serious bruises.

Engineer Will Fleming, of Louisville, was pinned under the overturned engine for an hour or more he was dug out. He was taken to the Good Samaritan Hospital in Cincinnati, his right arm and left leg were broken.

Fireman Tom Hutchison leaped from the engine as it left the track, and was injured. It is thought, less seriously. The fireman also was taken to the Good Samaritan Hospital and placed under the care of physicians who were unable to tell definitely whether he had received internal injuries.

The Royal Palm Special left Cincinnati for its Southern trip at 7:45 a. m. It had gotten well under way after pulling through Richmond when it sped onto the high embankment where the accident occurred. The earth falling away for a distance of twenty feet under the train on one side, and the engine and two coaches were thrown overboard. The engine rolled over onto its top and the coaches and the engine and the baggage coach did the same. The first car back was laid on its side across the track, and the second car, a day coach, landed crossways of the track, but did not turn over. The other five coaches of the train remained upright and returned to their tracks.

A relief train from Louisville shops was sent out immediately after the derailment, and shovels and wrecked cars aside so as to get the train back on the track. It was managed to get later trains through with no delay of more than an hour. The southbound track was blocked all day Sunday.

A wrecking crew from Danville arrived about three o'clock in the afternoon to start the engine and coaches back on the track. The crew, and rapid progress was made, the large steel coaches being handled like they were toys while being returned to the track and replaced on their tracks.

John Ransler, who owns the land across the pike from the fill saw the engine and coaches leave the track, and was the first to reach it and assisted in removing the engine from his perilous position.

In the afternoon people by the hundreds flocked to the scene and viewed the wreck, and at one time 25 or 30 automobiles lined up along the pike. The railroad company considered the fill unsafe and had been at work for some time trying to strengthen it, and the people in the neighborhood, knowing of the condition, were not surprised when they heard of the wreck last Sunday, and are only too glad that the results were not worse.

Robert H. Eggleston.
Robert H. Eggleston was born Dec. 11, 1898, died June 14, 1914 aged 15 years, six months and 3 days. He united with Sand Run Baptist church, October 1, 1913, and was faithful in attendance at all his services until the time of his death.

Card of Thanks.—We hereby extend our heartfelt thanks to our friends for the many kindnesses shown us in our bereavement, and the death of our son, Robert. Especially do we thank our pastor, Rev. E. Baker, and his estimable wife for their kind words of Christian love; and undertaker W. A. Bullock for his efficient service. J. S. Eggleston and wife.

Dr. T. B. Smith, of Cynthia, Harrison county, was a guest at the Boone House, last Friday night. Dr. Smith is famous for a manuscript which he has manufactured and sold for nearly half a century. HAS YOUR WHEAT BEEN INFESTED WITH THE HESSIAN FLY?

Farmers Invited to Cooperate in Destruction of Pest that is Liable to Cause Considerable Damage This Fall.

Washington, D. C.—"Has your wheat been infested by the Hessian fly this season?" is the question that the U. S. Department of Agriculture is now asking farmers. The information is desired that there may be general cooperation between all concerned in reducing the devastations of the fly. There is every indication that the pest will be unusually troublesome to the crop this fall.

Every wheat grower in the country who suspects that his crop has been infested is requested to send his name to the Department, Bureau of Entomology at Washington, D. C., with a request for a question blank. The questions to be answered are merely as to whether the wheat grower's crop was infested at certain seasons. The farmer will then be asked to forward some of the infested wheat plants for examination, postage to be paid by the Government. He will also be asked to give his name, address, and the nearest railway station.

The Department is cooperating with various State Experiment Stations in this campaign against the Hessian fly, and in some states the infested straw will be sent by the farmer to local stations for examination. The wheat grower can learn just where his sample of straw is to be sent when he sends his name to the Department, indicating his willingness to send the sample. The Department encourages the grower not to be afraid to forward too much of the straw, even though it has to be sent by parcel post. The upper part of the straw need not be sent, but enough above the ground should be included to get the insect in that is known as the "Hessian" stage when the larva is incased in a hard, brown skin and somewhat resembles a flax seed. The insects will remain for a considerable time in the "flaxseed" state during a drought and will only emerge after rains have moistened the soil. Dry weather in late summer tends to keep the insect in that stage, which is a fact of special importance in the North where the wheat must be sown early enough to enable the plants to stand the winter.

Probably no other insect causes more damage to the wheat crop in the United States than the Hessian fly, although there are certain years when the chinch bug exceeds the fly in its devastations. During the seasons when the fly is especially abundant, hundreds of thousands of acres of wheat may be either totally destroyed or so badly injured as to reduce the yield 50 to 75 percent. The monetary losses run far up into the millions.

A number of years ago there was in Kansas general cooperation between grain dealers, millers and farmers to restrict the ravages of this dangerous insect. According to their own estimate, over a million dollars were saved by prompt action and thorough measures. This year the Department hopes to secure general cooperation throughout the country in combating the pest. There are indications that its ravages may be severe. Already in Iowa and elsewhere there have been threatening outbreaks of the insect.

Not only are Federal and State organizations of the Government cooperating in this campaign, but others such as the National Miller's Federation are working to secure better control over the Hessian fly. The individual wheat grower is asked to send his samples of infested straw before the middle of September, and sooner if possible, so that the samples will have hatched and have entered into the wheat.

Late sowing of the seed and burning of the stubble and seeding to grass or clover are the only measures known to date that are effective in controlling the Hessian fly—that is, for winter wheat growing sections. In the spring wheat sections, late seeding will not apply. On the contrary, the earlier it is sown in the spring the less seems to suffer from this pest.

A more detailed explanation of late sowing for winter wheat to avoid attack by the Hessian fly will be given in a subsequent article. The present article is merely an invitation to the wheat grower to help the Department in its campaign. The post card to be forwarded the farmer, contains enlarged illustrations of the fly in its adult and also its "flaxseed" state.

The Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court of the United States did a great deal of important work during the past two months and decided many cases of national importance, but its most brilliant achievement was in closing in on its own docket. Less than eighteen months ago the Supreme Court was more than three years behind.

At that time it was deciding cases that had been filed with its clerk three and four years before. During the past two months the nine members of the court have handed down 561 opinions and the court left only four hundred cases that had been argued to be decided in the fall.

The number of cases not yet reached but pending with the clerk of the Supreme Court has been cut down that now the court is only one year behind.

Another ten months of such work will find the Supreme Court abreast with its work for the first time in many years.

Whatever may be the status, psychologica or otherwise, in some parts of the country there is nothing wrong with business in Indianapolis. That this is the busiest, best city in the country is apparent to any one having the knowledge of local conditions. The degree of prosperity that is being shared by the business men of the city is unprecedented and real. It is not in their minds nor proclaimed in the hope of creating an impression elsewhere. It is of the substantial kind that produces optimism and is reflected in the tax returns.

A representative of one of the large grocery concerns of the city admitted before the board of review that the business of his corporation is the best in its history. The officer of a hardware company confirmed that showing as applying to his line of business. The furniture dealers were given an increase in their appraisements for taxation purposes, as they too, were willing to concede that they are enjoying prosperity. There are few, if any other parts of the country where there is so much of the spirit of content and hope as in Indianapolis at present.

The builders of the city are busy. Real estate is advancing in price and the demand is good. The trolley lines that radiate from Indianapolis are being increased each day 18,000 shoppers to help to swell the tide of local traffic. They come from prosperous communities that are looking forward to a record harvest. The good fortune of Indianapolis and Indiana, regarding the crop outlook is not unique. Unless the soil is exhausted, the psychological depression anywhere in the United States with all that money in sight.—Editorial Indianapolis Star.

Artisan Well, Pumps, Etc.

Filled with a bounteous supply of the things upon which man subsists is nature and her surround. The human race needs but to harness the waters, garner up God's sunshine, smite the bosom of old mother earth and live. Fifty years from to-day they will wonder that man in the beginning of the twentieth century was content with getting so little from the opportunities around him. For many of the old countries whole families live on the vegetation produced from one acre of land and live well too, but here we see farmers with fifty to one hundred acres living poorly. One of the things to bring about a change in our living will be the storing and using of water which can be used to irrigate gardens and hot beds. Artesian wells may be sunk with but one outlay of capital, small lakes for ponds may be dug. A large tank or reservoir built up high enough to give power may be filled with a small coal oil or gasoline engine.

This water used upon a small garden that has been highly manured will produce all the early garden produce, berries, etc., that a large family would consume. This water alone would not have been used at all times as the season would take care of itself. The vegetation produced by these methods would come at a time when supplies were high and they would be appreciated. The large family would not be if her fertilities are unlocked and this cannot be done with out an effort. Early radishes, beans, peas, tomatoes and many vegetables may be grown and used in a dry season if man will take advantage of the opportunities given them.

Henderson, June 25.—While thrashing wheat on the farm Charles E. Harness, near Corydon, yesterday sparked from the engine set fire to the wheat field and before furrows could be plowed to check the flames two hundred and fifty shocks of wheat had been destroyed. The loss is estimated at $200.

Luke McLuke Says

Some fellows imagine they are carrying the Burden of Great Responsibility when it is the weight of a swelled head that really makes them round shouldered.

What has become of the old fashioned man who used to wear a red, white and blue cape and march in a torchlight parade? A Chicago doctor says that eating raw onions will restore lost hair. If this is true I know a lot of fellows who will never be bald.

We are an awful bunch of liars. We beg a man's pardon when we don't give a hang if we ever get it.

Congress is making fool laws every day. Why not add a good one to the lot and pass one exempting a man from supporting his wife's relatives when he marries her.

They might also pass a law prohibiting men from wearing nightgowns and compelling them to wear pajamas. This would prevent a lavish and useless exposure of hairy legs.

A woman never waits until tomorrow to spend the money she can blow in to-day.

There isn't much class to a Grouch. But he isn't always spitting in your face telling you hard luck stories.

The longer you roam around the more you realize that all the cheese are not in the grocery stores.

Lots of fellows who are not color blind in other ways do not seem to know when it is time to change a shirt. Be satisfied with what Luck deals you and don't squeal. The chances are that if you did hold a Royal Flush the other fellows would be looking out of the window and you wouldn't get a play on it.

The skinny men have all the luck. You never heard of a doctor ordering a fat man to drink Beer, did you?

What has become of the old fashioned crash towel that used to hang behind the kitchen door? A lot of married mums act as though it were a fact that there is no place like home.

A man can be known as a Good Fellow all over town without his attic star suspecting it.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Cadiz, June 25.—A common happening in this county the past few days have been fires in wheat fields. While burning some logs in an adjoining field on the farm of H. C. Vinson, four miles west of here, the fire got into the wheat field and burned fifty-two shocks of wheat and some fence before it could be stopped. On the farm of John S. Haines, several miles east of here, several shocks of wheat were lost. On the farm of John S. Haines, several shocks of wheat were lost. On the farm of John S. FARM ANIMALS

FORAGE POISONING OF STOCK

Strange Malady, Termed "Mysterious Disease," Traceable to Unsound Corn or Fermented Silage.

(By R. GRAHAM, Kentucky.) During the past two years a peculiar and strange malady, called by newspaper a "mysterious disease," affecting horses, cattle and mules, has proved destructive, many farmers sustaining several losses. Investigation and personal observation of this outbreak, furnished conclusive evidence that the disease in question was forage poisoning, traceable in a majority of cases to unsound corn, fodder or fermented ensilage. The disease attacked horses more than cattle, and cattle were more susceptible than mules.

Animal affected by "blind staggers," the result of poisoning. When walking this horse walked directly into fences and buildings.

It has been observed by veterinarians and stockmen that these outbreaks follow wet seasons, especially when preceded by a drought, which causes a damp, sultry atmosphere. Such climatic conditions favor the multiplication of molds which inhabit grasses, corn stalks and corn kernels. While a majority of the cases have appeared when moldy corn, fodder or ensilage were fed, it is well to bear in mind that in damp seasons the grasses may also convey the destructive agent when consumed by grazing animals. Water is a very important factor in spreading the contagion.

To control this disease and prevent unaffected animals from contracting it, has been demonstrated possible by discontinuing the feeding of all moldy forage. Very few cases have occurred after a complete change of feed was made.

The high death rate recorded shows that no medicine can yet be depended upon to effect a cure. Affected animals should be removed to a clean, dry, well ventilated, airy place. The stall should be padded and the animal tied to avoid any injury during convulsions, which may appear at any stage of the disease without warning, and which may be accompanied by violence.

The owner should not unduly expose himself during such moments, as the gentlest family horse may assume a vicious attitude. Stalls should be kept scrupulously clean and well disinfected. A solution of six ounces of chloride of lime to one gallon of water, or carbolic acid in five per cent. solution in water is recommended for this purpose.

The best method of combating this disease lies in prevention. Moldy, improperly cured, fermented or damaged feed should not be fed to animals. Good results can be obtained by floating the feed. The damaged corn rises to the surface and is skimmed off. The sound kernels sink and can be fed to horses, cattle and mules with safety. This simple method of prevention is recommended as an easy, effective way of preventing or checking this disease.

SALT OF VITAL IMPORTANCE

Cattle Should Be Given Sufficient Quantity in Accessible Place—Essential in Fattening.

Common sense and many experiments teach that the proper way to salt cattle is to provide it in sufficient quantity and make it accessible to them at all times. Salt should be placed in at least two different places where the cattle run, and they should be allowed to get it whenever they want it. An animal will eat no more than is absolutely necessary in this way. While if salt is given at infrequent intervals, cattle, and particularly fattening steers, are apt to eat much more than is good for them. Salt is an important factor in preparing cattle for market.

Prevent Swine Troubles. Regular dipping and close observation to detect the early stages of various swine troubles can alone prevent loss.

Nothing Gained. No herd of swine can be made hardy by exposure.

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

Swine relish milk.

Look after all details.

Watch all farm implements.

Experience is a valuable asset.

Let the poultry have a share of the sun.

It is no easier to keep poultry than any other stock.

In housing the little chicks give them plenty of room.

Always test the hen on china or nest eggs before setting.

In fighting weeds, starting early is three-fourths of the battle.

For strong fertility there should be a change of male birds once a week.

If several hens are set in one room, it is desirable to confine them in good nests.

If a cow is not worth good feeding she is not worthy to be a member of your herd.

Gather and burn the brush; and plow the orchard not deeper than three or four inches.

Too much the chicks as soon as they are hatched. This enables one to tell their ages later.

A paste of cow manure and clay bound on the wound of a girdled tree will often save it.

First-class fruit in first-class shape will probably create an inquiry for more of the same kind.

Don't shut the chicks too closely at night, as they must have air and lots of it in order to do well.

Young chicks should not be fed wholly on concentrates. They should have generous allowances of green foods.

Some exercise is necessary to the raising of chickens, but do not give too much, as that is worse than not any at all.

A chicken that ceases to grow in the growing period has disease waiting on it at every point, which will soon attack the weakest spot.

Keep a flock of hens, a good cow or two, prepare for a good garden this year, and you won't have to complain of the high cost of living.

Take great care when manuring raspberries not to fork too deep, as the raspberry, being a surface rooter, its roots can be easily damaged.

Better feeding means the growing of more home crops. The palatability and nutritive value depends largely upon the way in which they are cured.

It is very foolish to go to the cost and labor of shocking corn then leave it out in the field until wind has blown dirt into it and weather has ruined it as a feed.

Breed from the hens that retain their color after molting. By this means you will finally get even colored chickens. This applies to all buff and red breeds.

With veal at its present high price there is a big temptation to let some of the dairy heifers go. But the careful dairyman does not let this temptation get the better of his judgment.

Good farm implements are necessary these days for successful farming. It is not economy to make out without implements that are badly needed on your farms. Invest in needed equipment.

Sweet clover does the best when sown upon sod, but any soil, unless acid, will grow sweet clover. Sweet clover likes a limestone soil. In fact, it will grow upon gravel beds which are rich in limestone.

There are a few soils in the United States where an application of a complete fertilizer—one containing nitrogen, potash and phosphorus—will return so much profit as the application of just the elements that are needed. Few soils are exhausted in all three elements.

According to Professor S. J. Hunter of Kansas, the best way to get rid of grasshoppers in the alfalfa fields is by the use of the disk harrow. Professor Hunter has been carrying on experiments for several years to eliminate the destructive hoppers and from the results of those experiments he has learned that disk harrow is not only fatal to the grasshopper, but that it also greatly increases the yield of alfalfa.

Keep the weeds down.

A hen can be kept too long.

Clean up and burn the rubbish.

Don't confine the chicks closely.

The dust bath is a natural enemy to lice.

A female fly will deposit 150 eggs at a laying.

Filth in the summer months should never be allowed.

Broody hens should be moved to the permanent sitting nest at night.

Do not depend too much upon the ram for improvement; select your ewes as well.

Foliage and fruit diseases are usually controlled with little difficulty by spraying.

Poultrymen should select their breeding stock carefully and then take care of it.

When spraying, if showers come and wash off the poison, spray those trees a second time.

Eggs saved for hatching purposes should not be subjected to high or low temperatures.

Setting hens should be placed where the rest of the flock will disturb them as little as possible.

If you have no trees in your chicken yards plant some corn to make shade while the trees are growing.

Be sure to keep plenty of fresh water before the hens. A great amount of water is used to form the egg.

Do not let the ambition for keeping all the new breeds you hear of cause you to make a failure with poultry.

Before any new chicks come see that there are no scales on the hens' legs—no mites or lice in the poultry quarters.

In seasons when drought prevails a better stand of clover can be secured by sowing the seed without a nurse crop.

If chicks have no stamina, get stunted, or are diseased, it is the careless, ignorant or lazy caretaker who is to blame.

Calves can well be fed corn ensilage as soon as they are old enough to be fed solid food stuffs, but they must not be overfed.

Tools and implements in their places and in good repair when not in use save lots of time when those busy spring days come.

A record should be kept of each hatch, showing the date set, number and kind of eggs, number tested out, and the chickens hatched.

The bill of fare should have a variety. Fowls do not wish to be confined to a single article of food any more than men do, and it is not good for them.

Light plows are all right for land that is free from stones; but look out for your ribs where there are many stones. For such land better get a heavier plow.

Potatoes planted in old land or rich garden soil are apt to be scabby and worm eaten; a teaspoonful of sulphur thrown about the tubers when dropped will prevent both evils.

It is muscle and bone that are required to withstand hardship and inactive colts never develop either like those which have the advantage of plenty of exercise every day.

Chilled eggs are responsible for a good deal of "bad luck" with incubators, but as a general thing eggs in the process of hatching will stand more cooling than many people think.

Use labor-saving devices. The high price of labor and importance of prompt planting, cultivating, spraying, etc., make it absolutely necessary to use effective tools and farm machinery.

Lambs should be docked when they are from 8 to 10 days old, according to the advice of the Minnesota experiment station. At that time the young animal receives practically no setback.

Fresh bones contain a small quantity of animal matter which is useful for food. They are in their best condition when fresh and unburned. Burning or charring consumes the animal matter and makes them just so much less valuable.

The roots of the small grain crops, as wheat and oats, are more fibrous than the roots of such crops as corn, and the great mass of the roots of these crops is confined to the furrow slice. For this reason a well prepared seedbed is even more essential than for the coarser feeding crops.

In shoeing horses it should be remembered that some horses have so strong a development of the horny structure of the foot that a considerable portion needs to be removed at each shoeing, while others require, if it were possible, horns to be added, for in them the wear is greater than the growth. Bear this point in mind in getting horses shod.

"Cured"

Mrs. Jay McGee, of Stephenville, Texas, writes: "For nine (9) years, I suffered with womanly trouble. I had terrible headaches, and pains in my back, etc. It seemed as if I would die, I suffered so. At last, I decided to try Cardui, the woman's tonic, and it helped me right away. The full treatment not only helped me, but it cured me."

CALIFORNIA LETTER.

Writing to have her paper changed from Fresno to Sunnyvale, California, Mrs. C. H. Moler says:
I have been nearly all over this State and find no place as desirable to live in as Santa Clara Valley. The climate is almost ideal.
Fresno is a lovely place but very hot in the day time and the nights so cool it gets one notice the heat.
Although it gets much hotter here than in Kentucky, one never hears of a sunstroke. The temperature has reached 118.
We had quite a thunder storm followed by a heavy shower of rain last Friday. It did not seem like much of a thunder storm to me yet some of the native sons were very much frightened. The rain did several thousand dollars damage. The second rain this late in June since the weather bureau was established.
Mr. Moler has a position as head mechanic with a big cannery plant at Sunnyvale, so the baby and I will soon be leaving the hot San Joaquin valley for the cool Santa Clara Valley. I hope to see many of my Kentucky friends in California in 1915.

RABBIT HASH.

Geo. Schroeder, of Rising Sun, was here last Friday.
Chas. Wilson gave the young folks a party last Friday night.
R. M. Wilson took a large lot of fine lambs to Cincinnati, Thursday night.
Mrs. Keener and little daughter, of Cincinnati, are visiting her aunt Mrs. B. C. Stephens.
Harry Vanderberg, a prominent attorney of Cincinnati, and his family, are visiting at Mr. Bluff Kirtley's.
Misses Verna and Ada Houze, of Indianapolis, arrived here Saturday to spend the summer with their aunt, Mrs. R. M. Wilson.
Mrs. Bessie Gant, of Vermilion, Ill., who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. Lou Van Ness, for several weeks, left Monday to visit at Indianapolis.
Mr. Coleman Richard, of Madison, who has been camping here and cutting timber for Bear River, moved into Gene Wingate's house in upper Rabbit Hash, Monday.
A severe wind storm visited this section last Friday afternoon, doing considerable damage. Grain in the shock was badly scattered, many trees blown down and some buildings damaged.
Mrs. Lizzie Stephens and Miss Bessie Gant spent several days with Mrs. Stephens' daughter, Mrs. T. B. Miller, in Gallatin-co., week. They also visited William Hankinson and family in Mexico Bottoms, Ind. They arrived home Saturday.

W. B. Johnson has bought the general merchandise store of E. M. Johnson, known as The Johnson Store, in Walton, and the inventory of the stock is being taken this week. W. B. Johnson formerly owned this store, and will move the stock of goods he has at his store at Sherman to Walton and make things lively in the merchandise line for a while.

Mrs. M. J. Vest and son D. Hess of Verona, spent Tuesday here with relatives and friends. Mr. Vest is the postmaster at Verona, and also does expert book keeping, and was here making an inspection of the books of the treasurer of the town of Walton with the purpose of making a report on them having been employed for that purpose. He found all of the accounts correct to the cent.

NOTICE—Having sold my store in Walton I desire all who owe me to call and settle within 30 days as I expect to leave Walton in that time, and all accounts remaining unsettled by that time will be placed in the hands of an attorney for collection by law. Thanking all for their patronage and kindness to me while in business, I am respectfully yours, E. M. JOHNSON, proprietor of The Johnson Store, Walton, Ky.

Thos. F. Curley, the Democratic Committeeman for the Walton precinct, received a letter Tuesday from the manager of Hon. A. S. Stanley's campaign for U. S. Senator, cancelling Mr. Stanley's engagements to speak at Burlington and Walton next Monday, on account of being obliged to open his campaign at Louisville that day. It being the only day he could get a building of sufficient size to make his address, but it will be arranged so that Mr. Stanley will speak in Boone county at a later date.

Edward Taylor, who has been an invalid for several years with a brain affection, passed to his heavenly reward his home in Walton last Friday night. Mr. Taylor had resided in this locality for half a century and was esteemed by a very large circle of friends for his sterling integrity, his kindness of heart, and his generous disposition. He was an excellent citizen in every respect, and a faithful member of the Baptist church. Mr. Taylor was in his 70th year, and leaves a widow and several grown children to mourn the loss of a kind and affectionate husband and father. The funeral took place Sunday afternoon from the Walton Baptist church, the services being conducted by Rev. Wm. McMillan of Big Bone Springs.

The days are now growing shorter.

Erlanger people are making arrangements for a big day next Saturday.

Make it a safe and sane fourth by keeping sober and not handling fire-arms.

Since the streets were oiled the wind can not stir up much dust in Burlington.

Elbert Ryle has been employed as principal of Fredonia school in Caldwell county.

Two beautiful rain bows were visible in the east last Friday shortly after sundown.

Frank Rouse sold to Dr. Yelton, last week, a nice young mare at a good price.

A large crowd is expected in Burlington next Monday as the busy season is about past.

Dudley Blyth and wife, of Petersburg, were Saturday night and Sunday guests of relatives in Burlington.

The small acreage of wheat in this part of the county is all in the shock, and the quality is said to be very fine.

All roads will lead to Erlanger next Saturday. The automobile parade will be a pleasing feature of the program.

Repair business at Eddie Bros. garage has been brisk the past week, and several machines have been overhauled.

Two colored women were examined last Friday and Saturday for certificates to teach colored schools in this county.

Several fine rains passed north of Burlington, last week, and on each occasion it was thought the cloud would come this way.

If a dry June indicates a good crop year there will be bumper crops to harvest in several neighborhoods in this county next fall.

What has become of the old time fourth of July picnic when the lads and lassies danced on the old fashioned cottons all day on the dirt?

Covington is getting busy with preparations for celebrating her centennial. The business men generally are taking great interest in the work.

Sheriff W. D. Cropper stepped on a stone, last Monday, which turned and disabled one of his ankles that was badly sprained a few years ago.

A fairly good sized crowd attended Thomas Powrie's sale last Saturday afternoon. Many articles sold cheap while others brought satisfactory prices.

O. P. Phelps traded the auto truck in which he carried the mail for a larger machine of the same make, and is not ready to do hauling for the public.

On several occasions last week the weather clerk seemed unimpaired of the needs of the farmers in this county while generous with those in other localities.

Did you know that Kento-Boo subdivision is the highest point in Kenton or Boone county? Atlantic Coast Realty Company, of Greenville, N. C. See page 8.

At present it looks like Kentucky's tobacco crop this year will not go above an average. The dry weather has done its work in nearly every county in the State.

Kento-Boo subdivision, Erlanger, is only five minutes walk from the Q. & A. station. See page 8.

Regular shallow cultivation is said to be the way to head off the dry weather.

STRUCK A SNAG

That Bothered the Local Aggregation of Ball Tossers Considerably in K-Hill.

The Florence ball team came over last Saturday afternoon and put up a game that bothered the local team considerably. Burlington came across with one run in the first inning, but in the second inning Florence scored twice and then again in the third holding the score 3 to 1 until the sixth inning when Burlington got busy with Cahill's delivery, and with "Jie and the s---" of two errors put four runs across the rubber, making the score 5 to 3 in favor of Burlington. But a little lead like that did not disturb Florence, and in the eighth inning with a base on balls, one man hit by the pitcher and a safe hit, two men crossed the plate tying the score but in Burlington's half of that inning one run was made, and Florence went to the bat in the ninth one run behind but with a couple of errors succeeded in tying up things again, but could do no better. In Burlington's half of the ninth Conner was safe at first on an error at short and Tolin came along with a three-bagger letting Conner score the winning run with nobody out.

Three base hits—Tolin, Cahill. Struck out—By Huey 11; by Cahill 6.

Hits—Burlington 8; Florence 8.

Geiger was a live wire at third for Florence.

The Florence out field made several long run and catches.

The Florence team showed more strength than the Burlington line up was expecting.

The ground was very hard and when a ball got a start it never went when to stop.

Tolin was powerful with the stick. Three singles and a three-bagger is going some.

They called Aera, Florence short stop, the old man, but he displayed an abundance of pep.

Tolin made a great one hand catch that undoubtedly saved the day for the home team.

Luck got on the base once and was disposed of by a sensational work, but got no help.

It will soon be so that to secure an umpire will be as hard a job as the capture of the rebel Villa.

If the diamond was put in proper condition any more, a better game could be put up by all teams.

Huey's strike-outs were all that saved the club from defeat. He and Slavback did the big end of the work.

Have not heard of any of the Burlington team having been approached by the Feds. They are standing firm.

A small crowd witnessed the game and many were not favorably impressed with some of the stunts pulled off.

Luck, the catcher's regalia except the glove. He thinks a catcher ought to have action enough to not get hurt.

Poul flags out to be put in position for each game. They would save many contentions as to whether a ball fell fair or foul.

The grand stand that has been packed on numerous occasions is never filled any more. Base ball is evidently on the down grade here.

It took the Burlington squad a long time to get on to Cahill's delivery although some of the boys reported early in the game "he's got nothing."

It is strange how many umpires are among the spectators during a game that know nothing about the game, besides not being in a position to render decisions.

George B. Goodhardt, 54, attorney, of Harrison, Ohio, and Fannie S. Goodhardt, 47, of Linwood, Ohio, were united in marriage by County Judge W. R. Casper in the court house, last Thursday afternoon, in the presence of Sheriff W. D. Cropper and Frank Klaser. Mr. and Mrs. Goodhardt were married many years ago, the bride's maiden name being Smith. They had been divorced fourteen years. They appeared to be persons in good circumstances. They were brought to Burlington by Mr. Klaser, they giving it as an excuse that they wanted to keep their re-marriage from some of their friends for a while. When they left town they appeared to be thoroughly satisfied with their prospects for future happiness.

Circuit Clerk Chas. Maurer and Deputy Sheriff L. A. Conner, were getting on Gunpowder creek, last Monday. The former carried a couple of very fine bass and several other fish, but Mr. Conner had no luck.

Where the ground has been plowed regularly corn has not been affected by the drought. Regular shallow cultivation is said to be the way to head off the dry weather.

STATE NEWS.

There is more intelligent permanent work being done on Muhlenberg highways this season than ever before.—Greenville Record.

The U. S. Supreme Court has held the Kentucky farmers' pooling law invalid, but the farmers themselves rendered it that way long ago.—Elkton Times.

Mr. W. P. Lillard, one of Anderson county's leading residents and best known agriculturists, will raise an immense tobacco crop this year. He has already set out 88 acres.—Lawrenceburg Record.

It is up to the wheat growers of this the great wheat belt to hold their wheat for a legitimate profit or commit business suicide by turning it over to the bulls at the present opening quotation, 75 cents per bushel. Which will the farmers of Trenton do?—Trenton Progress.

A Winchester preacher claims to have been robbed of $35. This we suppose, is circulated to offset the report from Dawson Springs that one of the Kentucky editors at the meeting of the Press Association lost $35. Both reports are interesting, if true.—Cynthiana Democrat.

The chances for a bumper crop of tobacco in this county and Bracken have gone glimmering. By the time the wire worms and the drought get thru with what has been set the acreage will be reduced to half a crop, and the quality of what is left will depend on the future rains.—Dover News.

I am using one of Chas. Stevens' patent gates with which I am highly pleased. It works nicely and I believe it will last a lifetime.—J. C. Revill.

I have had one of Chas. Stevens' patent gates put at entrance to my farm and I want to say that it surely is a great invention. I find it a great convenience and it will be more so in wet weather. H. L. McGLASSON.

NOAH, INSTEAD OF ADAM, Caused The Downfall of Man, Ac- cording to This Tablet.

Reports cabled from London describing a new version of the flood and the fall of man, deciphered from an ancient Sumerian tablet by Dr. Stephen Langdon, professor of Assyriology in Jesus College, Oxford, was confirmed today by officials of the University of Pennsylvania Museum. The tablet is part of the collection unearthed by the university's expedition to Nippur, and the inscription on it was copied by Dr. Langdon when he visited this city last fall.

On comparing the tablet which Dr. Langdon has just translated with a similar fragment translated by Dr. Proebel, the university authorities found that the two tablets evidently had been written by the same person about 2500 B. C. or 400 years before the time of Abraham. It is believed the fragments are parts of two separate tablets, which, with others, formed a treatise of hymn of praise, containing an account of the beginning of the world.

Dr. Proebel estimated that there were ten tablets in the complete work. The fragment translated by Dr. Langdon tells of the flood and uses the Sumerian equivalent for Nuh or Noah—as the man who saved man from destruction. It differs from the Biblical account of creation in reciting that it was Noah who sinned by eating of the tree of knowledge and thus brought about man's fall. From this time on, according to this account, Noah had to work and man's days were shortened to their present length.

Instead of a serpent it was Enki the water god, who tempted him.

APPLE CROP

Generally Above Average and the Peaches Promise Fairly Well.

Washington, June 22.—Apples this year promise a heavy yield in Maryland and North Carolina, the finest crop in the history of Colorado, an unusual crop in Michigan, good crops in Virginia and Georgia and South Carolina and prospects in other states generally good or above the average according to reports to the Department of Agriculture announced today.

Insect pests killed many old orchards in New England and damage from tent caterpillars was common from Maine to New York. Some injury was suffered in Indiana and Illinois from a late freeze, and insect injuries are reported, particularly in Indiana, Illinois and Missouri.

The commercial apple crop was considerably less in 1913 than in the preceding year, shipments by rail and water indicating it was 61 per cent of the 1912 season. This movement which constitutes one fourth or one fifth of the total crop, amounted to 28,633,000 bushels of which New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey shipped 12,023,000 bushels and Washington, Oregon and California 4,144,000 bushels.

A bumper peach crop is indicated in West Virginia and a very large one in Georgia. A light yield is indicated in Maryland, Delaware and Virginia where late frost did injury, as it did in the North Atlantic states from Maine to New Jersey. In the Middle West Southern Kansas alone reports good prospects. Colorado reports favorable prospects.

The New Pistol Law.

A man was convicted in Harrison county a few days ago under the new Kentucky law with regard to carrying concealed deadly weapons. The defendant was arrested for a breach of the peace and when searched by the officers a pair of brass knuckles was found on his person.

When the case came up for trial the defendant pleaded guilty to the charge of carrying concealed weapons. The court imposed a fine of $50, a jail sentence of twenty days and discharged the man for two years. In the event of the second conviction under the law passed by the last Legislature this defendant would have to serve a term in the Penitentiary.

The new law is more drastic than the old. It may be more effective if the courts will enforce it without fear or favor. Certainly no great progress was made under the former law in suppressing the practice of "pistol toting." Public sentiment is less lenient than it used to be toward persons who engage in this particular form of law violating but the pistol toting habit is quite common and many men carry weapons who ought to know better. The fact that the penalty now embraces disfranchisement and a jail sentence for the first offense and a penitentiary term for the second offense may cause some of the "pistol toters" to lay down their arms and may induce others who cannot be good to be at least a little more cautious than they have in the past.

If Kentuckians could be compelled by law or induced by other means to disarm themselves—to discontinue the needless and dangerous practice of carrying a gun while going about the ordinary affairs of life—there would be much less bloodshed in the State. The killing of the editor of the "Daily Enquirer" was a tragedy but for the long-established custom of going "prepared for trouble." If the new law should be effective in lessening the evil to any material extent the entire Commonwealth would have cause to be thankful.

No rain has been seen, except a light shower a few weeks ago, in Clinton or in the vicinity for two months or more. Vegetation is dry and the ground is very hard. The next few weeks, the cattle pastured in the water, are being hauled to the stock—Clinton Gazette.

ROOSEVELT-WILLARD WEDDING PARTY AT MADRID

The first photograph of the Roosevelt-Willard wedding party, showing the bride, the groom, the groom's father and the bridesmaids who attended the beautiful Belle Willard, daughter of the United States ambassador to Spain, at her wedding to Kermit Roosevelt, son of Col. Theodore Roosevelt. The groom is at the right, with arms behind him. The bride is seated at the right. Colonel Roosevelt is standing almost directly behind her.

MYSTERY SOLVED

Dying Woman Says She Started Chicago Conflagration.

The legend that Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over a kerosene lamp and started the fire which swept Chicago in 1871 is challenged by the death bed declaration of Miss Rebecca Thrift, who died in the county infirmary here aged about seventy.

"I started the Chicago fire, gasped the strange old woman and fearing arrest, I fled while the flames raged." Further details, whatever those details may have been were sealed by death and were buried in the potter's field along with the body of the woman whose life story has for more than 40 years been an impenetrable mystery.

Coincident with the burning of Chicago in 1871, this woman was found secreted like a hunted animal in a straw stack on the Booth farm, south of Falmouth, Ky. With her was a man. The vigilant spirit, rampant in those days, asserted itself in the form of a mob which, after a parley, spared her and feathered her arrow on the man to leave the country. He fled and no tidings concerning him have ever come.

The woman, sullen and dazed, made no explanation at the time except that she was homeless and sick. She gave the name of Rebecca Thrift. She was at that time apparently a little less than thirty.

The authorities not knowing what to do with the odd charge thrust upon them, committed her to the county farm.

Here, for 43 years, she has remained a county dependent and never once has she consented to give the name and addresses of relatives or to reveal other family history, and no one has ever claimed her. No one in authority ever believed she had given her real name and no one was ever able to learn her age. Less than the width of a city street away from the pauper grave into which the Lima woman of mystery was lowered is the spot where she sought refuge in a straw stack. In 1871—Pendletonian.

Wilson Promises Business Boom.

Washington, June 25.—Under a "new constitution of freedom" for business given by anti-trust legislation soon to be passed by Congress, President Wilson today promised the country the greatest business boom in its history. The President's final answer to the opponents of trust legislation at this session of Congress and to prophets of evil times, said Mr. Wilson, "We purpose to do it under the advice, for we have been fortunate enough to obtain the advice of men who understand the business of the country; and we know that the effect is going to be exactly what the effect of the currency reform was a sense of relief and security."

The President spoke to a group of Virginia editors in the east room of the White House, but his assurances were intended for the country. A military aide in full dress uniform stood beside him, and there was every indication that the speech was meant to be the most important of the administration.

Mr. Sterling, June 25.—Monte Fox of Danville purchased in this county today more than 100 head of fancy steers averaging 1400 lbs. for which he paid 8 to 9 cents. These are the first big cattle prices sold this summer and the prices were money makers for the handlers. Some cattle men believe that the price for big cattle will materially advance within the next few weeks. The cattle purchased by Mr. Fox brought approximately $80,000.

A GIGANTIC REAL ESTATE SALE.

PUBLIC AUCTION

AT

Erlanger, Ky.

BEGINNING AT 10 A. M.

Thursday, July 9, 1914

KENTO-BOO SUBDIVISION. 229 Acres. Lots, Houses, Small and Medium Farms will on this day be sold to the highest bidder. Location, west of the south extremity of Main Street, Erlanger, Ky. Judging from the great number of people moving to this locality we believe we are offering real estate with the most wonderful future of any in Kentucky. Located as it is, on the Lexington and Cincinnati thoroughfare, these different properties are BIG VALUE INCREASES.

ERLANGER! Where and What Is She?

Located only eight miles from Cincinnati on a double track railroad, fare only five cents a trip, and a carline only two miles distant, Erlanger, with her great elevation, electric lights, splendid schools and churches, beautiful oiled streets and concrete pavements, is a most thrifty and healthy suburb of Cincinnati, an ideal place for a working man to live. Our property is only five minutes walk from Q. & C. Railroad Station. It is a foregone conclusion that the Ft. Mitchell car line will very soon be extended to Erlanger, directly past the Kento-Boo Subdivision. You have no idea how this locality is growing. COME AND SEE.

Take a Day Off, Thursday, July 9th!

Make it a holiday. A great many of our friends are coming. Bring your wife. Special rate on railroad. Automobiles will meet trains and Ft. Mitchell cars. A FREE LUNCH and a good one. Presents for the women. Presents for the Men.

Free—ONE LOT—Free

You Don't Have to Buy or Bid to Get It--Simply Be Present

Twin auctioneers crying the sale at the same time, a big Band of Music, to say nothing of a Balloon Ascension, should make this day a regular circus for you. If you ever in your life felt like you ought to attend a sale, don't you fee like it now?

Atlantic Coast Realty Company, Of Greenville, North Carolina.

STIRRED UP
Are The People Over The Toll-Gate Raids Made Last Saturday Night.

The toll-gate war which seems to have been inaugurated in this county last Saturday night has stirred up the people generally, some, seemingly, regarding the matter as a huge joke, while others look at it as a very serious proceeding. The only conclusion that can be drawn from the talk indulged in by those in Burlington, last Monday, is that an organization had been effected for the destruction of every toll-gate in the county, last Saturday night, but the general talk about some cause being abandoned, only three gates being removed, the two at Idelwild on the Burlington and Petersburg pike, and the one at Bullittsburg school house on the Bullittsville and Dry creek pike, while notices forbidding any further collection of tolls were posted at the other two gates on that road.
A notice to collect no more toll was also posted at the gate near Bellevue on the Burlington and Bellevue pike. The law against the banding together for the destruction of property in this State is very severe, the penalty being from one to five years in the penitentiary, and from the fact the matter has been sided up in the last few days like it will be impossible to keep secret the names of the raiders.
In the eyes of the law a man has as much right to force open a store and take the goods as of money as he has to destroy a gate, and those who would not condemn the man guilty of the former offense and assist to hunt him down, but who are being collected or the pikes are not kept in proper condition there is a legal remedy for those who are not in line for the penitentiary. It is always best to not be too aggressive, especially in acts denounced by law.

PETITION FILED
Asking For A Vote To Issue Bonds To Build Roads In Boone County.

I shall file with the County Judge this week a petition asking for a vote on the voters of Boone county at the November election, the question, "Are you in favor of the issue of $100,000 of bonds to be used for the purpose of building roads?"
The Fiscal Court will submit to the voters a proposition to "Free the Pikes." These questions will be voted on separately.
For the present we will not agitate the bond issue. In fact the "Free Pike" vote of last year was the natural result. If the bond issue fails we will build a road and every year we will have to free pikes, too, for it will not be fair to tax men on the pikes to build free roads and have bonds to build them. The men should vote for both bond issues and so should the men who live on the pikes. For either side to carry out its plan is unfair, but for both issues to carry will be equitable to all.
County with bond issues will get State aid, a representative of the Road Department said to the Bankers of the Sixth Group. This can be applied to interest on bonds or to building. We are also in a position to avail ourselves of government aid.
This campaign will be brought home to the people this fall. I do not believe the people of Boone county will raid toll gates. In the first place it is a penitentiary offense and every year the men are coming to the legal and proper way to acquire this property. I trust the pike companies will get the State aid and the destruction of the gates Saturday was a fourth of July joke and not a general movement.

County Court.

The following business was disposed of by the county court last Monday:
Geo. W. Ransom's will probated and his wife, Mrs. J. M. Stevenson as executrix, E. O. Hughes, J. C. Bedinger and E. F. Bedinger were appointed appraisers.
D. M. Snyder's will was admitted to probate.
Robert Green was appointed administrator of the estate of Edward Taylor, J. D. Mayhugh, G. W. Ransler and C. L. Griffith were appointed appraisers.
The will of Mary W. Poor was probated and Chas. Strother was appointed administrator with the will annexed.
The petition asking that a vote be taken on the proposition to issue $75,000 county road bonds was filed.
The Boone County Farmers Insurance Company has cleared its books and showed a surplus of $10,000. The company was in the hands of the liquidator in the payment of assessments, and the names of very few insured had to be given. Why Good Roads Pay.

J. J. Prindall of Lorain county, Ohio, who is fully convinced of the value of good roads. Recently he purchased eight tons of fertilizer to be delivered at his nearest railroad station one and three-fourths miles from his home. All but one-half mile of this was unimproved road and at the time he needed to use the fertilizer it was in very bad condition. So in order to draw his fertilizer over a better road, he was obliged to go around by another route which was three and three-quarter miles in length. It had the advantage of having only one-half mile of unimproved road. Even here though the weight of the load was limited to one ton on account of the half mile of bad road it took three times as long to get to the destination as it would have taken on a good road. He required his two teams, together with two men, one day to draw home eight tons of fertilizer. Unquestionably but for the extremely dry season which prevailed over the vast tobacco area of Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Tennessee, including a part of West Virginia and the Carolinas, from the first of May to the close of June, the largest tobacco crop in the history of the U. S. would have been planted. Everywhere preparations had been made for an enormous acreage, and the plant beds which were sown in Kentucky alone would have doubled the average planting in that state if the season had been favorable in many places, however, it was found necessary to abandon at least half of the area which had been intended for tobacco and much of the rest was given over to corn and other crops. In some important tobacco-growing sections there were no plants in the ground at all. In transplanting time, and the scarcity of plants in other sections prevented growers from procuring the quantity of plants they needed. In practically none of the important producing centers was a favorable planting season encountered. The drought in the tobacco belt had been made to set out at least 250,000 acres, but this was reduced by at least 25,000 acres by the severe drought which burned many plants in the beds. The same condition prevailed in Tennessee, and it is doubtful if the planting in that state will reach that of last year, though it is predicted that it will on account of the heavy increase which has been planned. The dark belt of Kentucky suffered more perhaps than the burley belt, but both were hard hit by the drought, and the planting will fall considerably below that of last year. Virginia's tobacco area was also affected by a drought just at planting time.

CUT SHORT
Prospects For A Large Crop of Tobacco Ruined By The Long Drouth.

LAUNCH WRECKED
Pleasure Struck and Sunk Near Rising Sun, Ind.

A Louisville pleasure launch was struck and sunk in the river near Rising Sun, last Saturday night, by the steamer Indiana on her way to Cincinnati. Several of them women were on the launch, and although all of them, except one man who was on watch, were saved, all were saved. The pilot of the Indiana is said to have explained that he thought the launch was a beacon to be followed as a warning against danger. Although the three-quarters moon was high and the night was bright in the river valley, there were dark places along the current caused by prominences on the bank. It was at one of the dark places that the launch struck the Indiana's bow. The launch was valued at $5,000.

A Big Bouquet.

Erlanger, Ky., July 5th. Boone County RECORDER, Burlington, Ky.
Dear Friends: I wish to express my personal thanks to all the good things you had to say in our efforts to make our 4th of July picnic a success, and to recognize the big part you played in its success. You certainly have your readers with you, and when you boost a thing it goes. Yesterday's program was a success of advertising. Yes, we all recognize the valuable part you played. Yours most truly, J. F. Bedinger, President Erlanger Improvement Association.

FOURTH OF JULY
Enjoyed By A Large Crowd at Erlanger—Fine Display of Fire Works at Night.

The citizens of Erlanger and Elsmere did themselves proud last Saturday afternoon in their fourth of July celebration. An elaborate program had been prepared for the occasion and was carried out to the letter in the presence of two thousand people or more.
The celebration was at the fair grounds and began about two o'clock after the automobile parade had traversed the principal streets of Erlanger and Elsmere. The program was diversified and contained some interesting features for everyone present and all remained until the last event, the automobile race, was concluded, when many wended their way home, some to return again at night to witness the fireworks. Those who remained on the ground were served supper in the dining hall, the members of the Christian church, having charge of the supper on which a handsome sum was realized.
The fireworks began about seven o'clock and were fine, there being numerous very beautiful pieces. This concluded the day's program, which had proven very entertaining to all who witnessed it.
Everything passed off in the best of manner, everybody seemingly being out for a good day and to contribute to the pleasure of others.

SEPTEMBER 28
Day Set For A Vote On The Whiskey Question In Boone County.

At a local option meeting held at the court house last Friday, every voting precinct in the county was represented. A county organization was effected and John C. Bedinger, of Walton, was elected president and Rev. Prentiss of Beaver, secretary. It was resolved to hold an election under the county unit law on September 28, next.
Numerous petitions were drawn and sent to the several voting precincts to secure signatures requesting the county court to call an election on the above date.
It is thought that it will require very little effort to secure the necessary number of signatures to the petitions which is 25 per cent of votes cast at the last regular election.

Filed His Campaign Expenses.

When Congressman Arthur B. Rouse filed his campaign expenses before the clerk of the House last Monday he was the first Congressman in the United States to comply with the new law, which requires that members seeking nomination must file their campaign accounts both before and after the election. It is stipulated by the law that ten days before the primaries a congressional candidate must file a statement of his campaign expenses with the clerk of the House and that at operation ten days following the primaries, Mr. Rouse has no opposition for the nomination, he is desirous to maintain the spirit of the law, filed his statement accordingly. His expenses amounted to less than $100.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, It hath pleased our Heavenly Father to call from our midst, sister Sophia Whitson.
Resolved, That we express hereby our sorrow in her loss.
That we cherish with loving remembrance her example and devotion to the cause of Christ.
That we tender to her bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy.
That a copy of this memorial be placed upon the Records and copy sent to the Boone Co. Recorder for publication.

Fiscal Court News.

The fiscal court was in session last Tuesday with all the justices of the peace present. The turnpike business was about all that was considered and it appears that of the four roads under conditional assistance several months ago the Walton and Beaver roads only have made any progress towards complying with the terms necessary to secure the county's subscription and the work on these two will be under way in the next few weeks. The Linsburg and Hebron and Hebron and Beavertown roads were given further time in which to come across with the required bonds securing the payment of the individual subscriptions.
Probably the original bone of contention was jawbone.

COWS AND SILOS.

The Profit From a Silo and Economy In Feeding.

We hear men who have tried silos a number of years often state that they would build a silo if they only had three or four cows. Others say they would build the silo if they only had one cow and then explain that they would get more cows as soon as they got it constructed. We suspect it would be a good idea to build a silo of sufficient capacity for a nice farm herd of cattle even if you had no herd at all and then go into the cattle business to a certain extent just for the profits to be derived from it. Everyone we see who has a silo says there is money in it. More than that they say there is big money to be made out of it, that brings the cow up to a paying basis on the average farm in this day of high priced feedstuffs.

We find that corn silage is cheaper than any summer soiling crop we can grow. It gives many tons per acre more nutritious than the best clover hay and thus goes a great deal farther. We can grow and fatten more cattle on a less number of acres with more profit and less expense. The cow that is kept up in a clean stable this summer and given plenty of good water along with well kept silage will do even better than her sister on grass. A certain big dairyman of the writers own county plows up all his fields and puts them in corn for that very reason. He puts the manure directly back upon the land and always has his land at the top in production. He says but little hay and feeds silage the year around.

We think there should be a silo on every farm of sufficient capacity to feed the stock on that place. If you haven't more than three or four cows it will pay to build a small silo to start with and gradually build up the herd as the silo grows and better one.

Ten years ago a silo was an object of wonder to the people in this locality and we drove miles out of our way to view one of the structures and comment upon the foolishness of the owner for building such a thing when there was plenty of good grass in summer and hay in winter. But somehow it leaked out that these fellows were the ones that were making the money in the cattle feeding game. As a contrast today we find every farmer has either built himself a silo or is thinking pretty favorably of constructing one soon.—Oliver Heck in Indiana Farmer.

Against the Slaughter of Birds.

Dr. W. T. Hornaday, one of the leading naturalists of the world, and an eminent authority on bird and animal life, head of New York's famous zoological park, is conducting a nationwide propaganda against the slaughter of useful birds. "The American people," he says, "must awake to a realizing sense of certain facts that seriously affect the cost of living. The 5,000,000 men and boys who are slaughtering our birds are levying tribute on every American pocketbook." He says the codling moth and curculio apple pests cost us about $30,000,000 a year for spraying operations, and $12,000,000 a year in shrinkage of value in the apple crop. The chinch bug wheat pest costs some times cost us $20,000,000 a year. The cotton boll weevil costs the cotton planters $30,000,000 a year. The tree insect pest costs the nation $100,000,000 a year. While the grasshoppers, cut worms, army worms, wire worms, leaf hoppers and other insects cost the nation annually more millions than can be counted separately. He urges with all his great ability, backed by thousands of enthusiastic followers, the enactment of legislation that will put a stop to the ruthless killing of robins, blackbirds, doves, the bottle quail, and insect eating shore birds.

A Good Proposition.

To the married man who cannot get along without his whisky, we offer the following suggestion as it may be a means of freeing you from that awful habit, says an exchange. "Start a saloon in one of the back rooms of your house, paint all the windows, secure a card table, a load of saw dust, a few cushions, a mop, a short counter, and a small refrigerator. Then go to your wife, give her two dollars to buy a jug of whisky to sell to you. You are to be her only customer. You will have no license to pay. Remember there are 69 drinks in that jug, pay her for a drink and by the time it's gone she will have $4.90 to put in the bank and $2 left to start in again. Now keep this up for ten years and you will die with snakes in your boots and she will have enough money to educate your children, give you a decent burial, buy a house and lot and marry a man who don't drink. Now this is a purely business proposition. If this scheme don't beat the hog or chicken business a block then we have misfigured."

Richmond.—The crop situation in this county is becoming alarming, due to lack of rain. Gardens are drying up, corn is needing rain badly, and the tobacco is suffering for rain. There was little or no replanting done, due to the fact that there has been no rain here since the original setting out was done. In many places stock water is scarce.

Richmond.—The farmers of Madison county have about finished threshing the wheat crop, one of the largest in the history of the county. New wheat is bringing but seventy-five cents a bushel.

LATEST TRAGEDY IN AUSTRIA'S ROYAL FAMILY

Tragic death has struck once more at the royal family of Austria in the assassination of the heir to the throne Archduke Francis Ferdinand, and his wife. The illustration shows a view of Sarajevo, the capital of Bosnia where the murders took place. Inset are portraits of the new heir presumptive, Archduke Charles Francis, and his wife. He is a son of the late Archduke Otto, nephew of the emperor, and she is a Bourbon princess of Par

Wool Needs Better Handling.

A preliminary report of the investigation into the methods of marketing American wool, now being conducted by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, indicates that from 10 to 20 per cent of the value of the crop is lost annually through the neglect of a few simple measures. Under existing conditions when American and Australian wools lie side by side in the warehouse, the poor handling of American wools is so noticeable that the price is inevitably affected. The handicap would be removed to a great extent if all growers would agree to do four things:

1. Sack ewe lamb and buck fleeces in separate sacks.
2. Shear black sheep separately and put them in separate sacks.
3. Tie the fleeces with paper twine, which does not adhere to the wool.
4. Remove the tags or dung locks and put them in separate sacks marked to show their contents.

Figures prepared by the Bureau of Statistics and based on reports from 383 growers who sheared in 1913 a total of 2,285,005 sheep show that at the present time there is one-half of the flock owners sack ewe, lamb and buck wool separately, about 60 per cent separate the black fleeces and tie with paper twine, and less than one-third put tags in separate sacks. It is pointed out, however, that the correspondents who took the trouble to answer the inquiries of the investigators and from whose replies these statistics are compiled, presumably represent the more progressive element in the industry, and that if it were possible to obtain the facts from every wool grower in the country, the percentage of those using improved methods would be found to be much lower.

Carlisle.—With a smaller acreage of tobacco planted than last year growers report that in most places in this section there is little better than half a stand, as the percentage of those using water in many places in this county is about exhausted. Conditions are distressing in the extreme.

MILKING MACHINES IN FAVOR

Excerpt From Bulletin Given Conclusions Arrived at by Experts of New York Station.

The New York experiment station, after extended investigations covering a period of five years, has reached the conclusion that the milking machine is not only practical but has solved the problem of labor on the dairy farm. The investigations are shown in Bulletin No. 256 by G. A. Smith and Dr. H. A. Harding.

The following excerpt from the Bulletin shows the conclusion of the New York station men:

"The success of the milking machine, like any other machine, is closely associated with the personality of the operator. During the experiment the machine has been operated by six different men, all of whom have done at least fairly well. In this study the attempt has been made to contrast the machine and hand methods of milking at their best. Unquestionably it takes a higher grade man to operate a milking machine successfully than to hand milk a cow equally well. There is every reason to think that in the hands of careless operators the machines will work injury to the cows, but the same result is too often obtained from inefficient hand milking."

"The most important point of this study covered the influence of the machine on the flow of milk. Of this the authors say:

"This study of the influence of hand and machine methods upon the flow of milk covers a period of over four years and includes 11 lactation periods after eliminating the questionable data. The influence of the machine method upon the flow of milk was too small to be measured even when the other factors were eliminated as fully as possible. It was probably responsible for less than one per cent. in the variation of the flow under the conditions of the experiment. All of the cows milked well with the machine when they were provided with proper fitting milk cups. Two cows which were failures as hand milkers were successfully milked with the machine."

"The milking machine is an economic necessity. There may have been many failures. They were due to many causes. As the machines become more common and dairymen are familiar with the essentials to be observed in the operation, these difficulties will be overcome."

HOLDING COW'S TAIL STILL

Device Shown in Illustration Used for Several Years and Found of Great Convenience.

Here is a simple, but most convenient and effective method of fastening a cow's tail while milking. The illustrations practically explain themselves, writes F. W. Brown of Hillsboro County, N. H., in the Farmer and Home. A bent wire hook is made and to this is attached loop, b. Behind each troublesome cow is fastened from above a piece of twine having a fair-sized loop at its lower end. These should not hang lower than six feet from the barn floor. To make the fastening, wind the end of loop twice around the tail and draw the hook through it, then catch the hook into one of the loops hanging from above. If the twine used is reasonably coarse the operation of making or undoing the fastening can be accomplished almost instantly. I have made use of this device for several years, and have found it a great convenience.

Creameries and the Dairy.
The creameries have sounded the knell of the dairy, and the sooner our dairymen realize the fact the better it will be. The consumer is not to be blamed for preferring factory butter, for by so doing he is liable to secure an article of uniform excellence. Dealers, especially retail grocers, seldom make a distinction in favor of first dairy buttermakers, paying the same price for the article, be it good, bad or indifferent, and the consumer, up to a comparatively recent period, has been seldom able to get two pounds of butter at different times from the same store and find them of uniform quality. Creamery butter is always reliable, and the dairy article must go.

Feed Also Necessary.
It is wrong to expect the cow to yield a large profit simply because she is well bred. She must have feed and care or the breeding will amount to nothing.

HOME-MADE COW STANCHIONS

One Shown in Illustration is Simple in Construction and Will Keep Animals Comfortable.

(By J. W. GRIFFIN.)

For the man who is starting his dairy on a small scale, and one who is not able to buy the latest and most up-to-date stanchions, the drawing will explain to him one of the simplest in construction, nearest in appearance to the one that is durable, and will keep the cows in a comfortable position, either standing or laying down.

The lower rails should be of 2x6 inch material, that of the top, 2x4 inch. The uprights should be laid off before they are fastened to the floor. There is two runs of each the top and the bottom rails and the uprights work between them. The entire structure is fastened together with 5-16 inch bolts, 6 1/2 inches long. Bore the holes 15 inches apart in each of the rails and so that the top holes are directly over the lower ones.

Home-Made Stanchions.

er ones. Place the bottom piece in place, then put in the stationary upright pieces and bolt them fast. Next put on the top rails and bolt fast. Next put a piece of 2x4 as shown at (A), between the top rails and fasten with nails. This piece should be 11 inches long, and when the movable part of the stanchion is in place and the lock (B) is in position, the movable part will be held perfectly stationary until lock is released. The lock is fastened between the top rails with a bolt. It is well to let one of the stationary uprights extend to the upper joint so as to make the complete unit more rigid. The lower run of rails may be placed or nailed to the floor. If made on a concrete floor, there should be a row of posts set in place before the concrete is put in, letting the top of the post come level with the floor.

SECRET OF KEEPING BUTTER

Should Be Packed in Clean, Well-Glazed Crocks—Excellent Brine Formula is Given.

The great secret of keeping butter is to have it good at first and keep it cold.

Pack in clean, well-glazed crocks, glass vessels are preferred which have been scalded two or three times with boiling salt water and then rinsed in ice-cold water.

Pack solid within one inch of the top, then cover with half inch of fine wet salt, cover with clean muslin cloth, wrung out of cold water. Cover with an extra cloth, then thick brown paper, tie tight, and place crocks in icehouse or cool, dry, well-aired cellar. Icehouse is much the best. The following is an excellent brine to keep butter in:

Water, three pints; salt, one pint; boil it until the cream rises, then add the beaten whites of two eggs and let all boil together, removing the scum carefully, as it rises. Pour over the crock of butter when cold; the brine should cover the butter fully one inch. Cover with muslin cloth and heavy brown paper and store in icehouse or cold cellar. This brine will keep the butter sweet for one year or more.

Prepare to help out the short pastures.
Milk separated when cold means that much less cream.
A little buttermilk not worked out turns butter rancid early.

Keep the cans of cream in a tank of cold water until time for delivery.

There is cause for suspicion when a cow is offered for sale these days. Skim the milk as soon after milking as possible, and cool the cream at once.

None of the new fangled churns have yet put the old fashioned barrel churn on the shelf.

Wire strainers get only a part of the dirt. Several thicknesses of cheese cloth are better.

The dairy farm that is stocked to the full capacity, but set overstocked is a pretty safe proposition.

FOR QUINCE PRESERVE

THIS FRUIT REQUIRES SPECIAL PREPARATION.

Natural Quality Requires That They Should Be Boiled and Steamed Before They Are Put into the Sirup.

Just as soon as quinces turn yellow they are ready for preserving. They might be said at the start that quinces require boiling or steaming before being put into the sirup, differing from the usual order of preserving.

This is because they are a very hard fruit, and the hot sugar only tends to make them harder. To proceed: Pare, core, and quarter the fruit, dropping into cold water to preserve the color. Put skins and cores into a separate vessel.

When all are prepared put two layers or so into the kettle and cover with cold water. Cook over a slow fire until tender. Take out carefully, and when all are cooked, strain the water and allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar to one pint of juice.

Cook for ten minutes skimming until the sirup is clear, then put in as much fruit as it will cover. Simmer very gently for half an hour, or if the quinces turn red before they are ready to be removed to the jars. Let the sirup cook a little longer, then pour over the fruit and seal the jars.

Quinces Preserved With Apples.
Sweet apples should be used. The two fruits make a delicious preserve, and will cost less than the quinces alone. The proportions are one-third of quartered apples to two-thirds of quinces. The apples will take less time to cook than the quinces, both in the water and in the sirup. In filling the jars, put alternate layers of the fruit and pos. Letting sirup over, sealing at once.

Quinces With Cider and Molasses.
This is a favorite southern recipe. The fruit is to be pared, cored and halved, then boiled in sweet cider until tender. Take out and add to the liquid one quart of molasses and one pound of sugar to five pounds of quinces.

Beat up the white of an egg and put into the sirup to clear it, bringing to a boil and skimming until quite clear. Take off the fire, and when half cold put in the fruit and boil for fifteen minutes. More cider may be added if necessary. A little green ginger boiled in the sirup is an improvement.

Quince Marmalade.—Cores, peel and imperfect fruit can be made into a marmalade or a cheese. After thoroughly cooking the fruit, strain through a sieve and allow three-quarters of a pound of sugar to one pound of fruit. Boil, stirring constantly until smooth and firm, then pack into jars. A little orange peel chopped fine will add to the flavor.

Quince Cheese.—This is made by cooking the marmalade until it is very thick. If packed into small jars it can be turned out and may be cut like cheese.

Quince Water Ice.—To make this unusual confection, pare and cut into thin slices three large quinces. Cover with four cups of water and one of sugar. Bring all to a boil, keeping at that temperature for fifteen minutes. Strain and put into the freezer.

Roasted Tripe.
Take about a pound and a half of tripe, wash and boil it in milk and water for an hour. Cut into two oblong pieces, equal in size.

On the fat side of one piece some good veal force meat and lay upon it the other piece, the fat inside inwards. Roll and skewer the tripe securely, tie it round with a thin string. Place in the roasting pan, dredge with flour and bake liberally. When done enough, serve on a hot dish and garnish with sliced lemon. Send melted butter to table in a tureen. Time to roast, half an hour or more. Sufficient for three or four persons.

Creamed Fish.
Get a can of any preferred fish, as salmon, crab, lobster or shrimps. Open and place in a bowl for an hour or so before using. Make a sauce by cooking together equal quantities (about one tablespoonful) of butter and flour until the mixture is thick. When done, then pour in a cupful of milk and stir until the sauce is smooth, white and thick. Now add the fish and season with pepper and salt. When the fish is thoroughly heated through, stir in a little lemon juice and serve at once.

Beef Roll.

Run one pound of lean beef through the meat chopper, add one-half pint of dry bread crumbs, a level teaspoonful of salt, a dash of pepper, a little minced onion, if liked, and one egg; mix these ingredients thoroughly and shape into a roll about six or eight inches long and three inches in diameter; wrap in a piece of oiled paper; put into the baking pan, add one-half cup of water and bake 45 minutes, basting over the paper occasionally.

French Dressing.
Pour into a small bowl one teaspoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoonful pepper, one teaspoonful Worcester-shire sauce, if desired; one-third cupful oil and two tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Beat well with an eggbeater and pour immediately over the salad.

Luncheon Cake.
Two eggs, one cup sugar, one-half cup butter, one-half cup cold water, two cups flour, one teaspoon cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon of soda; flavor to taste.

Nervous?

Mrs. Walter Vincent, of Pleasant Hill, N. C., writes: "For three summers, I suffered from nervousness, dreadful pains in my back and sides, and weak sinking spells. Three bottles of Cardui, the woman's tonic, relieved me entirely. I feel like another person, now."

TAKE Cardui The Woman's Tonic

For over 50 years, Cardui has been helping to relieve women's unnecessary pains and building weak women up to health and strength. It will do the same for you, if given a fair trial. Study this carefully, but begin taking Cardui today, for its use cannot harm you, and should surely do you good. E-72

OPPORTUNITY FOR FARM BOYS

We... and Lincoln Were Men of Great Strength and Had Advantage of Open Air.

For city boys, the correspondence schools and night schools afford the best means available in continuing an education. The main difficulty encountered is the fact that their hours of employment leave no time or strength for study. Many have improved their health in attempting more than their strength would permit. Washington and Lincoln were of great stature and great endurance, and had the advantage of open-air life in their youth. This is a tremendous advantage.

Let them boys have it, and they now have an advantage in many places after they leave school. Farm work is educational. The farmer who keeps his eyes and mind open grows bigger intellectually every day that he lives. The country agricultural agent, or demonstrator, a man to this advantage. He brings the school to the farm. With his help and suggestions, the boys on the farm can develop themselves in a way that makes the educational advantages of the city of negligible importance.

New Automobile Law.

As the new Automobile Law, which went into effect June 1, has many provisions that are rather hard to grasp, we present a summary of them for the benefit of the autoists. An observance of these regulations will, we believe make for the happiness and well-being of both automobilists and the public generally.

The law forbids the driving of an auto which is heavier than is "reasonable and proper," any greater being prima facie evidence of unreasonable and improper speed. To close built-up sections, incorporated cities, ten miles an hour; in residence districts fifteen miles an hour; on highways outside the business and residence sections, 20 miles an hour. On a curve, corner or crossing, where the operator's view is obstructed eight miles an hour is the limit.

A driver must come to a full stop in passing a frightened horse or on a street car taking on or discharging passengers. Any city may, however, pass traffic laws that place the speed limits lower than the statute.

The framers of the law were generous in providing fines and equally unpunished in finding acts which can be punished. Some of the law infractions and their penalties are:

Fine of $10 for fictitious chauffeur's badge.

Fine of $15 for employer of unlicensed chauffeur.

Fine of $10 for unlicensed chauffeur.

Fine of $15 to $50 for intoxicated operator of motor vehicle.

Fine of $15 to $100 for person under sixteen who drives car without parent or guardian.

Cancellation of vehicle license for owner who fails to report discharge of chauffeur because of drunkenness.

Two to five years in the penitentiary for taking machine without owner's consent.

Forfeiture of chauffeur's license on conviction of drunkenness.

Fine of $10 to $50 for violation of any section not specifically enumerated. This may be augmented by five to thirty days in jail.

The new license price follows:

For vehicles of 2-horse power or less, $6; between twenty-five and fifty, $11, and above 50-horse power, $20. A motorcycle registration fee is $5.

The examination for chauffeurs to establish their right to licenses are to be held as follows:

Louisville, first Monday in December; Lexington, first Monday in February; Mayville, first Monday in April; Bowling Green, first Monday in July; Paducah, first Monday in September and Covington first Monday in May.

Until then the Commissioner of motor vehicles at Frankfort, will have the right to issue licenses.

Some men are unable to believe a word they say.

The towboat, Northern, ran into the lower dyke here Saturday and grounded five loaded coal barges. Two of them are badly wrecked and all are in bad shape, lying on top of the dyke. A broken tiller rope caused the accident.

Measure Auto Parts.

Recently a unique company was incorporated in Illinois under the name "American Efficiency Survey of Motor Car Units." Its plans and purposes are to make the most comprehensive and exhaustive examination and analysis of every individual unit which enters into the building of an automobile, such as axles, radiators, oils, magnets, carburetors, wheels, motor, these brakes, spark plugs, speedometers, etc., in fact everything that can affect the quality and service of the car and to make complete reports on the result of these examinations. None of the company is even remotely connected with the automobile industry, the members of their board of expert engineers are absolutely free and disinterested critics and are recognized as the foremost in their line in the country, if not in the whole world. Some of the richest, strongest and largest manufacturers of "automobile units" have accepted this new company at its full face value and have taken out memberships in the new undertaking. This marks an important epoch in automobile making and selling and gives to the individual buyer a sense of security in the knowledge he now can have concerning quality in automobile parts which he has long desired.

A Bird Census of the U. S.

A census of all the birds of the United States is suggested for this summer, and the department of agriculture invites bird lovers throughout the country to cooperate in taking it. The object is to determine how many pairs of birds of each species breed within definite areas. By comparing these figures with those of subsequent censuses it will be possible to ascertain whether the present State and Federal laws are effective and game and insectivorous birds increasing or diminishing in numbers. Voluntary observers are relied upon to furnish most of the desired data to the department. As a beginning the department has asked about 250 correspondents throughout the country who have previously rendered valuable service to follow a general outline in supplying information. Anyone wishing to aid in this good work is cordially invited to send similar information to the department. The correspondents have been advised that the census of the birds should be taken over some area that fairly represents the average character of the country in the immediate neighborhood. The area selected should represent average farm conditions, but without woodland; not less than 10 acres, a quarter of a mile square, and not more than 50 acres, and should include the farm buildings, shade trees, orchards, fields of plowed land and pasture. It is desired to take a census of the pairs of birds actually nesting within the selected area. Birds visiting the area for feeding purposes should not be counted, no matter how close their nests to the boundary lines.

No rain in sight according to the weather prophets.

DEVON.

The crops are in great need of rain. Mrs. Mary Carpenter, near this place, is reported quite sick. Mrs. Will Woodward and son, Robert, were guests of friends in the city, Thursday. Mrs. Alfred Rivard, who had the misfortune to get her arm broken, is improving nicely. Mrs. Ambrose Easton had for her guests Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Eason, of Bracht Station. Chas. E. Miller and wife are spending several days at Big Bone, having gone over for the fourth. Lita and Julia Rice, of Covington, were guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rice on the fourth. Miss Lena Wilson, a popular young lady of this town entertained several of her friends with a croquet party Saturday evening. Miss Stella Wilson gave a surprise party Friday night in honor of her guest Miss Nellie Wilson, of Kensington. Three games of about thirty present. Games of all kinds were enjoyed by all after which refreshments were served.

BIG BONE.

No need of a weather prophet here. Sallie Hughes is reported quite sick. Sorry to hear of the serious illness of a friend and neighbor J. Sam Noel of Midway. Samuel Rust, our clever blacksmith, was called last Saturday to determine how many pairs of birds of each species breed within definite areas. By comparing these figures with those of subsequent censuses it will be possible to ascertain whether the present State and Federal laws are effective and game and insectivorous birds increasing or diminishing in numbers. Voluntary observers are relied upon to furnish most of the desired data to the department. IDLEWILD.

L. C. Scothern spent the glorious fourth in Erlanger. Miss Emma Hensler, of Newport, was a recent guest of Mrs. Ben S. Houston. Dr. H. H. Hays and Courtney Walton were business visitors in Burlington, Monday. W. T. Berkshire spent the latter part of the past week on his farm below Rising Sun. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stevens and Miss Nellie Stevens were guests of Mrs. Mitt Southern, Sunday. Miss Alice Weston spent Saturday in Petersburg with her friend, Miss Dorothy Dunlap. Mr. and Mrs. Grant Williamson spent Saturday and Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lystra Smith. Miss Norma Rachal came down from Union, Friday, and joined the Petersburg parties who are in camp at Split Rock. Misses Beulah and Myrtle Stephenson attended the Union, Tuesday after a two weeks' visit with their aunt, Mrs. Frank Rue. A horse belonging to Dr. Nunneley fell on John Hays' last week and bruised him considerably. He was confined to his bed several days. Mrs. Ben S. Houston, Rev. J. W. Campbell, Mrs. Campbell and interesting family, have returned from a delightful motor trip in Central Kentucky. Elijah Grant and John Smith went to Bullittsville, Friday, to see John Grant, who was in a runaway Wednesday in Cincinnati, and as a result, is nursing a badly mashed foot. Mrs. T. E. Randall entertained a number of the small folks on the afternoon of the fourth, the occasion being in honor of Miss Norma Rachal's seventh birthday. Night riders destroyed the double toll gate at Idlewild Saturday night, and wrecked the one at Bullittsburg school house, on several other gates in this section. Mrs. Sarah Brady is visiting her cousin, Alice White. Willie White has a sow and ten shoats for sale. Price reasonable. Joe Pappet and family visited at James Burns' Saturday and Sunday. Chess Aylor, of Plymouth, Ill., visited his sister several days last week. The second crop of alfalfa is being harvested this week but is very short. Mrs. John Lowe and son, Alfred, of Columbus, Ind., are visiting J. W. Kelly and wife. Miss Alma Kispert, of Cincinnati, visited with her family, Saturday and Sunday. Ross Shinkle and wife, Podge Alloway and wife visited at Chas. Shinkle's, Sunday. Geo. Daffern and wife, of Columbus, Ind., are visiting the latter's parents, J. W. Kelly and wife. Cook passed here Friday enroute to visit his daughter, Mrs. Cam White, at Lawrenceburg ferry. Mr. Durick, wife and daughter, of Cincinnati, visited John M. Lucas and family, Sunday and Monday. Miss Bernice Grassner and friend, and J. W. Randall, of Lawrenceburg, were pleasant callers here Saturday. Mrs. Robt. Rice and daughter, Miss Neva, visited her daughter, Mrs. Leslie Sebree, last week. They called on Mrs. J. W. Kelly last Friday. Mrs. Sarah E. White enjoyed the fourth at the home of Jas. W. White in honor of her 88th birthday. A delicious dinner was prepared and served on a long table on the lawn. A large kettle of burgoo was enjoyed by all present. A delicious supper was served after which the guests departed, wishing Mrs. White many more happy birthdays. One feature of the day was the presence of four generations. Miss Kispert and Mr. Randall each had a camera and took pictures of the four generations and also the whole group. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Ryle and daughter, Miss Artie Ryle; Mr. and Mrs. W. S. White; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. White and daughter, Miss Hattie White; Mr. and Mrs. Ira Ryle and daughter, Margaret; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Reeder and son, Ed; Dallas and George; Mr. and Mrs. George Daffern and son, Irvin; Mrs. Pearl Brady and daughters, Hazel and Sarah; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kelly and son, William; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. White and daughter, Alice; Mrs. Mayme Lowe and son Alfred; Miss Alma Kispert, Miss Bernice Grassner, of Lawrenceburg, Mrs. Clara Sebree, Miss Anna Lee Wilson.

HEBRON.

Mrs. Ed. Rouse, who has been sick for some time, is improving. Prof. Hunt of Berea College, is the guest of W. H. Clayton and family. Mrs. Mallie Beeson, near Hopeful, was a guest of Mrs. Lester Aylor, one day last week. Harve Tanner has been very sick, and a nurse from Cincinnati was called last Friday to attend to him. Mrs. Harriett Hicks and son, Harry, of Covington, spent Saturday and Sunday at C. E. Clor's. Carl Bradford, of Hebron, and Miss Mary Watts, of Bullittsville, both popular young people, were married on June 4th, in Covington. Harold Crisler was taken very sick last week. Dr. Haynes of Cincinnati, and Dr. Sayre, of this place, were called to perform an operation for appendicitis.

DAIRY FACTS

FEW POINTS OF A GOOD COW

Important Characteristics of Animal Is Judged by Size and Color of Eyes—Other Points.

Nervous temperament in a cow does not mean a high state of nervousness or irritability, but the animal has nerves such as make the various parts active, giving tone, vitality and activity to the many parts of the body. This important characteristic is judged by the size and character of her eyes. Her face should be broad between the eyes and well shaped. The eye should be prominent, bright, clear and mild, but not at all sluggish looking. The prominence between the eyes is a very important point. The backbone should be covered with no surplus flesh, for if it is, the cow is using to fatten herself that which should go into the milk pail. The ribs should be wide in themselves, and should have plenty of width between them. This can be measured by inserting the fingers between the ribs. Persistence in chewing the cud is a very important point with dairy cows.

A Good Dairy Cow.

IDEAL FEED FOR DAIRY COW

Importance of Succulent Ration, as Well as Good Supply of Pure Water is Apparent.

(By R. B. RUSHING.)
"When I get my cows into grass again there will be more milk."
This is a statement frequently heard during the last month that the herd is confined to the yard. When on pasture the yields show a marked increase even though the animals may have had plenty of good grain and forage previously.

What is there about grass which makes it such an excellent and satisfactory food for a milk cow? Is it not its succulent nature?
Succulence means full of juice, and the juicy ration for the dairy cow is the correct one from all standpoints. Large quantities of water are required by the cow in order to make large quantities of milk.

A large part, in fact all but about 10 or 12 per cent. of milk is water, and consequently the food that produces 8,000 pounds of milk in a year makes use of something like 7,000 pounds of water, or a little over, for milk alone, to say nothing of what is required for her body.

Thus the importance of a succulent ration, as well as a pure supply of drinking water is apparent.
Realizing the great stimulus to production which grass is, the dairyman anxious for large yields should seek to pattern his ration as nearly as possible the year around after this natural food.

Grass alone, of course, would not be satisfactory for winter feeding for it keeps the body of the cow too full of water and allows her to suffer from the cold, but in conjunction with more fat-forming foods, such as grains and feeders, grass would be a part of an ideal winter ration.

The nearest approach to grass, however, is silage and it is for this reason that silage is held in such high esteem by those who feed it.

DAIRY NOTES

What? No silage left?
And now comes the time of scant pasture.

Straw buttermilk is one result of working it when too soft.
Ill treatment has spoiled many promising dairy heifers.

The dog that brings the cows up the fastest should be the first shot.

Do not mix warm cream with cold cream until it has been cooled.

One way of developing a gentle cow is to begin with the heifer and the calf.

Early morning is the best time to have "good luck" in churning, if the weather is hot.

It is either a darkened stable or milking early and late these days. Flies give the cows no peace.

The cost of a good sire is entirely forgotten in the satisfaction and profit derived from the offspring.

The cows need protection from the sun almost as much as they need protection from the cold wind.

If the milk sours before the cream rises you will make a poor quality of butter besides losing much cream.

There is sure enough tobacco growing in the Trenton country, notwithstanding a long drouth and high prices. Mr. John B. Garth, the prosperous farmer, has this year tobacco that measures two feet across from point to point. Mr. Garth was in the favored belt and set a splendid acreage of tobacco. Trenton Progress.

There is a great scarcity of farm labor in the country, farmers complain that it is impossible to secure sufficient help to properly cultivate their crops, and are of necessity compelled to curtail the amount of land cultivated. And that is the fact, you can come to town at most any day and find from a dozen to twenty-five idle hands, men and half-grown boys, loafing around; any but day a half-dozen half grown colored boys may be found around the park, loitering in the shade, and the services of one of them could not be procured for love nor money. This matter should be remedied; with the amount of work to be done, and the great demand for laborers with fair wages offered there is absolutely no excuse for anyone being idle. There are stringent laws upon the statute books against "vagrancy," and it appears to us that these laws are being flagrantly violated in Lancaster every day. Lancaster Record.

Mr. George H. Wilson is one Warren county farmer who believes that there are other means of making a living on a farm than by cultivating wheat and corn and tobacco. He moved here from Glasgow about six years ago and bought a small farm on the Louisville pike about a mile and a half from the city. He has studied the question of ginseng raising in a small way before coming here, and began to utilize that knowledge by starting into the cultivation of ginseng on a commercial basis. He constructed an arbor covering an acre of ground and set the seedlings of ginseng in the rows. This could secure the seeds of the roots. The experiment has been a success from the beginning. As fast as the seeds from his own beds would get ripe he would plant them, either for transplanting to other beds or to sell to other farmers desiring to enter the business. Thus he has increased his output until he now has customers for the roots all over the country. For the seeds likewise he finds ready sale for all he can spare. The larger roots he dries for the export trade getting from $8 per pound to $10. The dried roots go to China, where they are much in demand by the natives. So far as Mr. Wilson knows, the medicinal virtue, but the Chinese are ready buyers. As a rule Mr. Wilson sells through the local dealers. The older and larger roots command the better price. Mr. Wilson does not rush his plant roots to market.

But the ginseng farm is a good revenue producer. Already this season he has booked for August delivery more than $2,000 worth, this being the month for setting out the plants.

Mr. Wilson has also begun the cultivation of the golden-seal or hydrastis, heing the medicinal plants in beds. He is likewise finding ready sale for this and the cultivation is very much like that of ginseng. Bowling Green Messenger.

Sticking To The Mud.

When Pulaski county voted some weeks ago, on a bond issue of $300,000 for the construction of permanent roads a majority of the voters lined up in favor of the bond issue. The two-thirds majority required by the constitution, however, was not reached and last week the county took another vote on the proposition. The advocates of the bond issue felt that there was no doubt of victory at the second election. The opposition apparently had softened some of the voters who had opposed the bonds in the first instance declared their intention of going with the majority in favor of the improvement for the benefit of the people now on earth." But the second election was held and when the votes were counted the voters who had opposed the bonds in the first instance declared their intention of going with the majority in favor of the improvement for the benefit of the people now on earth." But the second election was held and when the votes were counted the voters who had opposed the bonds in the first instance declared their intention of going with the majority in favor of the improvement for the benefit of the people now on earth."

A number of Kentucky counties have manifested enough interest in the good roads question to make an effort to vote bonds. No county yet has set the example of endorsing a bond proposition. A few of the counties have been able to return a bare majority, but most of them have failed to do more than show a respectable minority for bonds. It is not probable that a third vote will be taken in Pulaski at an early date. There are a few other counties that contemplate holding elections, but the outlook is not assuring. Seemingly the people of Kentucky are hopelessly prejudiced against county bond issues. They are not influenced by the examples of other States. Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Indiana and other nearby Commonwealths are building roads by means of the issue of bonds and are satisfied with the investment. Kentucky continues to hold the road question in the old way, which means that practically no roads are being built.

Recent rains in Henderson county coming after the planting of hundreds of acres in this county, was a great help to the crop which all growers now consider safe. A full crop was set.

Standing Timber.

Government estimates tell us that three hundred million acres of the original forests of our country have been denuded and that there now remains five hundred million acres of standing timber. More than a century ago, along the upper reaches of the Ohio river, sailing vessels were built in considerable numbers to sail the seven seas with commerce of the then new West and of the Atlantic Coast, even around the Horn and the Cape of Good Hope. There were fore-and-afters and square-riggers—schooners, brigades and full-rigged ships. And they were built out of the great oaks and black walnut trees of the original forests.

Fifty years ago an Ohio farmer, sitting on the top rail of a section of a mile or two of black walnut fencing around his rich fields of corn and wheat, and near to his comfortable home of squared black walnut logs, pointed down to a little piece of the original forest as he had found it in his youth and remarked that there were very few trees of that kind standing in Ohio. He was a rich farmer, as riches were estimated in those days, but he had rather sadly that he would be glad to trade all his possessions for the original forest of walnut trees he had commenced to cut down forty years before that time—ninety years ago.

The land surface of Ohio is about twenty-six million acres, of which some thirty million are timbered, two millions are in timber. One crossing the state to-day in any direction would hardly estimate the timber at a thirtieth of the acreage. Most of the trees he would see are not over thirty or forty years old, and are mostly in groves and small trees for roads, wells and homes. It is true that considerable portions of the original prairie lands of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa have fine groves that were set out after the buffalo was driven west of the Mississippi. The native oak, hickory and black walnut have mostly disappeared, but the fine young groves we see as we speed across the country tell us that our forests can be renewed. The good work should be pushed forward in Ohio.—Enquirer.

Handling Dairy Cows in Pasture.

To do their best work, cows should be content, and anything that is annoying should be kept out of the pasture. If fifteen colts running in the same pasture will torment cows by chasing and biting them, and when this is noticed, they should be taken out and kept out; also bulls will sometimes torment them, and as they are better off by themselves than running with the cows they should be kept away, either kept in the barn or put in a pasture by themselves. While the cows are in pasture, the fences, fences can be produced, as then the animals are clean and well nourished.

Milking cows in the pasture is, I find, the most satisfactory way, but it is not in all cases convenient, especially in bad weather, therefore stabling must be practiced more or less.
To keep the flies off the animals while milking is in progress I either spray them or throw over them a blanket or a piece of straw. I think it pays to give some grain all through the pasturing season, even when the grass is at its best. A very little grain is needed only a small amount to entice the cows into their places of milking and to keep them from getting tough and dry I increase their grain ration and use some pasture substitute. To supplement pasture green food of most any kind will answer, corn, peas, millets, vetch, buckwheat, etc., are all good, and their high yields warrant an increase of feed from small plots of ground. If stalling is not desired, cows can be turned in on small plots of cowpeas, millets, etc.—A. E. V. in Indiana Farmer.

SCHOOLS ARE THE FOUNDATION

PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY OF STATE DEPENDS UPON EDUCATIONAL ADVANTAGES.

CHOOSE GOOD MEN TRUSTEES

Office in Many Instances Has Fallen into the Hands of Incompetent and Indifferent Citizens.

To All Our Fellow Citizens Who Love Kentucky and Wish to See Her Advance to a Higher State of Prosperity, Materially, Morally and Intellectually—Greeting:

The schools are at the very foundation of all prosperity and progress. The quality of our schools inevitably set the standard of our citizenship. The quality of our schools must be the result of the qualifications, interests and activities of our trustees, teachers and patrons.

The trustees as a rule choose the teachers. The County Boards are made up from the ranks of the district trustees and all the affairs of the school district are in the hands of, or under the influence more or less of the trustees, hence the vital importance of choosing the very best and most suitable men in each district for the office of district trustee.

It is true that hitherto this office has generally been despised and looked down upon as unworthy of great consideration. As a consequence it has largely fallen into the hands of incompetent and indifferent hands, and as a result the children's heritage has been sold for less than a "miserable pittance."

But we are glad to see a change coming, the people are beginning to recognize the very great importance of this office, and we believe are going to see it filled with the best ability in each district.

For this reason we think it is opportune to call the attention of the school patrons especially, and the public in general to the fact that on the last day of August next the important offices are to be chosen by the voters—now both men and women.

We would emphasize with all possible force and urgency that the voters turn out on the day of the election for school trustees and choose men of character, of breadth of view, of activity, of earnest purpose, incorruptible, and who it may fairly be expected will prove loyal to the interests of the children. Elect him and make him serve. As a rule we would not advise the election of a man who is seeking the office.

Given one of the best men in each district of the state, as school trustee, and in one year from their installation we would see such a transformation in the outlook for this Commonwealth as has not hitherto been dreamed of.—John B. McFerran, Chairman Educational Committee, Louisville Commercial Club.

WHAT A LIVE TRUSTEE CAN DO

As illustrating some of the few important things that a live trustee of broad view and real interest in his office might have in mind and be instrumental in accomplishing, attention is called to the following:

"A school expecting to reach the highest degree of efficiency must work under auspicious conditions. These conditions include a comfortable, attractive school building, surrounded by beautiful, well-kept grounds. The condition of the building and grounds is a correct index of the appropriateness of the community for the school. The parents and not the children, are to be judged by the appearance of the school buildings and grounds."—Doughty, State Superintendent of Schools.

The Site.
The trustee whose duty it is to provide the largest convenience of all the children who are to be educated in the school, should select one of the most important features is the healthfulness of the locality. An elevated piece of ground, a knoll or a gentle slope, should be chosen for the reason that the drainage should be from and not toward the house. Sand or gravel sub-soil affords natural drainage. The southern or eastern slope secures the rapid evaporation of surface water, the most favorable to the admission of healthful sunlight. The house should stand upon a slight rise, yet not so near as to shade the house completely or to shut out the breezes in hot weather; both breeze and sunlight are essential to health. A school house should never be built on low or marshy ground, near stagnant pools, or in the neighborhood of offensive odors, nor should it in any event be near a noisy railway or manufacturing plant.

Water Supply.
On every school house site there should be a well-protected well so placed and guarded as to be perfectly secure against surface drainage or other kind of contamination.

The School House.
A building should be fitted for the school on the same principle that the dwelling is made for the family; the health and comfort of the children should be the first consideration because all their future will be affected by the impressions they receive and the habits they contract at school. They will reach maturity with more or less vigor and make better or worse citizens according to the influences then exerted upon them.

Grounds.
The erection of a suitable building is one good step, furnishing it well is another, employing the best of teachers is of greatest importance, but beyond these the improvement of the site and grounds is worthy of much attention. Children catch the sentiment of a place by inspiration. The beautiful lawn, the shady grove, the inviting playgrounds have a charm for them. The rough and barren impresses rough and reckless fellows with respect. It helps to refine their thoughts and purify their hearts.

The Architect.
One of the first and important things in the construction of a school is the employment of an architect. The architect is regarded as an almost necessary part by some people. The aim of all good architects from the first is to build a building to last permanently and to build nobly. The charge of a well-representable architect is about the same as it is for economy to employ a man who does not know the business because he is a slave. You pay more for what you get but do not know it.—Department of Education, Kentucky.

GOOD ROADS

DISTRIBUTE COST OF ROADS

Let Money Spent Be Levied Upon Assessed Valuation of State—New York Plan Favored.

Country roads should be built and maintained from the funds of the general public. No public road is of purely local importance; no community nor industry but is in some degree dependent upon the efficiency of all highways. Since the development of automobiles, more than half the traffic on the average country road is purely city traffic. Why should townships, for instance, be made to bear their equal share for road expense regardless of wealth and resources, when the roads to be built benefit neighboring communities and even distant cities as much, and sometimes more, than the immediate locality. Roads are the arteries and veins of commerce. Because some of them are remote from the heart of trade does not lessen their significance to the whole.

Let money spent for roads be levied upon the assessed valuation of the state, says the Farm and Home. In Illinois, for instance, 67 per cent. of the total taxable property is located in incorporated cities and towns. Should the 33 per cent. comprising country property bear all the burden for building and maintaining the highways? By means of state and county appropriations, or state and county bonds, or both, equitably divided, the road burden would be more fairly distributed. The New York plan of dividing the cost between state, county and town works very well and is probably as fair and just as any that could be devised.

TO TAX TOBACCO FOR ROADS

Representative Warburton of Washington Has Novel Plan to Raise $80,000,000 Yearly.

The constructing of a comprehensive system of national highways out of a tax imposed upon the consumers of tobacco is a proposition which Representative Warburton of Washington has embodied in the form of a bill introduced in the house. He proposes that a tax shall be imposed so light as not to be felt by the users of tobacco, but every puff of smoke from burning tobacco will represent a part of a system of highways.

The plan contemplates trunk lines connecting the capitals of the different states with the national capital at Washington and with each other and running to the different national parks. The cost of construction to be paid out of a tax similar to that of 1879 on tobacco. It is calculated that the tax will raise $80,000,000 a year, or more than twice the amount of internal revenue now collected.

UNITED STATES GOOD ROADS

Estimated That Percentage of Improved Thoroughfares Good Well Beyond Nine Per Cent.

In the past three years it is roughly estimated that the percentage of improved roads in the United States has gone well beyond 9 per cent. and possibly close to 10 per cent. It is estimated that if 20 per cent. of the public highways were improved—each highway being selected and improved with a view to the proportionate traffic upon it—a high degree of efficiency in highway transportation would be reached. It is figured that millions of dollars would be saved annually in the transportation of crops, the wear and tear on horses and vehicles, and in the minimizing of the waste in truck farming. Where roads are bad, the farmers frequently find it impossible to get their products to the shipping points and thus perishable products are wasted, perceptibly increasing the cost of living.

Eradication of Dandelion.
The best way to get rid of the dandelion pest is to devise some use for them. The moment they become valuable that moment it is going to require a lot of trouble to produce them.

Crossing Is Harmful.
No flock owner can achieve success in the breeding of sheep, either for market or breeding purposes, if he resorts to constant crossing of two different breeds to improve his flock.

GRAVEL IMPROVEMENT

CONSTRUCTING A GOOD ROAD

Some People Think Gravel Is Everlasting, but This Is Mistake, Says Missouri Writer.

Gravel roads if well built will last six to nine years. It suffers most when not needed, namely, in very dry weather in summer or when frozen hard in open winter.

In the first place the road bed should be well made, but not too rounded, as this induces waste. Where deep spots occur a natural drain should be built crosswise of the road, made of coarse rock to let the water out to the side of the road. Gravel should be at least eight inches deep in the center and wide enough for two teams to pass.

We once helped to build a two-mile gravel road in Missouri which was built by the tax rebate system 20 years ago. It worked hard upon our district in this way, writes John Klinge of Hudson county, Missouri. In the Iowa Homestead. Our district had a state road running north through the center. To the north of us two road district met on our center line running north, and these two districts united with us. We built to the beginning of their near end of road, so it came to pass that they got the full benefit of their work while we only got part of it. Most of our people had no use for it as it was out of the way. To make matters worse, the road bosses of the other two districts drew their full quota of road money at the expense of our district. I left our road boss the next year with 65 cents of road money and the poll tax to keep the district in order, and by the time all this land tax rebate had been used our district was in very bad shape. Our money nearly all went to others districts and it is not just for a few to have a good road at the expense of the others.

When a boy 21 to 37 years ago we did a good deal of gravel hauling, and a few weeks ago I was surprised to go back and find how those roads changed. The cost of construction is a good gravel road 32 years ago they have been hauling creek gravel every six to eight years and in this way they have a good road. They have the gravel near at hand, and with plenty of loaders a team averages one load an hour.

I think if the law required four-inch tires, and then the doubletires and ackyoke were lengthened out to give the team more liberty, the roads would be much better. If we can't go with the four-inch we ought to stay off the road or use the spring wagon to get the necessities of life. There is no excuse generally for cutting up the roads except about the first of March.

Our country roads will never be gravelled, for long before we get over them we will have to start over again. Some people think gravel is everlasting—but that is a sad mistake. Even now we don't think of saving our surface dirt and do not employ the motto, "a stitch in time saves nine," our roads must wait till the working time comes and go all to pieces if the weather is bad in that time.

Selecting Ewes.
A Canadian authority said the best time to purchase the ewes for a farm flock is in August just after the lambs have been weaned. We can purchase them as cheaply then as at any time and can make the best selection in choosing ones that have raised lambs, as their milking qualities and strength can be ascertained. Besides, we will have them in good condition for the next crop of lambs.

Poultry Industry.
The imports of the product of poultry culture into this country from foreign countries show that the industry is still open to a large increase of the industry in the United States, and that the opportunity is waiting for those with sagacity and industry enough to take advantage of it.

GOOD ROAD WORK IN KANSAS

Nearly $700,000 Spent by Highway Department in 1912—Engineer Leah Reviews Year.

The business of the state highway department at the Kansas Agricultural college aggregated nearly three-fourths million dollars in 1912. That was the value of the bridge and road work done, says the Kansas Industrialist. It was a record for that department. Its work was more than trebled. What has been accomplished in the last year by the highway department is a summary of the engineering work done by this office during the year:

Plans and specifications for bridge work finished or under construction	$200,000
Plans and specifications for bridge work not contracted	150,000
Plans and specifications for road work	25,000
Plans and specifications for drainage work under construction	90,000
Plans and specifications for farm to town highways	7,000
Consulting and supervising engineering work on highways	75,000
Board of arbitration of bridge cases in Mitchell county involving	95,000
Inspection of bridge work in Mitchell county involving	65,000
Inspection of bridge work in Newton county involving	15,000
Valuation of public property on which services have been furnished	$638,000

"In the campaign for good roads, speakers have been furnished for 405 meetings, addressing a total of 51,000 persons; two good roads trains have been concluded; 200 circulars, tracts, or other publications have been distributed; and every county and township board in the state has received an offer of assistance in its local problems.

"We are spending more money than ever before on our highways, and while there is a great waste due to mismanagement and lack of proper supervision, we are getting a marked improvement in our roads.

"During the past year the townships spent for road and culvert work $2,204,685. There was also spent in 303 counties $591,111 for county roads and in 22 counties $401,578 for bridges. In these 22 counties it was found that this year the bridge expenditures increased 35.7 per cent. over the average for the past three years. In the remaining 88 counties, if an increase of ten per cent. in expenditures is assumed the amount spent on county bridges would be about $778,424. The total amount of funds spent on the highway in 1912 was about $4,975,696. There will be approximately $5,250,000 of highway funds available for 1913.

"A review of the year given a decidedly optimistic outlook for future progress. 'Good Roads' has become a household topic in Kansas. No other subject is receiving the attention or consideration as does that of better highways. The more people know the more they want. In any previous year. Probably more has been accomplished during the past two years than in the previous 60 years Kansas has been a state. What we most need before this association assembles next year is a completely new bridge law; a few changes in the present road law, or a revision that will give a more businesslike system of administration; a state highway department that can give more assistance; provisions for state aid; and an automobile tax for road purposes.

Alfalfa as Pork Maker.
At the Kansas experiment station 800 pounds of pork were made from one ton of alfalfa hay, and 770 pounds from an acre of alfalfa pasture. At the Nebraska station good rations consisting of one-fourth alfalfa hay showed the alfalfa hay worth its weight in corn meal and superior to the same weight of bran. The Iowa station made pig pork at $3.84 per 100 pounds and realized 71.1 cents per bushel for corn; with alfalfa and corn, pork cost $2.85 per 100 pounds and corn returned 86.6 cents per bushel—a difference of 33.3 per cent. in favor of alfalfa.

Protection for Grapes.
Place a two-pound paper bag over each bunch of grapes when the fruit is the size of small shot. This protects the grapes from insect and bird injury, and insures extra choice clusters. Fasten the mouth of the bag close about each stem with a pin, or wire, or string.

Notice the Beds on "Thornhill" Wagons

The beds of "Thornhill" wagons are designed and finished with excessive care. The sides are made of first class poplar, because it holds paint better and gives better service. The bottom of the beds are of Southern pine tongue and grooved and reinforced over front and rear bolsters. A system of construction is employed that prevents the reinforcing from ever falling out and insures longest wear.

Throughout the "Thornhill" Wagon, you will find the features that have proved themselves worthy.

The long sleeve malleable skein (non-breakable) prevents the axle from breaking at the skein. The strength of the bolsters is multiplied by the construction employed. The front hook plate is so made that the gears can never get out of line. You will find in this wagon six big points of superiority that no other wagon possesses. Come in and let us show you the "Thornhill" wagon sold on a guarantee. Do it to-day.

The Business Incendiary.
When false rumors are circulated affecting the solvency of any bank or firm or institution, those responsible for the rumor must pay for the damage done.
But men in New York, in Chicago, men everywhere, men engaged in railroading who want more money; men out of office who want to get in; men suffering from indigestion or thwarted ambition may go up and down our highways and cry continuously, as they have done unchecked for two years, that disaster is impending, that trade is rotten, that credit has been destroyed, that worse is coming, that panic is overdue, and that the whole country is going to the dogs.
Every observant man knows that in passing from a Dingley tariff to an Underwood tariff, from an old system of currency to a new, business necessarily waits the issue before enlarging its activities. Every man knows that Europe has for two years, on the verge of waters for two years, and that only the patience and the power of the President have averted war with Mexico, and, therefore, it behooves all men to be patient in turn, to be self-controlled, to be not afraid, to be not overconfident nor depressed, to pursue the even tenor of their way undisturbed, doing nothing to cause disturbance anywhere.
Trade has stood unprecedented pressure, and it is seen to be sound and ready for great things when peace is assured, when the laws are established, when the canal is opened and the crops are harvested, but in the meantime mark the ways of the agitator, the course of the wandering incendiary, the blind and reckless partisan and the man who is chosen by the people who are carrying the nation through unknown wildernesses, across rivers of doubt and the promised land.—Louisville Post.

Hot Off Sunday's Bat.
Billy Sunday in his sermons is especially severe on the society woman who does not serve some useful purpose. Pink tea immediately become unfashionable during one of his revivals and bridge parties are for the time forgotten. A feature of his revivals is at least one sermon during the series to women only. Here are a few of the sizzlers that women hear when he preaches to them:
If you lay aside your prejudice, you little frizzy-headed sissies, it will help you to you won't make the mistake you ma made.
There are married women who shrink from matrimony because they don't like the garments and ability to flit like a butterfly at some social function.
There are too many girls who marry for other causes than love. Some girls marry a young buck to reform him, and they are the biggest fools in the bunch, because he would not marry you to reform you.
You can not work for six dollars a week and wear fine duds and be on the square without having the people suspicious.
I believe a good woman is the best thing this side of heaven and a bad woman the worst this side of hell.
It is said the Cincinnati Reds have bought a player named Der rick—the team needs a derick.

Keeping Your Eyes Open.
Making money on the farm is made possible more by farm management than any qualities of soil or location of land says the 20th century Farmer. It is true that the land and the advantage of good, all-year markets have their influence and contribute greatly to the profitable operation of farming. All persons engaged in similar occupations are not money makers. The faculty of money making or business management is strongly developed in one person, while in another it may be scarcely perceptible.
This feature of adaptability to occupation, or lack of it, is a most pronounced cause of the land ownership craze that has prompted persons of all classes of education and training to become land occupants, through the inducements of homesteading the cheap government lands, and the very rapid advance in farm land values. There is nothing now so desirable in the estimation of the man of average intelligence as to be the owner of land, the owner of a good farm.
Thousands of persons have in recent years become land owners and land operators, assumed the occupation and management of farms without ever having had any training or experience in the management of farms, and are not making the farm pay. While this is true there are other persons who use the farm as the basis of trading and dealing operations, and by shrewd management in this line of work are making money. The farmer who can see a bargain in what others produce and avail himself of opportunities of buying and developing, has an opportunity independent of the usual producing advantages of farm stock breeding.
We often hear of the young farmer who goes around among his neighbors and buys up a bunch of calves during the autumn season and winters them through on his cheap feed, strawstacks, fodder, winter pasture, a little hay, etc., and in the spring has a fine lot of yearlings that has attained at little expense, 200 pounds or more of growth, and sold at a big profit. This is one of the ways that some of the farm business sense of a dealer is used in making the farm pay off other people's production. The farmer who is always on the lookout for some thing to buy in the line of livestock at a bargain is in the line of his opportunity of making money on the farm.—Live Stock Reporter.

Two of the notices posted at the gates on the Bullittsville and Dry creek pike were type written and two were hand written. These notices warned the gate keepers to collect no more toll, one of those posted at the Constance gate threatening the life of Mrs. Tupman if she violated its orders, but Mrs. Tupman was not to be intimidated and never stopped collecting toll, declaring that someone will get hurt if they interfere with her business.
No toll is being collected at the lawless gate on the Petersburg and Burlington pike.

Bentler Co. coal advertisement in this issue. It will be to your advantage to call on it before buying your coal for the winter.

GOOD ROADS IN TENNESSEE MOUNTAINS.

[BY J. L. CHAMBERS] I am still interested in good roads and better schools in every state in the Union. I have noted a few facts concerning these two subjects since my arrival in the Tennessee mountains, which are at this writing in am in Jacksboro, Campbell county. Believe me these people are wide awake on the good roads issue. You know that good roads really belong to agricultural communities. Campbell county's cereal crop mounted last year to about $300,000, or in comparative terms to Boone county, Ky., only about one fourth as much, yet this very county has a better school system and is still making improvements. Scott county, another Tennessee mountain county, which has a still less farm income than does Campbell county, has also expended $300,000 for pikes besides bonding itself further. Of course Boone county can't bond itself as these Tennessee counties have done because of a restriction on their constitution, but we are going to bond ourselves a hundred thousand and weep because we cannot do more. I have been impressed very much by the great forward stride made by these mountain counties which have given of their mites a little for schools and good roads. They are so far ahead of the ones which have not as not to admit a comparison. Of his wisdom and mercy helps them to help themselves. God helps those who help themselves. I have seen better barns, better farms, better boys and girls, better citizens. I was in this very county six years ago and when I saw the present predicament of the present village, I must exclaim in delightful surprise: "What has been wrought. The desert has been made to blossom as the rose, and farmers are tending the waste places." This is a delightful place and country since the people have awakened. Please come down and enjoy it.

Thompson-Baker Nuptials.

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Baker of Holmes avenue, when their daughter, Betty Innell Baker, was married to Mr. Charles Thompson of Ohio avenue. The ceremony took place at eight o'clock the Rev. J. R. Savage, officiating. The bride wore a gown of white lace with tulle veil and she carried a shower of bride's roses. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Collins of Linden avenue. Mrs. Collins, as matron of honor, was beautifully gowned in white crepe and carried a white lace and carried a white rose. Thompson, mother of the groom, was daintily attired in white embroidered silk, and Mrs. Baker, mother of the bride, was handsomely gowned in gray crepe de chine. Among the out of town guests were Mrs. C. F. Hendricks and her daughter, Genevieve, of Macomb, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Stayer, of Dayton, O. and Miss Flora Alice Miller, of Erlanger, Ky. Others present were Mrs. J. G. Slater and daughter, Nell, of Ludlow, and Mr. C. A. Slater; Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Williams, of Louisville, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas News-Times-Star.

Rising Sun Got A Blow.

Rising Sun was in the path of a fierce wind storm last Monday afternoon and for a while the citizens were very much alarmed, and especially so when they saw the horses and buggies that were hitched along the streets being blown over and rolled about the thoroughfares.

FLORENCE.

Miss Pearl Long is spending the week with E. E. Long in Union. Mrs. Charley Cahill, of Indianapolis, is spending the week with Mrs. Pat Cahill. Mrs. Dora Cole, of Columbus, O., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Rouse, her grandparents. Mr. and Mrs. George Maegly, of Ludlow, spent last Wednesday evening with Mrs. J. Scott. Miss Ruby Corbin is spending a few days with her aunt, Miss Carrie Clark, of Covington. Catharine Cole, of Erlanger, spent Saturday and Sunday with her grandmother, Mrs. John R. Whitson. Mr. and Mrs. Charley Scott and son, Charles, and Miss Mary Grogan, were guests of Malchi Grogan, of Dayton, Sunday. Edward Scott, wife and little daughter, of Covington, were the guests of his sister Mrs. Julius Corbin, Saturday night.

Ben Douglas Goff threshed 100 acres of wheat grown on the Scott Renick farm, which he purchased about a year and ago, and sowed over 36 bushels to the acre. This land was in corn last year—Winchester Democrat.

Real Estate Changing Owners.

An unprecedented stir in Burlington real estate began last week when Dr. Yelton sold his house and lot to William Clore, the consideration being $3,000. Immediately after closing his sale Dr. Yelton began looking for other property to buy in the town and by a few hours those who had ever expressed a desire to sell had placed prices on their holdings, making the non-resident owners learned of the bound Burlington real estate had taken. The sale here referred to was that of the Clutterbuck property to W. R. Rogers for $2,000, and it is well worth the money. The property consists of two lots, one across the street from C. C. Roberts and one which is located the brick residence occupied by Mr. Rogers and his two sisters, while the other is a very large lot, lies across the street from Attorney Sidney Gaines residence, on which is located an old barn. This lot is a building site it is said this sale resulted from Dr. Yelton's activity in the real estate arena. Mr. Rogers and his sisters would be unable to secure another home located so much to their liking. At this time Dr. Yelton knows the price of every piece of property in Burlington that is for sale.

James Moreland's Body Found.

The body of James Moreland whose disappearance was noted in this paper last week was found last Wednesday about noon by Frank Rouse, young man of Limaburg neighborhood in a thicket on Gunpowder creek about where the north end of the bridge of his son-in-law, Glen Crier. That particular thicket was the only place in the entire neighborhood where it had not been thoroughly searched. The young man who found the body was one of a fishing party and he went into the thicket to kill a bird to use as bait when he made the discovery. To take his life Mr. Moreland had used his belt girth and knive around his throat and then tying the other end to a limb on a sappling not more than four feet from the ground, he put the lower limb of his body not being to exceed five or six inches from the ground, he put the position he evidently choked to death. Undertaker Scott Chambers was called as soon as the body was found, and he put the remains in the best condition possible and conveyed them to Bellevue where they were interred by the side of his wife about ten o'clock that night.

A Balloon Wakes Up The Town.

Of the eight large balloons that started in the race at St. Louis, Mo., on 5 p. m. last Saturday, one of them carrying two men passed over Burlington about 5 p. m., last Sunday, and crossed the river at Bellevue about the time it was setting but throwing out ballast cleared the hills and timed in the vicinity of the Commissary when it again came close to earth and its drag rope gave it trouble, getting tangled in trees and telegraph wires, but the discharging of another installment of ballast let the balloon rise several hundred feet, it passing over Burlington at a distance of probably 800 feet. From Burlington it traveled northeast, and the men threw out bags of sand at frequent intervals to keep the balloon in the air.

Erlanger Lot Sale A Success.

The sale of building lots at Erlanger last Thursday was attended by about 1,000 people and bidding was brisk, the lots all being disposed of by 3 p. m., after which a pretty good luncheon was served. Prices ranged from $15 to $250, the Jack Barton residence with a lot fronting 200 feet on the pike and running back 60 feet bringing $135. W. H. Scott, one of the directors of the Florence Deposit Bank being the purchaser. The free lot was drawn by an Erlanger lady, Frank Hossman, of Hebron, was among the buyers, four consecutive lots constituting his purchase. Those were probably the most successful sale and showed that they have the business down very fine.

More Light Wanted At Walton.

Walton has long been the leading and most progressive town in this county, and next Saturday night her enterprising citizens are going to show the world several additional lamps by putting in operation an electric light plant by which all the business houses and a majority of the residences in the town will be illuminated. It will be the beginning of a new epoch in the history of the little city, and people from miles around will assemble there that night to assist Walton people celebrate the event. Walton has a bright future before her that cannot be shared so long as she harbors an array of enterprising people like her present citizenship.

It will not be long until you hear the declaration often, "I have the finest tobacco I ever raised."

Personal Mention.

Miss Mary A. Thompson has been quite poorly for several days. Miss Louise Blyth returned to her home in Lawrenceburg last Friday. Miss Mattie Winston of Cincinnati was a guest at W. A. Gaines' last week. Mrs. Alice Snyder is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Cecil Gaines of Erlanger. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Koehler, of Newport, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall. Henry Haberle, of Constance, was a caller at this office one day the past week. Miss Martha Perkhizer, of Chillicothe, Ohio is the guest of Mrs. Omer Porter. John Walton and Robt. McGlasson will return to school at Lexington next fall. Walter Hall and sister, Miss Ruth, spent last Sunday with relatives in Rising Sun. Earl Walton and family, of Petersburg, were Sunday guests of her father, G. G. Hughes. Calvert Kirkpatrick and family, of Bromley, were guests of his mother, Mrs. Lavina Kirkpatrick, Sunday. David Houston, of the Verona neighborhood, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Claud Stevenson last Sunday. Menter Martin and wife, of Bullittsville, were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Roberts. Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Keys and Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall spent Sunday in Newport with Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Shearer. County Clerk Rogers is enjoining in the Walton neighborhood, expecting to be absent until Friday evening. Mrs. Eliza Rouse returned Tuesday from a visit of a few days with her sister, Mrs. F. P. Walton of Covington. Woodie Sullivan and wife had as guests, last Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Huey and Miss Carrie and George Porter. V. W. Gaines and wife and Jas T. Gaines and wife spent last Saturday night and Sunday at Chester Davis in Erlanger. Elijah Downard, wife and children, of Bellevue, Campbell county, were guests of his sister, Mrs. M. A. Yelton, several days the past week. J. G. Renaker, cashier of Florence Deposit Bank and Prof. A. M. Yealey of Florence, were business visitors to Burlington last Friday afternoon. Bennett Stewart, of Berkshire and Miss Sitza Ellwell, of Florence, were guests of Miss Katie Stewart a few days the latter part of last week. Messrs. C. W. Myers William H. Scott and John R. Whitson of Florence were transacting business at the court house last Friday afternoon. Atty's S. W. Tolin and Sidney Gaines were in Danville the latter part of last week taking depositions in a case pending in the Boone circuit court. Bud Rector, of Waterloo neighborhood, has bought a Ford auto, and was in Burlington one day the past week being instructed in the mysteries of operating an auto. Thomas Roberts who resides down on Middle creek, was in Burlington last Thursday and bought of Sheriff Cropper a good buggy but he says nothing unusual is doing. J. Stanley Utz, from near Big Bone Baptist church, was a visitor to this office, Tuesday, and planted an advertisement as contractor and builder. "See his card elsewhere in this issue." Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Mills and daughter, Miss Mary, of Covington, and Mr. and Mrs. Elliot, of Cincinnati, and Mr. B. K. McAfee, passed thru Burlington last Sunday afternoon enroute to Petersburg to spend a few days with relatives and friends. Edward Norton and wife, John L. Hall and wife, of Dayton, Ohio, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hall and Mr. and Mrs. Richard White several days the past week. Mrs. Norton and Mr. Hall are children of Thomas Hall and grandchildren of the late A. O. Hall. Lost—On July 3d, between my home and John Cleek's on the Frogtown road, a coat finder will please notify Mark Judge, Erlanger, Ky.

RICHARD P. ERNST FOR SENATOR

CANDIDATE SUCCESSFUL LAWYER AND BUSINESS MAN OF HIGH STANDING.

NATIVE OF OLD KENTUCKY

Graduate of "Old Centre" College, Elder in Presbyterian Church, President Y. M. C. A., and Largely Interested in Educational and Industrial Work Throughout the State.

Covington, Ky.—(Special).—Richard
P. Ernst, who is a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator, is a native Kentuckian, having been born in Covington in 1858, where he has lived all of his life, and where his parents lived.

He received his primary education in the schools at Covington and afterward graduated from "Old Centre" College at Danville, with the Class of '78, winning the valedictory honors of his class. Later he graduated from the Law School of the University of Cincinnati, in a class with William H.

Richard P. Ernst.

Taft was a member. Shortly after completing his studies he married Miss Susan Brent, granddaughter of Chas.
Brent, who was for many years a prominent citizen of Paris, Ky. They have two children, one son and one daughter, now grown.

Mr. Ernst, because of his splendid business ability and attractive personality, early in life became prominently identified with the business interests of Northern Kentucky, and through his Covington and Cincinnati law offices has attained great success in his profession.

Life-Long Republican.

Politically Mr. Ernst has been a lifelong Republican. For many years he has devoted his time and his means to a very liberal degree for the success of his party. He was for many years a member of the State Central Committee, was its chairman when the party achieved its most notable triumphs in the state, has been delegate to several national conventions, and in many other ways has served his party, often at great personal sacrifice. He has been able to maintain terms of friendship with all elements and factions in his party, and if nominated will receive the support of Republicans and independent voters without regard to any former personal prejudices or factional differences.

Interested in Church and School.

Mr. Ernst is a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Covington, and an elder in that congregation. For many years he has been President of the Covington Young Men's Christian Association, which is one of the most successful and widely popular institutions of its kind in the country, as it appeals to boys of all denominations.

Mr. Ernst retains a wide interest in educational affairs. He is not only a member of the Board of Trustees of his alma mater, "Old Centre," but is also a trustee of the Western College for Women, at Oxford, O., and is a trustee of Lane Seminary, at Cincinnati, one of the oldest schools of theology in the United States. In this connection he has been very liberal in offering prizes to stimulate the student, and is usually responsible for the scholarship of at least one young man every year. He also takes an active personal interest in all local charitable institutions.

Strong With Workingmen.

Mr. Ernst has always had many warm friends among the working boys of Covington, and enjoys great popularity with them. He has always added them in their troubles, and has been a very influential factor in his work of making their relations with their employers pleasant and profitable. Mr. Ernst's candidacy will appeal strongly to the business men of Kentucky. Successful business men succeeded with men who have succeeded in commercial and professional life, he offers his services to the state at a time when there is a widespread demand for high-class business men to take a part in politics, and to offer to the state and to the country that degree of business tact and experience which is so necessary to success in private life.

Mr. Ernst, if nominated and elected, will take to his Senatorial office not only a mind trained by education and experience, but that wide, practical viewpoint which will enable him to act at all times to the best interest of the farmer, the manufacturer and the consumer. It may be stated in this connection that Mr. Ernst, in his political management, has always treated his Democratic opponents with such a spirit of fairness and courteous consideration that he has the confidence and respect of members of that party to a most unusual degree.

TO HAVE SUCCESS WITH CAKE

Little Things That the Cook Must Remember While in Course of Preparation.

1. When preparing your cake tin, always grease it first, and then line it with paper. Some people grease the paper, but this is a mistake. Others grease the tin and put no paper, but this is equally bad, for it nearly always causes the cake to burn.

2. Beggars sometimes slip into the error of thinking that a cake will not rise unless it is put into a very fierce oven. This is quite wrong, for the fierce heat only hardens the outside, and makes it impossible for the inside to swell properly.

3. In order to test the heat of the oven, put in a piece of white kitchen paper and let it stay for a couple of minutes. If the paper is only warmed, and not colored at all, the oven is too cool for the average cakes; there should be just a little enough to make the paper curl up a little and go slightly brown at the edges, but not enough to scorch it or make it smoke.

CODFISH AND RICE TOGETHER

New Method of Preparing Meal That Is Such a Universal Favorite.

Prepare the rice by covering a quarter cupful with two cups cold water.
Put over the fire, stirring occasionally while heating to prevent sticking.
Boil five minutes, drain on a sieve and rinse with cold water. This makes the rice beautifully white and clear, with the grains separate. Return to the fire in a double boiler, add one quarter cups milk, and one cup salt codfish, previously soaked over night.
Cook until the rice is nearly done and the milk absorbed. Put in a baking dish, adding one-half cup white sauce. Sprinkle with bread crumbs, add bits of butter, and bake about 20 minutes, or until brown on top and well heated through. Make the white sauce thus: Melt in a saucepan one tablespoon butter, add one tablespoon flour; mix to smooth paste, add gradually half-cup milk.

TIDY BUREAU DRAWER

A tidy top drawer is not an impossibility, in spite of the fact that all the little odds and ends of one's toiletries are kept there to be easily got at. But they are generally in a rather stirred-up condition. To achieve neatness, one woman took some very thin boards and concerted her top drawers, by their use, into compartments to suit the various articles she keeps in them, thus doing away with many covered boxes and holders for gloves and handkerchiefs. The illustration shows a drawer divided thus into compartments. If nice smooth wood is not to be had for the purpose, cardboard boxes, without covers, and fastened into place by thumb-tacks, or even pins, will ensure the wished for tidiness and convenience in selecting the articles wanted.

Curried Eggs.

Fry a little sliced onion in a tablespoonful of butter. Stir into this a tablespoonful of flour and one teaspoonful of curry powder, or the latter in quantity to taste. When well blended, pour in one cup of hot water in which a bouillon cube has been dissolved (these cost five cents for two) and stir until the sauce is smooth and thick. Next lay in four hard-boiled eggs cut into quarters or slices. Season with pepper and salt. When the eggs are heated through, the dish is ready to serve.

Incidentally, any of the above dishes are nice as an after-theater lunch.
Delicatessen stores are open very late, you know.

Cornmeal Gems.

Two cups cornmeal, one cup flour, one cup cold milk, three eggs, two teaspoons melted butter, one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder.
Put the cornmeal into bowl, add boiling milk, in which the butter has been melted, and beat well; add the cold milk and well-beaten eggs and salt; mix well together. Sift the baking powder and flour, add slowly and mix lightly. Have gem pans very hot and well greased. This amount makes two dozen.

Cocoonut Cake.

Here is a coconut cake sent to the column some time ago by "October," which we like very much, and I hope some one will try it and report: One cup sugar, two cups flour, one-half cup milk, one cup cocoas soaked in a little milk, two eggs, two teaspoons melted butter, one teaspoon cream tartar, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon vanilla extract. Bake in a moderate oven.

Sour Milk Pie.

One cup of thick sour milk, one cup of hot water, one egg, one cup of sugar, one-half cup of butter, one egg, one cracked rolled fine, one teaspoon cinnamon, one-half cup. Put on stove to thicken. Makes two pies.

Buttered Beets.

Boil beets the same as usual. When done, peel and chop up with a knife, put on lots of butter, pepper and salt, and a little sugar. Serve hot. Hope some one will try this. They are fine and a change from sliced beets.

IN CASE OF DROUTH.

How Soil Moisture Escapes and Methods of Holding It.

It has become almost an annual thing to expect a period of dry weather during the summer season.
Sometimes the results to cultivate crops are serious and far-reaching, as was the case last year. This unfortunate condition, due in a measure to the cutting off of the retaining forces, may be in some what mitigated by certain farming practices which, while they do not add any moisture to the soil, help largely to retain that already there. In the Eastern and Midwestern States, the soil runs above thirty inches, while there are few sections where the soil have a rainfall less than half that amount. With this limited amount of moisture, bountiful crops are grown by the so-called "dry farming" methods, without resorting to irrigation. Eastern farmers must learn to put some of these methods into practice.

Moisture is lost to the soil in three ways. The farmer should know how to overcome these losses as much as possible. Water must escape by means of seepage, passing below the reach of plant rootlets and finally reaching the water level. A large part of the rainfall passes off in this way.
Certain soils are not so retentive of moisture as others, consequently they dry out much quicker. The soils are kept thus dry, however, are not those which hold the water longest. On the contrary the surface water should quickly sink into the soil, and not be lost at all. When the soil is of the right texture and the water level is not too far down, enough moisture for ordinary needs will be drawn up by capillary attraction.

The second way that moisture escapes is through the plants themselves. During the growing season plants take up a great deal of water the soluble salts, using the superfluous water through the leaves. This is necessary for their quick and luxuriant growth, yet the field supplied with plenty of available plant food does not require so much water to keep the plants in a thriving condition.
Most of us have noticed that the poor field, is the first to suffer in the time of drouth.

In case of long continued drouth, brush fruit plants, fruit trees and certain garden plants, like tomatoes may be helped to weather the crisis by leaf pruning, thereby decreasing the surface for evaporation.

The third method by which moisture escapes is the one which the farmers can do the most to overcome. This is by direct evaporation from the surface of the soil.
Of course, if it is the process which first comes to mind, but the question then arises how can this be done economically and effectively? Small patches of fruit trees and berry bushes may be "mulched," but the process is far too costly to admit of general practice. The best method is to use the oldest method for all crops. Moisture is being constantly drawn toward the surface by "capillary," mentioned above. This is in accordance with a law of physics, that a liquid will rise a certain distance above the surrounding surface in a tube inserted in the fluid. It is the same force which causes sap to pass up a tree or plant stalk, and is controlled by the size of the spaces between the particles of earth.
Thus the soil composed of coarse sand does not "draw" up the water, while the finer loam is pretty certain to retain moisture a short distance from the surface even in severe drouth.

Much of the moisture drawn to the surface escapes into the air if no means are taken to prevent it. Deep plowing is of value in conserving moisture. In the case of orchards and berry bushes, should it be deemed necessary to do anything to hold the moisture, plow as deeply as can be done without exposing the roots. In the winter work the surface with a disk until it is finely pulverized.
Though the bottom of the furrow may be dry, plowing leaves the surface of the soil moist, and the soil wonderfully. Keep the surface finely pulverized. To this end go over the surface with a cultivator frequently and more especially after every rain or passing shower. What little moisture may fall is thus caught and held in the earth.—C. H. C. in Indiana Farmer.

We believe in the good earth and its soil.

FARM STOCK

WINTER FEEDING OF STOCK

Under Any and All Circumstances It Is False Economy to Permit Farm Animals to Lose Flesh.

It will be profitable to remember that every shock of corn fodder, every ton of hay or straw, fed to a steer or other growing animal that is allowed to run down in the winter is a dead loss, while if there is added an equal amount in value of more nutritious food the growth of the animal will pay a fair price for the whole.

A pig weighing say, 50 pounds in the fall fed five or six bushels of corn to keep it through winter, will be as light in the spring as when the winter feeding began, and so the corn consumed is a clear loss, and worse, because the pig has perhaps got into an unthrifty condition that renders it absolutely of less value at the end of this winter's feeding than it was when feeding began.

But double the feed would have trebled its weight and given a thrifty pig to turn onto clover or perhaps a fat one for the spring market, making a satisfactory profit for the feed and care.

So also with a steer or other young cattle, and as to sheep, as the bad keep gives diminished quantity and inferior quality of wool, it is under any circumstances the worst possible economy to let them get thin in the winter. Indeed, this rule holds good as to all sorts and all ages of live stock.

Imported Percheron Mare and Colt.

The colts should be kept growing throughout the year. Then, aged horses, if allowed to lose flesh, will not be in proper condition for work in the spring, and it is much cheaper to keep on the flesh they now carry than to put it on anew when the work begins.

The breeding cow especially should be kept in good, strong, thrifty condition, as well on account of the milk she will have to give next season as to preserve the strength and vigor of the calf she is to breed.

Indeed, there is not among the various animals used on a farm one that can be named that will make a better return for ample and generous feeding than the milk cow, and yet there is none, we regret to say, that is more generally neglected and cut short in her rations.

WAY OF SELLING LIVE STOCK

Best Method Is to Dispose of Animals in Small Bunches to Buyers Who Make Their Selections.

(By W. M. KELLY.)

The simplest method of selling livestock in small bunches is to sell to buyers who visit your farm and make their selections. Men who buy in this way do not pay quite as high prices as you would be likely to get by shipping the same stock direct in carload lots to a large market, but it is many times advisable to sell less than a car of stock in this way. In dealing with these country buyers a man has an opportunity to exercise his talent as a salesman for they are very shrewd business men and are out to drive the best bargain they can know how with men who do not understand market conditions and classes. In livestock feeding sections there are some feeders who sell their stock to the same buyers regularly, a plan which has many advantages to both buyer and feeder. If a buyer feels certain of obtaining well-finished stock which he can use to advantage, he is willing to make liberal concessions, and the feeder finds it greatly to his advantage to sell to a man with whom he is acquainted, in whom he has confidence and to whom he can sell whenever his stock is in condition to market. I have always made it a point to keep in close touch with the leading buyer in my section and have always been able to get as good prices for my stock as farmers who have done their own shipping at a far greater expense.

Sealing the Silo.

After the silo is filled run through eight or ten inches of moistened straw and sow half a bushel of oats on top. This keeps it air-tight and the roots form a mat which acts as a seal to keep out the air.

Gentlemen:-

Owing to the excellent results we are getting from feeding Tuxedo Chop, we believe you are entitled to a little praise for the quality of that feed.

Our horses have never been in as fine shape as they are at present. Since we started feeding Tuxedo about one year ago, our stock has been practically free from sickness while we have never kept an exact tab on expenses, as of the opinion that Tuxedo Chop is cheaper to feed than Oats, but if it did cost more money, we would feed it, as believe we get a better day's service out of our stock, and the condition in which they stay would be worth considerable extra cost to us.

Previous to starting on Tuxedo we had tried a great many other feeds and had about come to the conclusion that Corn and Oats was the feed for stock, but we say now that Tuxedo is the feed, and if anyone will give your feed thirty days' trial, follow your instructions, as we did, they will not have any other feed in their barns.

Yours truly,

KEEPS BOWELS IN PERFECT CONDITION.

A small town in the corn belt has twenty owners of horses who are fed "Tuxedo Chop." Six months ago a man of that town who drives a team 16 to 20 miles a day over rough roads, started to use "Tuxedo Chop." Inside of thirty days he was delighted with the improved condition of his team. They were up and on the bit early in the morning. They came in fresh at night. His neighbors asked what caused it. He told them. Today practically all the horses in that town are fed "Tuxedo Chop."

SHEEP ON CHICAGO MARKET

Westerns Come From Ranges; While Natives Are Raised in the Central and Eastern States.

The greater number of sheep reaching Chicago market are produced on the western ranges and are known as western sheep. The sheep produced usually in small flocks—on the farms of the central and eastern states are called natives. Western sheep bear evidence of Merino blood which may be noted in the fineness and compactness of their wool, occasional folds or wrinkles on their necks, and the fine silky appearance of the hair on their faces and legs. As a rule, Merino blood is less evident in the sheep of the native flock. However, many producers of natives are purchasing native ewes, and their lambs are almost identical in breeding with that of many western lambs, but there are differences due to feed and management which are readily detected by men on the market.

The number of lambs received by the market greatly exceeds the number of the sheep. Before the war turned to mutton production the reverse was true, but now it is estimated that lambs constitute 80 per cent. of the total receipts of the Chicago and other large markets.

Not only has there been a change in the relative number of lambs marketed, but there has also been a change in distribution of the lambs through the different seasons. Formerly the flocks were on the market during the summer and early autumn months only, but now they are received every week in the year. As the larger numbers received would indicate, lambs are preferred by the consumer, and this even distribution of them throughout the year has greatly stimulated consumption.

HEADER FOR KAFIR AND CANE

Implement May Be Put Together in Hour's Time—Old Cultivator Beam Makes Good Handle.

Anyone in an hour's time can make a device for heading bound cane or kafir, writes A. E. Kilgler of Butler county, Kansas, in the Missouri Valley Farmer. All that is needed is two 2x4's 4 feet long, four 1x4's 1 foot long and a good knife 2 1/2 feet long made of 4-inch bar steel. Some use a stalk cutter knife. In that case one would have to have new holes drilled. An old cultivator beam makes a good handle. Notch out both ends of one of the 2x4's 1/4 of an inch deep, in each notch place one of the 1x4's and fasten with a nail. Turn over and put the other two pieces of 1x4's just opposite the ones already on, then put the other 2x4 on the side where the cleats have been sunk. Run a bolt through each end to hold the pieces solidly together, then put in your knife, set it on your wagon and you are ready for business. With this rig four men and two wagons will soon top a lot of bound kafir. One man can top as fast as two men can hand it to the wagon.

Header in Position.

PROTECTION FOR LIVE STOCK

Cost of Tightening Up Stables Is Small Compared With Loss Caused by Lack of Shelter.

Now is the time for the farmer to see that his stock is protected from frosty nights and chilly winds. The cost of tightening up the stables is but a trifle compared with the loss made by stock that goes unprotected.

It requires a great amount of feed to keep up the animal heat, to overcome the chilly winds.

Probably the best spent time and money in the farmer's output at this time of year is that used in preparing to better take care of his livestock. Don't delay this, but attend to it at once, for it may mean the difference between profit and loss.

If you cannot give the proper care to all of your livestock, then select the best of the animals for your own breeding and feeding and sell the balance at the very best prices that you can obtain.

Get rid of it, however; better take a small loss at the present time than a much larger one later on because the stock is in poor condition.

All stock that is to go to market can be fattened at less expense before cold weather sets in.

When new animals are to be purchased the early buyers get the choices.

The knowledge gained in this way will be of great value in making your selections, as one breeder seldom visits another without gaining some information.

Had Never Seen a Motor Car.

A man was pardoned out of the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus recently after serving 43 years of a life sentence. He entered the prison in 1870 at the age of 38. He left it at 66 to begin life over again.

The prisoner never had seen a motor car, a bicycle, a motor cycle, an electric car, an airplane, a picture show or a sky scraper. He had never heard a phonograph. He had never been in an elevator or a street car. He had never talked over a telephone. He could not imagine anything about wireless telegraphy and he knew nothing about aeroplanes except that he had once seen a picture of a flying machine in a book.

When released from prison he asked that someone be sent with him "until he got used to things." What surprised him most, he said, was the number of motor cars. In his day even the number of buggies and carriages was limited. He said that in the world was moving faster and now I know it," he said. "I can't explain it very well, but some how it seems to be a different sort of a world, doing things in a different way."

For Intimidation.

Greenville, July 9.—Marvin H. Knight, Marion Samples and E. W. Martin were arrested today on warrants charging them with banding and confederating together for the purpose of intimidation. They will have their examining trials tomorrow. The warrants were issued at the instance of W. H. Chumley, foreman of the Beech Creek Mining Company, which has a mine in this county. Chumley says he recognized the men arrested as members of an ancient band of 100 men which surrounded his house at Beech Creek, a small mining village eight miles east of Greenville, last Monday night and sought to have him come out of the house. Just what the mob intended to do with Chumley if he had left his home is a matter of surmise. He said he had previously received notices warning him to leave the county.

LaGrange, July 10.—Charles McRoberts, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McRoberts, living about two miles from town was struck by lightning and killed this morning while riding a bicycle on his father's farm. The lightning which was unusually severe, did considerable minor damage in this section.

After the second year the value of the hen as a winter layer decreases.

Notice the Beds on "Thornhill" Wagons

The beds of "Thornhill" wagons are designed and finished with excessive care.

The sides are made of first class poplar, because it holds paint better and gives better service.

The bottom of the beds are of Southern pine tongue and grooved and reinforced over front and rear bolsters. A system of construction is employed that prevents the reinforcing from ever falling out and insures longest wear.

Throughout the "Thornhill" Wagon, you will find the features that have proved themselves worthy.

The long sleeve malleable skin (non-breakable) prevents the axle from breaking at the skin. The strength of the bolsters is multiplied by the construction employed. The front board plate is so made that the gears can never get out of line. You will find in this wagon six big points of superiority that no other wagon possesses. Come in and let us show you the "Thornhill" wagon sold on a guarantee. Do it today.

Storage and Use of Soil Moisture.

The Nebraska Experiment Station has issued a Bulletin on "The Storage and Use of Soil Moisture."

In brief it says: Summer tillage has been the most effective method of storing water, but even by this method only from 10 to 33 per cent of the seasonal rainfall has been stored in the soil. Discussion of the amount of water retained by summer tillage during each of the past several years shows that the amount of water stored varies with the amount and distribution of the rainfall during the period covered by the summer tillage. It has been found that water stored in the soil before seeding is a safeguard against drought, but it has not been found possible to store enough water in the soil before seeding to mature a crop without subsequent rains.

Disking small grain stubble has proved beneficial by preventing weed growth whenever there has been sufficient moisture in the soil at harvest time to produce a growth of weeds, or where rains have come early enough to start weed growth. Artificial mulches of straw or hay have proved more effective than soil mulches in absorbing and retaining water from rains.

Spring wheat, oats, barley and corn feed to an average depth of four feet in this soil. Winter wheat feeds to a depth of six or seven feet. Alfalfa and grasses use water from greater depths.

Weeds are the greatest agency for the loss of water from the soil. Preventing weed growth has been more important from the standpoint of storing water in the soil than cultivating the soil to produce any kind of a mulch. The storage of water is summed up in keeping a loose, rough surface to absorb the rains quickly, and in preventing growing vegetation from using the water.

Christmas Cantaloupes.

It may appear rather early to talk about Christmas cantaloupes, but the horticulturists of the Department of Agriculture are now working on a plan whereby the housewife may be able to secure cantaloupes on Christmas. According to one of these specialists the department has the new product pretty well assured. The cantaloupe fruit is the "cassaba melon." Where these melons are being sold now in some of the fashionable fruit stores as a novelty and a luxury, few of the common people have tasted one. In fact they have always been considered a tropical or sub-tropical fruit, but now it has been learned that they will grow as far north as the latitude of Washington.

Structurally the cantaloupe is very much like a cantaloupe. It is a grayish, thick skinned wrinkled melon, larger than a large cantaloupe, but smaller than the average watermelon. Experiments have shown that it will grow anywhere a cantaloupe will grow. For the most part the cantaloupe prefers a dry, hot knoll, the hotter and drier the better. The meat is decidedly white and has a musky, aromatic taste and a smell that is pleasant to most people, but not so to others. There are two varieties of the melon, one that is grown and eaten fresh in the summer. But the peculiar sort that is attractive to out-of-season palates is the winter variety. This is grown in the summer and allowed to stay on the vine until close to frost time. Then they are picked, still green, and put away in paper in a cool place. The cold checks the development and they can be kept over until midwinter. Then, if they are brought into a warm room, they will ripen in a few days and are ready for eating just like a cantaloupe. The fruit is very prolific, and with proper attention as many as 50 melons have been raised on a single vine.

A Joy Ride.

A young man and two women occupied a large motor runabout which was being driven at terrific speed in a race with a touring car on Hemstead turnpike near New York. As the runabout was nearing the safety crossing the gates were lowered. The brakes of the runabout did not stop the motor car quickly enough to prevent it from breaking through the safety gates and "sidewinding" the second car of a rapidly moving electric train.

The power shock of the car caught the mudguard of the runabout, dragging it off of the ground and carrying it forward over the ends of the ties. As the metal mudguard came in contact with the shoe there was a flash of flame and smoke which showed that a circuit had been made for the powerful electric current. The mass of burning wreckage was some 300 feet before the train could be stopped. In the grip of the twisted metal the three passengers were held so tightly that it was difficult to extricate the bodies.

This was the end of a drive upon which a young manufacturer had started blithely with two young girls who were his neighbors on One Hundred and Sixty-seventh street, the Bronx. It was not a joy ride from the white light or red light district, but from the error of believing that a country road is a safe racetrack the terrible tragedy would not have occurred.

Motorists who drive at high rates of speed on country roads especially country roads with which they are unacquainted run for a fall. In the unexpected emergency skillful driving and a cool head cannot always save the necks of the driver and his passengers.

Hog Cholera Prevalent in Kentucky—Demonstrations to be Given at Kentucky Experiment Station Every Monday.

Hog cholera is very prevalent throughout the State of Kentucky especially in those counties most devoted to hog raising. Every farmer should employ the best possible methods to avoid the ravages of this disease. Sanitary measures are of the greatest importance and often if properly carried out are sufficient to avoid an outbreak of hog cholera. It is true that the disease is most prevalent in herds that are improperly nourished but hog cholera is a specific disease caused by a specific micro-organism. Attention and care are not of themselves insure protection against the disease. Once present the disease spreads to the healthy animals and results in the death of 70 to 100 per cent of the individuals. The weakened body of the animal is not a perfect surrounding and management are to be desired but this does not confer a positive immunity. All infectious diseases require a specific anti-toxin to counteract the specific toxin; that is anti-hog cholera serum is not efficient in controlling lock jaw. Mere health does not of itself insure the presence or the development of a specific anti-body for any infectious disease. It has been observed in many herds under perfect care that, on exposure to specific infection, the animals sicken with characteristic symptoms and on post-mortem reveal characteristic lesions of hog cholera.

The most reliable means of protecting hogs against hog cholera is the use of anti-hog cholera serum at the proper time. Farmers are frequently not aware of the protection the State offers in such instances, and not infrequently we have received communications indicating that the serum treatment is successful.

The loss of close to two million dollars in Kentucky last year from this disease warrants a careful study of this disease by every farmer. In order to talk to parties interested in this subject a demonstration will be given every Monday morning at the Kentucky Experiment Station at Lexington, for those who wish to familiarize themselves with the use of hog cholera serum.

So heavy have the demands for the serum been that equipment and buildings have been erected to triple the capacity of the laboratory. An earnest effort is being made by the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station to completely eradicate this disease. We are therefore sending out free of charge infected herds and premises, together with the hearty cooperation of the farmers, this can be accomplished. Write for literature on this subject.

ROBERT GRAHAM, In charge, Biological Laboratory, Agricultural Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky.

Where Do Our Fashions Originate?

This is a question that puzzles many of our young ladies who are after getting up with every new wrinkle that the fashion magazines suggest in the way of wearing apparel.

Let the actress settle this question for you. She is in a position to know. She tells us that styles originate from the slums, and the red-light districts of such cities as New York, London, Paris, and she wonders that self-respecting people should follow them.

The x-ray gown, the slit skirt, and others of like construction, are all advertising devices, worn first by the lower classes in the large cities. They are introduced and worn by them exclusively for gain, and our American girls are foolish into wearing them thinking they are worn "only by those of high class society."

Good society does not consist of, or is made up of, people who can dress in fashion, or those who can afford diamonds or other precious jewels, nor does it consist of fine apparel or in pretty or fancy house books. It is not found in automobiles, expensive houses, or is it found in the possession of large tracts of Blue Grass, although these things are sessions are by no means witness against good society, but they are not always possessed by those alone.

Good society, is the society of the good, and these luxuries are not always enjoyed by that class. Many come into possession of these by the most questionable means and practices, weak gowns are a part of the Parisian circus man's make up. That is a part of the show, that which attracts the attention of the crowd thus increasing the revenue in the business, and a great many of our newsboys wearing apparel are used for the same purpose.—Ex.

The Drought Ended.

The fine rain of Monday evening and that night brought the farmers forth Tuesday morning wearing broad smiles. The condition of their crops was becoming more hopeful. The want of rain, and a day or two more of hot winds like that of last Sunday would have put the finishing touch on the destruction of the corn and tobacco crops. Pasture had become brown and dusty and in some instances farmers were being driven to water stock and driving desperate flocks of sheep in the rain of several hours duration bettered conditions considerably, and it is hoped that this year will not experience another protracted dry period.

Lost—Between Harbison and Limburg automobile license tag No. 12729. Finder will please leave at Kelly's store in Burlington. J. W. CAMPBELL.

The Johnston Pa. Democrat avers that business conditions in that State are showing a perceptible if gradual improvement, and moreover, affirms that business while dull, has not even verged upon panicky conditions.

This is, no doubt, strictly accurate, and the Johnston newspaper proceeds further to cull from its files a number of choice clippings descriptive of business and labor conditions during those happy days when Mr. Roosevelt was President and this country was blessed, or oppressed, with a sky-high tariff.

Here are a few of these ineffaceable records of the past: More than 2,000 men march to the City Hall at Detroit and demand work.—January 28, 1908.

Chicago Federation of Labor estimates the total number of unemployed men in Chicago at 100,000 and issues a warning to all craftsmen to keep away from the city.—February 1, 1908.

New York city government urged by Central Federated Labor Union to let subway contracts to 500,000 unemployed men.—March 15, 1908.

One hundred thousand men march through the streets of New York singing "The Red, White and Blue" and demanding work, a bomb thrown at police by anarchists.—March 23, 1908.

One thousand foreigners march toward Philadelphia City Hall, demanding work; a riot, three policemen shot, fourteen marchers arrested, hundreds of mounted police.—February 20, 1908.

Labor unions report 30,000 idle men in the Kensington, Pa. district.—February 6, 1908.

Unemployed in San Francisco form a league and demand the issue of $2,000,000 in bonds to aid unemployed.—March 23, 1908.

One thousand Hungarians march through the rain to receive a loaf of bread each at Toledo.—March 23, 1908.

At Camden, N. J., follows application of 1,300 men for 300 jobs advertised by the Joseph Campbell Company.—August 10, 1908.

Loan of $9,000,000 to provide funds for public work asked by city of Philadelphia for unemployed; race riot followed demonstration of unemployed; Italians attacked by other nationalities.—March 15, 1908.

Many other similar press dispatches are printed, but these suffice to prove the point. When Mr. Roosevelt declines against the national administration for "destroying prosperity" and for failing or refusing to "pass prosperity around he ignores the fact that while business at the worst has only been dull under Wilson, there was an acute panic while he was President.

The Evening Post does not subscribe to the theory that the business depression in 1908 should be attributed to the mistakes of Mr. Roosevelt's administration. It was, in the main, due to conditions that were prevalent all over the world, just as the business relaxation of 1914 has been world-wide.

It is a fact, however, or at least it is a fact, that the business depression of 1908, Mr. Roosevelt pushed through Congress a law revising the tariff and reorganizing our currency system the panic of 1907 and the trade depression of 1908 would have passed by as light as will the business dullness of the first few months of 1914.

At any rate, Mr. Roosevelt is conceded to be his own logic, an administration is to be held inexorably to account for business depressions, then Mr. Roosevelt's failure as a President and a man for the future, for nothing is clearer than that times were worse when Mr. Roosevelt was President, and Mr. Roosevelt is a 100 per cent more radical in 1914 than he was in 1908.—Ex.

Resort to Irrigation.

With the irrigation this year of large truck patches in different parts of the state, many Indiana growers are beginning to feel that the climate has changed here and that the time will come when this section of the country will be a desert unless irrigation is resorted to at all times.

A glance at the behavior of the weather man in the last few years shows an amount of precedence to the contentions of these people. Our winters have been later and much more severe while they last, while recurrence can be noticed. Out of the past four years the crops in many parts of the state have been practically ruined. The 1911 drought cut the crops short in most sections of the country. However there was a superabundance of rain in 1912 in most districts and this damaged the crops in many places. In 1913 the drought was back on the job again and this year the farmers can hardly say that the rainfall has been at all beneficial.

Kansas until a few years ago was an arid plain where little rain fell but the people of that state are now getting advantages of more rain than Indiana people.—Indiana Ex.

Local Happenings.

(Copyright, by McClure Syndicate.)

The fellow who tries his best all the time is sure to succeed.

Three weeks from next Saturday is the State-wide primary election.

The Consolidated Telephone Co. has issued a new directory of 63 pages.

Several loads of new hay have been delivered to parties in Burlington the past week.

A short crop again this year will be particularly hard on the farmers in this part of the country.

To survive the heat last Sunday it was necessary to keep your self quiet and scattered as much as possible.

The local K. of P. lodge has been doing again last Saturday night. The lodge is growing rapidly in membership.

The rain last Monday caught some hay in the swath, but the farmers to whom it belonged were glad to have it rained on.

Rain fell in many places in Kentucky last week, doing much good although not resulting in a general breaking up of the drought.

Some desirable South Erlanger property is advertised in this issue for sale. Look the advertisement over and you may conclude to invest.

Several parties visited the Bellevue fishermen last Thursday but the supply of tiny monsters on hand was not sufficient to meet the demand.

Last Thursday's sale of lots into which the Jack Barton farm was divided shows a disposition on the part of Erlanger to crowd Florence off of the map.

When that balloon appeared last Sunday afternoon the intense heat was forgotten and nearly everybody in Burlington was out to see it pass over the town.

The partial obscuring of the sun by clouds, Monday and moderate breeze that prevailed much of the time was a great relief from the intense heat of Sunday.

A Lawrenceburg hog buyer toured this part of the county the latter part of last week and bought all the swine that were large enough to begin feeding and were for sale.

B. F. McGlasson, president of the North Kentucky Agricultural Association says at present the outlook is good for the next fair at Florence if the drought does not ruin the crops.

There are not enough hogs in Boone county to supply her citizens with meat the coming year. The local demand for meat used to be supplied and then hundreds of big hogs were put on the market.

The circuit court and the grand jury rooms at the court house will be papered before the next term of circuit court after which they will present a much better appearance and the light being improved considerably.

So far the RECORDER'S weather forecast for the month of July has made good, but it is hoped it will not be so correct for the latter half of the month. Heat enough for the entire month has been experienced.

Burlington ball team defeated Petersburg last Saturday afternoon 14 to 3. Burlington played the best game of the season on the local ground. The improvement was the result of a change of positions in the line-up.

The colored people are making an effort to raise money with which to add a second story to their school building, the room to be furnished as a hall for lodge purposes. When completed they will have a good school house.

A good sized audience assembled at Library Hall last Thursday night to witness the common school graduation exercises. Prof. J. C. Gordon and E. L. Dix each delivered appropriate and interesting addresses. Ten graduates received diplomas.

Sheff Cropper is getting the ballot boxes ready to send to the several voting precincts in the county for holding the primary election the first Saturday in next month. There are three boxes for each polling place—Democrat, Republican and Bull Moose.

The Linaburg and Hebron pike people expect to begin work building their pike in a short time. They have all got together and are acting in harmony which insures the success of a very important road.

A large auto runabout went off the side of the Lexington pike at the Shinkle place last Sunday afternoon and demolished considerable plank fence. Fortunately neither of the occupants was hurt, the only injury it is said being a puncture the radiator received.

One of the unusual and disastrous losses of the present serious drought in Kentucky is the number of wheat fields which have caught fire just after threshing. Thousands of bushels of wheat have been consumed by these fires during the past two weeks.

The Erlanger and Burlington kid base ball teams played an exciting game on the local ground last Saturday afternoon, the score being 9 to 8 in favor of the Burlington aggregation. The game was played in two sections the first section before and the second section after the Burlington and Petersburg game.

Tobacco in Bracken county that was first set out is doing well, although a few not growing much, but the resetting has mostly died and plants will be hard to get to fill the gaps. A good deal of ground that was prepared for tobacco will be planted in corn at the time for transplanting tobacco has about passed.

The hogs being fed by the State at Richmond for experimental purposes are taking on fat nicely, gaining from one and a half to two pounds a day. A number of the progressive farmers of Trimble are taking much interest in the test and are frequent visitors to the pens where the testing is being made—Trimble Democrat.

If you are driving a team and one horse balks, take up the reins and get on the balky horse. Press the heels gently into the flanks, speak a few encouraging words and then say "Get up" as if going to ride. A writer says he has seen this tried many times and that he never saw it fail. This beats the Rice plan and is much more humane.

The very generous use of oil on the Covington and Lexington pike last week between Florence and the end of the car line made many an autolite use language that was not only well spoken but when the oil is thoroughly absorbed by and mixed with the dust these same autolites will ask a blessing for the person who had the oil poured on the dusty road.

About the completest skinning a fellow ever got was that given Richard Knott editor of the Louisville Post by Congressman Stanley in his Louisville speech. If Richard was booming Congressman Stanley would he then be subjected to such a lambasting by Stanley? Gov. Beckham no doubt thinks Knott a great man while Gov. McCreary is not discussing him.

We desire to express our sincere and heartfelt thanks to our relatives, friends and neighbors for the care and sympathy shown us in the hour of sorrow and the loss of our dear beloved father, James Moreland. We especially thank Rev. Geo. Smith for his words of consolation and Mr. Scott Chambers for efficient service.

Try sprinkling cayenne pepper on cabbage when worms get too numerous. If they don't get off after the first dusting, give them a second dose. This is a safe remedy, and simple too. Keep cucumber vines bearing during a dry spell by punching two or three holes in every leaf with a pin and can and sinking it in the ground near the roots of the vines, filling the can with water each evening.

Jamaica ginger was placed under the ban in Kansas when the State Supreme Court held it is intoxicating and that a druggist who sells it may be prosecuted for violating the prohibitory law. The ginger also held lemon and vanilla extracts, cologne camphor and similar tinctures, extracts and essences, if they usually make a man drunk are to be classed as intoxicating liquors.

Last Sunday was conceded by the oldest inhabitant to be the hottest day ever felt in this locality. Thermometers ranged from 89 to 94 and Lewis and Boone seemed to suffer equally with humanity from the intense heat, while animals that were in use were in distress all the time and required careful handling to avoid disastrous results. Shortly after noon the "Kerboosh" at Marce Ridge store, long registered 100, but its location caused the instrument to exaggerate, four or five degrees at least.

About fifty per cent of the intended crop of tobacco was pitched in this county and about fifty per cent of the transplanting died, consequently the Boone county acreage is comparatively small, but there are several who have some very nice tobacco, but its growth was checked last week by the continued dry weather. The prospects are so discouraging that buyers have been visiting the growers in several neighboring counties as high as twelve dollars all round for the growing crop. This early action on the part of the buyers caused the growers to sit up and take notice and very few of them accepted the offer.

Drouth General.

Frankfort, July 9.—Reports of crop conditions from all over the State received by the Department of Agriculture for use in the July crop report, which will be issued tomorrow, show general drouth prevailing and general deterioration of all crops. In most instances potatoes are reported as a total loss; corn in many places can be saved for a fair yield with timely rain which might do the same for tobacco. Stock is beginning to suffer for lack of pasture and water. The tenor of the reports are uniformly pessimistic with the exception of Nuckolls McLean county, where local showers saved the situation.

What the actual money loss to the farmers may be cannot be forecast at this stage of the season as assiduous cultivation of the corn aided by rain this month may change the prospect in that and tobacco, and anticipated high prices may recoup some of the loss.

It is evident, however, that this is the most serious drought the State has experienced in years. Mrs. Helen Wolcott of Shelby county, who ranks as one of the most successful women farmers in Kentucky, and is in charge of the Government canning club work in the State, said:

"We prepare against droughts in August, but this is the first time in my experience that we can't turn a trick to save ourselves. Cows are being fed right now, pasture is burning up, springs and branches are going dry and corn and tobacco are suffering."

The drought of several weeks duration was knocked out last Monday afternoon by a very pleasing down-pour of rain which was accompanied by a heavy electrical storm. Farmers that were about to fail were replenished and the supply of stock was increased. Consequently everything is having a good looking better it is a pleasure to announce.

The Erlanger campers down on Gunpowder creek got a thorough wetting last Monday night. Coroner Riffe, of Kenton county is in command of the camp and everybody is having a good time fishing, bathing and hunting.

J. J. Tanner, who lives out on the Florence pike, found one of his horses dead in the pasture Tuesday. He supposed it was a victim of the electrical storm of the night before.

J. W. Kelly, who lives down on Woodson creek, killed a four foot black snake in his residence Tuesday morning. It was discovered beneath the top of the sewing machine when removed.

Drouth is cutting the fruit prospect down next to nothing. What promised to be one of the largest fruit crops in many years has gone glimmering.—Mt. Olivet Tribune-Democrat.

The back bone of the drought having been smashed, there is yet time to make a crop of late potatoes, but those who desired to plant have had trouble securing seed.

Thomas Huron, who keeps the toll-gate above Florence will have a sale of household and kitchen furniture, etc., on the afternoon of Saturday, the 25, inst.

It is necessary for the Recorder to announce that it quit publishing poetry twenty-five years ago, and it cannot deviate from a custom of such long standing.

Little strange, isn't it, that practically everybody is for good roads except those who need them most.—Cadiz Record.

Several Burlington parties captured a string of about 25 pounds of nice fish in Gunpowder creek last Monday.

Prof. and Mrs. Elbert Ryle entertained with a six o'clock dinner at their country home last Monday.

Another weather prophet discredited the fellow who predicted it would not rain during Dog Days.

John Mannin the Hebron telephone trouble man was in Burlington Tuesday working on his lines.

G. G. Hughes is carrying the mail on R. D. 1 while his son William takes his vacation.

The Burlington and Hebron base ball teams will play at Hebron next Saturday afternoon.

R. B. Huey received two fine young cows from a New York party a few days ago.

Mrs. Bert Smith subbed for her husband on R. D. 2 a couple of days the past week.

For Sale—Fresh two year old heifer. Apply to G. T. Gaines, Burlington R. D. 1.

Lewis County Sees the Light.

Talk is cheap, but it takes money to build roads. That is the way people of Lewis county feel about the good roads proposition and they have put themselves on record emphatically to that effect.

There has been much talk about roads in Lewis as elsewhere, but it has remained for the voters of that county to prosecute a successful good roads campaign. And they made so little a noise over it that the rest of the State wasn't aware that anything special was going on until informed in a dispatch from Vaneburg that the Lewis county had voted $150,000 for the construction of roads. The figures show that it was no trouble at all for the voters to give a two-thirds majority for bonds, but in making assurance doubly sure they came near making it unanimous. If fifteen precincts reported the vote was 1,900 for the bond issue and one hundred and sixteen against it. Three small precincts that failed to report cannot possibly affect the result.

Lewis county lies along the Ohio river in the Northeastern part of the State. It is usually classed as a mountain county, although it is less rugged than some of its neighbors. It has had a long and respectable mileage of macadamized roads. It has found these improved highways a factor for prosperity and it wants more of them—and wants them for the use of its present day population as well as for posterity. It may be that posterity will have to help pay the debt, but it so it will have the benefit of the roads that the county is preparing to build.

Let the good road advocates in Kentucky take off their hats to Lewis county. Here at last is one county in which the people are not frightened into a cold sweat at the bare mention of a bond issue. County after county has voted on bond propositions only to fail short of the required majority. Lewis county has dispelled the "hoodoo" and the result of the election there is the most encouraging piece of news that the boosters (or road improvement have heard in a long time.

STATE RETARDED IN SCHOOL GROWTH

PAYING DEBTS BY APPOINTMENT OF TEACHERS — TRUSTEES ELECTED BY ONE VOTE.

SELLING SCHOOLS FOR CASH

Four Thousand Trustees Will Be Elected Throughout State in August—See To It That the Best Men Only Are Named at This Election—All Parents Should Vote.

Louisville, Ky.—(Special).—Was there ever a "devil's broth" brewed that equaled what has been going on in our rural schools?

We are paying by taxation over three million dollars annually out of the State Treasury, to say nothing of local taxation and other contributions for the support of our public schools.

It is a question if one-third of it is not wasted by incompetence and indifference not to mention possible graft in one form or another.

As a sample of what has been going on, I very recently had occasion to look over a batch of letters from a number of County Superintendents of our State. I ran across one reporting some trouble in the sale of schools.
Asking what on earth that meant, the reply was: "Why, he was told that that before?" I said "in God's name, no; what does it mean?" "Why," they said, "that has been complained of for years, but it is not as bad now as it has been."

It seems the trustees would sell the privilege to teach his school to the teacher who would agree to give him the largest part of her salary. It is reported that in some cases trading in schools has been quite a profitable side issue. Was there ever anything more infamous? A man that would do it ought to be sent to the penitentiary for a thousand years. Another case of a combine, three teachers were applicants for a school, the final agreement was that each should teach a third of the time, thus giving the poor children the benefit of a rapid change in teachers.

Another case (and this was not in the mountains, either), a vacancy occurred, two applicants presented themselves, one was a graduate of a Normal school with a full certificate, the other a young girl scarcely through the high school; the school was given to the young girl. Some of the few curious enough to investigate found the girl's father owed the superintendent a debt and had promised payment out of the girl's salary.

In one of our richest counties, where a bunch of trustees were gathered with some patrons to talk over conditions, one of the trustees arose and pleaded for help, saying that he was elected by one vote and he had to go out and hunt up that man to vote for him in order to get there at all.

When it is realized that these district trustees, of whom there are about 8,000 in the State, constitute the most vital part of our educational machine, it is any wonder that the State is retarded in her growth and advancement.

I would not be understood as condemning all trustees; we have many good ones, who are honestly trying to do their full duty, but unfortunately these kind are not in the majority.

Now whose fault is this? It belongs more or less to all of us, but primarily to the parents of the children who are too indolent or indifferent to even go to the polls and vote for the right kind of a trustee, and take enough active interest in the conduct of the schools to see that they are conducted on an efficient basis.

When this office is filled with one of the best men in each district, then we shall see such a development of our schools and State as has not been dreamed of. There will be about 4,000 trustees elected in the first days of August next. Now will the people see that good men are put in or will they continue to neglect it and let it be filled with ne'er do wells, the incompetent or those who have "axes to grind?"

The wonder is not that we have droughts, and other calamities but that the God of Heaven does not smile upon from the face of the earth.

—John B. McFerran, Chairman Educational Committee, Louisville Commercial Club.

Large Crop of Tobacco.

W. F. Lillard, one of Anderson county's leading and best known agriculturists, will raise an immense tobacco crop this year. He has set out ninety-eight acres, the largest stand in the county and in all probability the largest in that section of the State. Most of the crop was set out with the patent setters and at the present time the crop is in a flourishing condition. With a favorable active season the yield should do well as it is planted in very rich land.
Anyone conversant with the tobacco situation will readily understand what a tremendous underlying this is as a small crop requires a lot of attention and work and a large one has to be looked after in the same careful manner.—Ex.

REOPENING OF GREAT GERMAN CANAL

Emperor William of Germany attended recently the reopening of the Kaiser Wilhelm canal, the great waterway that connects the North sea and the Baltic and that was named for his imperial majesty. Extensive improvements have just been completed and the kaiser's yacht, as the photograph shows, was the first vessel to break the tape and enter the rebuilt canal.

Shallow Cultivation for Corn.

It has been hard to wean our farmers from the old-time useless custom of planting corn in hills raised some inches above the surrounding level, and from the worse than useless custom of deep cultivation—between the rows. Most of them are now fully awake to the fact that corn does best when planted on level ground. But in too many cases the deep cultivator still "gets in" its murderous work. The rootlets of the corn plant love the warmth of the surface-soil; hence they spread widely on every side, mostly from two to four inches below the surface—so widely that filaments from adjacent rows will meet in the center of the intervening space in a few weeks after planting. Whatever disturbs them lessens the amount of nourishment they are sure to "pull" in and reduces the production of corn per acre.

So, while the first cultivation, before the weeds appear, should be sent out, may well be close to the plant, and say four inches deep, no subsequent cultivation should be more than two inches deep. This will suffice to destroy weeds and to maintain a soil-mud for the retention of moisture, as well as to let in air and to warm up the soil. Shallow cultivation, repeated as often as practicable, especially after a rain, will be sure to "pull" in and reduce the size of the crop.—C.
R. Barns, Minnesota University.

Meat Prices Will Soar.

Chicago, July 9.—Meat prices will rise above the record figures of recent years despite the huge grain crop, packing house representatives today asserted. They say that the present scarcity of cattle and the effect of the dry weather on grazing lands will more than offset the enormous grain yield.
A beef price of 16 cents to the butcher was predicted as an early possibility and it was pointed out by one of the packing house men that cattle, even now, are higher than for some time. Scarcity of grass-fed cattle was referred to as one cause for the predicted advance sure to "pull" in and reduce the size of the crop.—C.
R. Barns, Minnesota University.

NINTH ANNUAL BLUE GRASS FAIR

OPENS AT LEXINGTON MONDAY, AUGUST 3—BEST FAIR IN MIDDLE WEST.

SIX BIG DAYS AND NIGHTS

Numerous Attractions, including Thavius' Band and Concert Company —Kline's Greater Shows.

Lexington, Ky.—Since its organization in 1906, the Blue Grass Fair has taken full rank with the largest and the best state fairs and expositions of the country. It has very justly become known as the largest horse show in the world. It is the only fair which offers a full quota and a classification for breeding classes of the three great breeds of American horses as well as show classes, simplified and arranged in a manner which makes their distinction clear. Pitched on a larger and more extensive scale than ever before, with the certainty of increased interest on account of various added features, this year's fair promises to eclipse all previous records.

Numerous additions and improvements have been made in the matter of show rings and amusement features have been secured of a kind and to an extent that justify the belief that the fair will not only prove more valuable than ever to the live stock interests of Kentucky, but also more attractive to those who visit it. In addition to the weanling and yearling divisions, five stakes are offered in the show classes for saddle horses.

Attractive Program Each Day.
One of the most attractive programs for the week will be on Wednesday, when the classes for Standard bred horses will be shown.

In addition to the cash premiums offered and season to the leading breeders in service are donated by various owners and should attract the attention of the entire world.

The fair will open on Monday, August 3rd, at 1 p. m., when an attractive racing program has been arranged, including show rings will be seen, and Thavius' Great Band and Concert Company with some of the best soloists and grand opera singers known to the musical world will be here.

Six singers in costume will be heard in front of the grand stand every evening, and there is a great treat in store for the music loving public of the Blue Grass region.

On Tuesday, the 4th, the big music show, always a most interesting feature of the Blue Grass Fair, will be shown, and Herefords cattle will also be seen.

Various classes for sheep and swine will be judged in the pens, and the poultry and pigeons will be judged in the poultry house.

Great show rings in other classes, music by Thavius' Band will help fill out the day's program.

On Wednesday morning the breeding classes for Standard bred horses as mentioned above, classes for Jack stock, etc., will be shown in front of the grand stand.

Famous Blue Grass Stake Wednesday.

In the afternoon the famous Blue Grass Stake for five-gaited saddle horses, which always produces the best seen in the world. This stake always gives us a spirited and exciting contest, and brings out a large field.

Thursday is always a great day and an extra program has been arranged.
The forenoon will be taken up with the breeding classes for American saddle horses, the prizes for which are particularly rich and desirable and certain to bring about a magnificent show.

The classes for Short Horn Cattle, which always produces a show for Short Horns, will be well worth the trip of many miles to those interested in beef cattle, which will be shown in front of the grand stand. In the af-

A. F. THAVIUS' FAMOUS BAND AND ORCHESTRA

Versality is one of the great features of the A. F. Thavius, who is coming to the Blue Grass Fair at Lexington, August 3 to 8, with his famous band and opera organization. This young Russian band leader has won an enviable place in modern music with his vigorous methods and his tasteful programs. Not only is he known in amusement parks, such as White City in Chicago, where he has played for the past five seasons, but at state fairs, such as Texas, and at Chautauqua throughout the length and breadth of the land. He has found favor with music lovers in all walks of life, and has gained fame in every quarter of the country.

Combined with his power as a conductor, he is a cornetist of great ability and his playing has been praised in the highest terms by some of the best critics in the country, notably by William Limes Hubbard, the great musical critic of the Chicago Tribune. As a program maker, Mr.
Thavius is without a peer or a rival.
He seems instinctively to know what the people want and he can vary his program to suit any gathering, from the frivolous crowds at summer parks who seek nothing but the gay and lighter melodies, to the more sedate and serious gatherings at Chautauqua who demand music of a higher grade and style.

He has taken a great hold on the public fancy, and his return engagements are always welcomed with much enthusiasm. He is a young, vigorous and tactful. He is a musician who obtains the most vivid effects without recourse to humbug or chicanery.

He knows music and knows his audience. He has one of the very best organizations on the road this season and not only carries a band that is perfect in every detail but also provides an opera company that offers grand opera in the best taste and in the most efficient manner. Without a doubt the presence of Thavius in Lexington will be a rare treat to all classes, from the stickler for classics, to those who are fond of the lighter popular tunes of the day.

ernoon will be witnessed the Kentucky Stake for five-gaited saddle horses and an excellent program for racing, varied show classes for roas-ters, three and five-gaited horses and fine harness horses.

Friday morning will be devoted to Jersey Cattle, which is always a good show, as the best herds in the State meet here.

In the afternoon the Shetland Ponies, in addition to racing and a varied program of show classes.

Thoroughbreds Saturday.

Saturday is always known as Thoroughbred day, when we see rings which bring together many of the most noted thoroughbred horses from the greatest nurseries in Kentucky. In addition to cash premiums, seasons to such great horses as Ballot, Sain, Jack Atkins, Fair Play, Trap Rock, Water-vale, Stalwart, Nasturtium and others are offered which insure the best show ever given in this department.

The afternoon program is one of the most interesting of the entire week, as it includes all championships in which final contests occur between winners of the individual classes during the preceding days of the fair. The rule governing these classes requires all animals eligible to show in these rings, or forfeit money won in the previous shows, and this rule will be strictly adhered to, thereby assuring large fields and affording the public the opportunity of seeing the winners brought together.

The week promises to be not only a gala one in Lexington, but a record-breaking one in the history of the Blue Grass Fair.

Speed Program.

Running races and harness races to be given each day.

Cup races to be given each day by the Gentlemen's Driving Club at Blue Grass Fair.

An excellent speed program has been arranged for the Blue Grass Fair at Lexington, week of August 3rd to 8th.

On each of the six days there will be running races and harness racing on every day but Saturday. The two-year old stake to be contested during the week, closed with 20 entries, including nearly all the best in training in Kentucky. This race has always been one of the best races of the year for two-year-olds, and this should prove no exception to the rule.

Rules of the National Trotting Association will govern the races. In addition there will be pony races, mule races, novelty races and others to be announced later.

HALF FARE RATE TO FAIR

Blue Grass Fair is a Member American Poultry Association.

The Blue Grass Fair is a member of the American Poultry Association, and the exhibit in this large and important department will be governed by the rules of that Association. This is a guarantee of equal rights and justice to all.

A classification embodying premiums for over 300 classes of poultry and pigeons has been prepared, and the management expects this year to be, as usual, a great show.

In addition to cash premiums, the Blue Grass Fair and a number of merchants of Lexington have donated silver cups and many additional prizes of merchandise, etc.

Heretofore the Pigeon Department has been under the management of the Poultry Department, but through the interest of the wide awake Pigeon Breeders of this section, the management of the Blue Grass Fair has appointed a committee of the foremost pigeon breeders and placed the department in their hands, which assures a big show under proper management.
Dr. C. W. Trapp, Dr. A. Porter Taylor and Mr. E. W. Hoke have been engaged as judges and a winning here will mean as much as at any state fair in the country. Come, bring your birds and help us make this the largest and most successful show in the South. If you can not come yourself, send your birds, and we assure you they will get the proper care and attention.

Birds will be cooped in Standard Uniform Coops, and one bird to the section, for which the small sum of five cents per bird will be charged.
This assures no fighting or ragged birds at the end of the show. Every attention will be given birds not accompanied by owners, so in making an entry here you can rest assured that your birds will be well cared for.

Half Fare Rates to Fair.

Do not fail to visit the Blue Grass
Fair at Lexington the week of August 3 to 8th. One fare ticket will give you on all railroads in Kentucky. Every afternoon, and on Sunday, beginning Sunday, August 2nd, there will be magnificent band concerts, with high class vocalists in a Grand Sacred Concert.

A new standard will be set for fair music. Heretofore we have been content to hear instrumental concerts interspersed with some renowned soloists, in choice selections, but Thavius introduces a quartette and, how they make the furthest nook and cranny of the amphitheater echo with the marvelous and ever fresh strains from "Lucia," "Il Trovatore," "Carmen,"
"Moths," etc. Hardly has the insinuating quartette been stilled when forth troops a perfect charge of trumpets and trombone players, and with Thavius himself leading the van, such outbursts of harmony are not often heard.
It is not the usual blatant, noisy demonstration of a brass choir, but a musically effective combination, swelling in great sounds until a startling climax is attained.

Amusement lovers who crave originality will find it in the heart's content at the Blue Grass Fair this year.

Woman's Department.
The Woman's Department of the Blue Grass Fair, to be held at Lexington, August 3rd to 8th, will be more important and extensive this year than

W. A. PRICE, Executor.

In Mental Darkness.

Kentucky has 298,081 men and women, according to the last report of the United States Census Bureau, who cannot read and write—valuable material going to waste—good people, but in a state of mental darkness. Boone county has 310 of these unfortunate. A movement is on foot to give these people a chance like the grown people of Rowan county had in their Moonlight Schools. Last county meeting women past eighty learned in a few weeks to read and write. Only twenty-three illiterates were in that county, the others were 1152 when the Moonlight Schools began, three years ago. A number of Kentucky teachers have taken up the movement, and Moonlight Schools are being conducted in a number of counties in the State.
The Kentucky Illiteracy Commission has opened headquarters in the new State capital at Frankfort, and will gladly give information or lend assistance to any one interested in stamping out illiteracy from Kentucky either in Moonlight Schools or by instructing individuals—in their homes. The Commission is composed of Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, President; Dr. J. G. Crabbe, Secretary and Treasurer. Hon. Bartlett, President H. H. Cherry, and Miss Ella Lewis. None of these men and women are to be paid for their services. Can you not send them hands? It is your Kentucky as well as your Kentucky. Let's wipe illiteracy out of Kentucky by 1920, when the next census is taken.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Large Barn and Contents Burned to the Ground, Loss $1,200.
The large barn, 40x60 feet, belonging to Jasper Beemon, across Gunpowder creek and about three miles south of Burlington, was struck by lightning between 8 and 9 o'clock, during the electrical storm last Monday night and together with its contents, was destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at $1,200 with an insurance of $465 in the Boone county company. In the barn were two good mowing machines, plows, wagons, and harness, and many, many tons of hay and numerous other articles of value.
Mr. Beemon makes his home with Hubert Bachelor, who lives about three-fourths of a mile from his residence which is vacant, consequently no one was near when the barn was struck, and owing to the down pour of rain no one went to the fire, and Mr. Beemon was not aware of his loss until Tuesday morning when it became possible to reach Mr. Bachelor's by telephone. The light resulting from the fire was seen for miles around, and was fortunate that the residence did not burn also.

Seth C. Foster Dead.

Seth C. Foster, who died at his home in Norwood, Ohio, last week was a native of this county, where he was born October, 6th, 1823. He spent his early days at the Foster homestead on Woolper creek. He went to Cincinnati early in life where, many years ago he became one of that city's leading business men, and died a multimillionaire. He has several relatives in this county among the Hensleys in this and Petersburg precincts.

Send In the Keys and Seals.

The officers of election are requested to return to me at once the election seals and ballot keys they have in their possession, as it is necessary to have them for holding the primary election on the 1st of August.
W. R. ROGERS, County Clerk.

A large barn in Indiana, between Aurora and Rising Sun, was struck by lightning about eight o'clock last Monday evening, and destroyed by fire together with 300 bushels of wheat, several tons of hay, three horses and many farming implements. The loss amounted to several thousand dollars.

SECOND GAS WELL

Driven at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, Flows Half Million Feet a Day

Gas showing 80 pounds pressure was struck Friday at a depth of 330 feet in the second well driven by A. D. Cook. The well is near the spring at the foot of the ridge in front of the Cook residence.

A. R. Posey of Cincinnati, who had charge of the drilling, states that the flow will prove to be not less than 500,000 feet daily. This he says would be regarded as a good showing in any old established gas producing territory. The output will be ample to supply all the needs of Greendale should Mr. Cook decide to have it piped for that purpose.

Mr. Posey, who has been engaged in drilling for 24 years states that the well just struck is not what is termed a "rocket" which will soon run out, but is one that may be considered a producer for a long time to come.

In other words, it may be regarded as near a permanent supply of gas as is found in Ohio, Pennsylvania or Oklahoma fields.

The flow was struck in Trenton rock notwithstanding the theory advanced by one learned Lawrenceburger many years ago that there was no Trenton rock underlying this section.

In the first well driven for Mr. Cook on Tanner's creek gas showing forty pounds pressure was found at a depth of 305 feet. By comparison it will be seen that the second well is a much better one than the first, a test showing the pressure to be two and one half times as much as that in the Tanner's creek well—Lawrenceburg Press.

HELPING THE FARMERS.

Frankfort, July 16.—With a view of improving the soil of this state Commissioner of Agriculture Newman has purchased two rock crushers which will be used in grinding up limestone in order that it may be used as a fertilizer. The crushers will be furnished to the farmers free of charge, the farmers to pay for the rock, labor and the other expenses necessary to running the crushers. One crusher will be started out of Lexington and will work its way through the Blue Grass into the mountain sections of the state. The other crusher will probably start from Shelbyville and work south.

Commissioner Newman said today that every acre of land in this state that does not overflow annually needs lime, and that the most economical way to get the lime is to grind up the limestone into fine powder. He estimates that it will take about four tons of lime to an acre, and the cost to the farmer will be about 50 cents a ton, which is as cheap or cheaper than the farmer can haul from the railroad station after paying shipping expenses, as well as paying for the lime.

Of late it has been impossible for the farmers to raise crops of red clover, and the failure to do so Commissioner Newman attributes to the lack of lime in the soil. He is of the opinion that the use of lime will improve the condition of alfalfa and cow pea crops. A good stand of red clover puts about $25 worth of nitrogen into an acre of land and this in turn makes better crops of corn, tobacco, wheat and hemp.

The convicts in the penitentiary of Illinois grind lime for the state of Illinois, and the state furnishes it to the farmers at five cents a ton. Commissioner Newman is of the opinion that ultimately the practice will be started in Kentucky penitentiaries.

Among the greatest phenomena of the drouth which is prevalent and has been with us for over two months is the spring which was discovered on the highest point of the Wilson Hill farm last week. The hands plowing noticed a damp place and concluded to investigate by digging down to see from whence the dampness came. They were amazed to see a stream as large as a man's thumb burst up through the ground. It soon filled a hole as large as a barrel and after a trench was made to run it off and it is still doing so.

The Wilson Hill is the highest point in this vicinity, and from it Hardin's Knob, near Salem 10 miles away is plainly visible as is also Pickering Hill, near the Ohio River on the Ford's Ferry road, which is equally as far, while in a valley of surpassing beauty at its foot lies Marion, nestled among shade trees, making a picture as beautiful as the artist could wish. How nature stores up her treasures will always be wonderful. Right at this time half of the wells and cisterns in Marion, down in the valley are dry and water is getting to be held at a premium, while on the highest point in this section a spring apparently "never failing" is discovered during a drouth which is the most severe known in this section—Marion Record-Press.

It may not be generally known that many prominent men in Western Kentucky are Sunday-school teachers, but it is a fact. C. C. Gresham, of Paducah, one of the ablest attorneys in the State, has a splendid class in the Sunday-school of the Christian church in that city. Judge Jack Hanberry, has for years taught a class of young ladies in the Baptist Sunday-school at Hopkinsville; Walton Farley has a very interesting class of young men in the Methodist Sunday-school at Ellettsville; Ruby Laffoon is the teacher of a class at the Christian church in Madisonville, and Judge Bunk Gardner, of Mayfield is a regular Sunday-school teacher. What better evidence do you want that the world is growing better?—Cádiz Record.

Gentlemen:

Owing to the excellent results we are getting from feeding Tuxedo Chop, we believe you are entitled to a little praise for the quality of that Feed.

Our horses have never been in as fine shape as they are at present. Since we started feeding Tuxedo about one year ago, our stock has been practically free from sickness. While we have never kept an exact tab on expenses, and of the opinion that Tuxedo Chop is cheaper to feed than Oats, but if it did cost more money, we would feed it, as believe we get a better day's service out of our stock, and the condition in which they stay would be worth considerable extra cost to us.

Previous to starting on Tuxedo we had tried a great many other feeds and had about come to the conclusion that Corn and Oats was the best for stock by any feed that Tuxedo is the feed, and if anyone will give you feed a thirty days' trial, follow your instructions, as we did, they will not have any other feed in their barns.

Yours truly,

KEEPS BOWELS IN PERFECT CONDITION.

A small town in the corn belt has twenty owners of horses who are fed "Tuxedo Chop." Six months ago a man of that town who drives a team 16 to 20 miles a day over rough roads, started to use "Tuxedo Chop." Inside of thirty days he was delighted with the improved condition of his team. They were up and on the bit early in the morning. They came in fresh at night. His neighbors asked what caused it. He told them. Today practically all the horses in that town are fed "Tuxedo Chop."

WILSON WINS OUT.

London, July 16.—Gen. Huerta's resignation of the provisional Presidency of Mexico is regarded as a victory for President Wilson's policy, and is welcomed by the British public and in official circles here as a possible solution of the Mexican problem. A peaceful end to the complex situation is greatly desired here on account of the large British financial interest in the country.

Most of the London newspapers, however, express doubt as to whether conditions will be better under Venustiano Carranza than when General Huerta was in power in Mexico City.

The Pall Mall Gazette points out that if Francisco Carbajal, the new provisional President, surrenders to General Carranza, as he is expected to do, "it may soon be possible to exact reparation from General Huerta for the murder at Juarez of Wm. S. Benton, the Scottish ranchman."

The Evening Standard says: "The Washington administration has won a diplomatic victory. President Wilson has been persistent and patient in his policy of non-recognition of Gen. Huerta, but it is likely enough he will be met now by other obstacles just as hard to surmount as was General Huerta's obstinacy."

The Globe takes much the same view saying:

"The elimination of Gen. Huerta is a triumph of a sort for President Wilson, but it may be assumed that his difficulties and anxieties are by no means over. There is no reason to suppose that the real opinions of the Mexican people will have more opportunity to assert themselves under General Carranza than they had under General Huerta. The United States, however, has been warned by experience not to inquire too closely now to expect too much."

NO HOPE FOR LOWER PRICES.

Despite a wheat crop estimated at $30,000,000 bushels the largest on record, no hope is held out by the Department of Agriculture for greatly reduced prices. Such a large crop would mean low prices were it not that the world crops of wheat and competing grains do not promise more than the average of recent years. Besides more than the usual diversion of wheat from its use as food to the use of feed for live stock may be expected because of the present relatively short supply of corn in sections where wheat is a promise of abundance. With corn selling in Kansas for about seven cents more a bushel than wheat, it is not surprising, officials say, that much wheat should be consumed as feed by animals. It is estimated that about 48,000,000 bushels of wheat of last year's crop was consumed as animal feed.—Ex.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good. I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without tiring me, and am doing my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of wonderful success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

The only thing Villa regrets about Huerta's departure from Mexico is that he did not get to see him before he left. He would be glad to have the old man pelted as an ornament for his barn door.

President Huerta, of Mexico, says he resigned to avert the horrors of war, but it is generally believed that the main cause for his resignation was a desire to avert the certainty of becoming a Villa victim.

Uppermost in the minds of every citizen of Covington is the city's centennial celebration this fall, and all are working to make it the greatest event in the history of Covington, and that it will be a success is a foregone conclusion.

Uncle Sam is getting short on funds with which to improve rivers and harbors, and contemplates a suspension of the work out for the Ohio river, which will be a great disappointment to those who are interested in the improvement of that stream.

A fellow claiming that he was to be the next president of Mexico was captured in Lawrenceburg, one day last week. He considered the Hoosier officers were unduly active in Mexican matters, but they defend themselves against the charge by claiming they nipped another revolution in the bud.

Quite a number of the public schools in Kentucky are in progress, and as a result they will be out before the season for bad roads and cold weather. All the public schools in the State ought to be in progress as pupils large or small can attend with more satisfaction than they can during the disagreeable winter months.

Kenton county has improved the condition of the Lexington road wonderfully since it was taken over by the commissioners. It ought to be made one of the best highways in Kentucky as it traverses some of the best territory in Kentucky. When put in good condition Covington will soon realize it is deriving greater benefits from it than ever before.

The large dealers in tobacco throughout the country lost no time following the breaking of the drought, in sending out post cards to ascertain the acreage and condition of the crop. In a few weeks the tobacco producing territory will be covered again in the same way to ascertain what progress the crop is making. These fellows keep a pretty accurate tab on the crop in every particular.

J. C. Revell, cashier of the Boone County Deposit Bank, smokes a pipe which he prizes very highly. He says it was sent to him by a friend in Lincoln county, who grows a grainless corn cob especially for making pipes, which he sells at a nickel apiece, thereby bringing him about $6 a bushel. Such progress has been made in the last few years changing the size and form of the cob, that Mr. Revell's friends confidently expect to be growing cob pipes all ready for use in less than five years.

It seems that there is a general disposition throughout the State to see that each of the candidates before the primary election on the first Saturday in August shall have a square deal, and that any effort to violate the election laws shall be severely punished. Many of the circuit judges have expressed a determination to bring to justice those who attempt to thwart the will of voters as expressed at the polls, and with all this influence determined to see the fair thing done, a party violating the election law will have a very limited chance to escape punishment.

Personal Mention.

Miss Estelle Hoey is visiting relatives in Carroll county. Thomas Rice and wife spent Sunday in Bellevue with relatives.

Mrs. P. P. Walton, of Covington, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Eliza Rouse.

Miss Pauline Kelly is the guest of the Erlanger campers down on Gunpowder creek.

Miss Shirley Tolin returned Monday from a visit of two weeks with friends in Cynthia, Harrison county.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Hume and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fowler, of Covington, spent Sunday with relatives in Burlington.

Mrs. Sarah Peace and granddaughter, Rachel Porter, of Indianapolis, are the guests of relatives in Burlington.

Deputy Banking Commissioner R. H. Rice, of Cincinnati, was the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Revell, Sunday.

Miss Mary Roberts returned Tuesday from a visit with Mrs. William Dawson, of Frankfort and friends at Georgetown.

Masters William and Thos. Walton entertained several of their associates a dinner, last Sunday. In the afternoon they visited Middle creek cliffs.

Mrs. N. W. Carpenter, Mrs. Alice Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Gaines, and Miss Anna Cohn, spent last Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Snyder at Madisonville, Ohio.

Misses Lillian and Agnes Carver entertained with a party last Saturday night. Refreshments were served on the lawn which was lighted with Japanese lanterns.

Mrs. A. L. Furnish and two interesting little children, after spending several weeks with her mother, left Tuesday morning for their home at Golden Pond, Tegg county.

Dr. R. L. Finner and son, Charles, of Verona, were business visitors to Burlington, and while in town made this office a call. Dr. Finner has the oldest citizens in this precinct but does not look it.

S. C. Hicks, of Walton, was in Burlington, on Tuesday, having brought A. V. Stetser, and David H. Smith over in an automobile. Mr. Smith is a candidate for the short term of U. S. Senator. He made a very favorable impression upon those whom he met.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

W. P. Carpenter Struck by a Hayfork and Died a Few Hours After Being Struck—Skull Was Fractured.

W. P. Carpenter was fatally injured last Tuesday while unloading a pile of hay from his barn at the fair grounds above Florence. A pulley on the hay fork in use broke and fell from the track in his path, the barn striking Mr. Carpenter on the head, crushing his skull. Dr. Slater of Erlanger, was called and he had a specialist from Cincinnati present as soon as it was possible, and the unfortunate man was taken to a hospital in the city where he died about 11 o'clock that night. He was the son of the late W. H. Carpenter and is survived by his wife, two sons and one daughter, the children being about grown.

The following young people, chaperoned by Mrs. T. J. If Boone county votes to bond herself for buying the turnpikes and constructing free turnpikes the amount of bonds voted should not be less than the limit fixed by the constitution which is a little below one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. If the limit was voted it would be necessary to issue bonds only as needed in the construction and the purchase of roads and the present rate of road tax could be reduced and the interest kept up on the outstanding bonds, while a sinking fund could be created out of the tax for the payments of bonds as they become due. It should be issued in small denomination and for a reasonably long time, so the present generation and the generation to come would not have to bear the entire burden of an improvement that is to be lasting. It does not seem that the road question is a hard one to handle if the proper plan is adopted and no doubt those who are leading in the road bond issue will in due time explain in a satisfactory manner how the desired result can be obtained by the use of such a modest amount of money. The people will vote a bond issue for road purposes if it is shown their taxes will not be increased any more burdensome thereby than at present.

Hayes Abernathy of Dry Ridge, says part of the week here and expects to return to Walton as he has sold his barber shop at Dry Ridge.

The Richmond church choir will give an ice cream social in the church yard Wednesday, July 29 beginning at 6 p. m. The proceeds will be for the support of the choir. Everybody come.

Hon. D. H. Smith of LaRue county, was here Tuesday in the interest of his race for U. S. Senator on the Democratic ticket for the short term. He represented the Fourth District in Congress for several years.

The Walton Brass Band was organized Monday night and music galore may be expected in a short time. The members of the Walton Military Band, and the following comprise its membership: Fred M. T. Grubbs, President; Fred Miller, Vice President; Wm. E. Benham, Treasurer; E. M. Johnson, Secretary; Dr. G. F. Holloway, Mrs. G. F. Holloway, Geo. J. Grubbs, Harry Mayhugh, Dr. C. C. Metcalfe, Laveigne James, Harry Dixon, D. W. Mayfield, Wendell Rouse, Miss Sybil Ford. The band will begin practice at once.

HELPING THE OLD MAN.

Wichita, Kansas.—Three daughters and the wife of Edward Harrington, living near Alva, Oklahoma, helped save the family wheat crop when a death of harvest hands made the loss of much grain probable if cut. One of the daughters, eight years old rode the team horse to the binder, while the girls 11 and 15 sketched the grain. Harrington and his wife did the rest. Now with all of the 133 acres cut they have begun a vacation.—Ex.

Local Happenings.

(Copyright, by McClure Syndicate.)

Next Saturday is the State wide primary election.

Some very beautiful weather followed the rains last week.

Some say potatoes have begun growing again since the rain.

Turnpikes were washed considerably in some places last week.

During the very hot weather persons operating automobiles had trouble with their engines overheating.

Supt. Riley, L. T. Clore and Chas. Kelly went to Richmond, Friday, on business pertaining to the school there.

In this issue appears the advertisement of the big Lawrenceburg fair which will be held this year August 5, 6, 7, 8.

The colored people are arranging for their annual religious Rally Day, which this year is the first Sunday in August.

Several auto truck builders are endeavoring to sell W. L. Kirkpatrick a machine. If he gets one he will keep the wheels rolling.

It used to be at this time of the year this county was full of threshing machines, but now they are few and far between.

The wind storm last Thursday afternoon unroofed a portion of a barn belonging to Woodie Sullivan, in Commissary neighborhood.

The Erlanger Fair Board is on a deal for several new attractions for the coming fair, among them an air ship which will give daily flights.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Ebenezer Lutheran church will give an ice cream social at Mt. Zion school house, Saturday evening, July 25.

There never was finer weather than has prevailed in this part of the country the past week. The nights are delightful and the days just warm enough.

An afternoon picnic will be given at Harvest Home grounds near Limburg, Saturday, August 1. It will be an occasion of much pleasure for the young people.

Pastures have recuperated wonderfully since the rains of last week, and with favorable weather for a few weeks there will be very fine pastures again.

Rev. J. B. Fosher, State Superintendent of Kentucky, will begin a series of meetings at the Universalist church, Burlington, Thursday, July 30th, at 8 p. m.

A pet pig belonging to Woodie Sullivan has a genuine case of cat distemper. The hoglet contracted the disease by eating from the food receptacle in which the cat was fed.

The mussel business along the Ohio river has been growing in importance for several years, and is now quite an industry, and the finding of valuable pearls is not unusual.

William Clore was fortunate last Thursday in that he changed the hour for the beginning of his sale from the afternoon to the forenoon. He had a large crowd and satisfactory prices were realized.

Edgar Berkshire, the most successful angler who visits Woolport, has landed 33 nice bass in the last few months. He has set his mark at 75 for the season and will not fall below it. He collected August as the best month in the year for bass fishing.

The Boone County High School will be taught by the following teachers this year: Prof. Haywood, of Mayfield, principal; Miss Ruth Kelly, of Burlington, assistant principal; Mrs. Nannie Maurer, of Burlington, and Miss Allen, of Lexington, teachers in the primary department.

Lexington, July 19.—In closing their institute at Jackson the teachers of Breathitt-co. adopted a resolution calling upon the next Legislature to enact a measure making it unlawful to sell or otherwise dispose of intoxicating liquor within four miles of any school in the state.

The following item is taken from the base ball column of Tuesday's Enquirer:

A marriage license was issued yesterday to Bertha Presser, 21 years old, of 1816 Baltimore avenue and Edward L. Sandford, 26 years old, well-known ball player of 210 Eastern avenue. Sandford was formerly with the Cubs.

SOME WIND.

A wind storm that passed thru this part of the county last Thursday afternoon, tore up trees badly at some points. At R. B. Huey's in Commissary neighborhood, the ventilator was blown off the top of one of his barns.

BURLINGHAM IN ERLANGER.

One night last week a burglar made three professional calls in Erlanger. At Lou Bentler's, where he was discovered by Mrs. Bentler, who called her husband, who fired three shots at the fleeing man, who Mrs. Bentler says was a negro.

PERSONAL CHANGES.

The Riffe-Lappin campers from Erlanger had two or three storm experiences down on Gunpowder, last week. They vacated the latter part of the week in favor of another crowd of pleasure seekers, from Erlanger, who are making merry in Gunpowder creek while this week. Dr. Riffe is charmed with camp life on the "crick."

CORN GROWING NICELY.

The corn crop in this county is doing nicely, although the long drought injured the earlier corn some in that it will have a short stalk, although some claim a fine ear is probable if another dry period does not catch it later on. One thing is certain, however, the farmers are decidedly encouraged to what they were two weeks ago.

MATERIAL FOR RUBBERNECKS

David Lucas and Herbert Kirkpatrick pulled off a big deal in old rubber one day last week, the trade involving the discussion of prices of every grade of that kind of stock. Lucas did not like to sell to Kirk as he feared he was trying to corner the local market, but the two dealers finally came to an agreement as to price and Lucas unloaded his purchase at a fair profit.

LOST HORSE FOUND.

Claud Armstrong, from down on Gunpowder creek, was in Burlington last Friday seeking information regarding his young horse that had been missing from the pasture since the Monday evening before. The young man had about concluded that his horse had been stolen. See his advertisement in another column.

Later—the horse was found at Taylorsport, where it had been put in a pasture. The mane and tail had been bobbed.

EXCITEMENT IN AURORA.

Chief of Police James Cox, of Aurora, arrested James W. Baker, one day last week, on a warrant charging him with attempting to attack Marie C. Bruner, 12 years old, daughter of John W. Bruner. When a crowd gathered and threats of lynching were made, Chief of Police Cox and Patrolmen Hancock and Steits rushed Baker through the rear entrance of the station house, loaded him into an automobile and speeded away to the county jail in Lawrenceburg.

DANGEROUS POINTS.

There are two points on the pike between Burlington and Florence at which motorists should exercise the greatest of care when passing. One is at Limburg where the road crosses the pike, one coming down the hill from Baker's shop and the other the creek road, and the other point is the sharp curve on the hill at Alonzo Beemans. With reckless driving it is only a question of time when at one or both of these points there will be an accident.

SEEM TO BE GOING SLOW.

As yet no preparations have been made for the trial of Stevens for the killing of Kells, the prisoner brought to Boone from Grant county. It will be remembered that the case was tried at the last term on the Boone circuit and resulted in a hung jury, after which Stevens was transferred to the Covington jail where he has remained, being unable to raise the $7,000 for his appearance for trial at the August term. The case is on the docket for the second day of the week of the term which begins on the second Monday in August.

BURLINGTON 7, HEBRON 6.

The Burlington base ball team journeyed to Hebron last Saturday and defeated the team at that place 7 to 6. It was a hard fought battle. The Burlington crowd fattened their batting average considerably making 17 hits to Hebron's nine. Conner, Slayback and Tolin each hitting a triple, a two-bagger by Zimmer being the best Hebron could do. Huey struck out 11 to Hossman's 5.

At the end of the third inning the score was 5 to 0 in favor of Hebron, and the victory appeared clinched for them.

The Burlington team has played eleven games this season and lost two.

Burlington and Bellevue base ball teams will play at Burlington park next Saturday afternoon. Come out and root for one of the teams.

Petersburg and Lawrenceburg will play at Petersburg next Saturday. This will be a good game. Come out and see it.

It is time to prepare for your exhibits at the fair this fall. Plan to exhibit something for you will find that it greatly increases your interest in the fair and is a good method of advertising your products.

SOIL IS BASIS OF PROSPERITY.

A good farm of 80 acres, well tilled, is better than 320 acres half cropped. It is the old story. As far back as we know anything about civilization, the cultivation of the soil has been the first and most important industry. The farm will fail and the foundation of all our prosperity be undermined unless agriculture is reformed. Already the percentage of our people actively engaged in farming has fallen from 47.36 in 1879 to about 32 in 1910. Every man on the farm today must produce food for two months against one forty years ago. Farm lands in many of the States are exhausted and are being deserted. The average American farmer has no equal for carelessness and for adhering to discredited methods of cultivation. The average wheat production in the State of Minnesota is about thirteen bushels. The average in Denmark is thirty-eight bushels; in England thirty-two bushels; in Holland, thirty-four bushels. The saving feature of the situation is the interest already awakened in agricultural improvement. Much has been done, but it is only a beginning. The experiment station, the demonstration farm, agricultural instruction in public schools, emphasis upon right cultivation, seed selection and fertilization through the keeping of livestock are slowly increasing the agricultural product and raising the index of soil values.

Over most of Europe agricultural education is further advanced than with us. For a century Great Britain has worked at it. The great landowners made it their problem for more than a hundred years, and now the average wheat yield, from fields cropped since before the conquest, on cold soils and in misty climate has raised from fourteen or fifteen bushels to 33 bushels per acre, while ours is fourteen and a fraction. Hungary has organized education in agriculture on a grand scale, creating a body of teachers and experts who are expected to fashion the classes below them. France has her agronomic institute, her national and practical schools of agriculture, her experiment stations all over the country. Germany has a complete system of agricultural education. In Belgium every school maintains a garden of at least thirty-nine and one-half square rods. Ireland offers a practical hint by employing itinerant teachers of agriculture to go about the country with a small demonstration outfit, reaching farmers and their families directly and giving advice in thousands of cases by letter. Every other country seems more intelligently alive to the value of practical agricultural education than the United States.

Practical instruction in the work of the farm, as well as in its general principles, might well have place in the courses of our public schools. It belongs to the lower grades as well as to the higher. It should be given in connection with the actual cultivation of plots of ground by the pupils themselves. But the people already on the farms, wedded to bad methods, knowing little and doing less about their improvement or education. They do not need technical instruction. The most highly skilled agricultural teacher would have no advantage in practical farming that the ordinary intelligent farmer might not enjoy. There ought to be in each agricultural county of every State a capable practical instructor to advise his neighbors both what to do and what not to do. We now are moving along a better road so far as the next generation is concerned.

Conservation of cash and credit is important to the farmer, as it saves or wastes results in his hands. His work furnishes the greater part of the nation's wealth. Our States, including the duties and major subdivisions, are in debt. Public expenditure is increasing everywhere; public economy is a virtue either lost or despised. From 1880 to 1900 the aggregate expenditures of all the States increased 103 per cent. Spendthrift man and spendthrift nation must face at last the same law and the same penalty. Everywhere the individual imitates the prodigality of the Government. Industry and frugality are at a discount. Any luxury, any extravagance is regarded as funds for it can be raised by wasting capital or creating debt. There is a need of more money for productive employment, for payrolls and the extension of commerce and industries and the creation of those new facilities for want of which the commerce of the country is and always must be limited.

Hence comes also high prices, curtailment of business, distrust and eventual distress. Hence comes waste and idleness and the increased cost of production that makes both business and employment slow and insecure. Extravagance is undermining the industry of this country as surely as the barbarians broke down and looted that mighty Roman empire, with whose civilization and progress France and Italy in our days have so much in common.

It is not only an economic blunder of the first magnitude, but a moral touchstone when a community must bring its food supply from abroad while all around it is producing more than its needs. Advertise the country as generously as the cities, and the cities will be the greatest gainers. Just as we have passed beyond the days when a conquering nation divided its lands among the victors, so that civilization advanced and receded by the alternation of great human catastrophes, so we have come to the end of the days when continents were opened to settlement within a few years and industrial empire were created artificially by settling new population brought there in PROTECTION AGAINST HOG CHOLERA.

It has been estimated that the farmers of Kentucky lost $2,000,000 last year as a consequence of the general prevalence of cholera among hogs.

The loss of two million dollars worth of hogs in one year from one disease is a serious matter. The census of 1910 showed that the entire value of the swine in Kentucky at that time was approximately $10,000,000. It is probable that the value has increased since 1910, but whatever it may be today the subtraction of a million or two millions from it leaves a considerable vacancy in the pockets of the swine owners.

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station officials say that the disease again is prevalent in all parts of the State and that it is especially noticeable in those counties which are devoted most to the production of swine. The cholera obtains a foothold in a herd it spreads rapidly and the mortality ranges from 70 to 120 per cent. Sanitary measures are important and sometimes are sufficient to avoid an outbreak, but the best known method of protection against the disease is the use of anti-hog cholera serum at the proper time. The State Experiment Station is prepared to furnish this serum to the farmers free of charge and will supply information and literature to all farmers who request it. Demonstrations are given from time to time at the station for the benefit of those who wish to familiarize themselves with the use of the serum.

The State has gone to large expense to protect the swine owners against the heavy losses that are being sustained every year because of the prevalence of hog cholera. The farmers can better afford, with the assistance of the State to immunize their herds than to run the risk of loss.

Why is it that the fellow who won't walk across a room to get his own wife a drink of water will swim a river to do a favor for some other fellow's wife?

MANY BIRDS DROWNED.

Hickman, Ky.—In the hard rain and storm that raged here Friday night thousands of birds of all kinds were killed, the wind swaying the trees so that they were blown from their roosts and nests and thrown out and the air was full of the ground. The hard rain that poured in torrents, beat them to the ground and drowned them, leaving them on the sidewalks, on the steps, in the gutters and under the trees.—Ex.

In a statement, published elsewhere in this paper, and which was sent out by the Kentucky Literacy Commission, the astounding fact is given out that, in the good county of Woodford—which we have always proudly referred to as "the asparagus bed of the garden spot of the world"—there are, at present, 156 illiterate men, women and children who can neither read nor write. We suppose these figures have been reached after careful investigation and are true. What a lamentable state of affairs they reveal! What a shock to our pride!—Blue Grass Clipper.

Some of our Central Kentucky exchanges are noting the reappearance of the wandering gypsy bands which roam about in the summer, trading horses, telling fortunes, begging and making themselves a general nuisance. They are a severe affliction to any town or community where they happen to be located for the moment. Some of them make the rounds of the county courts and other places for long periods. In the outskirts of large towns, Kentuckians must have a reputation for being "easy," if one may judge from the animal side-shows, gypsy aggregations and fake medicine outfits that infest the State during the summer and fall.—Fighting 11.

News From Out In the State.

Lancaster.—The tomato crop of this section is being destroyed by a new enemy, a worm, much resembling the tobacco worm. The pest attacks the ripe fruit.

Carrollton.—The mussel industry in the Ohio near here is forging to the front, not only in the quality of shells, but also because of the many fine pearls found by the fishermen, ranging in value from a few dollars to hundreds.

Shepherdsville.—In drilling for water which to run its ice plant the Shepherdsville Ice and Electric Company struck a vein of water at a depth of 110 feet. The water is sulphur, salt, iron and magnesium and other properties.

Elkton.—During a storm near Fairview lightning struck and killed a fine Jersey cow belonging to Clarence Harned. A horse belonging to a young man named "Fru" was also killed by a bolt.

It is estimated that the average wheat yield in the blue grass will be between 20 and 25 bushels. Occasional yields of from 30 to 40 bushels are reported, but in the main the figures are around 20 bushels. This is a considerable increase over former years. At the prevailing prices this will not give the farmers a very big return on their acreage.—Blue Grass Clipper.

Mr. Walker Bryant, county clerk, exhibited at this office a few days ago a $100 bank note drawn on the Bank of Columbia, Ky., and made payable to James Hughes. The note was sent to Mr. Bryant by Judge C. W. Wright of Campbellville. It was issued in 1835, 75 years ago. But few people in Adair county know that a bank was conducted in Columbia that long time ago.—Columbia News.

Capt. Nelson McIntosh, one of the few survivors of the Mexican and Civil wars, passed thru Winchester Saturday enroute to the Soldiers' Home at Dayton, O., from his home in Powell county. He is past ninety years of age, but is one of the most remarkable old men in the country. Even at this advanced age he gets about as lively as most men twenty years his junior and has always been quite a character in Powell.—Winchester Democrat.

Mr. Boyd Wagers is our authority for the following sheep story: "Mr. Tine Azbill last fall bought nine ewes and one buck for $40. This spring he sold the lambs, the produce of the ewes, which averaged about 100 pounds, at $6.50 a hundred, making a total of $10.50 realized on the investment with all the original stock, and in addition to this the wool which was clipped brought $1 per head, making a total of $12.50 on an investment of $40."—Richmond Madisonian.

Last Thursday noon Mr. Mike Walton, of the Wedonia neighborhood, made application to Agent Russell Warder for a hail insurance policy on his crops. The application was forwarded to Louisville. This afternoon at two o'clock a hailstorm swept over Mr. Walton's place and did considerable damage. He came to town and put in his claim before the policy had been issued from the company's home office at Louisville. The local agent received orders to pay the claim, which was done before Mr. Walton's application for the policy had even been approved.—Maysville Bulletin.

The Minnie Central employees at the freight house are surely deserving of a Carnegie medal. They were ordered to pay the claim, which was done before Mr. Walton's application for the policy had even been approved.—Maysville Bulletin.

Some strange bird is disturbing the peace and quiet of parts of town and for several nights the past week an armed force has been on the lookout for the intruder.—Mt. Olivet Tribune-Democrat.

Pendleton county is drying up. Six hundred and seventy-five barrels of whisky at the Tim Hayes distillery south of town are being rattled and a button. This is the largest snake killed in this section in many years.—Hyden Thousandsticks.

A few days ago, while hoeing corn in his field John North who lives in the lower Bull creek section, killed a rattlesnake that was nearly four feet long. It had 20 rattles and a button. This is the largest snake killed in this section in many years.—Hyden Thousandsticks.

Last Sunday night after being awakened by chickens Mr. T. E. Bum went out to investigate. He found a snake among the chickens which had swallowed a frying size chicken. The snake measured six feet three inches in length and about eight inches in circumference.—Irvine Sun.

One day last week a vicious jack belonging to Dye Bros., near Johnson, grabbed the arm of Mr. Frank Dye between his teeth and inflicted serious injury. Before the grip of the beast could be broken loose the unfortunate man was dragged about the barn lot and his arm crushed and the bone broken. The animal was clubbed over the head and its mouth finally pried open to release the man.—Flemingsburg Gazette.

A fellow threw a cigarette butt into a wheat field near Fulton and before the honest farmers of the vineyard got the fire put out the remnants of his cigarette had gone up in smoke. Perhaps it's rather too much to expect persons who use cigarettes to have enough intellect to be careful when they scatter their fire. Some smokers exercise caution in this respect, but who ever saw a cigarette smoker who didn't fling the remnants of his cigarette recklessly, letting the sparks fall where they might?—Frankfort State Journal.

Fred Brown has been putting his auto to practical use on the farm. It has been a "good old wagon" as a pleasure vehicle, and worked so well on the road that he thought to try it out as a "work animal." Now there has not been enough time lately to turn the wind-mill which pumps water for his stock, so the saucy little Ford was backed up to the well, geared the pump, the wheels booted off the ground, the engine started, and there you are. The machine became the servant of the animals it had forced to take a back seat, so to speak.—Dover News.

Mr. Edward Graham, of Hopkins county, had a large saw mill boiler which he wanted to take to Evansville for repairs. Upon inquiry he found that the freight rate from Madisonville to Evansville was 75 cents per 100 pounds. After counting the cost Mr. Graham decided to send his boiler by the wagon route. Tuesday the big wagon, drawn by four powerful mules, reached Henderson on its way to the Indiana city. In this instance transportation had reversed its earliest stage of working on his regular shift. Yesterday no exception. No sooner had a few clouds reared up in the west than the usual report of a cyclone in Cincinnati became current. All afternoon, after the paper had gone to press, the telephone lines jingled with inquiries as to the number of lives lost, the damage, etc. Of course, there was no cyclone. The suggestion is made that Cleveland, Ohio, or some other town be used now for a time instead of old reliable Louisville or Cincinnati.—Lexington Leader.

KLINE'S BIG SHOWS BLUE GRASS FAIR

INCLUDE NEW ATTRACTIONS AND SURPRISES FOR THE PUBLIC.

Company to Appear at the Blue Grass
Fair is the Best and Most Complete
That Have Visited Kentucky.

This year as in the past the Kline Shows have added new attractions and surprises for the public, founded and perfected only by great labor, patience and skill with no spare of time and money to make their organization that which it is now, the most complete and best equipped carnival company touring the country to-day.

The repertoire of new ideas and novelties advanced are far above the old stereotyped carnivals of a few years ago.

Many startling features will be presented for the first time to the amusement loving public. The new attractions, the new riding devices are the most unique and far removed from all others.

The Kline Shows have been made popular by their clean class and character of everything undertaken. Nothing of a questionable nature has ever been tolerated. The usual catch-penny affair, games of chance, etc., have always been conspicuous by their absence.

The company this season is the largest, best and most complete the Kline Shows have ever had on the road. It consists of about 270 performers and the outfit will travel on a special train of twenty or more cars.

The aggregation will represent an investment of several hundred thousand dollars. The shows and attractions are varied, comprising everything with which people expect to be entertained and amused when they attend a fair or carnival. And the shows are all clean, that is one thing about which Mr. Kline is very particular. He has a reputation which has resulted in the Kline Shows being booked by the biggest and best fairs in the country for a number of years. For five years he has been showing at the Dallas State Fair, an equal period at the Illinois State Fair and like places. This year in addition to the others, he has secured the New York State Fair, the biggest in the country.

The following are a few of the attractions to be seen with the Kline shows.

The Walter K. Sibley, International lady champion swimmers and divers show is one of the big attractions. A special swimming tank has been constructed for the act, which is an innovation. In former years tanks have been made in each town by digging a hole in the ground and erecting a canvas screen around it. But this new tank is in two sections set on wagons. When the pairs are clamped together a tank having a depth of about seven feet and thirty feet long by ten or twelve in width is made.

Mr. Kline has made arrangements for the appearance on Don Fulano, the educated horse. The animal is said to be without a peer and has been seen on the big-time vaudeville circuit. About two months ago he was one of the attractions on the Majestic Theater bill. He is in charge of Cowboy Elliott.

Princess Victoria, the miniature Mme. Melba, will be one of the big drawing cards. She is the smallest perfectly formed woman in the world and has a voice of remarkable sweetness. The midget has been in San Antonio all winter and she has made a lot of friends.

The Nomia Musical Company.

Johnson's Nomia show is a musical comedy production carrying 20 people. It is far superior to the average road show, being elaborately costumed and calling for a change of bill every day. "Mexico," a reproduction of the scenes and life in the southern republic is expected to prove immensely popular in the Northern States, where people are anxious to know about the men and women in the country where revolutions have been in progress for the last four years. One of the features of the offering will be a sham battle. The show was planned and made ready in San Antonio and will carry eighty people and about thirty horses and horses.

A motordrome is now in course of construction for use with Mr. Kline's shows. The interior track has a steeper angle than any rider has yet attempted to negotiate on a motor cycle. Hardy's high-wire act, one of the big free attractions for the Pleats is under Mr. Kline's control. Hardy is said to be one of the cleverest high-wire performers in the world. He performed the perilous feat of crossing Niagara Falls on a wire.

GREAT ARE ATTRACTIONS

An Immense Display of Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Poultry and Pet Stock.

The management of the Blue Grass Fair are pleased to announce that plans are all under way to make this fair one of the most attractive of any that will be held in the Middle West during 1914.

An Aristocracy of Stock Will be gathered at Lexington during the week of August 3rd to 8th. Prize winning cattle will vie with blooded horses.

The Liberal Premiums Offered in all departments will engender a spirited strife, contention and rivalry among ardent contestants making a display greatly in excess of that witnessed at any former fair.

A. F. THAVIU, MUSICAL DIRECTOR

Thaviu, the Russian band director, who will appear at the Blue Grass Fair, August 3 to 8, with his famous band is a director of international fame, and a man of many artistic attainments. Born in Russia he had early training that fitted him for his life work. He came to America at a time when there was a great need of good band leaders, and he has since been rapidly climbing the ladder of fame until at the present time he stands on the topmost rung. Thaviu is an artist to his finger tips. As a cornet virtuoso he is in the foremost rank.

His band is composed of a sprinkling of all nations. The temperamental element from foreign shores is held in check by the cooler musicians of American extraction, so that his band is an organization without a peer in America. As a program maker, Thaviu has no rival. He combines a mingling of the classic, the semi-classic with the popular, in such a manner that all classes and conditions of people are pleased. The stickler for the classic is pleased, and those who love to have their ears tickled with the latest popular airs are also pleased, and all without offending the taste of the most discriminating.

Accompanying Thaviu is a company of singers who offer excerpts from the more popular grand operas. Each singer is trained and the intelligent interpretation of these operas is a treat to all who love the best music. The coming of Thaviu's band will be a real treat to all music lovers. His repertoire is without limit. His library contains thousands of dollars' worth of music from the most erudite to the very latest song that is being sung throughout the country.

Poultry Notes for July.

When fowls become indifferent to their surroundings they are too fat and it is time to be on the lookout for disease.

It will never pay to dose a fowl in good health to keep it healthy. It is impossible to make a healthy fowl more healthy.

There may be such a thing as luck in the poultry business but "keeping at it" is what characterizes the successful poultry raiser.

The secret of early settlers is early layers. Those hens that laid all through the winter are the ones that want to set in February and March.

Prepare plenty of shade for your fowls in some way as the sun is so hot; you will lose some stock in different ways, by a sour crop or by being over come by the heat.

To fatten a fowl successfully of any age is to feed a wet mash of equal parts of corn meal and milk. Feed plenty of it, and do not allow the birds any more exercise than necessary.

Roup has several forms, some of which are incurable, such as consumption. It is also laborious to handle affected fowls, the most advisable plan is to destroy every one of them, and the ax is the best remedy.

If your fowls run in a small yard, spade up the yards as often as once a month except in winter, they will keep the ground from becoming tainted. Freshly turned earth is a good disinfectant.

Fresh lawn-clippings, turnip and radish tops, cabbage tops are good for your fowls, and growing stock; do not throw scraps away, as they relish green food, and it will build the fowls up and make them healthy and grow fast.

If you live on a farm, geese will pay. They live on grass and water, and are very free from disease. It's a case of two crops a year, body and the feathers. Maybe you don't like the noise, but the noise sounds good out in the country.

Should your fowls have the limberneck, this is an excellent remedy: Mix equal parts of sweet oil and turpentine and give a teaspoonful every two or three hours a few drops of cod liver oil also effective. As soon as the bird is able to eat give it soft food.

Failures in poultry raising are just like failures in other lines of effort. They are due to similar causes, to lack of industry, lack of capital, lack of knowledge lack of business management. There is no safer business than poultry but most people are not in earnest about it.

Pig Iron and Copper.

New York July 9.—It is now certain that the unfilled tonnage of the United States Steel Corporation for June will show an increase which will be the first since February of this year. The increase will depend upon the amount of cancellations during the month and if these are small the increase will be surprising.

Most manufacturers are now of the opinion that the turn in the business has come and that the last six months of this year will show a gratifying increase over the first six. The last two months have seen some good railroad buying and while prices remain stationary there is considerable business being taken for future delivery at $1 and $2 a ton above current quotations. This advance will figure encouragingly in the third and fourth quarter earnings of all steel companies.

Some improvement in sentiment is noted in the market for steel wire products but business continues light. Mills are not running on a scale satisfactory to manufacturers nor is better running time expected before the passing of several weeks when present improvement in sentiment may be translated into new orders. Makers refuse to contract for either nails or wire for delivery more than two months ahead at present prices.

Back to the Soil.

"Back to the Soil" was the topic of the sermon yesterday by Dr. A. B. Beresford, pastor of the Universalist church. He said in part: "Less automobile riding and more digging in the garden would make American men and women healthier. A garden plot, duly tended, has been the physical salvation of many a man. Every city dweller cannot own a garden spot, but it would be both practicable and wise to develop some sort of co-operative farming and gardening scheme among city dwellers."

"Half of the population dwells in cities, and it will ever be so. However, a group of city people could get a tract of land, have a skilled farmer and gardener as instructors, and each person could spend a few days or a few weeks of each summer doing actual garden work and farming. This is different from the failure schemes of old dreamers who would abandon civilization and go back to primitive methods, like Brook Farm, Dowle's Zion, and the Shaker 'Ark Fairview.' Monday's Enquirer.

FOREST RESERVES.

Frankfort, July 15.—A government forest crew now working in Pike county, will extend its investigation over the entire State of Kentucky, locating sites for the establishment of Federal forest reserves under the enabling act introduced at the 1914 session of the General Assembly by Senator Joseph F. Bosworth.

John Bette and family and Dudley Blyth and family were the guests of Earl Walton and family, Sunday. Mrs. Katie Allen and Miss Ethel Sturgeon were Saturday and Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Ellington in Lawrenceburg.

CONSTANCE. Mr. Andrew Rodamer and wife are the happy parents of a little daughter. Will Kenyon, wife and son, and Mr. H. Kenyon visited Mrs. Mike Clore, Sunday. Elizabeth Zimmer and sisters, and Will Zimmer and family, visited at Mr. Berkshire's, Sunday. Quite a good attendance at the church of the Brethren in Strung town Sunday night to hear Mr. Garver preach. Mrs. Geo. Kottmeyer entertained quite a number of friends and relatives from Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, last Wednesday. The Barage was a complete success, with a large attendance of people from the surrounding country. The Sunday school superintendent and his co-workers made it pleasant for all. Mr. Kenyon, the superintendent, and his co-workers wish to thank the people for their patronage and courtous conduct and will be glad to have them come again. Mr. Denigland wishes especially to thank those people whom he asked for donations because when they sent them in they proved more than was promised. Amount realized, $65.

UNION. Miss Ray Cross spent Sunday with J. H. Hulett. Mr. Robert Conner has a bad case of tonsillitis. Miss Rosilee Hartfield, of Henderson, is visiting friends here. Services were well attended last Sunday at the Presbyterian church for Sale - A good yearling "bolt" apply to J. S. Head, Union, Ky. Miss Violetta Rouse has been the guest of Miss Alma Blankenbaker. Sarah Wilson is spending a few days with her aunt, Mrs. J. Waite Cross. Rev. and Mrs. Hill, of Richmond, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Rachal. Services will be conducted by Rev. Stackhouse at the Baptist church, Sunday. Mrs. Gertrude Carroll, of Missouri, has returned to her home after visiting relatives. The 2nd and 4th August there will be services at the Presbyterian church in the evening. T. J. Judge has been improving the looks of his residence by a coat of white wash on his rock wall fence. The married men of this burg and the single men played a game of bridge last Saturday, and the former was defeated. Misses Eugenia and Marietta Riley, Jessie Cleek and Harry Riley were the hosts of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Norman, Sunday. A bazaar and ice cream social will be given on the evening of August 8th by the Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian church. The bazaar and social will begin at 5 p. m. Mrs. Lucinda Weaver passed away July 22. She was the oldest resident of this community, and her death brought sorrow to the hearts of many. She was buried in the Big Bone cemetery by her husband, who died several years ago.

VERONA. C. W. Waller has for sale six nice buck Southdown last Sunday. William Glavin is remodeling John Chapman's residence, two miles south of Verona. A. E. Myers has just finished remodeling Allen Phillips residence in Gallatin county. The people here were delighted with a good rain last Sunday night, which was very much appreciated by every one. Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Conrad and son, Powers, of Dry Ridge, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Powers and family, last Sunday. The Masonic lodge held a meeting last Saturday night, which was well attended. The third degree was conferred on G. E. Powers. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Conrad and son, of Dry Ridge, were at the bedside of Mr. J. L. of Florence, Thursday by a runaway team. Mrs. Dolen Whitson, who died last Saturday, in Covington, was brought to Lebanon and interred Sunday. Mrs. Whitson was Robt. Gatewood's daughter, of Napoleon. Joseph Florence met with a very serious accident last Thursday evening while hauling hay. The team became scared and ran away throwing Mr. Florence off the load of hay and on examining him by Drs. Finnell and McCormick it was found he had sustained a fractured collar bone and fractured ankle. Mr. Florence is getting along nicely at this writing and it is hoped he will recover. On the 19th inst., Mrs. Butler Myers was delightfully surprised by a number of her friends and relatives in honor of her birthday. Mrs. Myers not realizing it was her birthday until the guests arrived with well filled baskets. She was the recipient of many useful presents. At noon a sumptuous dinner was spread to which all did ample justice. Those present were Prof. J. H. Craven and wife, of Latonia; Mr. L. B. McCrander, wife and four sons Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Stephenson and family, of Wm. William Nannette Hamilton, Mr. William McCrander and sister, Miss Ethel Vest and daughters, Misses Lizzie and Sarah, Messrs. Stanley, Elmer and Charles Finn, of Latonia. Of the number present six were teachers, Miss Nannie Hamilton being the honorary guest and who has long been a teacher in Northern Kentucky, led the discussion of some important subjects pertaining to education. Her presence being certainly appreciated as being teacher of all of Mrs. Myers' children. About five o'clock the guests wishing Mrs. Myers many more happy birthdays, departed for their homes.

Old Time Hogs. A. L. Bramble yesterday sold to John C. Oakes, a butcher, eight of the largest hogs ever seen in Cincinnati. The average weight of the porkers was 78 pounds and the largest one tipped the scales at 90 pounds. Cincinnati Commercial, July 29, 1914. No hogs are seen in these latter days.

HEBRON. Mrs. Jane Anderson has been very sick. Born, on the 22d, to Emmet Riddell and wife, a girl. Don't forget the lunch next Saturday night in the church yard. Geo. Gordon and family entertained several of their relatives, one day last week. Miss Alma Getker and brother, Albert, spent last week at Alexandria, Campbell county, guests of relatives. RICHWOOD. After a long and faithful service here as postmaster, L. D. Jackson has been succeeded by Leslie Barlow. A petition with 100 names sent to the government came to 0. Mr. Jackson retires with the best wishes of all patrons. Another negro was shot to death Saturday at the camp near the Jeff Carpenter pond. The negro was in the pond and as he came out another shot him in the back of the head, the bullet coming out between the eyes. They claim they sent for a coroner but could not get him called in three neighbors to view the remains and buried him along the right of way. This makes three burials along the railway. Bro. Cropper will have to give us a winged deputy or a body guard, for every pay day a negro comes on a spree and a fracas occurs. NORTH BEND. Mrs. Walter Ogden visited her mother, Mrs. Heiena Utzinger, recently. Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Harrison were shopping in the city, last Monday. Mike Reitmanna and son, Lester, spent Sunday with Jake Reitmanna and wife. Evered Barnes spent Saturday night and Sunday with Harry Kittle and family. Mrs. John Green and daughter, Miss Lillian, were shopping in the city, Monday. W. H. Keaton, of St. Petersburg, Fla., formerly of this place, was visiting relatives and friends in this vicinity last week. Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Cropper visited Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Grant, of Louisville, Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ogden returned to their home in Clevelo, Ohio, after spending several days with relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ogden entertained the following Sunday: Mrs. John Green and daughter, Irene, and Miss Lillian, and Lewis Harding and Lee Aylor, of Hebron. Sunday. Mrs. J. P. Tanner and daughter Lena have returned home from a visit with her sister at Worthsville. Miss Daisy Points, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., was the guest of John D. Mitchell and family, Saturday. Miss Lucy McClurg and Elmer Surface, Miss Mary Utz and Joe Surface, spent Sunday with Miss Maud Pulllove. The Hebron boys came over and played the Florence boys Saturday afternoon and were defeated by Florence. The score being 21 to 13 in favor of Florence. We hope that Hebron will not let this discourage them and come again soon. Perry Carpenter, who was fatally hurt last week, while unloading hay, is now in an operation at Bethesda Hospital. He was brought home by undertaker Allison, who was in charge of the funeral. After the service, conducted by Revs. Burlington and Nolan, at the house, the remains were interred in the Florence cemetery. Mr. Carpenter led a good many friends and relatives behind to mourn his death. The family have the sympathy of all in their bereavement.

LETTER OF APPRECIATION. We take this method of expressing to the people of Burlington and Boone Co., our appreciation of their kindness and good will both expressed and acted toward us during the time that we have been among you. It is with a most grateful and tenderly of the good friends that have been ours here. Not the least of our interest will be for the welfare of our school which we have had some hand in establishing. We shall think how charitable you have been with our faults, how patient with our failures, and we shall remember you words of encouragement, the en us in straightening out the tangles that have sometimes occurred in our work, the more active support you have given us making possible the achievement of many things that otherwise would have been impossible. We take leave of Boone Co. with no large ideas of what we have done, or what we have been with our faults, pushed a larger work. What has been done has been possible only through the school officers and the citizenship that you still have. We hope to see more progress here during the next five years than we have seen during the five years that we have been with you. To this end, we solicit and urge upon you that you give to our successors the same hearty good will and support that you have accorded us. No conditions, no undesirable conditions can come, we believe, to a people so whole hearted, so charitable, so well as Boone county. Very Sincerely Yours, MR. and MRS. E. L. DIX Below are given some financial statements of moneys handled by the Board of Education but we here print them for the information of all concerned.

TOURNAMENT FUND. A statement of the Tournament fund was printed just after the close of the Tournament. A few items paid since then made the amount now $92.52. I have taken the liberty to appoint Superintendent J. L. and M. Riddell, the entertainment committee for the Tournament, as a committee to take charge of the fund. I suggest that the other funds now held by the successors of the Triangle Club and by the Victoria Lacrosse Society be turned over to this committee for the purchase of a piano for the school. The three funds will amount to about $150, which is a good first payment on an instrument.

Card of Thanks. - We desire to extend our many thanks to our friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted in caring for our beloved kinsman, J. L. Huey, in his last sickness, and assure them that their services will be long remembered. We extend our sincerest regards to Mrs. Wm. McMillan and O. M. Huey for their kind words of sympathy and condolence also to Dr. Senour, O. O. Dixon and Scott Chambers for the excellent manner in which they performed their services. Again thank all who assisted. T. A. Huey and Family. John Muntz, 23, and Nellie Eggleston, 18, both of Burlington, were granted marriage license in Newport, Monday.

CHARCOAL FOR SWINE

One of Cheapest and Best Preventive of Diseases.

Missouri Writer Gives In Detail His Method of Using Timber Covered With Iron Covers to Secure Slow Burning of Heap.

Charcoal is one of the cheapest of disease preventives that can be fed to hogs. It is especially valuable in winter, whether the animals are in the fattening pens or in the woods lot. Charcoal can be bought, but this takes away its cheapness. It can be burned on the farm, and the burning takes but very little time or labor. Green or dry timber, corn cobs or heavy brush can be turned into charcoal.

The method I have used for a good many years is very simple. Along in the fall and winter, when I need more charcoal for the hogs, I dig a trench somewhere between 8 and 10 feet in length. I make it about three feet wide and about as deep as it is wide, says a Missouri writer in the Farm Progress. If possible, I burn the charcoal in the woods lot near the timber that I am using as this saves the time and trouble of hauling the wood.

Pile the trench full of wood, putting in enough dry timber to start it blazing well. Arrange the timber so you can start the fire near the center of the trench and at the bottom of the heap, so the fire will spread upwards and to either side through the logs.

Let it blaze pretty strongly, and allow enough headway to reach all parts of the heap. I want every stick in the pile to be ablaze before I proceed with the next step.

I use big sheets of iron to cover over the trench after it is thoroughly ablaze. Several years ago I picked up three or four old scraper bottoms, thick, heavy iron plates about forty-eight inches in width. I use these to cover the trench, laying them edge to edge, and overlapping the places where they overlap, with wet clay. This keeps all the heat in, and the process of slow burning can go on underneath them. A little gaseous smoke and some of the heat escapes, but most of it remains under the plates.

I let this iron-lidded pit stand for a day or two before removing the plates. I hardly ever fail to find about a wagon-bul full of fine charcoal when I open it.

The use of the sheet iron plates seems to smother the fire just enough to keep it from burning so freely as to destroy all the wood fiber, and yet gives it enough leeway to permit a slow combustion. Or, if the fire in the pit is opened too soon the blaze will leap up again, and all the work will be for nothing.

In turning corn cobs into charcoal I follow about the same method as when turning timber into coals. They are placed in the pit, started to blaze, and then checked by being sealed up under the sheet iron. They char in about the same time as timber.

As a mineral element in hog rations charcoal is hard to beat. It is especially valuable in stimulating the appetite, and in freeing the intestinal tracks of the animals from various disturbances.

CARING FOR YOUNG ALFALFA

Practice of Pasturing Field in Fall and Winter Is Harmful to Young and Old Plants.

By O. O. CHURCHILL, Oklahoma Agricultural College.

Many people, on account of shortage of pasture and to save feed, pasture their alfalfa during the fall and winter. This practice is harmful to all alfalfa, whether it is young or old. No doubt it reduces the yields the following season, although the reduction may be very slight if conditions are favorable.

With the young alfalfa the practice is very harmful. It reduces the vigor of the plant, reduces the yield very materially the following years, and frequently kills out some of the young plants at a time when they are not very well developed. Fall seeded alfalfa should never be pastured during the same fall and winter in which it is seeded. The little feed which the alfalfa will furnish during the winter is far more offset by the decrease in yield.

When young alfalfa receives a setback it may require two or three years for it fully to recover, and during all this time the yields are smaller than if otherwise would be. It pays to give young alfalfa the careful treatment and to give it every opportunity to make a good development.

TRAP-NESTING IS ADVOCATED

Only Certain Method of Separating Good Layers From the Poor Is to Keep Daily Records.

That the only sure way to know which hens in a flock are doing the work and which are not "earning their keep," is by using the trap-nest, is the belief of Prof. James Dryden of the poultry husbandry department of the Oregon agricultural college.

"High egg production is not a characteristic of any one breed of fowls," says Professor Dryden. "The trap-nest has demonstrated this. There is no particular shape or type that indicates good laying qualities, so far, at any rate, as our present knowledge goes. The only certain method of separating the good layers from the poor is to use the trap-nest and keep a daily record of eggs laid. It is not always the fault of the feed and care that they don't do better. It is the misfortune of the hen herself very often; she couldn't lay if she wanted to."

"It requires considerable time to keep a trap-nest record of a flock of hens. Not every farmer has the time, but if a few farmers in every county would trap-nest a flock of hens, in a few years all the farmers of the county would very likely have stock that were from heavy-laying, trap-nested fowls. Where it is possible for a farmer to devote a little time to it each day he will be well repaid for the labor."

The Oregon experiment station is trap-nesting a large flock each year and it is doing the best it can to furnish the farmers of that state with stock from good layers, with the object of increasing the egg yield in the state. It is desirable, of course, to keep a full year's record for each hen, but if that is not possible, a record for a part of the year would be valuable. For example, a record of the first six months of laying, beginning probably in November, would show which were the good winter producers.

PREPARE GEES FOR MARKET

Closer Fowls Are Confined, If Allowed Sufficient Room for Exercise, Better They Are.

A goose that is being fattened for market should never be permitted to swim in the water or to wander any distance. The closer they are confined, as long as they have a pen for sufficient exercise, the better table poultry they make. To keep them clean while being fattened, cover the floor of the building in which they stay at night with a thick covering of straw. Remove this in the morning with a pitchfork, either into the air or sunlight where it will dry. Thoroughly scrape the floor, and cover it with dry sand or earth; as night approaches throw down the bedding again, and in this way they can be kept perfectly clean, and under these conditions they will improve much faster.

When the time comes for selling them, the geese should be confined in a limited space, provided with a building for shelter only, plenty of water to drink, and be fed all they will eat of a dry mash made of one-half cornmeal, one-fourth bran and middlings, the balance of ground oats.

Pair of White China Geese.

This is best mixed with boiled milk, buttermilk, sour milk or skim milk, which, when thoroughly cooked, can be mixed in the meals to make the dry mash, and fed in boxes or troughs once or twice a day. In addition to this, a small amount of green food, the best of rye, clover or grass, may be provided with good results.

Remove Dead Carcasses. Never allow the carcasses of birds that have died to lie around and decay. Either bury them good and deep or, better still, burn them. If you have no furnace or stove in which you want to burn them, saturate them good with kerosene and set fire to them. If you leave them uncovered and allow them to decay, your whole flock is liable to be stricken.

Highway Improvement

GOOD ROADS NATIONAL ISSUE

Congressman Borland of Missouri Says it is One of Biggest Questions Facing People.

Of the addresses given at the recent Federal Aid convention in Washington, called by the National Good Roads board, none contained a more comprehensive summary of the situation than the remarks of Representative William P. Borland of Missouri, who, among other things, said:

"I believe that the good road question is the biggest question, without exception, now facing the American people. In congress, we are trying earnestly and sincerely to deal with this problem of the extent and character of federal control and federal aid to good roads. There are difficulties confronting us.

"Some of us believe in a continuous system of roads; roads that go somewhere; roads that give us the benefit of the scientific progress of engineering skill that has been developed in connection with road building. We believe that federal aid, if it comes at all—and it must come—must mean a better type of roads, long roads, roads of higher class, roads of a more permanent character, roads that go somewhere, roads that mean something in the development of the country.

"I want to say to you frankly, that the easiest proposition to get through any legislative body is not a proposition that really means betterment; but a proposition that distributes its little advantages as widely as possible. If we could take a little federal money, or a good deal of federal money, or as much federal money as we could lay our hands on, whatever the amount might be, and spread it out over every road district in the United States, and put it in the hands of the existing road overseers for the existing system of roads, and not ask anything in return, we could get the greatest applause and the most tremendous unanimity of opinion back of it that any legislative proposition could possibly get. There is no doubt about that.

"But here is the idea that must occur to every thinking man. We do not need to improve the 2,150,000 miles of highways in the United States. That need not stagger any man's imagination. Experience has shown at the very threshold of this subject, that 90 per cent of the traffic on roads goes over less than ten per cent of the roads. If we had a system of good roads leading fairly into every section of the country, within the reasonable reach of the majority of the citizens, and producers and tax-payers of the country, that system would be a vast advantage over the present system of isolated local cut of highways.

"If we can bring that about by a spirit of self-sacrifice and co-operation, not necessarily with any stubbornness or pride of opinion—but if we can get together on the idea that it is better to have some good roads than it is to have no good roads, then we will all get behind some proposition and accomplish something for good roads; and it is going to take that spirit of co-operation and self-sacrifice to bring about legislation."

PATROL SYSTEM IN VIRGINIA

Experiments Made by Public Roads Office of Department of Agriculture on Earth Roads.

The office of public roads of the department of agriculture has been making experiments on an eight-mile stretch of road in Virginia to demonstrate the results that may be obtained on country earth roads by continuous work under a patrol system. A patrolman was employed to furnish a horse, a cart and small tools, and he was supplied with a road drag built of plank and required to furnish two horses to drag the road whenever it was in suitable condition for dragging, usually following each rain.

The use of the road drag has greatly improved the daily condition of the road and rendered it smooth and comfortable for travel for a greatly increased number of days in bad weather. The department expects to continue the experiment this year, for it is already apparent that the entire eight miles of road will show remarkable improvement under the systematic work of the patrolman.

Top-Working Apple Trees.
Apple trees up to a foot in diameter may be top-worked, if unsatisfactory. Core, however, should be used that too much of the top is not removed in any one year. Cut out about one-third of the top the first year and insert scions on stubs not more than two or three inches in diameter. The next year remove more of the top, and insert other scions, and the following year complete the work.

Guard Early Development.
No matter what the subsequent use of the pig on the farm is to be, his early development should be carefully guarded.

Road Building

TEXAS BUILDING GOOD ROADS

Over Four Hundred Miles in Course of Construction—Many Counties Are Interested.

According to reports recently compiled for the consideration of the Texas Welfare commission, there are now in course of construction 437 miles of good roads within the state, with a prospect of double this amount during the next 12 months. On its face this looks like a large percentage of improved highways for Texas, but on an area basis it is a small showing, and to secure the per cent. of mileage of good roads that the banner state, Connecticut, has we will have to build 525,000 miles more.

Several of the largest undertakings of the south are now contemplated in the state, and one or two have taken tangible form, writes Ida M. Darden, in the Houston Post. The Red river-to-the-gulf highway, the much talked of and long hoped for trans-state road, when built, will have a total mileage of 530, and will serve more than fifty million acres of the state's most desirable agricultural land. Two-thirds of the counties along the route of this proposed highway are now building their links of the great thoroughfare. It has been estimated by the Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's association, who keeps close tab on road building throughout the state, that this highway will be completed by 1914, at the present rate of construction. It is held that the improvement of roads adds $10,000 per mile to contiguous property, and on this basis the building of the river-to-the-gulf highway will give a net increase in property values to property along this roadway of $400,000,000.

The counties through which this highway will pass are Garretts, Harris, Waller, Brazos, Robertson, Falls, Limestone, McLennan, Hill, Navarro, Johnson, Ellis, Tarrant, Dallas, Denton, Collin, Grayson and Cooke, the road to be double-tracked from Hearne north.

Another highway of state importance is the Dallas-Texas-Kansas highway, beginning at Dallas and passing through the counties of Collin, Grayson, Fannin, Lamar, Red River and Bowie, which will cost approximately $600,000. There are 2104 miles of public highways in these counties, and the building of the trunk line will probably result in the improvement of the entire mileage of the counties, as well as stimulate road building in counties adjoining the project.

GRADE HALF MILE FOR $7.50

Riley County, Kansas, Outfit Did the Work in One Day—Three Men Were Necessary.

One traction engine, one road grader, and three men graded a half mile of road in one day. This was accomplished on a Riley county road at a cost of $7.50, says Kansas Industries. The engine, running on kerosene, consumed fuel at the rate of 20 gallons a day which, at a cost of 7 1/2 cents a gallon, cost $1.50. Three men were necessary to do the work—one to run the engine, one to operate the grader. With the exception of the engineer, the work can be handled easily by laborers. The cost of road grading ranges from $15 to $50 a mile, depending on the soil and condition of the road, the width graded, and the price of labor.

Grass and Live Stock.

Grass and live stock should go hand in hand. There is no farm, in judgment, which, if properly handled and kept at least one-half of the time in grass and clover, and gradually brought under a proper system of rotation, would not produce more, in fact, double the crops which it now does, and yet constantly be growing better and better.

Chickens and Hogs.

If a woman can hate anything she hates a chicken-eating hog. The chickens don't know the difference between that kind and the other, so keep them apart, and keep peace in the family.

August Confederate Pensions.

The August Confederate pension distribution will run over $100,000. State Pension Commissioner Stone has 2,903 pensioners on the roll but 200 of these have died since their pensions were allowed.

At the present death rate says Stone, I believe we have reached the high water mark and the death rate will practically keep pace with the additions to the pension list from now on. The act of 1914 amending the pension law to permit confederate soldiers who took the oath of allegiance during the war under duress and in fear of death, to secure pensions has raised difficult questions and Commissioner Stone is requiring proof that the applicant took the oath under such circumstances.

To do otherwise would be unfair to those veterans who fought it out. He said: "They must bring up proof to support their claims. To allow a veteran who took the oath of allegiance during the war to come in there on his own mere affidavit that he verily believed he would be killed or die of starvation or disease when he took the oath, while those who fought throughout the war or served their time in prisons are compelled to get up proof, would give those who took the oath a great advantage."—Ex.

Don't Pasture Young Alfalfa.

When alfalfa first comes up it looks so green, and there is usually such a good stand, that it is a great temptation to pasture it a little especially if other pasture crops are short. If this is done however the result is sure to be harmful whether the alfalfa be new or old. Not only will the yield of the following cutting be reduced but many of the young roots will be broken and destroyed by the hoofs of the stock. The little feed that may be secured by such pasturing the first year is by far offset by the decrease in the yield during the following spring and summer.

An authority on growing alfalfa says that when young alfalfa once receives a set-back it may require two or three years for it to recover and that during all of this time yields are not so large as they would otherwise be. If the alfalfa had been allowed to grow at will and get a good, strong root started. It is the best to give young alfalfa careful treatment and let it have every opportunity to make a good development.

Bees in A Residence.

Bees which had made their home between the joists in the second floor of the Ezra G. Hayer residence on the Aurora road for fifteen years were disturbed for the first time Saturday. Two wasp tubs full of thirty-two gallons of honey was taken out, some of it probably being several years old.

After opening in the wall had served as an entrance for the bees, which had been allowed to pass in and out unmolested.

The bees were recently purchased by Martin J. Givan, and he found it necessary to remove the bees before moving into the house.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Every Part of "Thornhill" Wagons Must Pass Extreme Tests

Out at the saw mill the makers of this wagon select the pick of the oak and hickory. From three to five years they keep it under shelter—so piled that the air can circulate freely. When finally it is ready to go into a "Thornhill" Wagon, it is as dry as a bone—tough—well nigh unbreakable.

The straight grained hickory for spokes and axles is steel-like in its strength. The oak for hubs and felloes is as sturdy as tough oak grows. As it goes thru the mill, each part is inspected again and again. All defective parts are thrown out. Each part must have the O. K. of scores of men. The steel and iron must pass extreme tests—twice as severe as ordinary service will ever demand. Machines, sensitive to the thousandth part of an inch, gauge the work for accuracy—perform the work that can best be done by machinery. It is this excess of caution—this surplus of strength—in every part—that makes the "Thornhill" come pretty close to utter perfection. Before anyone buys a wagon, they should find out about the six big points of superiority built into the "Thornhill."

Let us show you this wagon.

Incentive To Cattle Growing.

Cheaper meat, though much to be desired, is not a right. A dispatch from Kansas City says the number of cattle so far marketed there this year is 150,000 short of the receipts during the same period last year. The receipts are the smallest for the same period in twenty years.

Kansas City is one of the greatest cattle markets of the country and the decrease in receipts is attributed to the drought last summer in the Southwest. The prevailing prices for cattle are the highest ever known for the month of July. The prediction is made that if August prices are as much higher than the July level as has been customary in recent years "next month will see prime beefs bringing $1 a hundred pounds in Kansas City."

This augurs poorly for any reduction in the prices of beefsteak. It indicates that the supply in the West, which has been diminishing for some years, is still on the down grade. It also emphasizes the fact that the raising industry as a profitable line of agricultural effort. Cattle may be grown anywhere in the United States, but in the South to greater profit than elsewhere, because of the mild climate and the consequent shortness of the feeding season.

The big ranches of the West formerly supplied the country with an abundance of cattle which taken in connection with the production in other parts of the United States. But the big ranches are disappearing. They are being cut up in small farms and the small farmers cannot raise cattle on the extended scale which was possible in the days of the "ranch kings" with their great herds scattered over thousands of acres of grazing lands. The shortage is the cattle supply is not confined to this country, but is world wide. The most sanguine of consumers can see no prospect of cheap beef. The opportunity for the expansion of the cattle-growing industry is here and it is all that any prospective cattle grower could wish. The farmers of the South especially should take advantage of it.—C. J.

A SHORT CROP CERTAIN.

Sufficient time does not remain this season to insure even an average crop in this country. The best crop of the year will be the small grain crop. There have been raised an enormous crop of wheat in the United States the price of wheat is going at 70 cents per bushel and much of it is going into foreign countries. The price of corn and the short crop in many sections of the country will cause many million bushels of wheat to be fed to stock, and will not be fools enough to sell 60 pounds of wheat for 70 cents and pay a dollar for 56 pounds of corn. Consequently farmers will fatten their hogs upon wheat and the price of flour will not go much lower. The drought in Kentucky will cut the corn and sorghum crop 50 per cent. The only consolation the farmer has is the fact that a short crop of tobacco will likely bring as much money as a full crop.

The hay crop while a short one is better in many localities than was expected and the many large straw ricks in the country will do much toward wintering the stock in the hands of the farmers. Much rye will be sown early this fall to provide winter and spring pasture. The droughts the past two years have caused many land owners to make up their minds to grow winter and spring pasture and cultivate less of it.—Owen County Democrat.

Try It Once.

Did you ever take a subscription abroad to secure aid for a public enterprise? If you have not do so just once. It's the place to study human nature, a man will meet you with a smile and back up to the first convenient place and down will go his name. The next one will ask all kind of questions and finally insinuate that you are getting a rake-off. The next one will meet you with a smile and convince you that he would help the enterprise if he was able and sends you away with a good taste in your mouth. The next one will want to know what so and so is going to do for the enterprise and gets out of putting his name down by telling you he will wait to see what they do. Then you will come to old ten per cent. He will look wise and tell you that he has no interest in the matter, he is getting too old to contribute to anything and when you leave him you will feel like the devil had not been diligent in claiming his own. But after all, the man as a whole are all right. It takes the many kinds to make the lump.—Enterprise.

PRICE OF MEAT RISING.

New York, July 15.—Retail prices of meats were raised 1 to 3 cents today in New York City. Dealers state that wholesale prices of beef—now higher than at any time before in 20 years—have increased 4 cents, and retail prices seven cents in three weeks. The New York cattle market, reaching 10.5 cents per pound of cattle on the hoof in Jersey City this week. In pork, according to dealers' statements today, a rise of 20 per cent has been recorded, while mutton alone temporarily has not increased in price. Admitting an advance of price of at least 2 cents per pound, the local manager of one of the big packing houses said that the present imports from Australia and South America alone kept the prices from further rise.

Moonlight Schools in Hadin.

Hadin county is in the midst of a great educational revival. A week's campaign, with speaking in every school house, has been waged, and Moonlight Schools are to be opened soon. Fifty teachers having volunteered to teach them following an eloquent address and appeal by Mr. Harry A. Sommers. The Hadin County Board of Education has the distinction of being the first in the State to offer a prize to the teacher who teaches the largest number of illiterates. The Woman's Club of Elizabethtown offers the same amount for the same purpose, and is the first Woman's Club in the State to offer such a prize. Supt. Payne, of Hadin county, the Hadin County Board of Education, Hadin County Public School Teachers, the Woman's Club of Elizabethtown, and Col. Harry A. Sommers and The Elizabethtown News are all banded together to wipe illiteracy out of Hadin. It has not a chance to exist in that county.

PRIZE OFFER TO TEACHERS.

To the Kentucky teacher who writes the article or story on "My Moonlight School," the Kentucky Society of College Dames will give the sum of $15.00. The story must be in every detail. It must be written by the teacher who taught such school. It must give date of opening, length of term, enrollment, age of youngest and oldest pupil and results. It must be sent to the Kentucky Literacy Commission, Frankfort, on or before Nov. 1st, 1914.

The Judges will be: Dr. J. G. Crabbe, President H. H. Cherry, Hon. Barksdale Hammett, Supt. Elia Lewis, Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart.

LINCOLN COUNTY FIGHTING ILLITERACY.

Lincoln county, which wrote a brilliant page in Kentucky's history through its representative in the last General Assembly, Hon. Shelton M. Caudley, has been honored by the bill creating the Kentucky Literacy Commission, has written another. Supt. Garland Singleton and forty-six of his teachers have volunteered to teach moonlight schools to wipe out illiteracy. The Standard Interior Journal and the people of Lincoln county are backing these volunteers enthusiastically.

EVERY SCHOOL IN MONTGOMERY A MOONLIGHT SCHOOL.

Montgomery is the first county to have every teacher, both white and colored, to pledge themselves to conduct Moonlight Schools. All so, Supt. Georgia Siedd, former Supt. M. G. Goodwin and Supervisor O'Rear have enlisted. The Moonlight Schools of Montgomery county will begin in September, and the teachers will canvass their districts on Labor Day to secure large attendance.

Genl. Bennett H. Young.

Gen. Bennett H. Young, speaking at Madisonville in behalf of his candidacy for the short term, said that he has been persistently and continuously charged and never denied that Hon. Johnson N. Camden, now candidate for the United States Senator for the short term, refused to vote for William Jennings Bryan in 1896, 1900 and 1908, when Mr. Bryan was the Democratic standard bearer for the Presidency. Twenty days ago I publicly stated this and advised Mr. Camden that if he would deny the charge I would take the fullest interest in every speech I made to right him in this regard. Nothing has come from him on the subject.

"If Mr. Camden could not afford to vote for Mr. Bryan when three times nominated by his party for the Presidency, can he afford now to vote for Mr. Camden for the United States Senate?" "It may be true that Mr. Camden in 1911 and 1912 paid $15,000 to the Democratic cause of $15,000, but can he, when refusing to support the party leader, win the votes of Democrats by contributing to the campaign expenses, even though these be large enough to stagger belief?" "As to what party Mr. Camden belonged to in 1911 there is no record. He made no speeches, he helped in no canvasses. As far as the public knows he did nothing for the Democratic party in 1911. Will two barbecues, where crowds can be fed at twenty-five cents a piece, and big campaign money make a Democrat suitable for U. S. Senator?"

Medicine In Food.

The garden is a great medicine chest. Be your own doctor and look to your own slight ailments. If you are wakeful eat lettuce. For affections of the skin and for yellow skin eat onions. Onions are also good for colds, coughs, scrofula. For a torpid liver eat freely of asparagus. If the bowels are diseased try blackberries. For indigestion and general breakdown eat cranberries. If nervous and irritable eat plenty of celery. For constipation eat fruits, ripe and healthy fruits. Fruits are good; so are figs and dates. Raisins are beneficial. When the body is in good condition keep it in good condition by denying the appetite what has once injured the body. One can do everything for himself. He can right himself and not too much of it, and by leaving alone the wrong thing and all of it. He can do more for himself by denying himself when he is flat on his back in bed.

Time for Fertilizing.

Frankfort, July 18.—Having employed the $5,000 appropriation for farm demonstrations the last two years in showing farmers how to build concrete silos, increasing the number from 300 to 2,053 in the State, Commissioner of Agriculture J. W. Newman is now turning his attention to the question of providing cheap lime for fertilizing the farms. He announced today that he has closed a deal with the manufacturers of stone grinders for two machines, which the manufacturers will take back at the original cost price, being satisfied with the advantage accruing from the demonstration of the machine. The machines with an expert in charge, will be furnished free to the farmers, who must provide the investment and engine and employ such labor as is necessary.

The limestone can be ground at a cost of 50 cents the ton this way. Commissioner Newman said, and set up on the farmer's place will grind out fifteen to twenty tons the day. It requires four tons to be ground to treat properly the soil. The need for lime on the farms of Kentucky, he declared, is critical. In many places the soil grows red clover, alfalfa, soy beans or cow peas, all of which produce nitrogen in the soil, an element necessary for other crops. Nitrogen is the most expensive chemical element the farmer has to introduce in his soil, and a crop of red clover, Mr. Newman said, will produce 25 worth of nitrogen to the acre.

Outlook For Rabbits Good.

Hunters say that the outlook for rabbits this year was never so encouraging. Squirrels also, have been found to be plentiful in the woods. Last year was a great squirrel year, and the sudden appearance of so many of these little animals last year was a surprise to the hunters, as for several years squirrels, like other game in Kentucky, have been diminishing. One year's elapsed season on squirrels, and every woodland in the State would be full of them. Dove shooting will be about as usual with the outlook for better sport this year than last. Doves should be protected for at least two years.—Blue Grass Clipper.

The blackberry crop did not last long this year.

William Kirkpatrick shipped a large number of nice lambs last week.

The rain Sunday evening was accompanied by a severe electrical storm.

Elbert Clore will be at Lawrenceburg fair next week with five head of horses.

A very fine rain fell here last Sunday about 7 p. m., and everything is growing nicely.

All the candidates district and State offices can take a rest after next Saturday, some of them indefinitely.

Plowing for wheat began in several districts in Indiana before the present crop was all threshed, a thing unknown before.

Next Monday is regular county court day and the Monday following the August term of the Boone circuit court will begin.

Not so many birds about town the last two or three weeks, they having turned their attention to the grain fields in the country.

Not much rain fell in some of the neighborhoods in the county last Sunday evening, while in others there was a great rain.

Hay harvest was concluded the past week. Considerable indifferent grass was cut, but the scarcity of food last winter is hoped to be avoided the coming winter.

A reorganization of the rural road system of Kentucky, embracing the installation of automobiles, is being considered by Postmaster General Burleson.

At the last meeting held by the property owners along the proposed pike north of Hebron, they looked very much like they will get together and construct the road.

Instead of picking up pieces of broken glass, wet a woolen cloth, lay on the floor over the fragments and pat lightly. The tiny particles will stick to the cloth, which may be burned.

The ballots for the primary election were received by Clerk Rogers, last week, and straightway did he begin arranging for their delivery at the several voting precincts in the county.

The oat crop is not given very great consideration in Kentucky, and is thought to be very uncertain, and yet the Elizabethtown News notes a crop in Hardin county this year, producing over 80 bushels per acre.

At the Erlanger fair you will see the acropalypse, that is, a picture of the future. The Erlanger people are hustling to make their fair a success this year from hereafter.

As Garnett Tolin and his auto party were coming from Petersburg last Sunday evening, they found a large tree across the road coming up the Walton hill, and had to walk half a mile to secure an ax to remove the obstruction.

Last Saturday for the first time since the toll-gate and of several weeks ago, the pole at the first toll gate on the Bellevue pike was lowered for the collection of toll, but in a few hours the rope was cut by some unknown party, since which time no toll has been collected at that gate.

The annual picnic benefit of St. Paul's church, Florence, at the old church grounds, will be given Saturday, August 30, 1914, from 3 p. m. to 11 p. m. Splendid music by Hillard's orchestra of Covington. Come and enjoy a pleasant afternoon and evening. Free will contribution. Refreshments and supper served at all hours. Tickets 25 cents.

Revised estimates on the 1914 apple crop of the U. S. based on a careful investigation in the principal producing sections gives a total, barring serious setback between now and the harvest of between fifty million and sixty million barrels, compared with twenty million barrels last year and thirty-five million barrels in 1912.

Judge C. C. Roberts was called upon to decide one evening last week as to whether the new moon was wet or dry, and without hesitating he declared it a "dry moon" and in a few hours thereafter a nice rain was falling. Verily the Judge is like most all other weather prophets, but he says "good rains fall some times during a dry moon."

AN AUTOMOBILE SPIN

Resulted Very Disastrously To The Machine.

Miraculous Escape Of Three Boys.

Another automobile accident furnished considerable excitement for about 1000 people last Thursday about 10 a. m. Geo. Porter, aged 16, raised by the writer and wife was told to take Jailer Samuel Adams on a trip on a short business trip in a Ford runabout, which he, Porter had been handling in a very satisfactory manner for the last two years. When Porter left town, instead of taking Mr. Adams alone, he invited Walter Brown, about 14, and Elbert Slay back, about 11, to a seat on the tool box on the rear of the machine to accompany him and Mr. Adams. The trip for and with Mr. Adams was made without incident, but when he got out of the machine at home, Porter concluded to take a spin and took the two boys into the machine with him. He went out the Buellville road some distance and on his return in attempting to make of the order members of Conner's tobacco barn at the north side of town, and evidently going at a very high rate of speed, the machine turned turtle and was almost reduced to a pulp, the three occupants escaping with a few slight bruises and scratches. It was a miraculous escape for the boys. Porter had never been allowed to go out with the machine except when accompanied by the family, and some grown person, and Thursday's escapade was the result of his taking advantage of the absence of the older members of the family who had gone to the city.

It is possible that one of the boys, unconsciously, had his foot on the accelerator, making it impossible to cut off the gasoline with the hand throttle, hence the high rate of speed when the sharp curve in the road was struck. There have been three up to automobile accidents at Burlington since the advent of the auto, and no one has been seriously hurt. The first was at the western edge of the town, the result of a too generous indulgence in booze; the second was at the eastern side of the town, the result of a heroic effort to avoid the rear end of a car; and the third, the result of a transgression of authority.

Burlington 5; Bellevue 4.

The Burlington and Bellevue ball teams played a nip and tuck game here last Saturday afternoon. In the first inning Bellevue got three hits and put over two runs, but for the next high scoring inning, the slugging slugger scattered hits, only one of which figured in getting a run and that was in the ninth inning.

Very much the 3d inning did Burlington succeed in putting a run over. In that inning, Huey, first up, made a hit, but was caught out. Kelly, second up, hit safe and stole second and scored on Clore's hit. Rogers tightened up and nothing more was doing until he hit. Tolin, third up, connected safely and got to second on an error, and Hager put him over after two men were down. It was a tough fight, but Burlington made its killing. Tolin, the first up connected and got second on an error. Slayback delivered a home run, and Hager scored. Tolin, Smith fanned, Hager's hit scored. Slayback, White fanned, but Huey sent Hager home on a drive to center field, Kelly went out on fly.

Burlington hit often but Rogers kept the hits well scattered except when four hits were bunched on Kelly in the eighth, netting three runs.

Both pitchers had complete control, and they then giving a base on balls not hitting a man. Bellevue..... 2 0 0 0 0 1 0 1-4 Burlington..... 0 0 1 0 1 0 3 x-6 Hits-Burlington: Kelly 3, Clore, Connor, Tolin 2, Slayback 2, Smith 2, Hager 2, Huey 2, 14; Bellevue: W. Clore, Brady 2, Deek, Ryle, Rogers 6.

Struck out: By Rogers 9; by Huey 7. Errors-Bellevue 2; Burlington 4. The Burlington team will play at Petersburg next Saturday afternoon.

At Petersburg-Lawrenceburg 5; Bellevue 3.

At Florence-Florence 21; Hebron 13.

Burlington and Hebron will play ball at Burlington next Monday, county court day. This will be a good game. Come out.

The other day during a conversation with Hon. A. A. Alphin regarding the tobacco crop, it was stated by Mr. Alphin, in reference to the late setting out of some crops of tobacco, that a crop of tobacco which was set out on election day in August, made a fair crop of tobacco and sold at a fair price. The fact was thoroughly impressed upon Mr. Alphin's mind, as he recalled that the man who had set out the crop, came to town and voted in the election that evening after he had finished setting the tobacco. This is the latest time for setting out tobacco to our notice, and indicates the chances that the average tobacco crop may be made with nature and set out through all right. Warsaw Independent.

John M. Crisler, of Union neighborhood, was in Burlington Monday. He says he is seventy-two years old, and this year for the first time he broke his corn ground, put in his corn and laid it without a rain during all that time, it having been three months since he had a good rain.

Educational Information.

To the Patrons of Boone County Schools.
On Saturday August 1, the people of Divisions 1 and 4 will meet to select sub-district trustees for the ensuing term. Every year we have complaints of patrons opposing teachers who are selected by our trustees. Kinship and prejudice plays its part in Boone county. It spends enough money to have better teachers in many places. Let the men and women go to the polls and put in this important office their best and most progressive men or women.
EDGAR C. RILEY, Superintendent.

WILL ASSIST THE FARMERS.

The Secretary of the Treasury has assured Senator Camden that Kentucky will be well taken care of in the distribution of Federal loans for the movement of crops. The secretary said: "It is my purpose and desire to deal with the farmers not only to move the crops but to help every kind of legitimate business in every section of the country where I am convinced that assistance is necessary and desirable."

A Flying Exhibition.

According to Secretary E. G. Bieby of the Lawrenceburg Fair association visitors to the fair this year will have the opportunity of seeing a genuine aeroplane in full flight. Mr. Bieby has just closed a contract with W. Friday Melinn of Cincinnati for flying exhibitions to be given on the afternoons of Thursday, Friday and Saturday of fair week. The explicit condition of the contract is, "No flight, no pay."

The following extract is copied from the new primary election law regarding "Qualifications of Electors":

"Before a person shall be qualified to vote in the primary election herein provided for, he shall possess all the qualifications now prescribed by the constitution and now required of voters in regular elections and in addition he shall be a member of the party for whose nominees he intends to cast his vote, and shall have affiliated with said party supported its nominees, and no person shall be deemed to have affiliated with the party and whose primary he seeks to cast his vote, or nominees of such party at the last general election."

The Ivory Wood Trading Boat will be at Blue Kirtley's landing from August 4th to 10th, and at Hamilton from August 10th to 15th, with a large stock of goods on board. We take rags, iron, rubber, and metals in exchange for goods. We would be glad to have you call and see our stock.

FINE RAIN

Accompanied By Loud Thunder and Vivid Flashes of Lightning.

A heavy rain and electrical storm prevailed here last Monday for an hour beginning about three o'clock. Considerable hail fell enough to cut the tobacco stems. Lightning struck the residence of James E. Smith north of town and stunned the four, and killed one of the family considerably. Several shingles on the roof were splintered badly, but the main current descended to the ground by the way of a metal down spout. The damage to the building was trifling. A valuable work mule belonging to Leslie McMullen, who lives a mile south of Burlington was killed in the open pasture by lightning.

Struck Camp.

On Wm. Hedges' farm, at what they call Lonehorse Hole, is a beautiful camping ground, plenty of shade and a spring of the very best of water. There have been there in the last two weeks a lot of campers. They come every year and certainly enjoy it. Most of them come from Erlanger. They buy their produce from Wm. Hedges, and certainly have good appetites, especially Thomas, who is jolly and pleasant. He stayed the entire two weeks.

Remember when you go to the polls next Saturday to cast your vote there will be two sets of candidates on the ballot for U. S. Senator. One for the long term—Gov. Jas. B. McCreary, A. O. Stanley and J. C. W. Beckham. The other for the short term are Bennett H. Young, J. N. Camden and D. H. Smith.

John Barnes, who resides about three miles from town on the Petersburg pike, was a caller at this office Tuesday, and had had his subscription moved up to 1915. He said he had three acres of fine tobacco.

Rev. J. B. Fasher of Hopkinsville, Ky., begins a series of sermons at the Universalist church this Thursday evening to continue over Sunday.

The catalogues of the Florence fair are ready for distribution. Write Hubert Conner, Secretary, Burlington, Ky., and he will mail you one.

For Sale—Full blooded Jersey and young calves, price reasonable. Apply to R. S. Hensley, Burlington R. D. 2.

NEVER OUT OF SEASON

DESSERT OF CARAMELS ALWAYS IN ORDER.

Standby of the Hostess in This Delicious Confection—Many Methods of Serving It Have Been Put on Record.

Caramel is one of the delicious dessert flavors that are easy to prepare regardless of the season. For the reason caramel desserts are standbys in winter and summer alike. A caramel cake can be as easily made when the markets are empty as when they are full. Here is a recipe for caramel cake: Mix two cups of butter until they are creamy. Sift three cups of flour with three tablespoons of baking powder and add this, alternately with a cup of vanilla, and add the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs. Bake the batter in layers and fill with caramel filling, made in this way: Mix two cups of brown sugar with a cup of cream and add a teaspoonful of butter. Cook for three-quarters of an hour. When it is partly cool add two teaspoons of vanilla.

This is another caramel filling: Boil three cups of brown sugar, half a cup of condensed milk, a quarter of a cup of water and a tablespoonful of butter for five minutes. Then take from the fire, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and beat until it thickens. Add three-quarters of a cup of chopped pecan nut meats.

Cream caramel sauce is made by browning two rounded tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar and adding a cup of cream to it, then stirring and cooking slowly until it is creamy. Caramel Bavarian cream is made in this way: Put two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar in a saucepan and brown it over a hot fire. Add a pint of cream to it, and grate and add the rind of a big lemon. Heat the cream until it has dissolved the caramel. Beat the yolks of six eggs and six tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar together and when it is creamy add it to the hot cream. Cook it over hot water until it is smooth and thick. Add four tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin which has been dissolved and let the mixture cool. When it is cool and is just beginning to set whip in a pint of stiffly whipped cream. Pour the mixture into a mold, chill and serve.

This is the way to make caramel custard: Cook four tablespoonfuls of sugar until it is a light brown. Pour it into a baking dish. Beat three eggs with three tablespoonfuls of sugar. Add a cup of milk and a half of cream or rich milk and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour it into the baking dish on top of the caramel. Bake in a pan of water until it is set. Instead of cooking this custard in a big dish, a little of the caramel can be put in each of half a dozen custard cups, and the custard mixture poured over it. Then they can be baked, and when they are done turned out on individual dishes. Serve cold.

Here is a recipe for caramel mousse: Melt half a cup of sugar until it is dark brown and add a cup of boiling water. Cook it slowly for 12 minutes and then add to it a level tablespoonful of granulated gelatin which has been soaking till it is soft. Cool the mixture and add a pint of thick cream, whip it stiff, and pack in a mold in ice and salt for three hours.

Banquet Pudding. Cream four tablespoonfuls butter and one cup sugar and add one well beaten egg. Sift one and one-half cups flour with one-half teaspoon salt and one teaspoon baking powder. Add one-half cup of flour, to the first mixture, and heat thoroughly, then add the rest of the flour and one-half cup of milk, alternately. Finally heat one-quarter square chocolate into the batter and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven.

Sauce. Beat two eggs until very light, then add one cup of confectioner's sugar and one cup of thick cream. Beat until the whole is the consistency of whipped cream.

Candied Sweet Potatoes. Method—Pare some oversized sweet potatoes and cut lengthwise into one-half-inch slices. Drop into hot water and boil ten minutes. Drain, place a layer in a flat buttered baking pan, season lightly with salt, pepper and a sprinkling of sugar, dot with butter and bake until tender and a golden color. While several layers can be baked in a pan, for the sake of keeping the slices whole, one layer in a large pan is best.

Aunt Sally's Pudding. Crumby or all kinds of stale cake quite fine. Stir the white of an egg with just enough cold water to moisten the crumbs, not allowing them to get too soft. Press this mixture into a well buttered mold, with a fitted cover; boil for one hour; turn out while hot and eat with hard or vanilla sauce.

Fried Celery. Wash, scrape and cut celery into three-inch pieces, dip in batter and fry in deep hot fat. Serve with tomato sauce. For the batter mix one-half cup of bread flour, one-fourth teaspoon of salt, few grains of pepper, one-half cup milk and one egg well beaten.

When Boiling Potatoes. Add a little milk to the water in which potatoes are boiled. It will prevent their turning dark and improve their flavor.

DISHES FOR SUNDAY SUPPER

Something New That the Family and the Guests Will Be Sure to Appreciate.

For a change on Sunday night try this salad: Marinate with your favorite thin salad dressing three-quarters of a pint of any cold meat or fish (never mix meat and fish) two tablespoonfuls of capers, one egg boiled hard and chopped, one tablespoonful each of olives, dill pickles and pimientos, two dashes of paprika, celery salt to taste; stir well. Serve cold in two hours on lettuce leaves garnished around the edges with slices of hard boiled egg, sprigs of parsley and thin slices of Swiss cheese.

Another superb dish is made of one pint of macaroni measured after cooking, well drained, and a package, one-half pint of stewed tomatoes, to which are added two bouillon cubes, one gill of grated rich cheese, two tablespoonfuls of chipped bacon and one of bacon fat, one tablespoonful of minced onion, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one salt spoonful of chopped dill, one salt spoonful of pepper, two tbs. Rub a baking dish with bacon fat. Mix all ingredients thoroughly, put them into the baking dish, brown in a hot oven. Both dishes are satisfactory served with graham toast.

PROPER WASHING OF TOWELS

Those Used in the Kitchen Require Especial Treatment to Be of Good Service.

Towels used in the kitchen should always be rinsed in moderately cool water and then washed in hot, soapy water. They should be rinsed and then dried in the open air. If time is at premium they need not be ironed. Probably this laxity would shock many careful housewives, but a clean towel, dried in the open air, is quite as useful for drying dishes as one that is ironed smooth.

One clever woman always saves the coarse sacks that sugar and salt come in—the big ones. She rips the side seams and hems the ends and uses them for towels for pots and pans.

A doll's clothesline, which comes with half a dozen tiny clothespins and two small pulleys, is a convenience for drying kitchen towels. It can be fastened from the kitchen porch to a nearby tree, and extra clothespins can be bought for a small price. The pulleys, rope and six pins are sold for ten cents.

Stewed Apples. In cooking apples it may not be known generally that the more quickly they are cooked after paring the richer and better they are. An apple begins to be discolored as soon as the skin is removed, and this discoloration continues in the cooking. As quickly after paring as possible, put half a dozen apples, sliced, into a pan with two-thirds as much water as the bulk of the apples. Cover them and let them cook as rapidly as possible. Watch them closely to prevent burning, and just as they are falling to pieces put into them two-thirds of a cup of sugar, stirring it quickly. They are delicious also served cold.

Creamed Cod in Potato Case. Boil and mash six good sized potatoes, add one egg, a gill of milk, salt and pepper to taste and beat until light. Pick and skin one pound of boneless salt cod, drain and scald again. Now press fish until dry. Put one large tablespoon butter in a frying pan and add two tablespoonfuls flour. Mix and add one pint of milk. Stir till it thickens and add pepper to taste. Grease a pudding mold and line bottom and sides with the potato. Add the cod to the cream and fill the center. Cover the top with potato and bake a nice brown. It may be served in the dish it was baked in or turned out.

Baking Powder Biscuits. Into a large bowl put two cups sifted flour, one level teaspoon salt, four level teaspoons baking powder. Mix and sift several times, rub in two level tablespoonfuls butter or one of butter and one of lard, till fine and mealy. Wet with one cup of milk and stir well. Roll out on a floured board and pat out with rolling pin, using flour enough on board to prevent sticking. Bake in hot oven from 10 to 15 minutes.

English Tea Biscuits. To one cup hot mashed potato add half cup milk and two yeast cakes, dissolved in half cup lukewarm water. Cover and let rise; then add half a cup each of butter and sugar, two eggs well beaten, one teaspoon salt and three and one-quarter cups of flour. Knead, again let rise, shape, let rise again. Heat oven, brown and bake in modern oven. And, if liked, half cup of raisins, cut in pieces or currants.

Simple Jelly Bag Strainer. Another old method of straining jelly by hanging the bag on a broom handle between two chairs might be banished from the efficient kitchen by using a new strainer with a bag which sits on a stand on the table. A large iron ring suspends the bag, which drips into a bowl on the table. All juices can thus be strained without attention, and the muslin bag may be easily cleaned, and the strainer packed away when not in use.

Keeping Pickles in Glass. Pickles should always be kept in glass—never in glazed ware, as the action of the acid in the pickling is liable to form a poisonous compound

TAKE PLACE OF MEAT

NOURISHING AND CHEAP MEALS MADE OF NUTS.

Turkey Roast One of the Most Approved Methods of Serving Them—Meat Loaf Also is an Excellent Recipe.

Nut Turkey Roast.—Thoroughly wash one cupful of German lentils and soak over night. The next morning boil slowly until tender, then run through a colander. Add one-half cupful of chopped walnut meats, one well-beaten egg, a quarter cupful of minced onion and one cupful of minced celery that have been browned together in a little olive oil. Add salt and sage to season and thicken with bread crumbs. Dip thin slices of bread in a mixture of one egg and a cupful of milk beaten together. Now in a well buttered casserole or baking pan make alternate layers of the two mixtures. Surround with any dressing preferred and bake from forty to sixty minutes in a moderate oven.

Nut Meat Loaf.—One-half cupful of chopped or ground pecans, one-half cup of walnut meats, one cupful of dry bread or cracker crumbs, two eggs and one tablespoonful of melted butter. Wet the crumbs with milk, and as the crumbs soak add more milk if necessary. It should be a little too thick to run. Butter well a small bread pan. Turn in the mixture after stirring well and cover with dots of butter. Bake in the oven a half hour. Cut in slices and serve hot. The next day slices can be covered in thickened and strained juice from a can of tomatoes and fried. Served with creamed potatoes makes a good combination. All walnut meats make a roast a trifle dry, but can be used if pecans are too expensive.

Nut and Vegetable Roast.—Take cooked beans or peas, press through a colander to remove the skins and mix with an equal quantity of finely chopped nut meats. Season to taste and put one-half the mixture in a buttered baking dish. Spread over it a dressing made in this wise: Take four slices of zwieback and pour boiling water over it to cover. Let stand ten or twelve minutes, break up with a fork and pour over it one-half cupful of sweet cream. Season with salt, a bit of pepper and, if liked, a touch of sage. Cover the dressing with the remainder of the nut mixture, pour over all one-half cupful of cream and bake slowly an hour and a half in a moderate oven. Serve in slices with cranberry sauce.—The Delineator.

Pumpkin or Squash Pie. In making pumpkin pies I make the shell first, trimming the edges and making sure the air is out from under the crust. In the meantime I have my squash or pumpkin cooking on the stove, pared and diced; when I can pierce it with a straw I take it off the stove and drain it through a colander; when perfectly dry I rub it through colander with my hand. This is my rule for pumpkin pies. I add an egg for squash and leave out ginger, one and one-half cups pumpkin, one and one-fourth cups milk, cooking spoon flour, little nutmeg, salt and ginger, one-eighth teaspoon of cinnamon. I heat this all together and let it stand perhaps twenty minutes, when I beat it again and pour into shell. Bake in slow oven, sometimes half a day. My pies are dandies. Try it and see how you get along. If your pies boil they are spoiled. A squash or pumpkin pie should bake at least two hours to be really good.

Baked Apple Dumplings. Pare and core six nice round apples. Put a piece of butter and a teaspoonful of sugar into each. Then make a covering as follows: Take four cups of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, and four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and stir thoroughly. Add a piece of lard as large as a duck egg. Moisten with milk, a pint, more or less, according as the handling of the dough permits. Work it quickly and lightly. Form the dough into cup shapes and in them place the apple, drawing the edges together in the middle. Pierce all over with a fork and bake in a quick oven about 20 minutes. Serve hot with cream and sugar.

Tongue and Egg Salad. Cut cold tongue in thin slices, then cut again into pieces about one inch square; arrange a layer of tongue on fresh lettuce leaves, and on the tongue place a layer of hard-boiled eggs sliced thin; then another layer of tongue, and cover all with a good mayonnaise. Decorate the dish with slices of cold hearts and parsley.

Meat on Toast. Take cooked meat of any kind. Put through the meat grinder with a little onion. Then put in pan with a little water and piece of butter, salt and pepper. Heat hot and put on toasted bread. This is a good way to use up pieces of meat and makes a nice dish for supper.

Poor Man's Boiled Dinner. Two pigs' knuckles, one head of cabbage, one large turnip, one carrot, four large potatoes; boil knuckles two hours, then add cabbage, turnip, carrot; boil half an hour, then add potatoes; boil half hour. Delicious.

Apples for Pies. Apples cut in irregular pieces will cook more quickly in a pie than if sliced, for they do not pack closely as slices do and so the hot air comes more easily in contact with the fruit and cooking is facilitated.

BECKHAM OF KENTUCKY

Personal Characteristics and Remarkable Career of the Most Popular Man in Kentucky—The Candidate Most Likely To Succeed the Late Senator Bradley As the Choice of the Democrats At the Primaries To Be Held August 1st

(By C. P. Connolly, Staff writer Harper's Weekly.)

J. C. W. Beckham, of Kentucky, the man of the hour in this crucial year in Kentucky politics.

This remarkable sketch concerning J. C. W. Beckham is reprinted from Harper's Weekly, the national weekly publication that is supporting President Woodrow Wilson and his policies in the present administration at Washington.

THE candidate most likely to succeed the late Senator Bradley as the choice of the Democrats at the primaries to be held August 1st, is J. C. W. Beckham. Beckham was the choice of the Democratic party six years ago, when a Democratic legislature elected the late William O'Connell Bradley, a Republican. There was a majority of eight Democrats in the legislature, but the Whiskey Ring controlled enough of these to defeat Beckham, and Bradley was elected.

Kentucky is replete with romance and tragedy, political and other. If there is anything native about literature, it may account for the professional success of James Lane Allen and of John Fox, Jr., who have both largely drawn on Kentucky for their material.

In business adventure there was James B. Haggin, the mining magnate, who, peeved because of his failure on election to some petty office when a young man, emigrated to California, became fabulously rich, and returning in his old age to his old home at Lexington, established a great stock farm which is one of the show places of Kentucky. At Frankfort, thirty miles from Lexington, Henry Clay appeared as the attorney for Aaron Burr in his first trial for treason, much to Clay's subsequent chagrin. Here, too, at Lebanon, lived Proctor Knott, one-time governor of Kentucky, who delivered in Congress his famous parody on Duluth. Mountaineers and valley men have their feuds and wars, but at bottom there was usually some elemental instinct of justice. At Frankfort, the capital, in 1900, William Goebel was shot from ambush as he was about to be declared the duly elected governor of the state. Out of this last drama issued the career of J. C. W. Beckham, a mere stripling at the time, just past the age of eligibility for the governorship.

The assassination of Goebel was the climax of a great political contest. Not in modern American history anywhere was there a more heroic or tragic struggle. That it left its sting is evidenced by the fact that it is difficult to wear a Kentuckian from his disrelish of the subject.

Every one will remember how Goebel fought so valiantly against the politically entrenched Louisville & Nashville Railroad—of how he was sworn in as governor on his death bed, and died with words of pardon for his enemies on his lips.

Goebel, who was the pioneer progressive of the South—he was the pioneer of railroad rate regulation in the country—was the most maligned and misunderstood character in American history. He fought his way bitterly through prejudices strong enough to deter most men, and waged war against the old aristocracy of Kentucky and the Louisville & Nashville railroad ring at the same time.

It was left to Beckham, as the successor of Goebel, to smooth out the wrinkled front of this issue. He followed the even tenor of his way, neither compromising nor bullying, but doing all things with an even-tempered justice which won the people of Kentucky, and reconciled the enemies of Goebel.

Beckham comes of gentle stock. His mother has occupied the Executive Mansion at Frankfort both as daughter and mother of a governor. An uncle, ex-Senator Yulee, of Florida, entered Beckham in the Central University at Richmond, Ky.; but Senator Yulee shortly afterwards dying, young Beckham, then seventeen, was compelled to leave college to look after the farm of his widowed mother. Meanwhile he taught school.

Beckham did not falter in the policies for which Goebel was assassinated. He got through the law advocated by Goebel, allowing the State Railroad Commission to regulate rates. Under his administration Kentucky's new capital was built. He showed courage in this. Others had recommended a new capitol, but no governor cared to put the power of his administration behind it, because Louisville, on the one side, and Lexington, on the other, both coveted the honor of the capitol. He collected from the Federal Government an old war debt of $1,300,000. He secured legislation fixing a maximum price for school books. He established two normal schools, and lengthened the school term in the country districts from five to six months.

But it was in a bitter struggle for the supremacy of the law that Beckham ran against Judge Ben Lindsey's "Beast." He believes that the law should keep pace with the growth of public sentiment, and that when enacted it should be enforced.

The South, topographically the most beautiful section of the country, has had its hurts and its heartaches, which it borne without sentimental appeal, and with heroic soul. Its people are grappling with everything that stands in the present way of its welfare. One of these evils is the liquor traffic, which has been—peculiarly wretched and sinister in its effects on the South.

If you travel through certain portions of the South, you will rarely pick up a local paper which does not descend on some tragedy that can be traced, directly or remotely, to strong drink. So the anti-liquor crusade is sweeping over the South. Yet it was not in any spirit of crusading that Beckham locked horns with the liquor interests of Kentucky. It was rather the thing that fell in his way as a public duty.

The constitution of Kentucky, adopted some twenty-five years ago, contained a provision that required the legislature to enact a law giving each county of the state the right to vote itself "wet" or "dry." This constitutional provision, like the one that prohibits railroad passes, was honored in the breach. Indeed, Kentucky legislators have been prone, in matters of reform, to adopt the policy of the Vermont Fathers, who resolved "that the laws of God and Connecticut be adopted until we have time to frame better."

Beckham obeyed the Constitution and recommended the enactment of a law in conformity with it; but the liquor interests succeeded in having exempted the larger cities.

Then there was a Sunday closing law on the statute books, which was openly violated in the cities, notably in Louisville. Beckham was appealed to, but he had no power to remove derelict city officials, and could make only a moral appeal to the mayor of Louisville to enforce the law, which was unsuccessful.

It so happened that shortly after this the Kentucky Court of Appeals decided that the election of all of Louisville's officials had been procured by fraud. The officers were by the court declared vacant, and the governor was empowered to fill them by appointment. Beckham went over the heads of the party machine and appointed a mayor with the understanding that the Sunday closing law would be enforced. It was enforced and is enforced to-day.

The "rectifiers" of Kentucky make a product that is sold as whiskey, but which is made up of various occult ingredients. They were doing an immense business in Kentucky, and paying very little in taxes. Beckham secured a law that taxed these "rectifiers" a cent and a quarter a gallon on their product. Also, he secured the passage of a law prohibiting the shipping of liquor into "dry" territory; but the Supreme Court of the United States held that this was unconstitutional, so far as it affected interstate shipments. The Louisville man, therefore, could take his whiskey across the river to Jeffersonville, Ind., and from there ship it to any point in Kentucky, wet or dry. The Webb law, later passed by Congress, is intended to remove these illicit accommodations and stop the traffic.

Beckham hardly had time to formulate his policies, after Goebel's death, when he was obliged to stand for another election. The politicians were against him, but the people were with him, and he received the votes of 700 out of the 900 delegates.

It was in the palm days of Mark Hanna, and that astute leader, under whose auspices Kentucky had gone Republican in 1896, believed Beckham could be beaten. The Republicans, therefore, put up their best man and their stoutest purse, but Beckham won by nearly 4,000 votes. Three years later there was no opposition to his nomination, and he carried the State by 27,000 plurality.

Towards the end of his second term as governor, Beckham, in 1906, became a candidate for the United States Senate. His candidacy aroused intense feeling in the camp of the liquor interests. In the primary election for the senatorship, in 1907, with the combined opposition of the party machine and the daily newspapers in Louisville, Lexington, Covington and Newport, the four largest cities in the State, Beckham carried 81 counties out of 119 in the State, with the liquor interests furnishing a plethoric purse toward his defeat. Beaten at the polls, the liquor interests retreated to the legislature, and four Democratic legislators voted at the beck of the whiskey ring for a Republican.

By agreeing to abandon the temperance cause for which he had stood, Beckham could have won; but he refused to trade—once more showing his courage and his devotion to principle.

In my opinion, gained after a journey last summer through Kentucky, that sacrifice of Beckham for a principle will make him the next United States senator from Kentucky as surely as it defeated him then. If there is anything in political justice, if there is any atonement for political wrongs, if a people are not ungrateful or indifferent, Beckham will be rewarded. Not that he looks for reward. "Victory is not always the true test of an honest and righteous cause," he said in a public speech after his defeat in 1908. "Success may have its pleasures, but failure may have its honor."

And let me add that, whether you believe in prohibition, or in the enforcement of the law, or whether you side with the liquor interests in Kentucky, the whiskey ring of that state has exercised more political power of late years in the State than all other corporations put together; and it is far more violent and autocratic.

If he should go to the senate, he will add to the dignity and the worth of that body. He is one whom the country at large will welcome to the councils of the nation. No man in Kentucky is hardy enough to question his integrity. The charge has been made that, since his return to the practice of law, his law firm has acted as local attorneys for the Louisville & Nashville railroad. Whoever his client, he is of that type of lawyer, whose convictions are not for sale with his services. His popularity is based largely upon his integrity, and he is the most popular man in Kentucky.

Geo. B. Powers, the real estate agent, sold for Miss Emma Osborn of Middletown, Ohio, her suburban property at Walton, to B. F. Stamler of Braich Station for $3,000. The property consists of a house and about seven acres and is at present occupied by Dr. W. W. Evans who will have possession for another year. Mr. Stamler will improve the property at once by new fences and painting.

H. W. Mayfield, the proprietor of the Walton Electric Light Plant, expects to have everything in readiness to light up the town next Saturday night. August 1st, and an extensive program is being arranged for the occasion in celebration of the event. There will be a brass band to discourse sweet music, good addresses made by public speakers, plenty of refreshments, and many other interesting features calculated to make it a most notable affair in the history of Walton.

Wm. T. Black, who was formerly manager of the Consolidated Telephone Company at this place, and is now the manager of The Central Home Telephone and Telegraph Company for Crittenden county, was awarded the prize of best at the head of the list of the respective counties of the Home Telephone Company for the past six months, by having no balances outstanding, and no unsatisfied accounts.

Very complimentary from the management which he sent to his Walton friends for perusal. His many friends in this quarter are proud to learn of his success in his new home, and wish him continued prosperity.

When To Cut Tobacco.

Forty nine years ago I began growing tobacco. A few years later I decided that there were certain days better than others on which to cut tobacco for it to cure up nicely and have a rich, waxy and heavy body. To find out the way to tell these dates, and to tell them ahead has been a hard job, but I was finally successful.

To explain, let me say that tobacco has an oily substance which is its natural possession. It has a sap (wax) on the other vegetation. When the sap raises, it runs the oil out through the pores of the leaves, on the principle that oil and water won't mix, and oil being the lighter is pushed out by the sap. Tobacco cut and cured in this state will be light and "chaffy," you see, there is nothing but sap in the tobacco—and when cured this sap is gone. It evaporates and leaves the tobacco light and worthless. But to cut tobacco when the sap is down and the oil has full sway, you can cure it up nicely and with a heavy body; it will be rich and "waxy." This happens because the tobacco is full of oil instead of sap, and the oil can't evaporate and remains in the leaf to make it rich and heavy.

It has been my experience that we must cut tobacco when there is oil in it, if we expect to have oil in it when cured. For instance, you have experienced cutting one week and have excellent luck, and then cut a few days later, probably off the same piece of ground and with ripe tobacco, and have no luck at all.

I shall be pleased to answer any correspondence from tobacco growers who may want to write me, provided postage is sent for reply.

Yours Truly,
D. V. DAVIS,
Fork, N. C.

Weather For This Week

Washington, July 26.—Warm and generally fair weather over the whole country was forecast to-night by the Weather Bureau for the first half of the coming week.

"The next disturbance of importance to cross the country," said the bureau, "will appear in the far West Monday or Tuesday and move eastward, crossing the great Central Valley of the United States near the end of the week. This disturbance will be attended by local showers and thunder storms, but will be followed by a change to cooler weather in the Northern and Central States. There are no indications at this time of a disturbance in the West Indies."

Money To Move The Crops.

Washington, July 26.—Money from the Federal treasury will be deposited in national banks throughout the country this fall to facilitate the movement of crops and promote business generally. Secretary McAdoo announced tonight that he would put out approximately thirty-four million dollars, and that he stood ready to increase the amount to any extent necessary to meet the country's needs.

The Secretary's estimate of what will be needed is based upon replies from 5,000 national banks to recent Treasury Department circular asking for any unusual demand for money was expected this year and for what purposes. Last year the department inaugurated the system of distributing funds in the crop handling centers, depositing about thirty-five million dollars of the fifty million Secretary McAdoo has decided to use for the purpose.

EXCHANGE ECHOES.

The question of bonding this county for $150,000 for the purpose of building good roads will soon be put to the voters.—Olive Hill Herald.

On the farm of Mr. Ed. Tompkins, near town, there is a cave known as the Shipley cave. Recently some unknown party or parties in digging near the cave, perhaps for Indian relics, unearthed a number of human bones. Mr. Tompkins now has in his possession a skull and several other bones. It is thought that the bones are those of Indians buried there years ago.—Albany New Era.

Roy Bishop operates a threshing machine and sleeps any old place when on the road. Recently he "hit the hay" in a tobacco barn with the hay for a night's repose. Along about 10 o'clock at night when the boys were flirting with Morpheus the crowd was started by an unearthly yell by Bishop. It seems a snake had been occupying the hay and retreating found it pre-empted by the boys, having crawled over Bishop's pedal extremities. He yelled, jumped up and in his haste to separate the distance between himself and the snake knocked three men down and fell a distance of twelve feet.—Wilmore Enterprise.

CHARCOAL FOR SWINE

One of Cheapest and Best Preventive of Diseases.

Missouri Writer Gives in Detail His Method of Using Timber Covered With Iron Covers to Secure Slow Burning of Heap.

Charcoal is one of the cheapest of disease preventives that can be fed to hogs. It is especially valuable in winter, whether the animals are in the fattening pens or in the woods lot. Charcoal can be bought, but this takes away its cheapness. It can be burned on the farm, and the burning takes but very little time or labor. Green or dry timber, corn cobs or heavy brush can be turned into charcoal.

The method I have used for a good many years is very simple. Along in the fall and winter, when I need more charcoal for the hogs, I dig a trench somewhere between 8 and 10 feet in length. I make it about three feet wide and about as deep as it is wide, says a Missouri writer in the Farm Progress. If possible, I burn the charcoal in the woods lot near the timber that I am using as this saves the time and trouble of hauling the wood.

Fill the trench full of wood, putting in enough dry timber to start it blazing well. Arrange the timber so you can start the fire near the center of the trench and at the bottom of the heap, so the fire will spread upwards and to either side through the logs.

Let it blaze pretty strongly, and allow enough headway to reach all parts of the heap. I want every stick in the pile to be ablaze before I proceed with the next step.

I use big sheets of iron to cover over the trench after it is thoroughly ablaze. Several years ago I picked up three or four old scraper bottoms, thick, heavy iron plates about forty-eight inches in width. I use these to cover the trench, laying them edge to edge, and stopping the places where they overlap, with wet clay. This keeps all the heat in, and the process of slow burning can go on underneath them. A little gaseous smoke and some of the heat escapes, but most of it remains under the plates.

After the iron-lid is on and for a day or two before removing the plates. I hardly ever fail to find about a wagon-bed full of fine charcoal when I open it.

The use of the sheet iron plates seems to smother the fire just enough to keep it from burning so freely as to destroy all the wood fiber, and yet gives it enough leeway to permit a slow combustion. Of course, if the pit is opened too soon the blaze will jump up again, and all the work will be for nothing.

In turning corn cobs into charcoal I follow about the same method as when turning timber into coals. They are placed in the pit, started to blazing, and then checked by being sealed up under the sheet iron. They char about the same time as timber. As a mineral element in hog rations charcoal is hard to beat. It is especially valuable in stimulating the appetite, and in freeing the intestinal tracts of the animals from various disturbances.

CARING FOR YOUNG ALFALFA

Practice of Pasturing Field in Fall and Winter is Harmful to Young and Old Plants.

(By O. O. CHURCHILL, Oklahoma Agricultural College.)

Many people, on account of shortage of pasture and to save feed, pasture their alfalfa during the fall and winter. This practice is harmful to alfalfa, whether it is young or old. No doubt it reduces the yields the following season, although the reduction may be very slight if conditions are favorable.

With the young alfalfa the practice is very harmful. It reduces the vigor of the plant, reduces the yield very materially the following years, and frequently kills out some of the young plants at a time when they are not very well developed. Fall seeded alfalfa should never be pastured during the same fall and winter in which it is seeded. The little feed which the alfalfa will furnish during the winter is far more offset by the decrease in yield.

When young alfalfa receives a setback it may require two or three years for it fully to recover, and during all this time the yields are smaller than they otherwise would be. It pays to give young alfalfa careful treatment and to give it every opportunity to make a good development.

POULTRY

TRAP-NESTING IS ADVOCATED

Only Certain Method of Separating Good Layers From the Poor is to Keep Daily Records.

That the only sure way to know which hens in a flock are doing the work and which are not "earning their keep," is by using the trap-nest, is the belief of Prof. James Dryden of the poultry husbandry department of the Oregon agricultural college.

"High egg production is not a characteristic of any one breed of fowls," says Professor Dryden. "The trap-nest has demonstrated this. There is no particular shape or type that indicates good laying qualities, so far, at any rate, as our present knowledge goes."

"The only certain method of separating the good layers from the poor is to use the trap-nest and keep a daily record of egg-laying. It is not always the fault of the feed and care that they don't do better. It is the misfortune of the hen herself very often; she couldn't lay if she wanted to."

It requires considerable time to keep a trap-nest record of a flock of hens. Not every farmer has the time, but if a few farmers in every county would trap-nest a flock of hens, in a few years all the farmers of the country would very likely have stock that were from heavy-laying, trap-nested fowls. Where it is possible for a farmer to devote a little time to it each day he will be well repaid for the labor.

"The Oregon experiment station is trap-nesting a large flock each year and it is doing the best it can to furnish the farmers of that state with stock from good layers, with the object of increasing the egg yield in the state. It is desirable, of course, to keep a full year's record for each hen, but if that is not possible, a record for a part of the year would be valuable. For instance, a record of the first six months of laying, beginning probably in November, would show which were the good winter producers."

PREPARE GEES FOR MARKET

Closer Fowls Are Confined, if Allowed Sufficient Room for Exercise, Better They Are.

A goose that is being fattened for market should never be permitted to swim in the water or to go any distance. The closer they are confined, as long as they have a pen for sufficient exercise, the better table poultry they make. To keep them clean while being fattened, cover the floor of the building in which they stay at night with a thick covering of straw. Remove this in the morning with a pitchfork, either into the air or sunlight where it will dry. Thoroughly scrape the floor, and cover it with dry sand or earth; as night approaches throw down the bedding again, and in this way they can be kept perfectly clean, and under these conditions they will improve much faster.

When the time comes for selling them, the geese should be confined in a limited space, provided with a building for shelter only, plenty of food to drink, and be fed all the time. A cornmeal, one-fourth bran and middlings, the balance of ground oats.

Remove Dead Carcasses. Never allow the carcasses of birds that have died to lie around and decay. Either bury them good and deep or better still, burn them. If you have no furnace or stove in which you want to burn them, saturate them good with kerosene and set fire to them. If you leave them uncovered and allow them to decay, your whole flock is liable to be stricken.

Pair of White China Geese.

This is best mixed with boiled milk, buttermilk, sour milk or skim milk, which, when thoroughly cooked, can be mixed into the meals to make the dry mash, and fed in boxes or troughs once or twice a day. In addition to this, a small amount of green food, the best of rye, clover or grass, may be provided with good results.

Remove Dead Carcasses. Never allow the carcasses of birds that have died to lie around and decay. Either bury them good and deep or better still, burn them. If you have no furnace or stove in which you want to burn them, saturate them good with kerosene and set fire to them. Highway Improvement

Congressman Borland of Missouri Says it is One of Biggest Questions Facing People.

Of the addresses given at the recent Federal Aid convention in Washington, called by the National Good Roads board, none contained a more comprehensive summary of the situation than the remarks of Representative William P. Borland of Missouri, who, among other things, said:

"I believe that the good road question is the biggest question, without exception, now facing the American people. In congress, we are trying earnestly and sincerely to deal with this problem of the extent and character of federal control and federal aid to good roads. There are difficulties confronting us."

"Some of us believe in a continuous system of roads; roads that go somewhere; roads that give us the benefit of the scientific progress of engineering skill that has been developed in connection with road building. We believe that federal aid, if it comes at all—and it must come—must mean a better type of roads, long roads, roads of higher class, roads of a more permanent character, roads that go somewhere, roads that mean something in the development of the country."

"I want to say to you frankly, that the wisest proposition to get through any legislative body is not a proposition that really means betterment; but a proposition that distributes its little advantages as widely as possible. If we could take a little federal money, or a good deal of federal money, or as much federal money as we could lay our hands on, whatever the amount might be, and spread it out over every road district in the United States, and put it in the hands of the existing road overseers for the existing system of roads, and not ask anything in return, we could get the greatest applause and the most tremendous unanimity of opinion back of it that any legislative proposition could possibly get. There is no doubt about that."

"But here is the idea that must occur to every thinking man. We do not have to improve the 2,150,000 miles of highways in the United States. That need not stagger any man's imagination. Experience has shown at the very threshold, at this subject, that 99 per cent of the traffic on roads goes over less than ten per cent of the roads. If we had a system of good roads leading fairly into every section of the country, within the reasonable reach of the majority of the citizens, and producers and tax payers of the country, this system would be a vast advantage over the present system of isolated local control of highways."

"If we can bring that about, by a spirit of self-sacrifice and co-operation, not necessarily with any subordination or pride of opinion—but if we can get together on the idea that it is better to have some good roads than it is to have no good roads, then we will all get behind some proposition and accomplish something for good roads; and it is going to take that spirit of co-operation and self-sacrifice to bring about legislation."

PATROL SYSTEM IN VIRGINIA

Experiments Made by Public Roads Office of Department of Agriculture on Earth Roads.

The office of public roads of the department of agriculture has been making experiments on an eight-mile stretch of road in Virginia to demonstrate the results that may be obtained on country earth roads by continuous work under a patrol system. A patrolman was employed to furnish a horse, a cart and small tools, and he was supplied with a road drag built of plank and required to furnish two horses to drag the road whenever it was in suitable condition for dragging, usually following each rain. The use of the road drag was greatly improved the final condition of the road and rendered it smooth and comfortable for travel for a greatly increased number of days in bad weather. The department expects to continue the experiment this year, for it is already apparent that the entire eight miles of road will show remarkable improvement under the systematic work of the patrolman.

Top-Working Apple Trees.
Apple trees up to a foot in diameter may be top-worked, if unproductive. Care, however, should be used that too much of the top is not removed in any one year. Cut off about one-third of the top the first year and insert scions on stubs not more than two or three inches in diameter. The next year remove more of the top and insert other scions, and the following year complete the work.

Guard Early Development.
No matter what the subsequent use of the pig on the farm is to be, his early development should be carefully guarded.

ROAD BUILDING

TEXAS BUILDING GOOD ROADS

Over Four Hundred Miles in Course of Construction—Many Counties Are Interested.

According to reports recently compiled for the consideration of the Texas Welfare commission, there are now in course of construction 437 miles of good roads within the state, with a prospect of doubling this amount during the next 13 months. On its face this looks like a large per cent of improved highways for Texas, but on an area basis it is a small showing, and to secure the per cent of mileage of good roads that the banner state, Connecticut, has we will have to build 525,000 miles more.

Several of the largest undertakings of the south are now contemplated in the state, and one or two have taken tangible form, writes Ida M. Darden, in the Houston Post. The Red river-to-the-gulf highway, the much talked of and long hoped for trans-state road, when built, will have a total mileage of 630, and will serve more than fifty million acres of the state's most desirable agricultural land. Two-thirds of the counties along the route of this proposed highway are now building their links of the great thoroughfare. It has been estimated by the Texas Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's association, who keeps close tab on road building throughout the state, that this highway will be completed by 1914, at the present rate of construction. It is held that the improvement of roads adds $10,000 per mile to contiguous property, and on this basis the building of the river-to-the-gulf highway will give a net increase in property values to property along this roadway of $400,000,000.

The counties through which this highway will pass are Galveston, Harris, Waller, Brazos, Robertson, Falls, Limestone, McLennan, Hill, Navarro, Johnson, Ellis, Tarrant, Dallas, Denton, Collin, Grayson and Cooke, the road to be double-tracked from Hearne north.

GRADE HALF MILE FOR $7.50

Riley County, Kansas, Outfit Did the Work in One Day—Three Men Were Necessary.

One traction engine, one road grader, and three men graded a half mile of road in one day. This was accomplished on a Riley county road at a cost of $7.50, says Kansas Industries. The engine, running on kerosene, consumed fuel at the rate of 20 gallons a day which, at a cost of 7 1/2 cents a gallon, cost $1.50. Three men were necessary to do the work—one to run the engine and two on the grader. With the exception of the engineer, the work can be handled easily by laborers. The cost of road grading ranges from $15 to $50 a mile, depending on the soil and condition of the road, the width graded, and the price of labor.

Grass and Live Stock.
Grass and live stock should go hand in hand. There is no farm, in my judgment, which, if properly handled and kept at least one-half of the time in grasses and clovers, and gradually brought under a proper system of rotation, would not produce more, in fact, double the crops which it now does, and yet constantly be growing better and better.

Chickens and Hogs.
If a woman can hate anything she hates a chicken-eating hog. The chickens don't know the difference between that kind and the other, so keep them apart, and keep peace in the family.

August Confederate Pensions.

The August Confederate pension distribution will run over $100,000. State Pension Commissioner Stone has 2,903 pensioners on the roll but 200 of these have died since their pensions were allowed.

At the present death rate says Stone, I believe we have reached the high water mark and the deaths will practically keep pace with the additions to the pension list from now on. The act of 1914 amending the pension law to permit confederate soldiers who took the oath of allegiance during the war under duress and in fear of death to secure pensions has raised difficult questions and Commissioner Stone is requiring proof that the applicant took the oath under such circumstances.

To do otherwise would be unfair to those veterans who fought it out. He said: "They must bring in proof to support their claims. To allow a veteran who took the oath of allegiance during the war to come in there on his own mere affidavit that he verily believed he would be killed or die of starvation or disease when he took the oath, while those who fought throughout the war or served their time in prisons are compelled to get up proof, would give them what took the oath a great advantage."—Ex.

Don't Pasture Young Alfalfa.

When alfalfa first comes up it looks so green, and there is usually such a good stand, that it is a temptation to pasture it a little especially if other pasture crops are short. If this is done however the result is sure to be harmful whether the alfalfa be new or old. Not only will the yield of the following cutting be reduced but many of the young roots will be broken and destroyed by the hoofs of the stock. The little feed that may be secured by such pasturing the first year is far offset by the decrease in the yield during the following spring and summer.

An authority on growing alfalfa says that when young alfalfa once receives a setback it may require two or three years for it to recover and that during all of this time yields are not so large as they would otherwise be if the alfalfa had been allowed to grow at will and get a good, strong root started. It is the best to give young alfalfa careful treatment and let it have every opportunity to make a good development.

Bees in A Residence.

Bees which had made their home between the joists in the second floor of the Ezra G. Hayes residence on the Aurora road for fifteen years were disturbed for the first time Saturday. Two wash tubs full, about thirty-two gallons of honey was taken out, some of it probably being several years old.

A small opening in the wall had served as an entrance for the bees, which had been allowed to pass in and out unmolested. The place was recently purchased by Martin J. Givan, and he found it necessary to remove the bees before moving into the house.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Every Part of "Thornhill" Wagons Must Pass Extreme Tests

Out at the saw mill the makers of this wagon select the pick of the oak and hickory. From three to five years they keep it under shelter—so piled that the air can circulate freely. When finally it is ready to go into a "Thornhill" Wagon, it is as dry as a bone—tough—well nigh unbreakable. The straight grained hickory for spokes and axles is steel-like in its strength. The oak for hubs and felloes is as sturdy as tough oak grows. As it goes thru the mill, each part is inspected again and again. All defective parts are thrown out. Each part must have the O. K. of scores of men. The steel and iron must pass extreme tests—twice as severe as ordinary service will ever demand. Machines, sensitive to the thousandth part of an inch, gauge the work for accuracy—perform the work that can best be done by machinery. It is this excess of caution—this surplus of strength—in every part—that makes the "Thornhill" come pretty close to utter perfection. Before anyone buys a wagon, they should find out about the six big points of superiority built into the "Thornhill". Let us show you this wagon.

Incentive To Cattle Growing.

Cheaper meat, though much to be desired, is not in sight. The catch from Kansas City says the number of cattle so far marketed this year is 15,000 short of the receipts during the same period last year. The receipts are the smallest for the same period in twenty years.

Kansas City is one of the great cattle markets of the country and the decrease in receipts is attributed to the drought last summer in the Southwest. The prevailing prices for cattle are the highest ever known for the month of July. The prediction is made that the August receipts will be much higher than the July level as has been customary in recent years. Next month will see prices heavily bringing up a hundred pounds in Kansas City.

This augurs poorly for any reduction in the prices of beefsteak. It indicates that the cattle supply in the West, which has been diminishing for some years, is still on the down grade, and also indicates that the raising industry is a profitable one of agricultural effort. Cattle may be grown anywhere in the United States, and some profit may be made in the South to create a profit than elsewhere, because of the mild climate and the consequent shortness of the feeding season.

The big ranches of the West formerly supplied the country with an abundance of cattle when taken in connection with the production in other parts of the United States. But the big ranches are disappearing. They are being cut up in small farms and the small farmers cannot raise cattle on the extended scale which was possible in the days of the "ranch kings" with their great herds scattered over thousands of acres of grazing lands. The shortage is the cattle supply is not confined to this country, but is world wide. The most sanguine of consumers can see no prospect of cheap beef.

A SHORT CROP CERTAIN.

Sufficient time does not remain this season to insure even an average crop in this country. The best crop of the year will be the grain crop, and grain having been raised an enormous crop in the United States the price of wheat is going at 70 cents per bushel and much of it is going into foreign countries. The price of corn and the short crop in many sections of the country will cause many million bushels of wheat to be sold for less than will not be fools enough to sell 80 pounds of wheat for 70 cents and pay a dollar for 50 pounds of corn. The farmers who will fatten their hogs upon wheat and the price of flour will not go much lower. The drought in Kentucky will cut the corn and tobacco crop 50 per cent. The only consolation the farmer has is the fact that a short crop of tobacco is likely to bring as much money as a full crop.

The hay crop while a short one is better in many localities than was expected. The many large straw ricks in the country will do much toward wintering the stock in the hands of the farmers. The early crop of corn will be sown early this fall to provide winter spring pasture. The droughts the past two years have caused many land owners to make up their minds to sow their ground in grass pasture and meadows and cultivate less of it. Owen County Democrat.

Try It Once.

Did you ever take a subscription around to secure aid for a public enterprise? If you have not do so once. It is the place to study human nature. One man will meet you with a smile and back up to the first convenient place and down will go his name. The next one will ask all kinds of questions and finally insinuate that you are getting a rake off. The next one will meet you with a smile and convince you that he would help the enterprise if he was able and sends you away with a good taste in your mouth. The next one will want to know what and so is going to do for the enterprise and gets out of putting his name down by telling you he will wait to see what they do. Then you will come to old ten per cent. He will look wise and tell you that he has no interest in the matter, he is getting too old to contribute to anything and when you leave him you will feel like the devil had been doing his best to convince you. But after all the people as a whole are all right. It takes the many kinds to make the lump. —Enterprise.

PRICE OF MEAT RISING.

New York, July 15.—Retail prices of meats were raised 1 to 3 cents today in New York City. Dealers state that wholesale prices of beef are now higher than at any time before in 30 years—have increased 4 cents, and retail prices are 10 cents in three weeks in the New York cattle market, reaching 10 1/2 cents per pound of cattle on the hoof in New York City this week. In pork, according to dealers' statements today, a rise of 50 per cent has been recorded, but the market alone temporarily has not increased in price. Admitting an advance of price of at least 2 cents per pound, the local manager of one of the big packing houses said that the present imports from Australia and South America alone kept the prices from further rise.

Moonlight Schools in Hardin.

Hardin county is in the midst of a great educational revival. A week's campaign, with speaking in every school house, has been waged, and Moonlight Schools are to be opened soon. Fifty teachers having volunteered to teach them, following an eloquent address and appeal by Mr. Harry A. Sommers. The Hardin County Board of Education has the distinction of being the first in the State to offer a prize to the teacher who teaches the largest number of illiterates. The Woman's Club of Elizabethtown offers the same amount for the same purpose, and is the first Woman's Club in the State to offer such a prize. Supt. Payne, of Hardin county, the Hardin County Board of Education, Hardin County Public School Teachers, the Woman's Club of Elizabethtown, and Col. Harry A. Sommers are all banded together to wipe illiteracy out of Hardin. It has not a chance to exist in that county.

PRIZE OFFER TO TEACHERS.

To the Kentucky teacher who writes the best article on story on "My Moonlight School," the Kentucky Society of College Dames will give the sum of $150. The story must be true in every detail. It must be written by the teacher who taught such school. It must give date of opening, length of term, enrollment, age of youngest and oldest pupil and results. It must be sent to the Kentucky Literacy Commission, Frankfort, on or before Nov. 1st, 1914.

The judges will be: Dr. J. C. Crabbe, President H. H. Cherry, Hon. Barksdale Hammett, Supt. Ella Lewis, Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart.

LINCOLN COUNTY FIGHTING ILLITERACY.

Lincoln county, which wrote a brilliant page in Kentucky's history through its representative in the last General Assembly, Hon. Stetson M. Saulley, who championed the bill creating the Kentucky Literacy Commission, has written another. Supt. Garland Singleton and forty-six of this county's teachers have agreed to teach moonlight schools to wipe out illiteracy. The Stanford Inter-Journal and the people of Lincoln county are cheering these educators enthusiastically.

EVERY SCHOOL IN MONTGOMERY A MOONLIGHT SCHOOL.

Montgomery is the first county to have every teacher, both white and colored, to pledge themselves to conduct moonlight schools. At so, Supt. Georgia Siedel, former Supt. M. G. Goodwin and Supervisor O. R. Gear have enlisted. The Moonlight Schools in Montgomery county will begin in September, and the teachers will canvass their districts on Labor Day to secure large attendance.

Genl. Bennett H. Young.

Gen. Bennett H. Young, speaking at Madisonville in behalf of his candidacy for the short term, said he has been persistently and continuously charged and never denied that Hon. Johnson N. Camden, now candidate for the United States Senate for the short term, refused to vote for William Jennings Bryan in 1896, 1900 and 1908, when Mr. Bryan was the democratic standard bearer for the Presidency. Twenty days ago I publicly stated this and advised Mr. Camden that if he would deny the charge I would take the opportunity in my next speech I made to right him in this regard. Nothing has come from him on the subject.

"If Mr. Camden does not afford to vote for Mr. Bryan when three times nominated by his party for the Presidency, can the Democratic Party vote for Mr. Camden for the United States Senate?" "It may be true that Mr. Camden refused to vote for Bryan for campaign funds the fabulous sum of $45,000, but can he, when refusing to support the party leaders, win the votes of Democrats by continuing to campaign for campaign funds, even though these are large enough to stagger belief?" "As to what party Mr. Camden belonged before there is no record. He made no speeches, he helped in no canvasses. As far as the public knows he did nothing in advocacy of Democratic principles until 1911. Will two barbeques, where crowds can be fed at twenty-five cents a piece, and big campaign money make a Democrat suitable for U. S. Senator?" Advertisement

Medicine In Food.

The garden is a great medicine chest. Be your own doctor and look to your own slight ailments. If you are wakeful eat lettuce. For afflictions of the skin and yellow skin eat onions. Onions are also good for colics, coughs, scrofula. For a torpid liver eat freely of asparagus. If the bowels are diseased try blackberries. For mucus and general breakdown eat cranberries. If nervous and irritable eat plenty of celery. For constipation eat fruits, ripe and healthy fruits. Fresh fruits are good; so are figs and dates. Raisins are beneficial. When the body is in good condition keep it in good condition by denying the appetite what has once injured the body. One can do everything for himself by eating right and not too much of it, and by leaving alone the wrong thing and all of it. He can do more than doctors can do when he is flat on his back in bed.

Time for Fertilizing.

Frankfort, July 15.—Having employed the $3,000 appropriation for farm demonstrations the last two years in showing farmers how to build concrete roads, increasing the number from 300 to 2,553 in the State, Commissioner of Agriculture J. W. Newman is now turning his attention to the question of providing cheap lime for fertilizing the farms. He announced today that he has closed a deal with the manufacturers of limestone granulators for two machines, which the manufacturers will take back at the original cost price, being satisfied with the advantage accruing from the demonstration of the machine. The machines with an expert in charge, will be furnished free to the farmers, and make providing the limestone and engine and employ such labor as is necessary. The limestone can be ground at a cost of 50 cents the ton this way. Commissioner Newman said, and set up on the farmer's place will grind out fifteen to twenty tons the day. It requires four tons to the acre. To fertilize properly the soil. The need for lime on the farms of Kentucky, he declared, is critical. In many places the calcium content of the soil is so low that the crops are starved, alfalfa, soy beans or cow peas, all of which produce nitrogen in the soil, an element necessary for other crops. Nitrogen is the most expensive element in the most of the farmer's fertilizer. Newman said, and a crop of red clover, Mr. Newman said, will produce 250 worth of nitrogen to the acre.

Outlook For Rabbits Good.

Hunters say that the outlook for rabbits this year was never so encouraging. Squirrels also have been very plentiful in the woods. Last year was a great squirrel year and the sudden appearance of so many of these animals last year was a surprise to the hunters, as for several years squirrels, like other game in Kentucky, have been diminishing. The year's close season on squirrels, and every woodland in the State would be full of them. Dove shooting, will be about as usual, with the outlook for better sport this year than last. Doves should be protected for at least two years. —Blue Grass Clipper.

NEVER OUT OF SEASON

DESSERT OF CARAMELS ALWAYS IN ORDER.

Standby of the Hostess is This Delicious Confection—Many Methods of Serving It Have Been Put on Record.

Caramel is one of the delicious dessert flavors that are easy to prepare regardless of the season. For the reason caramel desserts are standbys winter and summer alike. A caramel cake can be as easily made when the markets are empty as when they are full. Here is a recipe for caramel cake: Mix two cups of butter until they are creamy. Sift three cups of flour with three teaspoons of baking powder and add this, alternately with a cup of vanilla, and add the stiffly beaten whites of four eggs. Bake the batter in layers and fill with caramel filling, made in this way: Mix two cups of brown sugar with a cup of cream and add a teaspoonful of vanilla. Cook for three-quarters of an hour. When it is partly cool add two teaspoonfuls of vanilla.

This is another caramel filling: Boil three cups of brown sugar, half a cup of condensed milk, a quarter of a cup of water and a teaspoonful of butter for five minutes. Then take from the fire, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and beat until it thickens. Add three-quarters of a cup of chopped pecan nut meats.

Cream caramel sauce is made by browning two rounded tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar and adding a cup of cream to it, then stirring and cooking slowly until it is creamy.

Caramel Bavarian cream is made in this way: Put two tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar in a saucepan and brown it over a hot fire. Add a pint of cream to it, and grate and add the rind of a big lemon. Heat the cream until it has dissolved the caramel. Beat the yolks of six eggs and six tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar together and when it is creamy add to the hot cream. Cook it over hot water until it is smooth and thick. Add four tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin which has been dissolved and let the mixture cool. When it is cool and is just beginning to set whip in a pint of stiffly whipped cream. Pour the mixture into a mold, chill and serve.

This is the way to make caramel custard: Cook four tablespoonfuls of sugar until it is a light brown. Pour with three tablespoonfuls of sugar. Add a cup and a half of cream or rich milk and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour into the baking dish on top of the caramel. Bake in a pan of water until it is set. Instead of cooking the custard in a hot dish, a little of the caramel can be put in each of half a dozen custard cups, and the custard mixture poured over it. Then they can be baked, and when they are done turned out on individual dishes. Serve cold.

Here is a recipe for caramel mousses: Melt half a cup of sugar until it is dark brown and add a cup of boiling water. Cook it slowly for 12 minutes and then add to it a level teaspoonful of granulated gelatin which has been soaking till it is soft. Cool the mixture and add a pint of thick cream, whip it stiff, and pack in a mold in ice and salt for three hours.

Bancroft Pudding.
Cream four tablespoonfuls butter and one cup sugar and add one well beaten egg. Sift one and one-half cups flour with one-half teaspoon salt and one teaspoon baking powder. Add one-half cup of flour, to the first mixture, and beat thoroughly, then add the rest of the flour and one-half cup of milk, alternately. Finally beat one-quarter sugar chocolate into the batter and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven.

Sauce.—Beat two eggs until very light, then add one cup of confectioner's sugar and one cup of thick cream. Beat until the whole is the consistency of whipped cream.

Candied Sweet Potatoes.
Method.—Pare some sweet potatoes and cut lengthwise into one-half-inch slices. Drop into hot water and boil ten minutes. Drain, place a layer in a flat buttered baking pan, season lightly with salt, pepper and a sprinkling of sugar, dot with butter and bake until tender and a golden color. While several layers can be baked in a pan, for the sake of keeping the slices whole, one layer in a large pan is best.

Aunt Sally's Pudding.
Crumb any or all kinds of stale cake quite fine. Stir the whites of an egg with just enough cold water to moisten the crumbs, not allowing them to get too soft. Press this mixture into a well buttered mold, with a fitted cover; boil for one hour; turn out while hot and eat with hard or vanilla sauce.

Fried Celery.
Wash, scrape and cut celery into three-inch pieces, dip in batter and fry in deep hot fat. Serve with tomato sauce. For the batter mix one-half cup of bread flour, one-fourth teaspoon salt, a few grains of pepper, one-half cup milk and one egg well beaten.

When Boiling Potatoes.
Add a little milk to the water in which potatoes are boiled. It will prevent the potatoes from becoming dark and improve the flavor.

DISHES FOR SUNDAY SUPPER

Something New That the Family and the Guests Will Be Sure to Appreciate.

For a change on Sunday night try this salad: Marinate with your favorite thin salad dressing three-quarters of a pint of any cold meat or fish (never mix meat and fish) two tablespoonfuls of capers, one egg boiled hard and chopped, one tablespoonful each of olives, dill pickles and pimientos, two dashes of paprika, celery salt, taste; stir well. Serve cold in two hours on lettuce leaves garnished around the edges with slices of hard-boiled eggs, sprigs of parsley and thin slices of Swiss cheese.

Another supper dish is made of the pine of macaroni, macaroni and butter, which is about one-third of a package, one-half pint of stewed tomatoes, to which are added two bouillon cubes, one gill of grated rich cheese, two tablespoonfuls of chopped bacon and one of bacon fat, one tablespoonful of minced onion, one dash of salt, one dash of pepper, salt and pepper to taste. Rub a baking dish with butter. Mix all ingredients thoroughly, put them into the baking dish, brown in a hot oven. Both dishes are satisfactory served with graham toast.

PROPER WASHING OF TOWELS

Those Used in the Kitchen Require Especial Treatment to Be of Good Service.

Towels used in the kitchen should always be rinsed in moderately cool water and then washed in hot, soapy water. They should be rinsed and then dried in the open air. If time is at premium they need not be ironed. Probably this laxity would shock many careful housewives, but a clean towel, dried in the open air, is quite as useful for drying dishes as one that is ironed smooth.

One clever woman always saves the coarse sacks that sugar and salt come in—the big ones. She rips the side seams and hems the ends and uses them for towels for pots and pans.

A doll's clothesline, which comes with half a dozen tiny clothespins and two small pulleys, is a convenience for drying kitchen towels. It can be fastened from the kitchen porch to a nearby tree, and extra clothespins can be bought for a small price. The pulleys, rope and six pins are sold for ten cents.

Stewed Apples.
In cooking apples it may not be known generally that the more quickly they are cooked after paring the richer and better they are. An apple begins to be discolored as soon as the skin is removed, and this discoloration continues in the cooking. As quickly after paring as possible, put half a dozen apples, sliced, into a pan with two-thirds as much water as the bulk of the apples. Cover them and let them cook as rapidly as possible. Watch them closely to prevent burning, and when they are falling to pieces put into them two-thirds of a cup of sugar, stirring it quickly. They are delicious also served cold.

Creamed Cod in Potato Case.
Boil and mash six good sized potatoes, add one egg, a gill of milk, salt and pepper to taste and beat well. Pieces put into a mold and scald one pound of boneless salt cod, drain and scald again. Now press fish until dry. Put one large tablespoonful butter in a frying pan and add two tablespoonfuls flour. Mix and add one pint of milk. Stir till it thickens and add pepper to taste. Grease a pudding mold and line bottom and sides with the potato. Add the cod to the cream and fill the center. Cover the top with potato and bake a nice brown. It may be served in the dish it was baked in or turned out.

Baking Powder Biscuits.
Into a mixing bowl put two cups sifted flour, one level teaspoon salt, four level teaspoons baking powder. Mix and sift several times. Rub in two level tablespoonfuls butter or one of butter and one of lard, till fine and mealy. Wet with one cup of milk and mix thoroughly. Turn out on a well-floured board and pat out with rolling pin, using flour enough on board to prevent sticking. Bake in hot oven from 10 to 15 minutes.

English Tea Biscuits.
To one cup hot mashed potato add half cup sugar and one yeastcake dissolved in half cup lukewarm water. Cover and let rise; then add half a cup each of butter and sugar, two eggs well beaten, one teaspoon salt and three and one-quarter cups of flour. Knead, again let rise, shape, and bake in modern oven. And, it is liked, half cup of raisins, cut in pieces or currants.

Simple Jelly Bag Strainer.
Another old method of straining jelly by hanging the bag on a broom handle—because two chairs might be banished from the efficient kitchen by using a new strainer with a bag which sits on a stand on the table. A large iron ring suspends the bag, which drips into a bowl on the table. All juices can thus be strained without attention, and the mullin bag may be easily cleaned, and the strainer packed away when not in use.

TAKE PLACE OF MEAT

NOURISHING AND CHEAP MEALS MADE OF NUTS.

Turkey Roast One of the Most Approved Methods of Serving Them.—Meat Loaf Also is an Excellent Recipe.

Nut Turkey Roast.—Thoroughly wash one cupful of German lentils and soak over night. The next morning boil slowly until tender, then run through a colander. Add one-half cupful of chopped walnut meats, one well-beaten egg, a quarter cupful of minced onion and one cupful of minced celery that have been browned together in a little olive oil. Add salt and sage to season and thicken with bread crumbs. Dip thin slices of bread in a mixture of one egg and a cupful of milk beaten together. Now in a well buttered casserole or baking pan make alternate layers of the two mixtures. Surround with any dressing preferred and bake from forty to sixty minutes in a moderate oven.

Nut Meat Loaf.—One-half cupful of chopped or ground pecans, one-half cup of walnut meats, one cupful of dry bread or cracker crumbs, two eggs and one tablespoonful of melted butter. Wet the crumbs with milk, and as the crumbs soak add more milk if necessary. It should be a little too thick to run. Butter well a small bread pan. Turn in the mixture after stirring well and cover with dough or butter. Bake in the oven a half hour. Cut in slices and serve hot. The next day slices can be covered in thickened and strained juice from a can of tomatoes and fried. Served with creamed potatoes meats a good combination. All walnut meats make a roast a trifle dry, can be used if pecans are too expensive.

Nut and Vegetable Roast.—Take cooked beans or peas, press through a colander to remove the skins and mix with an equal quantity of finely chopped nut meats. Season to taste and put one-half the mixture in a buttered baking dish. Spread over it a dressing made in this wise: Take four slices of zwieback and pour boiling water over it to cover. Let stand ten or twelve minutes, break up with a fork and pour over it one-half cupful of sweet cream. Season with salt, a bit of pepper and, if liked, a touch of sage. Cover the dressing with the remainder of the nut mixture, pour over all one-half cupful of cream and bake slowly an hour and a half in a moderate oven. Serve in slices with cranberry sauce.—The Delineator.

Pumpkin or Squash Pies.
In making pumpkin pies I make the shell first, crimping the edge and making sure the air is out from under the crust. In the meantime I have my squash or pumpkin cooking on the stove, pared and diced; when I can pierce it with a straw I take it off the stove and drain it through a colander; when perfectly dry, I run it through colander with my hand. This is my rule for pumpkin pie. I add an egg for squash and leave out ginger, one and one-half cups pumpkin, one and one-fourth cups milk, cooking spoon flour, little nutmeg, salt and ginger, one-eighth teaspoon of cinnamon. I heat this all together and let it stand perhaps twenty minutes, when I beat it again and pour into shell. Bake in slow oven, sometimes half a day. My pies are dainties. Try it and see how you get along. If your piep bowl they are spoiled. A squash or pumpkin pie should bake at least two hours to be really good.

Baked Apple Dumplings.
Pare and core six nice round apples. Put a piece of butter and a teaspoonful of sugar into each. Then make a covering as follows: Take four cups of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, and four teaspoonfuls of baking powder and stir thoroughly. Add a piece of lard as large as a duck egg. Moisten with milk, a pint, more or less, according as the handling of the dough permits. Work it quickly and lightly. Form the dough into cup shapes and in them place the apple, drawing the edges together in the middle. Place all over with a fork and bake in a quick oven about 20 minutes. Serve hot with cream and sugar.

Tongue and Egg Salad.
Cut cold tongue in thin slices, then cut again into pieces about one inch square; arrange a layer of tongue on fresh lettuce leaves, and on the tongue place a layer of hard-boiled eggs sliced thin; then another layer of tongue, and cover all with a good mayonnaise. Decorate the dish with slices of cold beets and parsley.

Meat on Toast.
Take cooked meat of any kind. Put through the meat grinder with a little onion. Then put in pan with a little water and piece of butter, salt and pepper. Heat hot and put on toasted bread. This is a good way to use up pieces of meat and makes a nice dish for supper.

Poor Man's Boiled Dinner.
Two pigs' knuckles, one head of cabbage, one large turnip, one carrot, four large potatoes; boil knuckles two hours, then add cabbage, turnip, carrot; boil half an hour, then add potatoes; boil half hour. Delicious.

Apples for Pies.
Apples cut in irregular pieces will cook more quickly in a pie than if sliced, for they do not pack closely as slices do and so the hot air comes more easily in contact with the fruit and cooking is facilitated.

When To Cut Tobacco.

Forty nine years ago I began growing tobacco. A few years later I decided that there were certain days better than others on which to cut tobacco, for it to cure up nicely and have a rich, waxy and heavy body. To find out the way to tell these dates, and to tell them ahead has been a hard job, but I was finally successful.

To explain, let me say that tobacco has an oily substance which is its natural possession. It has a sap (water) like other vegetation. When the sap is raised, it runs the oil out through the pores of the leaves, on the principle that oil and water won't mix, and oil being the lighter, it is pushed out by the sap. Tobacco cut and cured in this state will be light and "chaffy" you see, there is nothing in the tobacco to wind and when cured this sap is gone. It evaporates and leaves the tobacco light and worthless. But to cut tobacco when the sap is down and the oil has full away, you can cure it up nicely and with a heavy body. It will be rich and waxy. This happens because the tobacco is full of oil instead of sap, and the oil can't evaporate and remains in the leaf to make it rich and heavy.

It has been my experience that we must cut tobacco when there is oil in it, if we expect to have oil in it when cured. For instance, when we experience cutting one week and have excellent luck and then cut a few days later, probably off the same piece of ground and with ripe tobacco, and have no luck at all.

I shall be pleased to answer any correspondence from tobacco growers who experience cutting one, provided postage is sent for reply.

Yours Truly,
D. V. DAVIS,
Fork, N. C.

Weather For This Week

Washington, July 28.—Warm and generally fair weather over the whole country was forecast to-night by the Weather Bureau for the first half of the coming week.

"The next disturbance of importance to cross the country," said the bureau, "will appear in the far West Monday or Tuesday and move eastward, crossing the great Central Valley Wednesday on Thursday and the Eastern States on Friday and Saturday of the week. This disturbance will be attended by local showers and thunder storms and be followed by a change to cooler weather in the Northern and Central States. There are no indications at this time of a disturbance in the West Indies."

Money To Move The Crops.

Washington, July 28.—Money from the Federal treasury will be deposited in national banks throughout the country this fall to facilitate the movement of crops and business generally. Secretary McAdoo announced tonight that he would put out approximately thirty-four million dollars and that he stood ready to increase the amount to any extent necessary to meet the country's needs.

The Secretary's estimate of what will be needed is based upon replies from 5,000 national banks to recent Treasury Department circular asking whether any unusual demand for money was expected this year and for what purposes. Last year the department inaugurated the custom of distributing funds in the crop handling centers, depositing about thirty-five million dollars of the fifty million Secretary McAdoo had decided to use for the purpose.

The question of bonding this county for $150,000 for the purpose of building good roads will soon be put to the voters.—Olive Hill Herald.

On the farm of Mr. Ed. Tompkins, near town, there is a cave known as the Shipley cave. Recently some unknown party or parties in digging near the cave, perhaps for mortar relics, unearthed a number of human bones. Mr. Tompkins now has in his possession a skull and several other bones. It is thought that the bones are those of Indians buried there years ago.—Albany New Era.

Roy Bishop operates a threshing machine and sleeps any night place when on the road. Recently he "hit the hay" in a tobacco barn where the boys for a night's repose. Along about 10 o'clock at night when the boys were flirting with Morpheus the crowd was startled by an unearthly yell by Bishop. It soon became known that he was occupying the hay and turning found it pre-empted by the boys. He crawled over Bishop's head, extricated himself, and jumped up and in his haste to separate the distance between himself and the snake, knocked three men down and fell a distance of twelve feet.—Wilmore Enterprise.

Edgar C. Riley had a new galvanized roof put on his residence last week. This is the second time in the last two years that a new roof has been put on that building.

James Linn Huey.

Again the grim monster, Death, has entered our midst, and taken from us one of our faithful and useful members, James Linn Huey, who fell in sleep, July 13, 1914, and entered into that rest that remaineth to the people of God.

Brother Huey had been in bad health for two or three years. Nothing to cause alarm, but a gradual decline. A short time before the paralytic stroke that took him off, his buggy turned over on him and mangled him up considerably from which he had never fully recovered.

As per notices in the Recorder, he was an old holder, one of Morgan's daring men. During his last illness he never seemed to suffer or at least he never complained, and at the time of his death he was 75 years five months and nineteen days old.

He had been a member of Big Bone Baptist church for 50 years. He was loyal and faithful to his church obligations. He was quiet and unassuming in disposition, not making himself a center of his affairs. He was Treasurer of the cemetery for a number of years and conducted the business to the satisfaction of all.

He was successful as a business man and was one of the most liberal members we had. He was married to Mary Ann, daughter of Lewis and Susan Ayler, Dec. 24, 1868. To this union one child was born, Linnaeus Lee, who passed away March 13th, 1902.

Sister Huey preceded her husband ten years, having departed this life April 16, 1894. Brother Huey never became fully reconciled to the death of his wife and son. He was lonely and distressed. He was a fine citizen and will be greatly missed.

He leaves one brother and a host of relatives to mourn his loss. His funeral was conducted from the Big Bone Baptist church, July 15th, by Revs. O. M. Huey and the writer, after which he was tenderly laid to rest by the side of his wife and son. We commend the sorrowing ones to "Him who doeth all things well."

Wm. McMillan.

Mrs. Emmet Gullion Dead.

The demise of Mrs. Mollie Gullion, which occurred at 11:30 a. m. Tuesday at their home on Sixth street, had been a long and painful one. She was a woman of many virtues, ever endeared herself to the people of Carrollton than the people of Burlington.

She had suffered several months with tuberculosis of the bone which weakened her heart, and she finally succumbed to her death. She was taken seriously ill early that morning, which was known only to a few, therefore Mrs. Gullion's death was a surprise to her many friends.

Mrs. Gullion was born in Boone county and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gullion. She was married to Mr. Emmet Gullion, and her age was sixty years, two months and 18 days.

Her affection for her husband and her devotion to her family, her work in the church was one of her greatest pleasures and her lodges—Rebekahs and U. D. C.—a delight and a pleasure.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Joe Morris and Miss Louise Gullion and one sister, Jennie Gullion—Carrollton News.

Mrs. Gullion was a resident of Burlington many years, and her many friends here regret very much her death.

Her husband, daughters and sister have the sympathy of her Boone county friends and relatives in their sad bereavement.

John T. Craven Dead.

John T. Craven, one of the county's oldest and wealthiest citizens, died at his home on Third street, Tuesday, August 5, 1914, at the age of 81 years.

He was born in Boone county, and he would have celebrated his nineteenth birthday had he lived until next Saturday. He was a son of Benjamin and Cynthia Craven, and is the last of a family of ten children. He was reared on a farm and received most of his early education in the schools at Burlington.

On November 3, 1853, he was united in marriage to Jane A. Mirrick, a daughter of Col. Dorchester H. and Martha (Porter) Mirrick, who survives him. Besides his wife he leaves a large number of relatives and many friends, who sympathize with her in the loss of her husband.

Mr. Craven was a member of the Burlington Universalist Church, at which place his funeral will be preached to-day (Thursday) at 11:30 a. m., by Rev. J. B. Boehm, after which his remains will be laid to rest in Odd-Fellows cemetery.

The Erlanger Fair.

Catalogue of the four days of the Erlanger fair, which opens August 19th and closes August 22, show that an attempt will be made to make them the most successful in its history. The program list is much longer than usual and the special features are being made to attract the people. There are always a large number of entrants. The features will be the Erlanger will be run the last day. Among the other free attractions will be motor cycle races, automobile races, Aeroplan flights and Tango Dancing.

FARMERS' PICNIC

Held at Waterloo Last Thursday Attended by A Thousand People A Great Crowd and Big Dinner

The most successful and helpful meeting of the farmers of Boone county was held at Waterloo, last Thursday. The spirit of better things in Agriculture was in the air. George Smith, one of Boone county's own sons, made the first speech. His subject was "The Ideal Citizen." We are always glad to know our own boys are making good. This subject was handled well. It was interesting for us to think of the progress this young preacher has made. His success should inspire many of our young men to enter larger fields of usefulness by proper preparation for life's work.

Dr. Fred Mutchler, of the Extension Work of the National Department of Agriculture, was our next speaker. His speech dealt with the County Agent or Farm Doctor as he is sometimes called. The National and State Governments are paying half the salary of County Agents. There are sixteen hundred dollars per year. Already 21 of these agents are at work in the state and next year will be 25. In this place in Kentucky, 15 counties have applied and he wants Boone to make application at once. In practice the agents of the county Fiscal courts pay part or all the salaries of these agents. These agents have stamped out the hog and black leg, eliminated smut from wheat and have been the means of enriching all of the counties in which they have worked. Dr. Mutchler says in many places the banks pay the salary of such experts and for our county he suggested the Fiscal Court and School Board pay five hundred dollars and the people raise two hundred and fifty dollars. At once ten men agreed to give five dollars each to raise part of this money. Let the people of the county consider this work at once. Seed wheat treated this alone would save the farmers of our county hundreds of dollars. Mr. Mutchler also spoke of the afternoon. He is by far the most interesting and helpful speaker we have ever had in our farmers gatherings.

Dr. Richardson, of Ohio State University, spoke of the "Prevention of Hog Cholera." This was ably handled. Last year our own county left the stings of this disease to be recommended in most cases and only under the most scientific direction should the disease be treated. Dr. Richardson's presence in the Waterloo community should be an incentive for those people to raise more hogs and more stock.

Aside from these good addresses this occasion was a very enjoyable one. The weather was just what the farmers need. Boone county people have caught the spirit of progress. Be careful, if any individual should not get into the way he is in danger of being drowned by the wave of better roads, better schools and better agriculture which, all in all will mean happier homes.

Supt. Rely is having all the common school buildings in the county painted and by the time school opens the buildings will be completed and will be a pleasing sight to pupils and teachers.

The school per capita for 1914 and 15 is $4.50, the highest in the history of the State. This money goes for the payment of teachers and will be distributed among the counties and cities in proportion to the scholastic population.

At an early date a large number of trustees are to be elected and the school board will select material for the trusteeships. The trustees should be teachers of the rural schools and a good board of trustees is more likely to serve the best interests of the district than an incompetent board.

Boone county has made good progress in school affairs in the past few years, and will make still greater advancement if the people in the rural districts can be induced to take the proper interest in the selection of trustees and teachers and a providing suitable school equipment.

The average farmer is probably not aware of the fact that an average mule sells for $10 a head more than horses. Such is the case and the price has been gradually rising for a number of years. There has never been what would be called an over production of mules, and the market has been unable to fully supply the demand.

The last will and testament of James L. Huey was filed and offered for probate in the county court, Monday, and objections to the probate were made. The hearing on the case was set for August 8th. Mr. Huey left his estate to his brother, T. A. Huey, and two sons, James and Thomas, share and share alike.

It is claimed the mussel industry along the Ohio river is in its infancy, not only in the quality of shells, but also because of the many fine pearls found by the fishermen, ranging in value from a few dollars to hundreds.

Beckham and Wilson Nominees

Following are the nominees in the State Primary last Saturday for U. S. Senator:

LONG TERM.
Democrat—J. C. W. Beckham.
Republican—A. E. Wilson.
Progressive—Burton Vance.

SHORT TERM.
Democrat—J. N. Camden.
Republican—W. M. Bullitt.
Progressive—G. C. Nicholas.

The Primary in Boone.

The primary held in this county last Saturday was a very tame affair. The Democratic vote was about 300 below the estimate of the politicians and about 1,000 less than the normal. There was little interest among the Republicans, about one-third of the vote being polled.

For the long term Democratic nomination for United States Senator—Beckham, 528; Stanley 248; McCreary 191.

Short term—Camden 510; Young 237; Smith 38.

Long term Republicans—Wilson, 49; Ernst 101, McLaughlin 11.

Short term—Fitzpatrick 31; Bullock 11.

Beckham carried the county over Stanley by 280, receiving eighty-seven more votes than Stanley and McCreary combined. The small vote received by Gov. McCreary, who has always been strong with the Democrats, was due to the complete disappointment to his many friends. He failed to carry a single precinct in the county.

Only three votes for the Progressive candidates were polled in the county.

BASE BALL.

The Hebron-Burlington game of last Monday was one of the best and most exciting games of the season. Hebron came over to the Boone grounds and brought with them Snyder, who plays short stop and Vannetter a first-class pitcher of Ludlow, Burlington.
